Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Part II: Subhead detail table in Main Estimates for each year provide outturn data for one prior year, but these are only broken down to net total resources for each section in the table.

There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of these data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which are in the House Library) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash DEL split (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08). However, we have been able to provide a near-cash/non-cash split against the columns in the Part II: Subhead detail table in our Estimate by identifying non-cash items (cost of capital charges, depreciation, new/adjusted provisions, notional audit fees and other notional charges, losses on disposal of fixed assets) shown in the notes to our Resource Accounts. All other items are near cash. The Resource Accounts do not split non-cash items between 'Other current expenditure' and 'Grants', therefore all non-cash programme items have been allocated to 'Other Current Expenditure' in the following table.

Data taken from Supply Estimates or resource accounts are not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the Departmental Expenditure Limit budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury.

Overseas Aid: Water

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assistance his Department is providing to aid the development of water operator partnerships; [156342]

(2) what assessment he has made of the potential value of water operator partnerships. [156343]

Mr. Thomas: DFID officials have been in discussion with NGOs such as Oxfam, WDM, WaterAid and others for over a year about more effective ways to support public utilities. We recognise that promoting partnerships is an opportunity to help water utilities identify what works, build their capacity and support them to deliver better services to poor people.

In April of this year, DFID funded regional workshops in Asia and Africa. Working with utility managers, these explored the possibilities of establishing regional partnerships—and examined the support they might need. We have also agreed to fund work to share the lessons from public water utilities about what has worked best in individual countries and we will look to see what can be learnt from partnerships between utilities.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Broadband

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of retail price competition through the application of regulation in broadband on the range and price of services available to consumers; and what assessment he has made of the merits of applying similar openness of access to the market for premium content and pay TV. [155936]

Mr. Timms: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Minister. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Companies: Takeovers

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will review the takeover code in the light of the instability at Northern Rock. [156044]

Mr. Timms: The takeover code is issued and administered by the takeover panel, which operates independently from Government. Changes to the code, if considered necessary, would be made by the panel. The code ensures that shareholders' interests are protected during the course of a takeover bid.

Departments: Early Retirement

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many and what proportion of staff in his Department and its predecessor took early retirement in the last five years, broken down by grade; and at what cost. [148742]

Mr. Thomas: A total of 473 staff in the former Department of Trade and Industry took early retirement at age over 50 from April 2002 to March 2007 at a total cost of £15.34 million, broken down as follows:

	Number of early retirements	Cost of lump sums (£)	Proportion of depart staff including UKTI (percentage)
2002-03	19	704,188.73	0.4
2003-04	12	566,127.20	0.3
2004-05	271	6,962,183.32	6
2005-06	113	4,934,923.32	3
2006-07	58	2,172,697.92	2
Total	473	15,340,120.49

A breakdown of the grade for this number of staff could only be established at a disproportionate cost.

Public Holidays

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures have been taken to ensure that (a) employers and (b) employees are aware of the changes in statutory holiday entitlements and what the statutory holiday entitlements are, and during what dates, during the transitional period of their introduction. [155806]

Mr. McFadden: The Government undertook two full consultations on the proposals to increase the holiday entitlement, holding a number of regional meetings and working closely with unions and employer organisations. Specific efforts were made to engage small businesses and employers in key sectors likely to be particularly affected. The ability to receive email updates on the proposals was offered and over eight thousand people requested updates on progress. The proposals also attracted considerable media coverage on a number of occasions.

Detailed guidance for employers and workers, including an interactive calculator for holiday entitlements, has been placed on the Business Link and Direct.gov websites respectively, with supporting material on BERR's own website.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Flowers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent by his Department on flowers in the last 12 months. [153065]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office, excluding its agencies and Executive NDPBs, spent £21,102 on flowers in 2006-07 (this is the last 12 months for which audited expenditure figures are available).

WALES

Lone Parents

8. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the number of lone parents with children aged between five and 16 years in Wales he expects to move into work as a result of the Government's proposed changes to the benefit regime. [156173]

Mr. Hain: The UK Government's goal is to increase the number of working lone parents in the UK by 300,000.

Rail Services

9. Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the First Minister and the Secretary of State for Transport on railway services in Wales. [156174]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My right hon. Friend and I regularly meet with ministerial colleagues both in Whitehall and the Assembly Government to discuss issues affecting Wales, including rail services.

Clean Coal

10. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the future for clean coal in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [156175]

Mr. Hain: Clean coal is central to our goal of developing a diverse energy supply in Wales, which dramatically reduces our carbon emissions.

Animal Health Measures

11. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the cross-border variations in emergency animal health measures. [156176]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with the Secretary of State for DEFRA on a range of issues, including animal health measures.

The recent crises in animal health and our Government's reaction prove the seriousness with which we take these issues, and that the procedures in place to deal with such sudden events are working well.

Heroin

12. Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last discussed the average street price of heroin in Wales with the Home Secretary. [156177]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Both my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on matters affecting Wales including such matters as drug-related crime.

RAF St. Athan

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress has been made on infrastructure projects in support of the Defence Training Review project at RAF St. Athan; and if he will make a statement. [156148]

Mr. Hain: Negotiations between the Ministry of Defence, the Welsh Assembly Government and Metrix are continuing on delivering Package 1 quickly, and in addressing the remaining affordability issues to deliver Package 2.

On 3 October the Welsh Assembly Government announced that public exhibitions are under way on obtaining the public's views on improving access to Cardiff airport, demonstrating their commitment to improving the road infrastructure to the airport and which will no doubt also benefit the DTR at St. Athan.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Schools: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many assaults there were on school teachers in 2005-06 which led to exclusions, broken down by (a) by category of assault and (b) local education authority; and if he will make a statement. [154523]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of assaults on school teachers is not collected centrally.

The Department does collect information on the number of permanent and fixed period exclusions from schools due to physical assault against an adult. The latest information is shown in the following tables.

However, due to underlying changes in the data collection, information on the reasons for exclusion is only available for maintained secondary schools for 2005-06.

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Excludes non-maintained special schools.
[3] Totals for England, each region and across all reasons for exclusion have been rounded to the nearest 10.
[4] There were four fixed period exclusions in Camden and Bury local authorities for which reason for exclusion has not been established. These have been included in the total column only.
[5] One or two exclusions.

Employment

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many (a) women, (b) single parents and (c) people were in work in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997; [156033]

(2) what the level of (a) adult and (b) youth unemployment was in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997; [156035]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The relevant tables have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about employment and unemployment. (156032, 156033, 156034, 156035)

These questions ask for the same information as questions received in July this year, and I refer you to the answer given in Official Report volume 463 of 26 July, column 1460.

However, since the previous questions were answered, we now have new employment and unemployment data from the Annual Population Survey (APS) for April 2006 to March 2007, and the April to June 2007 Labour Force Survey (LFS) household dataset.

As in the previous answer, Table 1, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were in employment, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 2 to 4 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

For unitary and local authorities, the ONS produces estimates of total unemployment, following ILO definitions, from a statistical model. Annual estimates for other areas and breakdowns are compiled from the annual local area LFS and the APS following ILO definitions.

Table 5, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were unemployed, for the 12 months ending March 2007, from the APS. The table also shows unemployment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 6 to 8 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

Table 9, attached shows employment levels, unemployment levels and rates for lone parents aged 16 and over and employment rates for lone parents of working age, resident in the South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain, for the three months ending in June, for 2007 from the LFS household datasets. Data for the Jarrow constituency are unavailable as Parliamentary Constituency markers are not held in this dataset.

The estimates in Tables 1-9 are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes for the Jarrow constituency and South Tyneside metropolitan borough are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over time.

Smuggling: Birds

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many incidents of wild bird smuggling have been recorded by HM Revenue and Customs since 1 July 2007. [156833]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) enforcement powers in relation to wild birds apply to those species listed as endangered under Council Regulation (EC) No. 338/97 on the protection species of wild fauna and flora.

HMRC records show no detentions or seizures of wild birds since 1 July 2007.

TRANSPORT

Buoyancy Aids: Fishing Vessels

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has undertaken on the potential to save lives of the introduction of compulsory personal flotation devices to the UK fishing fleet; and if she will make a statement. [156816]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) commissioned research entitled "Practical Application of Regulatory Impact Diagrams to Buoyancy Equipment at Work for Fishermen" which was completed in February 2001. This addressed all factors which may affect the wearing of buoyancy devices at sea.

All fishing vessels are required to carry lifejackets but the report argued that prior to taking a regulatory approach to wearing lifejackets, we needed to identify the needs and experiences of lifejacket users, in order to gauge the requirements for regulations. This finding was supported by research which demonstrated that safety precautions show little correlation with the likelihood of accidents.

Following publication of this report the MCA has participated in research by the Seafish Industry Authority (Seafish) and the Royal National Lifeboat Institute on Lifejacket and Buoyancy Aid Acceptability Trials. The trials of 24 products were in two stages, a test tank assessment to ensure that products are effective when worn with 'sea gear' and long term assessments by fishermen in the course of fishing.

The results of the research have been made available to the industry to inform the purchase and wearing of such equipment and manufacturers of buoyancy aids and lifejackets to inform development.

The MCA has also recently undertaken research on the approach taken to the wearing of lifejackets adopted by other countries, and the effect on casualty statistics, and is currently assessing the findings of this research.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155887]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's projected spending for advertising campaigns for the 2007-08 fiscal year is set out in the following table. Please note, these are anticipated spend and could be subject to change. Additional advertising costs, such as cinema, ambient and online, have been incorporated into 'other' advertising costs.

The main expenditure by the Central Department is in support of the THINK! Road Safety, Act On CO2 and Aviation campaigns. DVLA investment is in support of their vehicle excise duty enforcement, electronic vehicle licensing and sales of marks campaigns.

	Television	Radio	Print	Other
Central DfT	6,099	2,350	1,800	3,711
DSA	40	0	50	0
DVLA	3,617	1,567	457	0
HA	0	60	120	20

The Department's projected spending for advertising campaigns for the 2008-09 fiscal year is more difficult to project because some budgets have yet to be allocated. We anticipate that circa £11 million will be spent by Department for Transport and £4.6 million by Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA). Investment in each specific media channel has yet to be finalised.

Breaking down the costs of promotional campaigns for the Department by television, radio and print media for 2007-08 and 2008-09 fiscal years could be done at only disproportionate cost.

Lorries: Licensing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of the number of (a) heavy goods vehicles and (b) public service vehicles which should be covered by an operators licence but are not. [156055]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department is responsible for the enforcement of road traffic legislation. Records are kept of the number of operator licences issued. An operator licence may list a number of vehicles. The Department's records do not detail the number of vehicles as a percentage of the total heavy goods vehicles and public service vehicles fleets in use.

Although DVLA may have records of HGVs and PSVs registered, some will not require an operator licence. One operator licence holder can have multiple vehicles listed. In addition, it is not mandatory for PSV operators to list all the vehicles that they may use on their operator licence. So the DVLA and VOSA records cannot be directly compared.

Lorries: Safety

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of (a) heavy goods vehicles and (b) public service vehicles which should have an annual safety check conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency but do not. [156056]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) is responsible for the enforcement of road safety legislation. Its records reflect the number of heavy goods vehicles (HGV) and public service vehicles (PSV) which have presented for annual test. Its records do not record this as a percentage of the total HGV and PSV fleets in use.

Although the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) may have records of HGVs and PSV's registered, some may be exempt from annual tests or have been declared as off the road (and therefore not require a certificate.) Also VOSA may have tested some vehicles more than once in a year so the DVLA and VOSA records cannot be directly compared.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers' Allowances

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will extend eligibility to carer's allowance to allow a carer to receive carer's allowance in respect of more than one individual in the same household. [153756]

Mrs. McGuire: Carer's allowance is intended principally to provide a measure of financial support for carers who cannot work full-time because they provide at least 35 hours of care a week for a severely disabled person. It is not payable in respect of each disabled person a carer may look after and we have no plans to change these arrangements.

Children: Maintenance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases have been outstanding for more than (a) one year and (b) five years. [154671]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Duncan Gilchrist, dated 10 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many Child Support Agency cases have been outstanding for more than (a) one year and (b) five years.

The Agency begins to process new applications as soon as they are received and continues until they have been cleared. Any applications that have not yet been cleared have been regarded as outstanding in the answer to this question. The amount of work required to achieve clearance and the elapsed time it involves varies considerably depending on, amongst other things, the circumstances of the parents and how readily they cooperate with the Agency. As such, the Agency holds only a negligible number of completely unprocessed applications.

At June 2007 the Agency had 39,600 old scheme and 74,400 new scheme uncleared cases over one year old, this represents 8% of total caseload. Of those 33,300 old scheme and 1,500 new scheme uncleared cases were over five years old, this represents 3% of total caseload.

A potential new application is defined as cleared when it:

has had a calculation and a payment arrangement set up (new scheme only) or has had an assessment (old scheme only);

has been closed;

has been identified as having had a good cause decision accepted;

has been identified as being subject to a reduced benefit decision; has been identified as a change of circumstances to an existing case, as opposed to a new application (new scheme only).

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departments: IT

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many IT contracts were put out to competitive tender by his Department in each year since 1997; how many bidders there were for each tender; and which company won the tender in each case. [155377]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) was created in June 2001, prior to that, contractual arrangements were the responsibility of different departments and agencies. Information is provided for contracts awarded since the formation of the Department in 2001.

Wherever possible, the Department makes use of existing framework agreements to procure the full range of IS/IT services. This enables more efficient and faster procurement of services against agreed terms. When this is not possible an advertisement is placed in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Two contracts have been awarded as a result of competitive tender through the Official Journal of the European Union. These are the:

Contract to operate the Resource Management system. Three bids were received and the contract was awarded to Fujitsu in 2004.

Framework to enable the Department to procure the full range of IS/IT services via competitions or single tender. This is referred to as the Unity (UNderpinning IT DeliverY) framework and was awarded in 2005. Thirty four bids were received and thirty two suppliers were included onto the Framework Agreement.

Other contracts awarded since 2001 using either the Unity framework, or the Office of Government Commerce's S-Cat agreement, are:

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) estimated and (b) outturn (i) cost and (ii) duration was of each IT contract tendered by his Department since 1997. [155378]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) was created in June 2001, prior to that, contractual arrangements were the responsibility of different departments and agencies. Information is provided for contracts awarded since the formation of the Department in 2001.

Outturn figures are not available until the contract has ended, so the most recently estimated contract outturn or cost to date has been provided in the following table.

Departments: Telephone Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of telephone calls to his Department from members of the public are recorded for training purposes. [154643]

Mrs. McGuire: All calls to the Department's contact centres are recorded and may be used for training purposes except:

when technical issues arise;

textphone calls;

eight Jobcentre Plus sites do not have the technical ability to record calls; and National Benefit Fraud Hotline calls due to their sensitive nature.

Calls made directly to the operational teams and local services are not recorded.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 17 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2281-2W, on disability living allowance, whether a decision by a customer to begin work amounts to change in circumstances; and to what extent such a decision affects eligibility for disability living allowance or the amount awarded. [155653]

Mrs. McGuire: Customers in receipt of Disability Living Allowance who begin work do not have to report that event as a change of circumstances unless their care and/or mobility needs have changed in the period leading up to them beginning work or as a result of beginning work.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mechanisms are in place to assess the likely effect of proposed legislation on people with disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [153751]

Mrs. McGuire: To meet the requirements of the Disability Equality Duty, Government Departments must assess the likely impact of proposed legislation on disability equality. The disability equality duty, which was introduced by the Disability Discrimination Act 2005, came into force on 4 December 2006. It requires public authorities to have due regard to the need to eliminate disability discrimination and promote disability equality when carrying out their functions.

The general duty applies across the full range of public sector activity, including service delivery, policy making, procurement and performance management. Additional duties are imposed by regulations on certain public authorities, including all Government Departments, to produce and implement a disability equality scheme in which the authority must set out its methods for assessing the impact on equality for disabled people of its proposed policies and practices.

While the Disability Equality Duty provides the framework for assessing the impact of policies on disabled people the precise mechanism for carrying out the assessments is up to each Government Department to determine and set out in their scheme.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled people are resident in the UK; what mechanisms are used to estimate that figure; and if he will make a statement. [153752]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions estimates that there are over 10 million disabled people in Britain.

This estimate covers the number of people with a longstanding illness, disability or infirmity, and who have a significant difficulty with day-to-day activities. It is based on data taken from the Family Resources Survey (FRS).

Everyone in this group would meet the definition of disability in the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA); however, these estimates do not reflect the total number of people covered by the DDA as the FRS does not collect this information.

The estimates are based on sample counts that have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the FRS to Government Office Region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining response bias.

The Government's vision is that by 2025 all disabled people should have the same opportunities and choices as everyone else, be respected as equal members of society and be able to participate as equals in every aspect of family and community life.

National Insurance: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many National Insurance numbers were issued to non-UK citizens living in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) the Peterborough city council area in each year since 1997, broken down by nationality. [154072]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available prior to 2002-03. The available information has been placed in the Library.

UK Commission for Employment and Skills: Public Appointments

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how appointments will be made to the UK Commission for Employment and Skills; and what matters in respect of environmental sustainability will be taken into account in the work of the Commission. [152218]

Caroline Flint: Appointments will be made to the UK Commission for Employment and Skills through fair and open competition and under the guidelines issued by the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Skills development is a fundamental part of the drive for environmental sustainability and the UK Commission will be aiming to increase skill levels in all sectors and in all disciplines as it moves to meet the aspirations set out in the Leitch report.

Employment

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many (a) women and (b) single parents were unemployed in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) south Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [156032]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply. The relevant tables have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions about employment and unemployment. (156032, 156033, 156034, 156035)

These questions ask for the same information as questions received in July this year, and I refer you to the answer given in Official Report volume 463 of 26 July, column 1460.

However, since the previous questions were answered, we now have new employment and unemployment data from the Annual Population Survey (APS) for April 2006 to March 2007, and the April to June 2007 Labour Force Survey (LFS) household dataset.

As in the previous answer, Table 1, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were in employment, for the 12 months ending in March 2007 from the APS. The table also shows employment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 2 to 4 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

For unitary and local authorities, the ONS produces estimates of total unemployment, following ILO definitions, from a statistical model. Annual estimates for other areas and breakdowns are compiled from the annual local area LFS and the APS following ILO definitions.

Table 5, attached, shows the number of males, females and people, who were (i) aged 16 and over, (ii) young persons aged 16 to 24 and (iii) persons aged 25 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, who were unemployed, for the 12 months ending March 2007, from the APS. The table also shows unemployment rates which allow changes to be seen in the context of changing population numbers. Tables 6 to 8 show data for South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain respectively.

Table 9, attached shows employment levels, unemployment levels and rates for lone parents aged 16 and over and employment rates for lone parents of working age, resident in the South Tyneside metropolitan borough, the North East and Great Britain, for the three months ending in June, for 2007 from the LFS household datasets. Data for the Jarrow constituency are unavailable as Parliamentary Constituency markers are not held in this dataset.

The estimates in Tables 1-9 are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty. In this case, the sample sizes for the Jarrow constituency and South Tyneside metropolitan borough are not sufficient to give an accurate estimate of even the direction of the change over time.

JUSTICE

Arrests: Foreigners

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many individuals arrested in the Northern Basic Command Unit of Cambridgeshire Constabulary area were non-UK citizens of the European Union in each quarter since May 2004. [156825]

Maria Eagle: The arrests collection undertaken by my Department only provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity and main offence group. Aggregated data, collected centrally from the 43 police force areas in England and Wales, are available at police force area level only and do not record the nationality of arrestees.

Driving Offences: Insurance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were of uninsured drivers in the Cambridgeshire Constabulary area in each recording period since May 2004; and if he will make a statement. [156826]

Maria Eagle: Available information for the Cambridgeshire police force area are taken from the Court Proceedings database held by my Department, from May to December 2004 (latest available) shows there were 1,840 proceedings and 1,560 findings of guilt for the offence of 'using motor vehicle uninsured against third party risks'.

2005 data will be available later this year.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much fuel was consumed by UK armed forces in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq in each month since the beginning of operations. [154225]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the monthly consumption rates of fuel as their release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness and security of our armed forces.

I am able to provide the total amount of fuel consumed by UK forces in Afghanistan and Iraq for those dates highlighted and this is shown in the following tables. Data are not held centrally on the dates prior to those stated and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Afghanistan—total fuels consumed since October 2006-June 2007

	Litres
Aviation fuel	71.7 million
Diesel	2.75 million
Petrol	85 thousand

This includes a small portion consumed by multinational elements of Task Force Helmand/ Regional Command (South).

Iraq—total fuels consumed since January 2005-August 2007

	Litres
Aviation Fuel	132.3 million
Diesel	66.7 million
Petrol	12.8 million

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much depleted uranium ammunition has been used by British forces in Operation Herrick since 2002. [156824]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No depleted uranium ammunition has been used by UK forces in Operation Herrick since 2002.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what percentage of time (a) HMS Illustrious and (b) HMS Ark Royal were (i) on operations and (ii) undergoing maintenance in each year since 1997. [154256]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 129W, on animal experiments, what his timetable is for making the appointments. [156249]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I can confirm that a team has been appointed to examine the future of animal testing in support of a possible future submarine escape and rescue research programme. The team comprises a core group of six specialists supported by a number of independent external advisers. It is led by an ex-military scientist, qualified to postdoctorate level, supported by subject matter experts in defence related human physiology research, submarine design and operation, and law pertaining to the use of animals in scientific research. The group of external advisers includes leading academics in the field of human physiology.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hyperbaric experiments have been carried out on live goats since March 2007; what plans he has to commission future experiments; and if he will make a statement. [156604]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I can confirm that no hyperbaric experiments using goats have been conducted since March 2007.

A number of studies reviewing the need for further use of goats in this research programme are currently being undertaken. These studies take into account MOD's duty of care to sustain the health and welfare of submarine crews and to provide them with the ability to operate safely and effectively. The teams are investigating a range of options for submarine escape and rescue, and life support, including and excluding animal experimentation.

Any plans to conduct further experiments using goats are subject to the findings of this review.

Armed Forces: Gliding

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the unit costs of (a) tug and (b) winch launches when used for glider flights as part of armed forces training courses. [156200]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The estimated unit cost of a tug launch and a winch launch for glider flights as part of training courses is shown as follows:

Type of launch	Estimated unit cost (£)
Tug	12.06
Winch	2.60

Armed Forces: Languages

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Farsi/Dari, (b) Arabic, (c) Urdu, (d) Pashto, (e) Swahili, (f) Uyghur, (g) Uzbek (h) Tajik and (i) Kurdish speaking military personnel are serving in the British armed forces. [154261]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The numbers of presently serving military personnel known to have skills of at least standardized language profile (SLP) Level 1 in the specified languages are listed in the following table. The numbers are listed in two categories "tested" and "untested". Those included in the "tested" column have confirmed their skill in a military language examination within the last three years and their qualification is current. Those included in the "untested" column were either examined more than three years ago and their qualification has expired, or are known to have some level of skill which has not been confirmed by military language examination.

Language	Tested	Untested
Farsi	72	79
Dari	12	1
Arabic	304	1,393
Urdu	14	41
Pashto	90	5
Swahili	0	13

There are no records of any personnel having skills in Uyghur, Uzbek, Tajik or Kurdish.

The table does not include records for special forces personnel.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British military personnel have received training in (a) Farsi/Dari, (b) Arabic, (c) Urdu, (d) Pashto, (e) Swahili, (f) Uyghur, (g) Uzbek (h) Tajik and (i) Kurdish in each year since 1997. [154262]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following tables show the number of persons receiving training to at least standardized language profile (SLP) Level 1 in the languages for which information is requested. Despite extensive trawls, it is only possible to provide annual figures for Arabic. For the other languages, an aggregate figure for the entire period since 1997 has been collated.

	Arabic
1998	99
1999	50
2000	37
2001	116
2002	73
2003	116
2004	127
2005	101
2006	122

[1] To date

	Other languages: 1997-2007[1]
Farsi	163
Dari	56
Urdu	41
Pashto	169
Swahili	5
Kurdish	2

[1] To date

No personnel have received any training in Uyghur, Uzbek or Tajik since 1997.

Over the 10 year period, training organisations and military language examination systems have evolved considerably. This may have led to loss of data for the earlier part of the period, with the result that totals for each language are potentially understated. The figures quoted include special forces personnel.

Army: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour intervals are of the (a) infantry, (b) Royal Regiment of Artillery, (c) the Corps of the Royal Engineers, (d) the Royal Logistic Corps and (e) the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. [154251]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The average unit tour interval for the infantry and the Royal Regiment of Artillery is 23.5 and 20.8 months, respectively. This is calculated on the basis of the mean time between the start of the most recent deployment and the end of the previous deployment for all formed units within each arm.

The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to the Corps of Royal Engineers, the Royal Logistic Corps and the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. This is due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units within these corps (which means that the personnel deployed with a unit will be substantially different from the personnel who deployed with the same unit on a previous occasion). Unit tour interval data for these corps is not therefore routinely collated.

Defence: Expenditure

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion UK defence spending was of UK GDP in each financial year since 1997. [156187]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is published in HM Treasury's Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis. The most recent version, CM7019 from April 2007 is available in the Library of the House and at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

Defence: Inflation

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the defence inflation planning assumptions are for financial years 2007-08 to 2010-11. [156236]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In line with all Government Departments, the GDP deflator is used to estimate inflation. It is available on HM Treasury website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk

As the GDP deflator is frequently updated, to simplify our internal planning process, inflation is currently rounded to 2.5 per cent.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down in (a) near cash and (b) non-cash terms columns 1-8 of the subhead detail tables for his Department contained in the (i) main estimate, (ii) winter supplementary estimate and (iii) spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08. [156002]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the right hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) planned (i) non-cash limit and (ii) near-cash resource Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL), (b) anticipated operating appropriations in aid, (c) planned capital DEL and (d) anticipated non-operating appropriations in aid are for each of his Department's top-level budget holders in each year of the comprehensive spending review; [156326]

(2) what the planned (a) non-cash and (b) near cash administration costs limit is for each of his Department's top-level budget holders in each year of the comprehensive spending review. [156329]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department is currently conducting a planning round to disaggregate the comprehensive spending review settlement; therefore this information is not currently available.

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the near cash resource and capital departmental expenditure limits are for his Department in each year of the 2007 comprehensive spending review period. [156327]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the Ministry of Defence's near-cash RDEL and CDEL over the CSR07 years.

£ million

	Near-cash resource DEL	Capital DEL
2008-09	22,869	7,871
2009-10	23,711	8,187
2010-11	24,434	8,871

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the financial year 2006-07 outturn for resources one, two and three provision for each subhead was broken down by (a) near cash departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) non-cash DEL, (c) capital DEL, (d) near cash annual managed expenditure, (e) non-cash annual managed expenditure, (f) capital annual managed expenditure, (g) near cash non-budget and (h) non-cash non-budget. [156328]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 September 2007, Official Report, columns 1888-93W.

EU Defence Policy

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next plans to meet his counterparts in (a) France and (b) other European states regarding the establishment of an autonomous European military capability. [155834]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Secretary of State meets with the French Defence Minister as well as his other European Defence ministerial colleagues on a regular basis to discuss the European Security and Defence Policy (ESDP). This includes at meetings of EU Defence Ministers such as that held by the EU presidency last week in Portugal where, collectively, Ministers met to take forward work on ESDP.

European Defence Agency: Finance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the UK has contributed to the European Defence Agency in each year since 2004. [154240]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since the establishment of the European Defence Agency in July 2004, the UK has contributed:

2005	2,362,015.50
2006	2,093,545.88
2007	1,954,567.49

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects UK forces to leave Iraq completely. [156084]

Des Browne: As the Prime Minister announced on 8 October, the number of British forces based in southern Iraq will reduce to around 4,500 by the end of the year. Our forces continue to have important work to do helping the Iraqi security forces further develop the capacity and capability to take over responsibility for the security of their own people. We keep force levels under constant review and will continue to make reductions as and when conditions on the ground allow. It is therefore wrong to set an arbitrary date for British forces to leave Iraq.

Military Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many urban warfare exercises have been conducted in each year since 2001. [154232]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested as all three services conduct urban warfare exercises at varying scales.

Land units are mandated to conduct urban training throughout the training cycle. However, urban training does not take place in isolation but is integrated into wider exercises. Training may involve low level activity focusing solely upon the urban environment or as part of wider collective training. The intensity of this urban training differs according to time and exercise area. By way of example, for the period September 2006 to September 2007[1], the Copehill Down Urban Training Village on Salisbury Plain was used for 296 days of urban training.

Both the RN and RAF also conduct urban warfare exercises but at a much smaller scale. Since 2001 the annual programme for Commando Training Centre Royal Marines has routinely included urban warfare exercises, specifically 22 for Recruit Training, five for the All Arms Commando Course and two for Young Officer Courses, making a total of 29 annually. For the RAF, 14 urban warfare exercises were conducted in each year in the period 2001-03, rising to 18 annually thereafter.

The individual training programme also includes urban training, though to varying degrees dependent upon the assessed need. By way of example, training at both the Infantry Battle School and the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst routinely incorporates urban exercises as part of their courses.

Urban training is extensively practised within Pre Deployment Training for current operations, and incorporated into all unit training packages for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. The exact emphasis upon urban operations is driven by the role of the unit concerned.

[1] Records for the amount of urban training across the entire Defence Estate are not held.

Navy: Bermuda

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy craft of what classes have been deployed in Bermuda's territorial waters to promote law enforcement and national security in the last two years; what the estimated number is of Royal Navy personnel deployed; and if he will make a statement. [155825]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the past two years four naval units have visited Bermuda: two ships were on Atlantic Patrol Task (North) and two were on routine transit visits. Although none of the ships went there with the specific purpose of promoting law enforcement, they bolstered national security by virtue of their presence.

The Royal Navy does not track vessels in and out of territorial waters. Details of actual port visits to Bermuda are as follows:

Ship	Company	Visited
HMS Cumberland	250	29 November to 2 December 2005
HMS Torbay	130	25 March to 30 March 2006
HMS Iron Duke	181	29 June to 3 July 2006
HMS Scott	62	21 May to 26 May 2007

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what financial contribution has been made by the Government of Bermuda towards the cost of the Royal Navy's deployment in Bermuda's territorial waters on the task of promoting law enforcement and national security in the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [156335]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None. The Government of Bermuda does not pay for Royal Navy deployments in Bermuda's territorial waters. The security of UK Overseas Territories is the responsibility of the UK Government.

Nimrod Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to provide the (a) Nimrod and (b) Nimrod MRA4 with (i) armour and (ii) fuel tank protection before deployment in theatre; and if he will make a statement. [156605]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Our aircraft are fitted with defensive systems and survivability aids to reflect the operational environment in which they are deployed. We keep the requirement for such systems under review for all our aircraft deployed on operations including the Nimrod MR2. This will continue to be the case for future aircraft, such as Nimrod MRA4. I am withholding further information as its release would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

RAF Halton

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many powered take-offs took place at RAF Halton in each calendar year since 2003; how many were carried out by each unit in each year; and if he will make a statement. [155902]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The annual number of powered take-offs from RAF Halton is capped at 16,300 per year as a result of a decision made by the then Under-Secretary of State for Defence in 2004. This figure has never been exceeded.

The total number of powered take-offs from RAF Halton in 2003 was 14,143 and in 2004 was 13,293. A full breakdown by unit is not available for those years. The powered take-offs from RAF Halton for 2005 and 2006 broken down by unit are shown as follows:

Units	2005	2006
613 Volunteer Gliding Squadron (613 VGS)	5,378	4,291
Joint Services Gliding Centre (JSGC)	3,094	2,377
RAF Gliding and Soaring Association (RAF GSA)	430	575
Halton Aeroplane Club (HAC)	4,287	4,159
Halton Microlight Club (HMC)	2,408	2,180
Other	312	118
Annual total	15,909	13,700

St. Malo Agreement

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress with achieving the objectives of the St. Malo Agreement. [155831]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 1998 St. Malo text from the summit between the UK and French Governments declares the intentions of the two countries to enable the European Union to play a full role on the international stage. It concentrates particularly on what is now known as European Security and Defence Policy, while recognising the need for ESDP to develop in a way which is both supportive of and supported by NATO's crisis management activities.

Since 1998 ESDP has developed considerably. It has enabled the EU to launch four peacekeeping operations: in the Democratic Republic of Congo (2003 and 2006); Macedonia (2003); and Bosnia (launched in December 2004), as well as numerous smaller civil-military operations. The current Bosnia operation took over from NATO's SFOR and has proven the efficacy of the Berlin Plus arrangements agreed in 2003 for EU access to NATO assets.

Other successes include the establishment of the European Defence Agency in 2004 to drive forward capability development and improve defence/industrial co-operation; the continuing development of a capacity for military and joint civil/military planning, based on agreed consultation arrangements with NATO; and the establishment of full operating capability for the rapid-response Battle Groups initiative, achieved in January 2007.

The Government are therefore fully satisfied with progress to date, and we will continue to play a leading role in further progress.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of legislation to deter violent action against research facilities that use animals in their testing; [154373]

(2) if she will review the effectiveness of the law on the use of blackmail in the context of the activities of protesters against research facilities that use animals in their testing; [154378]

(3) how many convictions there have been for criminal acts for which responsibility was claimed by the Animal Liberation Front; [154381]

(4) what discussions she has had with zoos and aquariums on security protection from animal rights extremists. [154380]

Mr. Coaker: The Government are committed to eradicating the threat of animal rights extremism and has in place a robust interdepartmental strategy to achieve this. The strategy is centred on an improved law enforcement approach, with additional resources provided to the police to tackle animal rights extremism, a central police team set-up to drive forward police action nationally, and legislation enacted to protect animal research organisations. The strategy has been overseen by a Cabinet Committee which has been encouraged by the significant fall in illegal extremist activity, and the many significant convictions of animal rights extremists in the past 18 months, some for blackmail. A number of other animal rights extremists are awaiting trial and other major investigations remain ongoing.

While the Government respect, support and will protect the right to peaceful protest, we are equally clear that it is wholly unacceptable that a very small number of animal extremists should mount campaigns of fear and intimidation in an attempt to stop individuals and companies going about their lawful and legitimate business whether it is connected with animal research, farming or zoos and aquariums. The Government will continue to drive and review the strategy to eradicate the extremist threat.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to shut down the websites of the (a) Animal Liberation Front and (b) Animal Liberation Front Suppliers Group under the Terrorism Act 2006. [154374]

Mr. Coaker: The investigation and prosecution of offences under the Terrorism Act 2006 (including offences involving websites) are matters for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service respectively.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of anti-social behaviour were (a) recorded and (b) detected in each London borough in 2006-07. [153899]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Home Office does not collect this information centrally.

Border Police

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated cost of providing a unified border force is in (a) 2007 and (b) each of the next five years. [156509]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 8 October 2007]: In his announcement of 25 July, the Prime Minister commissioned the Cabinet Secretary to report to him on the stages ahead in implementation of a unified border force and whether there is a case for going further while ensuring value for money. The Cabinet Secretary is due to report in October.

Breathalysers

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what rules apply to mobile police units on (a) carrying breathalyser kits and (b) the procedure to be followed in deciding to take citizens to the police station for breathalysing when kits are not carried; and if she will make a statement. [156639]

Mr. Coaker: Breath test devices currently available for use outside police stations are screening devices, used for a preliminary test to obtain an indication whether a person's alcohol level is likely to be above the prescribed limit. If a person tests positive, he can be arrested, taken to a police station and required to take an evidential test.

There is no statutory requirement on mobile police units to carry breath screening devices. Vehicles engaged in traffic law enforcement or responding to traffic incidents are however very likely to, and other vehicles may do. This is an operational equipment matter for the chief officer. If the vehicle does not have a screening device, one will normally be readily available and the person to be tested can be required to remain a reasonable length of time for it to arrive. Failure to co-operate with a preliminary test when the officer reasonably suspects there is alcohol in the person's body is an offence for which the person can be arrested.

In addition to the offence of driving while over the prescribed limit, there is a separate offence of driving whilst under the influence of drink. An officer can arrest for this offence and subsequently require an evidential test provided he has reasonable grounds for suspecting the offence and an arrest is necessary for its prompt and effective investigation.

Decisions as to arrest, etc are operational matters for the police on each occasion.

CCTV: Costs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to the public purse was of (a) installing and (b) maintaining CCTV surveillance in London in each of the last five years, broken down by borough. [154815]

Mr. Coaker: No data on the costs of publicly-funded CCTV cameras operating on a local or on a national level are centrally held by the Home Office.

Previously, closed circuit television (CCTV) has been provided using a range of national and local funding streams. The principal fund has been the crime reduction programme from 1999 to 2003 which invested £170 million in CCTV schemes.

Currently, crime reduction funding is allocated directly to local authorities through the Safer Stronger Communities Fund. These funds finance a variety of interventions, including CCTV, to tackle local crime priorities.

Funding allocations are local decisions and are the responsibility of individual partnerships.

CCTV: London Boroughs

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many publicly-funded CCTV cameras were installed in each London borough in each of the last five years. [154805]

Mr. Coaker: No data on the number of publicly-funded CCTV cameras operating on a local or on a national level are centrally held by the Home Office.

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will list the (a) internet service providers, (b) social networking sites and (c) other IT companies which have adopted the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre's report abuse mechanism. [155952]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

However, the Home Secretary's Task Force for Child Protection on the internet has set up a working group which includes representatives from social network providers, law enforcement and children's charities. This group is looking at the safety issues for children caused by the development and growth of social networking sites and is developing good practice guidelines.

Deportation: Enforcement

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long she expects to take to consider the case of Mr. S.O. (Ref: O142114) who has applied for leave to remain under the 14-year concession but has been referred for enforcement action. [155778]

Mr. Byrne: Gill Mortlock, north west regional director for Border and Immigration Agency wrote to my hon. Friend on 21 September 2007.

Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the Government have to commission research into the effect of changing the classification of illegal drugs on (a) levels of drugs misuse and (b) levels of drug-related harm. [154339]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have no plans at this time to commission any research into the effect of changing the classification of illegal drugs on levels of drug misuse and/or levels of drug-related harm. The Government undertake several surveys to monitor levels of drug misuse and drug-related harm but these are predicated on the ABC classification system.

Drugs: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much of the Young People's Substance Misuse Partnership funding was allocated to Peterborough constituency in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [154763]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department of Health, Home Office, Department for Children, Schools and Families (formerly the Department for Education and Skills), and the Youth Justice Board brought together substance misuse budgets for young people into one grant, the Young People Substance Misuse Partnership Grant (YPSMPG) at a national level in 2004-05. This funding is made available in addition to mainstream funding streams.

The allocations made to Peterborough since 2004-05 are shown in the following table.

The change in levels of funding in 2007-08 against 2006-07 need to be placed in the context of record levels of investment over the last eight years. This year's allocation to Peterborough is over 30 per cent. greater than when YPSMPG allocations were introduced. Where there is a local need, the pooled treatment budget for drug treatment services can be used to provide additional funding for young people's treatment.

	Allocation (£)
2005-06	303,323
2006-07	308,951
2007-08	284,440

Genetics: Databases

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether DNA and fingerprints may be taken from individuals who are being asked to take a breathalyser test; [156525]

(2) whether individuals not subject to charges but who were subject to a breathalyser test are entitled to (a) decline when asked to submit to fingerprinting and the taking of DNA and (b) request that the DNA and fingerprints should be destroyed; [156641]

(3) what rules apply to the taking of fingerprints and DNA samples when individuals are asked to take a breathalyser test (a) at a police station and (b) in their vehicle; what differences there are between the rules in both cases; and if she will make a statement. [156653]

Mr. Coaker: The Road Traffic Act 1988 gives a constable power to require a driver to provide a breath specimen for a preliminary breath test. This is generally taken at the roadside. Under section 6D of the 1988 Act, the driver may be arrested if as a result of the test, the constable suspects that that his/her breath or blood alcohol level exceeds the prescribed limit or if for any reason the driver does not cooperate with the test and the constable suspects alcohol (or drugs) to be in the driver's body.

The purpose of this arrest is to enable a constable to require the driver to provide an evidential sample which, depending on the circumstances, may be breath, blood or urine, to be analysed to determine whether the driver may have committed a specific drink/driving offence under the Road Traffic Act.

The taking and retention of fingerprints and DNA for the purposes of investigating other offences and for identifying suspects are governed by the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE). Under PACE, fingerprints and DNA cannot be taken without consent unless the driver has been arrested for, or charged with, a specific recordable offence, for example, driving with excess alcohol or when unfit to drive through drink or drugs, failing without reasonable excuse to take a preliminary breath test or failing without reasonable excuse to provide an evidential specimen for analysis. Biometric data under PACE is taken at a police station.

Police may retain fingerprints and samples lawfully taken under PACE. It is a matter for the chief officer for each force area to determine whether or not samples or fingerprints should be retained.

Police Stations

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations were operational in each police force area in 2006. [156310]

Jacqui Smith: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the chief officer, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Firearms

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) accidental and (b) negligent discharges of firearms by police officers were reported to police forces in England and Wales in 2007. [155978]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally by the Home Office. However, police forces in England and Wales are encouraged to report any instances of accidental or negligent discharges of firearms by police officers to the Association of Chief Police Officers. The Association of Chief Police Officers aims to share lessons learned from these incidents with all forces to prevent them occurring again, and will consider changes to policy where appropriate at a national level.

Police: Fraud

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to ensure the accountability of the City of London police force for its handling of business fraud cases; how many cases it successfully brought to prosecution in each of the last five years; and how many current cases it is dealing with. [154347]

Mr. Coaker: The Police Authority for the City of London Police is the Corporation of London's Court of Common Council. However, decisions on individual cases are operational matters and solely the responsibility of the Commissioner of Police for the City of London.

Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty for Fraud and Forgery offences in the City of London police force area from 2001 to 2005 is shown in the table. The Court Proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform is unable to separate business fraud cases from other types of fraud and forgery.

I understand from the City of London Police that their Economic Crime Department, which has lead force status for the south east and which investigates all types of economic crime, has an average active caseload of around 300 investigations.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for Fraud and Forgery offences, in the City of London police force area, 2001 to 2005[1,2]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
2001	184	90
2002	210	89
2003	324	104
2004	244	131

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

RDS-OCJR, Ministry of Justice

Police: Scotland

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions are being conducted with the Scottish Executive on the impact on, and changes necessary to, its police forces and law enforcement arrangements consequent on the Government's proposal to create a new police or border force working in the United Kingdom's ports of entry; and if she will make a statement. [155807]

Mr. Byrne: The Scottish Executive has discussed with the Cabinet Secretary's border review team potential implications for Scotland of the introduction of a unified border force, including potential implications for police and law enforcement arrangements.

Prisoners: Drugs

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research the Government have (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) reviewed into the cost-effectiveness of imprisoning dependent drug users for non-violent offences. [154332]

Mr. Coaker: There has been no Home Office or Ministry of Justice research commissioned specifically to look directly at the cost-effectiveness of imprisoning dependent drug users for non-violent offences. However, there is currently an extensive programme of research planned for the forthcoming year that will evaluate the impact of specific CJS/NOMS interventions on re-offending and what value for money they offer. The output from this research will help shape priorities across the CJS in terms of where resources are likely to be most effectively targeted for protecting the public and reducing re-offending.

In addition, findings from a new study of drug treatment in the community (DTORS) will be published later in 2007. This study includes dependent users in treatment who have been referred via both CJS and non-CJS routes. Information on drug treatment in the community can provide valuable lessons to be learnt for treating dependent drug users in prison and the cost effectiveness of such treatment.

Finally, I refer the hon. Member to 9 March 2007, Official Report, column 2315W, in which the former Home Office Minister—my hon. Friend the Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Sutcliffe)—outlined the programme of research in place to evaluate CJS/NOMS interventions on re-offending; and 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1319W, in which the Home Secretary outlined some of the many measures in place to address drug-related crime.

Robbery: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) robberies and (b) burglaries were reported in each London constituency in each of the last five years; and how many of these resulted in convictions. [154817]

Mr. Coaker: Data at specific constituency level are not available. The numbers of robbery and burglary offences recorded by the police, from 2002-03 to 2006-07, for each Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) in London are given in the following tables.

The following tables show the number of defendants found guilty at all courts for burglary and robbery in Greater London for the years 2001 to 2005, and is taken from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Data for 2006 will be available in November this year.

Caution must be taken in comparing recorded crime statistics with convictions statistics as these are from two different databases and recorded in quite different ways. Recorded crime data is provided on a financial year basis and counts offences whereas court proceedings data are on a calendar year basis and count offenders. Therefore, these two separate data-sets are not directly comparable.

Security Industry Authority: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many enforcement offices of the Security Industry Authority are operational in the force area of North Wales Police. [155962]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) does not have regional offices. The SIA has an intelligence team and a network of 41 investigators across England, Wales and Scotland. SIA investigation teams cover specific areas throughout England, Wales and Scotland and the structure of the SIA investigation teams allows resources to be directed to that area as required.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence were obtained against individuals resident in the force area of North Wales police in each of the last three years; [155963]

(2) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for supplying unlicensed security staff were obtained against individuals resident in the force area of North Wales police in each of the last three years. [155964]

Mr. Coaker: In 2004 and 2005, there were no convictions under sections 3 and 5 of the Private Security Industry Act 2001 at any courts in the North Wales police force area either for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence or for supplying unlicensed security staff.

The data for 2006 will be available in November 2007. (The statistics collected are broken down into locations where convictions were secured and not the addresses of individuals resident in the force area.)

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) front line and (b) non-front line licences granted under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 are held by individuals resident in the force area of North Wales Police. [155965]

Mr. Coaker: As of 1 October 2007, 236,129 front line licences and 5,677 non-front line licences have been granted in total across England, Wales and Scotland.

The statistics collected by the SIA are broken down into licensable sectors, not geographical areas.

Tesco: Extortion

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received from Tesco supermarket on threatening letters received from animal rights activists; and if she will make a statement. [154379]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has received no representations from Tesco supermarket on threatening letters received from animal rights activists. However, the Government are committed to working in close co-operation with law enforcement agencies and any targets of animal rights extremism to eradicate the threat of extremists, building on the significant fall in illegal extremist activity, and the many significant convictions of animal rights extremists in the past 18 months.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Centre of Excellence for Charitable Giving

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the winners of the contract to host the Centre of Excellence for Charitable Giving will also be able to bid for research work commissioned by the Centre. [155631]

Phil Hope: The Centre for Charitable Giving and Philanthropy is being commissioned on the basis of a published specification that identified key research areas.

A small proportion of the overall budget is currently uncommitted and has been set aside by the funders to support the commissioning of further research over the course of the centre.

It will be open to centre staff and others to bid for currently uncommitted funds, and to any additional funds secured to support appropriate further research projects.

Appropriate governance arrangements will be made to ensure that decisions on any further research supported by existing uncommitted funds, and by any additional funds secured, will be based on proposals' scientific excellence, in line with ESRC practice.

Charitable Donations

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what target the Government has set to increase charitable donations in real terms over the 10 year period to 2014; and what steps the Government is taking to monitor and report on progress towards meeting this target. [155630]

Phil Hope: A Generous Society, the Government's charitable giving strategy, was published in November 2005, and sets out our plans for working in partnership with the third sector to foster a deeper culture of planned, regular and tax-efficient giving. The Citizenship Survey will be used to determine the impact of the measures adopted.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of new departmental Ministers in the Cabinet Office following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156742]

Gillian Merron: The information is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive Non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156614]

Edward Miliband: A list of the non-departmental public bodies and agencies sponsored by the Cabinet Office can be found in the Cabinet Office departmental reports which are available in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members. They are also available from the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/about_the_cabinet_office/reports.asp

Gift Aid

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps were taken by the Office of the Third Sector to inform the voluntary sector and the general public about the reduction in the rate of gift aid that resulted from the change in income tax rates in the last Budget; and when those steps were taken. [155629]

Phil Hope: The then Chancellor and the Minister for the third sector discussed the need to further build on the increase in the amount of money directly benefiting third sector organisations, which has increased from £135 million in 1996-97 to £750 million for 2005-06. Measures to increase take-up of Gift Aid and ensure greater awareness of how to give in a tax-efficient way have been widely consulted on this year, ahead of any changes coming into effect on income tax levels. Findings from the consultation will be made available in due course.

Information Officers: Charity Commission

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many press officers are employed by the Charity Commission. [154419]

Phil Hope: The Charity Commission employs six staff with press office responsibilities.

Information Officers: Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many press officers are employed by the Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission. [154461]

Phil Hope: The Independent Complaints Reviewer to the Charity Commission does not employ any press officers.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies: Political Powers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people are members of quangos in England and Wales; and what the total cost of quangos in England and Wales was in each of the last 10 years; [152930]

(2) what assessments are made of the political party memberships of individuals appointed to quangos and commissions in England and Wales; what reforms are planned; and if he will make a statement; [152931]

(3) which public bodies are required to report to Parliament; [152932]

(4) how many and what percentage of the (a) paid and (b) unpaid appointments made to non-departmental public bodies since 1 May 1997 were (i) members and (ii) declared supporters of the Labour Party. [152933]

Edward Miliband: Information on membership and expenditure of public bodies is published annually by the Cabinet Office. Figures covering the period 1997 to 2006 are available on the civil service website (www.civilservice.gov.uk). Departments are in the process of publishing information for 2006-07 and a summary will be published by the Cabinet Office when publication by Departments is completed.

Information on the political activity of those appointed to the boards of public bodies is collected by the independent Commissioner for Public Appointments and published in her annual report. The Commissioner's annual report for 2006-07 was published on 8 October 2007. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, whether the role of KPMG changed once they stopped providing advice to her Department and started advising the Olympic Delivery Authority in July 2006. [154086]

Tessa Jowell: Yes. KPMG were contracted to provide advice to the Department on the development of the Olympic budget until July 2006. Following this, KPMG were contracted by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) to provide the ODA with ongoing advice on their cost estimates. KPMG have continued in this role.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 363W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, what documents KPMG provided to her Department when they stopped providing it with advice on the cost of the Olympics in July 2006. [154089]

Tessa Jowell: Other than an invoice for their work up until July 2006, our records show that KPMG did not provide the Department with any further documents.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1292W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, how the cost review continued its work after 25 April; [154100]

(2) on what areas of the Olympics budget the cost review continued to work after 25 April. [154101]

Tessa Jowell: After 25 April 2006, the cost review continued its work by analysing and validating the cost estimates and risks underpinning all aspects of the cost package that was subsequently announced to the House on 15 March 2007. This included: Olympic Park and venues; Olympic infrastructure and regeneration; and security.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1292W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, which (a) ministerial and (b) official groups have taken forward the work of the Cost Review Group since 25 April. [154102]

Tessa Jowell: I, and departmental officials, held a number of bilateral meetings with key stakeholders to take forward the cost review work from 25 April 2006 until my statement of 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450. No specific ministerial group or official groups were required.

Following my announcement of 15 March 2007, Ministers have established a Funders Group, supported by officials, to continually assess the Olympic budget and agree any further calls on the contingency provision.

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) what her policy is on the use of the Red Arrows RAF flying team during the 2012 Olympics; and if she will make a statement; [155620]

(2) if she will make a statement on the involvement of the Red Arrows in the Olympic ceremonies in 2012. [156006]

Tessa Jowell: Newspaper claims that the Government have banned or advised against the Red Arrows' involvement in the opening ceremony or any other celebrations associated with the 2012 Games are completely untrue and unfounded.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for deciding what to include in the opening ceremony and other celebrations, and no decisions have yet been taken about the content. The Red Arrows have already played a memorable role in the celebrations, when they flew over Trafalgar Square to mark London winning the Games.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate (a) the number and (b) average value of payments made by the Rural Payments Agency in respect of the Common Agricultural Policy in excess of (i) £150,000, (ii) £200,000, (iii) £250,000 and (iv) 300,000; and if he will make a statement. [154770]

Jonathan Shaw: A breakdown of individual CAP payments exceeding £150,000 made to customers over the 2006-07 exchequer year is reflected in the table.

The table includes payments made for expenditure both fully and partly funded by the EC.

This table is based on analysis of all individual payments to customers exceeding £150,000 over the period 1 April 2006 through to 31 March 2007.

Value of payment	Number of payments	Average value of payments (£)
Over £150,000	1,647	252,826.81
Over £200,000	801	338,504.48
Over £250,000	457	425,872.31
Over £300,000	295	508,639.72

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much has been paid in agricultural subsidies in Bassetlaw constituency in each year since 2005; [155600]

(2) how many farmers have been paid agricultural subsidies in Bassetlaw constituency in each of the last 10 years. [155601]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not currently available, but I have asked officials to collate the data. I will write to the hon. Member with the information in due course and copies will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Animals: Disease Control

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will assess whether there is any continuing risk to the farming industry from a failure of bio-security at the (a) Compton and (b) Pirbright sites of the Institute for Animal Health. [155777]

Jonathan Shaw: All the recommendations in the reports by the Health and Safety Executive and Professor Spratt applying to the Government, the Institute of Animal Health and Merial have been accepted, and already have been, or are being, implemented. In addition, as set out in the Government Statement of 7 September 2007 in response to these investigations, we have taken action that goes beyond these recommendations. These measures ensure the highest level of bio-security at Pirbright and at other laboratories working with specified animal pathogens.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which viruses dangerous to animal or human health have been subject to experimentation at the (a) Pirbright and (b) Compton sites of the Institute for Animal Health. [155786]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA, as licensor and regulator under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998 have issued the Institute for Animal Health with licences for both the Pirbright and Compton sites to hold category 3 and 4 viruses under that Order. Among the viruses covered by the Order are: bluetongue, African horse sickness, foot and mouth disease, African swine fever, avian influenza, avian oncogenic viruses, coronaviruses and morbiliviruses. It is not possible, for reasons of commercial confidentiality, to give details of specific viruses that have been subject to experimentation.

Birds: Malta

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with his Maltese counterpart on reducing the shooting of turtle doves and quails during spring 2008 in that country. [156490]

Joan Ruddock: No such discussions have taken place.

Council Directive 79/409/EEC on the Conservation of Wild Birds (the "Birds Directive") lays down rules for the protection, management and control of all wild birds. Member states are required to introduce legislation in line with the birds directive's requirements and ensure it is applied effectively.

The hunting of turtle dove and quail in Malta is permitted under the birds directive. However, during periods of reproduction or during their return to rearing grounds, hunting may only be permitted under derogation and if the strict conditions under Article 9 of the birds directive are met. This is a matter for the Maltese authorities to determine.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155891]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's central spend on campaigns and marketing through the Communications Directorate and the Citizen and Public Engagement Programme is £7,160,000. Within this, the projected spend on advertising and promotional activity is as follows:

Television	1,670,300	—
Radio	45,000	—
Print media	760,500	—

The projected spend for 2008-09 has not yet been created.

The Department does not maintain central records of other communications expenditure outside of the Communications Directorate.

Environment Agency: Manpower

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff were working for the Environment Agency in Peterborough in each year since 1997. [154073]

Mr. Woolas: A breakdown of Environment Agency staff based in Peterborough from 2000 to the present day is provided in the following table.

Details of staff numbers in earlier years is not available due to limited reporting functions prior to 2000.

	Staff
2000	272
2001	268
2002	354
2003	368
2004	453
2005	478
2006	504
2007	498

Staff are based at Kingfisher house and Aqua house, Peterborough.

Farms: Mushrooms

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many visits Ministers have made to mushroom farms since 1991. [156536]

Jonathan Shaw: This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions there have been of mushroom farms under the Environment Protection Act 1990. [156537]

Jonathan Shaw: I am not aware of any such prosecutions having been undertaken since DEFRA began collecting data on prosecutions in 2001-02.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mushroom farms there are in England. [156538]

Jonathan Shaw: According to the June Survey of Agriculture, the number of registered holdings in England specialising in mushroom production at June 2006 was 43. These are holdings where mushroom growing is the predominant activity. Estimates are based on a sample survey and are, therefore, subject to a degree of sampling error.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review the cost benefit analysis system for allocating funds to flood risk areas. [156540]

Mr. Woolas: Economic analysis is undertaken as part of project appraisal. It provides an aid to determining the most appropriate solution to a problem, to ensure that the funds secured from general taxation are invested for the benefit of the nation as a whole. It is an effective tool for comparing the impacts of flooding with the costs of reducing risk. Social, health and environmental impacts can often be valued and included in the analysis where they are significant.

Following public consultation, a set of outcome measures has been developed to provide greater clarity on what policies and funding for flood and coastal erosion risk management are intended to achieve. One of the agreed measures will show the overall benefits of flood and coastal erosion risk management activities in monetary terms. The measures will be used to set targets progressively during the period covered by the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, starting with the capital programme in 2008-09.

Flood Control: Agriculture

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with farmers regarding managing land use for flood prevention in flood risk areas. [156542]

Mr. Woolas: As part of DEFRA's 'Making Space for Water' strategy, there are two projects investigating the role that rural land use and land management can play in managing flood risk at the farm and catchment scale. These projects are Catchment Scale Land—Use Management (HA6) and Land Management Practices (HA7). In the development of these projects, the Environment Agency has been working with the National Farmers Union and the Country Land and Business Association.

At a local level, the Environment Agency is developing Catchment Flood Management Plans, which consider the role of land use, in consultation with all interested parties.

Floods

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what total funds were available for flood recovery across all Government Departments for (a) the county of Gloucestershire, (b) the borough of Tewkesbury, (c) the city of Gloucester and (d) the Cotswolds district. [155859]

Mr. Woolas: To date, the Government have made available a significant package of £57 million to support areas affected by the flooding of June and July 2007. The county of Gloucestershire was allocated £2,623,000 of flood recovery grant, which includes £623,500 for the borough of Tewkesbury, £646,500 for the city of Gloucester and £623,500 for the Cotswold district council. Gloucestershire county council was allocated £1,007,900 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families. None of the other local authorities within Gloucestershire provide education or children's services and thus were not eligible for this funding.

The Department for Transport has written to Gloucestershire saying that they will be allocated at least £10 million for highways works and there are ongoing discussions about further funding.

The Regional Development Agency with responsibility for Gloucestershire announced a £2 million flood recovery package for the region. Eligible businesses are able to claim up to a maximum of £2,500. As at 4 October 2007, 455 grant offers had been made, totalling £1,030,000 and 239 of these offers have been claimed, totalling £526,000 paid out by the Regional Development Agency.

This is additional money to that available under the Bellwin scheme. The scheme provides emergency financial assistance from the Government to local authorities, to help meet the uninsurable costs of immediate action to safeguard life or property or prevent severe inconvenience to inhabitants in the case of an emergency or disaster. In recognition of the exceptional nature of the recent flooding, special arrangements apply for these schemes. We have significantly extended the period for which the affected authorities can claim for eligible costs and increased the proportion of costs they can receive to 100 per cent. above the threshold.

Floods: Landfill Tax

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the increase in landfill tax in Hull, following recent flooding in the area and the need to dispose of damaged items; and if he will make a statement. [156543]

Joan Ruddock: Landfill tax provides an important incentive for local authorities to achieve more sustainable waste management.

Hull has estimated that a relatively small increase in municipal waste arisings will occur, because of the flooding. This is within the normal range of variations in annual waste arisings. It should not have a long-term or significant impact on waste management costs.

DEFRA has not assessed specifically the increase in landfill tax in Hull following the flooding in the area.

Foot and Mouth Disease: New Forest

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency plans exist to deal with an outbreak of foot and mouth disease amongst commoners' stock in the New Forest; and if he will make a statement. [156384]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's contingency plan for exotic animal diseases is in three parts:

i. Information on specific animal diseases. This is available on the DEFRA website and ensures that those interested always have access to up to date information.

ii. Emergency preparedness. This provides details of how DEFRA has prepared for an outbreak, including some information on the diseases and what action the Department has taken to be ready.

iii. Framework Response plan. This is an operational manual for those involved in managing handling an outbreak and, whilst it is in the public domain, it is primarily for officials who have responsibility in an outbreak.

The plan is reviewed annually in accordance with the requirements of the Animal Health Act 2002. The current version of the plan was laid before Parliament on 13 December 2006. The plan (together with the additional bluetongue contingency plan) is being used in the current outbreaks of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue.

DEFRA encourages owners or keepers of stock kept on common land, such as the New Forest, to undertake enhanced surveillance for signs of disease amongst their animals. If they have any concerns they should be reported to their local animal health office.

Landfill

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to allocate increased landfill allowance trading scheme targets to local authorities which are in sustainable communities growth plan areas. [153966]

Joan Ruddock: Under the landfill allowances trading scheme (LATS), allowances have been determined for waste disposal authorities (WDAs) each year from 2004-05 to 2019-20 to provide local authorities with greater certainty for long-term planning. The total number of allowances is limited to ensure that England can meet its share of the European Landfill Directive targets for biodegradable municipal waste. It is not possible to increase the allowances available to individual WDAs without breaching the national targets or reducing the allowances available to other local authorities.

LATS provides flexibility to help local authorities cope with increasing populations through trading, banking and borrowing of allowances. This is intended to give all WDAs every opportunity to avoid becoming liable to a financial penalty for failure to comply with LATS obligations.

Landfill: Recycling

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to investigate the capture and use of gas produced from landfill for (a) use as a fuel and (b) electricity generation. [156039]

Joan Ruddock: There are currently 324 landfill sites in the UK that utilise methane to generate electricity. The technology for this is well established, with the first site in the UK to generate electricity from landfill gas starting to operate in the 1980s.

The production of electricity from landfill gas is incentivised through the Renewables Obligation (RO), which places an obligation on licensed electricity suppliers to source a proportion of electricity from renewable sources.

Packaging: Recycling

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial incentives there are for small to medium sized firms to recycle (a) materials and (b) packaging. [156552]

Joan Ruddock: The Landfill Tax acts as a financial incentive for all businesses, not just small to medium sized firms, to encourage recycling of materials. The Business Resource Efficiency and Waste (BREW) Programme (funded from Landfill Tax) allows businesses to receive free and independent support and advice to help them increase their profitability by sending less waste to landfill and recycling more.

There are no specific financial incentives for small to medium sized companies to recycle packaging. However, the Packaging Regulations do provide an incentive for businesses to reduce and minimise the amount of packaging used. This is because they are obliged to recover and recycle a specified amount of packaging waste; determined, in part, by the amount of packaging they handle. A producer using less packaging, can reduce the costs incurred under these regulations.

Pirbright Laboratory: Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether (a) Mr. John Manser and (b) any other officials responsible for inspecting, regulating and licensing the Institute for Animal Health site and the Merial site at Pirbright were made aware of the issues raised in the letter from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004; [155667]

(2) whether any Minister in his Department was made aware following the letter to the Department from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004 of the need to renew the old effluent drain between the restricted area of Merial and the Institute of Animal Health effluent treatment plant. [155668]

Jonathan Shaw: Officials, but not Ministers, were made aware of the issues raised in the letter from the Merial site director of 20 July 2004. The letter sought DEFRA's views, as licensor and regulator under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order 1998, on the proposed specification of the replacement pipe. No questions over the integrity of the pipe in relation to requirements under that Order were raised in the letter, previously or subsequently, until the DEFRA-commissioned Health and Safety Executive inspection in August this year.

Plastics: Recycling

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Government has made of the volume of plastic recycled in the United Kingdom compared to the volume shipped abroad. [156550]

Joan Ruddock: Most material collected in the UK for recycling is processed in this country.

The total amount of plastic waste arising in the UK is estimated at 5.9 million tonnes a year. The Environment Agency estimates that the level of plastic exports by 2006 would have reached 440,000 tonnes a year. Figures on the amount of plastic recycled in the UK are not held centrally.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions have been held with the plastics industry to ensure that the range of polymers and products does not create obstacles to recycling. [156551]

Joan Ruddock: No formal discussions have been held.

Government cannot oblige producers to use specific materials in their packaging or products. In reality all polymers are recyclable, although in some instances it is not currently economic to do so. The Government are making it easier for local authorities to plan for, and put in place, the waste infrastructure that is needed on the ground in order to re-process more recyclable materials.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Government have made of incentives which could be adopted to encourage local authorities to promote kerbside* and other methods of plastic recycling. [156553]

Joan Ruddock: Additional funding for local authorities, including through the private finance initiative, has led to a major increase in kerbside recycling facilities. The Government's Waste Strategy for England 2007 set a new national target for reducing the amount of household wastes not reused, recycled or composted, and increased national targets for the percentage of household waste recycled and composted. It also set a target for the amount of municipal waste recovered.

Technical advice on the collection of plastics for recycling is available for local authorities from the Waste Resources Action programme (WRAP).

Radioactive Wastes

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to meet with representatives of English, Scottish or Welsh local authorities to discuss the disposal of radioactive waste; and if he will make a statement. [156450]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 8 October 2007]: I spoke at the Local Government Association conference 'The long-term management of radioactive wastes—the role of Local Government' on 6 September 2007. There are also regular meetings between DEFRA and the Nuclear Legacy Advisory Forum (NuLeAF), the special interest group of the Local Government Association, to discuss radioactive waste issues.

The Government are consulting publicly on a framework for implementing the geological disposal of higher activity radioactive waste. In launching the consultation document on 25 June 2007, DEFRA Ministers wrote to all local authorities in England and Wales to inform those who may have an interest in responding.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Councillors: Planning

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to implement the proposals set out in its recent report on Councillor Involvement in Planning Decisions in respect of biological treatment infrastructure. [154152]

Yvette Cooper: Since the report did not recommend changes to the procedure for considering planning applications, but rather pointed to existing good practice, we do not propose to take any further implementation action.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on hospitality in each of the last five years. [156423]

Mr. Iain Wright: For 2006-07 spending on hospitality by Communities and Local Government, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson) on 8 May 2007, Official Report, columns 120-21W. In our predecessor department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, spending on hospitality was £38,803 in 2003-04, £42,126 in 2004-05 and £54,932 in 2005-06. Recorded hospitality expenditure is higher in 2006-07 than in previous years, due to coding parameter changes on the Department's financial system, which means that some catering expenditure is also included.

Departments: Training

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Deprtment's expenditure was on away days located outside her Department's buildings in the last year for which figures are available. [155698]

Mr. Iain Wright: Expenditure related to staff away days is not identified as a separate item on the Department's accounting system, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, any such expenditure could reasonably be expected within the expenditure total for conferences. The total expenditure on conferences for Ministers and civil servants incurred by Communities and Local Government in the period 1 October 2006 to 30 September 2007 was £498,273.

All expenditure on conferences is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 164W, on Home Information Packs, if she will place in the Library a copy of written representations made by (a) Rightmove and (b) Countrywide in relation to home information packs. [152536]

Yvette Cooper: Responses to public consultations from the Countrywide Assured Group plc. on the content of the home information pack and the home information pack in low demand low value areas have been placed in the Library.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the oral answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W, on home information packs, how many voluntary home condition reports have been purchased. [152671]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W.

Full results of the trials that include completed transactions will be published when available.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many (a) subsidised and (b) non-subsidised energy performance certificates have been purchased; [152846]

(2) how many (a) subsidised and (b) non-subsidised voluntary home condition reports have been purchased. [152847]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 160W.

The register of home condition reports and energy performance certificates does not include details on the price paid for a report.

Full results of the trials that include completed transactions will be published when completed.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the sale of a freehold interest of a leasehold residential property requires (a) an energy performance certificate and (b) a home information pack. [153696]

Yvette Cooper: A home information pack, including an energy performance certificate, may be required where a residential property consisting of a single dwelling is marketed for sale with vacant possession, either freehold or under a long lease.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether buyers selling their homes through a property location agent are required to commission a home information pack; and if she will make a statement. [155414]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 17 September 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Beverley and Holderness (Mr. Stuart) on 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1273W.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the legal definition is of a bedroom for the purposes of the Home Information Pack provisions. [155715]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 161W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if a room described as a (a) study, (b) spare room and (c) HIP replacement room would be classed as a bedroom for the purposes of the requirements for three or four bedroom homes to have a home information pack. [156602]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Aylesbury (Mr. Lidington) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 161W.

Home Information Packs: Appeals

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedures are in place for a home owner to appeal against the information and grading provided in an energy performance certificate; what the estimated average cost of such a procedure is; and whether the register of energy performance certificates may be amended. [156601]

Yvette Cooper: All accreditation schemes are required to have redress procedures which are free to the consumer. Schemes have a duty to ensure assessment standards are high and that any appeals are dealt with in a fair, swift and effective manner. If an EPC was found to be inaccurate a new one would be reissued and lodged in the register.

Home Information Packs: Enforcement

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received from the Royal Institute for Chartered Surveyors on the enforceability of home information pack regulations; what response she has made; and how she plans to enforce the regulations. [154076]

Yvette Cooper: We have had a number of discussions with the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors in the last 12 months on all aspects of home information packs. Section 166 of the Housing Act 2004 places a duty on local trading standards authorities to enforce the home information pack duties in their areas.

Home Information Packs: Fines

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's estimate is of the number of fines to be issued each year against (a) home owners and (b) estate agents for breaches of the home information pack provisions. [154077]

Yvette Cooper: No such estimate has been made. Local trading standards authorities are responsible for the enforcement of the home information pack duties in their areas.

Home Information Packs: Flint Bishop Solicitors

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings representatives of her Department have had with (a) Flint Bishop solicitors and (b) Labour Legal Services in the last 12 months; and what representations her Department has received from each organisation in relation to home information packs in that period. [155935]

Yvette Cooper: Our records show that the Department for Communities and Local Government has had no meetings with or representations from Flint

Bishop solicitors or Labour Legal Services in the last 12 months on home information packs.

Home Information Packs: Liability

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has produced on the (a) minimum and (b) maximum liability to be paid out on an insurance policy underwriting the accuracy and completeness of a personal search, in a Home Information Pack, not provided by a solicitor. [155856]

Yvette Cooper: The HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 introduce, for the first time, stringent requirements for all those compiling property searches, including requirements on insurance cover for third parties and liability in the event of financial loss.

The Procedural Guidance which supports the HIPs (No. 2) Regulations 2007 sets out that all those compiling property searches must have suitable insurance arrangements in place with an insurer authorised under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

Housing: Energy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the XML Schema for the proposed register of energy performance certificates. [155709]

Yvette Cooper: The XML Schema for the Register of Energy Performance Certificates forms part of the Certification Scheme and Accreditation Scheme Technical Standards and is publicly available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/pdf/151075

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with other ministerial colleagues on the provision of policy guidance for the needs of existing homes for energy improvement in any forthcoming policy papers; and if she will make a statement. [155744]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have a wide ranging programme to encourage energy efficiency in existing homes, through policies and programmes run by this Department, the Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. In line with appropriate practice, any policy guidance issued on energy efficiency matters will be considered collectively. Most recently, for example, Ministers from CLG, DEFRA and BERR jointly issued the Energy Measures report, guidance to local authorities which, amongst other matters, covered how local authorities can promote energy efficiency in their areas.

Housing: Floods

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps her Department is taking to encourage developers to use water resilient flooring and fittings in houses built in areas with a high risk of flooding; [156835]

(2) what steps her Department is taking to support the development of raised level flooring to counter the effects of flooding. [156836]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 15 May Communities and Local Government published a technical guide, "Improving the Flood Resilient Performance of New Buildings—Flood resilient construction." This guide provides information on how homes can be constructed so that, if they are flooded, it should be easier to clean and repair them and enable early reoccupation. This guide includes information on flood resilient flooring, threshold and floor levels. The Department will consider the options for further action in relation to the flood performance of buildings in the light of Sir Michael Pitts' inquiry into the effects of the summer floods.

Meanwhile all development is subject to Planning Policy Statement 25, "Development and Flood Risk (PPS25)" which aims to locate development away from flood risk whenever possible. In those areas where virtually all land is within high flood risk areas and there are few, if any, low risk sites for development, PPS25 imposes new requirements for resilience that ensure that buildings in higher risk areas are safe and less susceptible to flood damage.

The mitigation process described in PPS25 includes the use of resilient or resistant construction. With regard to raising floor levels, while this can assist, it is not without adverse consequences: raised floors can make access and egress more difficult, especially for older people or the infirm; placing buildings on mounds can displace flood water, causing problems elsewhere; raising buildings can create a void under the building where flood water accumulates, bringing problems of removing flood water and contaminants after the flood subsides.

Housing: Inspections

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many representations her Department has received on compensation payments for home inspectors and energy inspectors. [152421]

Yvette Cooper: As part of the regular correspondence from stakeholders, the Department has received some representations on the issue of compensation.

Local Authorities: Equal Pay

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what financial provision has been made for local authorities which are conducting pay and grading reviews in order to comply with the Equal Pay Act 1974. [156020]

John Healey: Under the Equal Pay Act 1970, an employer must provide equal pay for the same work or work which is considered objectively to be of equal value. The Local Government Association has sought additional borrowing flexibility for local government through capitalisation. In response, on 28 September 2007 the Government issued £500 million of capitalisation directions to 46 authorities for the purpose of spending on equal pay back-pay.

A list of these 46 authorities is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/corporate/490459.

Religion

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations the Government has received on the activities of (a) The Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) The New Kadampa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International; and when such representations were received. [156701]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government has received correspondence from a member of the public regarding the alleged cultish behaviour of the Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, New Kadampa Tradition and Soka Gakkai International, and the recommendation of funding to these organisations under Round 2 of the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. This representation was received on 1 May 2007. As far as we are aware, no other representation has been received.

Stakeholder Advisory Panel on Home Buying and Selling: Public Appointments

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who the members are of the Stakeholder Advisory Panel on home buying and selling; and what criteria were used to appoint its members. [153818]

Yvette Cooper: The Stakeholder Advisory Panel on home buying and selling consists of:

Yvette Cooper (chair CLG)
Mike Ockenden (AHIPP)
Peter Bollon-King (NAEA)
Nick Stace (Which?)
Fiona Hoyle (CoPSO)
Michael Coogan (CML)
Simon McWhirter (WWF)
Jeremy Leaf (RICS)
Ted Beardsall (Land Registry)
Paul Marsh (Law Society)
Heather Clayton (OFT)
David Saunders (BERR)
Matthew Symes (Non-executive director)
Jeremy Stanyard (Non-executive director)

Unitary Councils

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many councils she expects to be permitted to move ahead with a unitary bid in the initial stage following the prioritisation process outlined in the latest consultation paper on unitary bids. [155695]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my statement on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 68WS.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Screening

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the breast cancer re-screening rate, within 36 months is in (a) England, (b) West Yorkshire and (c) Wakefield; [156379]

(2) what proportion of eligible women in the Leeds/Wakefield breast screening area are receiving scans within the 36 month national standard. [156380]

Ann Keen: 36-month breast cancer screening interval rates for England and Leeds Wakefield and Bradford Pennine, the two screening centres which cover West Yorkshire, are shown in the following table. 38-month interval rates are also given as an indicator of how close intervals are to the national standard of 36 months. Figures are not available for Wakefield alone.

Percentage

	36 month breast cancer screening interval rate—April to June 2007	38 month breast cancer screening interval rate—April to June 2007
England	67	90
Bradford Pennine screening centre	69	93
Leeds Wakefield screening centre	10	46

Source:
NHS Cancer Screening Programme

The Government take the issue of the 36-month standard between screens very seriously and that is why Professor Mike Richards, the National Cancer Director, wrote to the chief executives of all 10 strategic health authorities in England on 9 February 2007 highlighting the importance of maintaining the 36-month interval.

Broomfield Hospital: PFI

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations the Department received (a) supporting and (b) against the Broomfield private finance initiative scheme; what meetings were organised on this scheme and with whom; and what other consultation was conducted and what the balance of opinion was arising therefrom. [156526]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The former Minister of State (Andy Burnham), met with the hon. Members for West Chelmsford (Mr. Burns), Maldon and East Chelmsford (Mr. Whittingdale), the right hon. Member for Saffron Walden (Sir Alan Haselhurst), the hon. Member for Braintree (Mr. Newmark), Chair of the Trust David Bullock, Chief Executive of the Trust Andrew Pike, Helen Davis (from the strategic health authority (SHA)) and Peter Coates, Deputy Director of Finance-Investment, from the Department on Monday 20 November 2006 to discuss progress of the Broomfield private finance initiative scheme.

The full business case, which is supported by local commissioners, the trust and the SHA has been submitted to the Department for approval.

Chronically Sick

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the National Service Framework for Long-term Conditions; and when the framework will be reviewed. [155949]

Ann Keen: The National Service Framework (NSF) for long-term conditions has a 10-year implementation programme from its publication in March 2005, with flexibility for organisations to set the pace of change locally to take account of local priorities and needs. The "NSF Good Practice Guide" demonstrates that that a number of organisations have successfully addressed aspects of service delivery outlined in the NSF.

The Department has no plans to review the NSF.

Contaminated Blood and Blood Products Inquiry

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of the documents rediscovered by his Department in 2007 relating to the safety of blood products have (a) been and (b) not been (i) publicly released and (ii) released to the Archer inquiry to date; and if he will make a statement. [156290]

Dawn Primarolo: Two sets of documents related to blood safety, previously believed to be missing, were recovered in 2006:

some 4,500 documents located in storage in unregistered files. These are now held in 101 registered files.

some 600 documents returned by a firm of private solicitors who acted for claimants in HIV litigation in 1989. These are now held in 20 registered files.

These documents in 121 files are being reviewed and issued in line with the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

Documents from 100 files, comprising 80 of the 101 files in category 1 and the 20 files in category 2, have been supplied to the Archer inquiry. Documents from the remaining 21 files will be issued this month, within the timetable agreed with the inquiry team.

The documents are being scanned and placed on the Department's website for public access. So far the documents in 60 of the 101 previously unregistered files have been placed on the Department's website. It is anticipated that documents from all 121 files will be on the Department's website by the end of November.

Dental Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress towards full provision of dentistry on the NHS. [155427]

Ann Keen: The fundamental reforms introduced last year have provided for the first time a stable foundation for the national health service to develop dental services that meet local needs.

The recent Departmental report "NHS Dental Reforms: One year on" sets out the progress already made in developing new services and the further action being taken to support the NHS in improving access. This report has been placed in the Library.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by his Department on (a) staff training and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153077]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held centrally and to collect it would be at disproportionate cost.

General Medical Services Contract

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to provide NHS employers with a mandate to negotiate the arrangements for the new General Medical Services contract in 2008-08. [156412]

Mr. Bradshaw: NHS employers have already begun negotiations with the British Medical Association's General Practitioners' Committee on possible changes to the General Medical Services contract for 2008-09, based on a mandate provided to them by the Department.

General Practitioners: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department collects information on the number of foreign nationals in England registered with general practitioners. [156397]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department does not hold this information centrally.

The Department is currently undertaking a review of access to the national health service by foreign nationals, the review is being conducted jointly with the Home Office Border and Immigration Agency and will cover access to both primary and secondary care.

Health Hazards: Electric Cables

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice he has received from the Health Protection Agency to the Stakeholder Advisory Group on ELF EMF's report; if he will place a copy of the advice in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [156852]

Dawn Primarolo: Following the publication of the Stakeholder Advisory Group on extremely low frequency and electromagnetic fields (SAGE) report, the former Minister of State (Caroline Flint) at the time, wrote to the Health Protection Agency to ask for its considered view and advice to Government. We are currently awaiting a reply.

Health Hazards: Mercury

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the potential effect on public health of mercury in (a) vaccinations, (b) dental amalgams and (c) low energy light bulbs. [156823]

Dawn Primarolo: As with all medicinal products, vaccine safety is continually monitored by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) with advice from the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM). The CHM has thoroughly reviewed the safety of vaccines containing mercury (thiomersal).

Several large studies have found no evidence of a link between thiomersal-containing vaccines and neurodevelopmental disorders. MHRA and CHM advice, available on the MHRA website, is that there is no evidence of harm from the very small quantities of thiomersal contained in some vaccines, with the exception of possible allergic reactions such as skin rashes or local swelling at the site of injection. This view concurs with that of the World Health Organisation, the United States Institute of Medicine and the European Medicines Agency.

The use of dental amalgam is declining in the United Kingdom as a result of increased application of alternatives, changes in the commissioning of primary dental care and a general improvement in dental health. We expect this decline to continue. However it remains an effective direct restorative option and there is no evidence to suggest that its use poses any significant health risk.

No formal assessment has been made in respect of the potential effect on public health of mercury in low energy light bulbs.

Health Services: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent per head of population on health services in 2006-07 in each (a) primary care trust and (b) local authority area ranked in order. [155904]

Mr. Bradshaw: Tables showing the spend by head of population in primary care trusts for 2006-07 and social services spending in 2005-06 for each council in ranked order have been placed in the Library. These are for the latest years for which data are available.

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) gun shot and (b) knife wounds the NHS has treated in the last 12 months. [156834]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not collected on the number of gun shot and knife wounds the national health service has treated.

Information is available however on those patients who were actually admitted to hospital for gun shot and knife injuries (these figures do not include patients who were treated in accident and emergency departments for gun shot/knife injuries and not admitted). Those cause codes that appear relevant are presented in the following table.

Count of finished admission episodes for gun shot and knife wound injuries 2005-06: NHS hospitals, England

		Count
W32	Handgun discharge	44
W33	Rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	73
X72	Intentional self-harm by handgun discharge	10
X73	Intent self-harm by rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	17
X93	Assault by handgun discharge	44
X94	Assault by rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge	51
Y22	Handgun discharge undetermined intent	9
Y23	Rifle shotgun and larger firearm discharge undetermined intent	11
W26	Contact with knife sword or dagger	5,321

Notes:
1. Finished admission episodes.:
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
2. Cause code:
The cause code is a supplementary code that indicates the nature of any external cause of injury, poisoning or other adverse effects.
3. Ungrossed data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will address each of the seven questions asked by the hon. Member for Billericay in the letter to his Department on the subject of testosterone deficiency dated 31 May. [155967]

Ann Keen: A response to this letter was sent to the hon. Member on 19 July 2007. This reply answers all the hon. Member's questions and there is nothing further we can add to this response.

NHS Next Stage Review

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his most recent estimate is of the (a) cost to date (i) in total and (ii) broken down by major cost area and (b) expected overall cost to the public purse of Lord Darzi's NHS Next Stage Review; [156415]

(2) what progress Lord Darzi is making in his NHS Next Stage Review; how many (a) clinicians, (b) managers and (c) other staff he has received representations from; how many NHS organisations the review team has formally met with since the announcement of the review; whether he still intends to publish an interim report of the work of the review in October; and if he will make a statement; [156416]

(3) how many clinical pathway groups to inform the work of the NHS Next Stage Review have been established in each strategic health authority; and who the members are of each group which has been established. [156417]

Ann Keen: The interim report, published on 4 October, explains that the review is primarily a local process involving thousands of frontline staff, patients and public in the design of care pathways based on best practice evidence. This is core business for the national health service and as such involves no additional cost to the taxpayer.

The success of a review like this depends of course on the thorough involvement of patients, public and staff and good communication. The total departmental spend so far on staff, patients and public engagement in direct connection with the review is £1.2 million.

The clinicians, managers and other staff leading the review work locally are receiving the great majority of representations from clinicians, managers and other staff.

Lord Darzi personally has met with over 1,500 NHS staff in 17 NHS organisations, read more than 1,400 letters and e-mails from people, including NHS staff, from up and down the country and participated in a nationwide day of detailed discussions with 1,000 people including NHS staff from nine towns and cities. An event attended by representatives of 250 stakeholder groups has been held. In addition, officials at the Department of Health regularly meet with representatives from NHS organisations on various issues right across the span of the review.

Each strategic health authority is responsible for establishing eight local clinical pathway groups. Lists of members should be sought directly from the strategic health authorities themselves.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 1004W, on NHS: ICT, when the plan of key milestones will be completed; and how it will be made publicly available. [156241]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 270W.

Skin Cancer: Medical Treatments

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of treating skin cancer in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156446]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 22 January 2007, Official Report, columns 1605-06W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK's obligations under the UN Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women have been extended to all UK overseas territories; and if he will make a statement. [155813]

Meg Munn: The Government are working to encourage the extension of the UK's obligation under the UN Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women to all the UK populated Overseas Territories. With the agreement of the respective territory governments, we have extended this convention to the British Virgin Islands, the Falkland Islands and the Turks and Caicos Islands.

The Cayman Islands Government have formally requested that the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women should be extended to them. Further legislative work is ongoing and will need to be completed before the Convention can be extended. The Governments of Bermuda and Gibraltar have also agreed to draft legislation to enable the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women to be extended to them.

We will continue to encourage those UK Overseas Territories that have not yet agreed to the extension of the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women to do so.

Departments: European Indicators Project

Ms Gisela Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure full participation in the European Indicators Project by official bodies and UK assessment organisations. [154221]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply my hon. Friend the Minister for Schools and Learners, Jim Knight, gave to her on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 382-83W.

Entry Clearances

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what percentage of appeals against a refusal to issue a visa were upheld in the last 12 months, broken down by overseas post. [156669]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the following table.

Northern Cyprus: Churches

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the condition of Greek Cypriot churches and cemeteries in northern Cyprus. [156201]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Pending reunification, preserving the cultural heritage of Cyprus, including churches and cemeteries in northern Cyprus, remains an issue of great importance. More can and should be done in this regard, and I sympathise with all those affected. The UN, and also the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, are aware of this issue and we support them in their efforts to address the problem. The process envisaged by the 8 July Agreement would provide a framework in which the issue of preserving cultural heritage could be discussed and addressed by the two communities.

Serbia: International Whaling Commission

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with the Serbian Foreign Minister in London on 18 September on Serbia's possible membership of the International Whaling Commission; and if he will make a statement. [156047]

Meg Munn: Although my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's meeting with the Serbian Foreign Minister covered a range of international issues, whaling was not discussed.

Uganda: Elections

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the recommendations of the European Union Elections Observer Mission report on the 2006 elections in Uganda; what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on this report; what proposals he has made on this subject to his European counterparts ahead of the December EU-Africa summit; and if he will make a statement. [153786]

David Miliband: In July 2006, the EU election observer mission released its final report on the February 2006 elections. The report concluded that the elections fell short of full compliance with international principles for genuine democratic elections. However, the report also said that despite some shortcomings on election day, voting was generally well administered, transparent and competitive.

The UK, along with our EU partners, has a regular dialogue with the Government of Uganda on all aspects of developing multi-party democracy and engaging with the opposition, building towards the next elections, due to take place in 2011.

The report and recommendations were discussed in detail by EU Heads of Mission in Kampala, including with the Government of Uganda. We will continue to refer to it regularly in the run-up to the next elections. I have not had discussions on this issue with my EU counterparts. The agenda of the December EU-Africa summit has not been finalised. However, the UK supports the inclusion of a discussion of governance throughout Africa.

USA: Prince Charles

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether before Sir Michael Peat's press conference on 26 June his Department was aware that the official gift given during the official visit to the USA in 2005 by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to President Bush had been selected and purchased by Michael Fawcett; and if he will make a statement. [156853]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 26 July 2006, Official Report, column 1473W.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, columns 49-50W, on the USA: Prince Charles, and with reference to the letter subsequently sent to the hon. Member for Thurrock on 16 May 2007, how much of the cost of gifts was spent purchasing the Churchill Book presented by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as an official present to President Bush; whether the reimbursement for its purchase was paid from the public purse to Premier Mode, Michael Fawcett, a consultant or His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's Household; and if he will make a statement. [156854]

Mr. Jim Murphy: None of the cost of the official gift to President Bush was included in the cost of gifts in the letter of 16 May to my hon. Friend from my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Margaret Beckett). The letter contained details of the cost of gifts presented by their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall during the visit to the USA in January 2007. The official gift of a book written by Sir Winston Churchill was presented to President Bush during the visit in November 2005. The book was purchased by the Household of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. In line with normal practice the cost was reimbursed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office as sponsoring Department.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales's Household was consulted in preparing the answer given to the hon. Member for Thurrock on 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1491W, on the United States (Prince of Wales's Visit); and if he will make a statement. [156855]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Yes; it is our normal practice to consult all stakeholders when answering parliamentary questions.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what basis Michael Fawcett was authorised to select and purchase the official gift given by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to President Bush during his official visit to the USA in 2005; and when Mr Fawcett's role in this task became known to his Department. [156856]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Gifts are selected by the Royal Household under guidelines set by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. The first reference to Michael Fawcett in this context was in my hon. Friend's parliamentary question (UIN 26865) that was answered by my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Mr. Straw) on 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1492W.

Yemen

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he next plans to meet (a) the President and (b) the Prime Minister of Yemen. [155835]

Dr. Howells: Foreign engagements for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and other Ministers are kept under constant review. It is not our practice to announce such visits until they are firm. Because of the unpredictable nature of world events, final decisions on overseas visits are often not possible until very shortly before the day of travel. Our relationship with Yemen is, of course, a very important one for the Government.

PRIME MINISTER

Armed Conflict: Terrorism

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make it his policy to take advice from the security services on the likely effect on the incidence of terrorist events of any future UK military campaign prior to undertaking such a campaign. [154097]

The Prime Minister: Before committing to military action I would, of course, expect to take advice from all relevant bodies.

Cabinet Committee on Animal Terrorism

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Prime Minister why he has ended the work of the Cabinet Committee on animal terrorism. [154015]

The Prime Minister: The Government remain fully committed to tackling animal rights extremism. On 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 46WS, I announced a new Cabinet Committee structure copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. There are now a smaller number of broader ranging, more cross-cutting Committees. Under the new structure, the new Domestic Affairs (Justice and Crime) sub-Committee will be responsible for reviewing progress in tackling animal rights extremism.

Chequers: Official Hospitality

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister when he expects to publish the list of guests who were entertained at Chequers in 2006-07. [153607]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Ochil and South Perthshire (Gordon Banks) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1110W.

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether Chris Leslie holds a position remunerated from the public purse; and if he will make a statement; [152722]

(2) whether Wilf Stephenson holds a position remunerated by the public purse; and if he will make a statement; [152728]

(3) whether Deborah Mattinson holds a position remunerated by the public purse; and if he will make a statement. [152729]

The Prime Minister: No.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 10 July 2007, Official Report, column 1467W, if he will place in the Library a copy of the job description of his adviser on political press issues. [154105]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 10 July 2007, Official Report, column 1467W.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister which guests he has entertained at (a) No. 10 Downing street and (b) Chequers since 27 June 2007. [153346]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the press briefing given by my spokesman on 26 July 2007. A transcript of this is available on the No. 10 website: http://www.number-10.gov.uk/output/Page12687.asp, and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister (1) to which periodicals his Office subscribes; [153156]

(2) how much was spent by his Office on newspapers and magazines in the last 12 months; [153157]

(3) what magazines, newspapers and periodicals No. 10 Downing street and his Offices subscribed to (a) before and (b) since 27 June. [153531]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 9 October 2007 (153289, 153290, 153530).

Departments: Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [153152]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 9 October 2007 (153283).

Departments: Travel

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [153158]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband) on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 3W.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on (a) first class and (b) business class flights in the last 12 months. [153159]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband) on 8 October 2007 (153286).

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153155]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 9 October 2007 (153288).

Iraq: Weapons

Harry Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister what source of information was cited in intelligence reports to the Government immediately before the decision to go to war with Iraq in March 2003 and subsequently refuted as a reliable source of information; what assessment he has made of whether this source of information existed; whether this source was a case of the UK intelligence service being misled; what the nature was of the subsequent inquiries which led to the refutation of this source of information; and if he will make a statement. [152615]

The Prime Minister: These matters have been examined during the course of the Butler Review and other inquiries, and covered during debates and statements on Iraq and in briefings by my predecessor's official spokesman. All relevant information has been placed in the public domain in as far as that could be done without prejudicing national security.

Legislation: Queen Elizabeth II

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Prime Minister what procedures were followed in relation to informing the Queen about the announcement of the draft legislative programme. [154471]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 721W.

Official Residences

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister what the total cost to public funds has been of entertainment at (a) Chequers, (b) Chevening and (c) Dorneywood since 1 May 1997. [151277]

The Prime Minister: For information on entertainment costs at Chequers for the financial year 2006-07 I refer the hon. Member to my answer on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1108W. For information prior to this date I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor, the right hon. Tony Blair, on 11 October 2006, Official Report, column 794W.

Responsibility for Chevening is a matter for the Foreign Office. In respect of Dorneywood, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Parliamentary Secretary at the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (Chris Leslie) on 28 March 2003, Official Report, column 484W. Since my right hon. Friend the former Deputy Prime Minister (Mr. Prescott) relinquished the use of Dorneywood, any costs associated with official use have fallen to the relevant Department.

Parliamentary Private Secretaries: Finance

Mrs. May: To ask the Prime Minister what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space and (d) administrative support for his new Parliamentary Private Secretary. [154609]

The Prime Minister: Parliamentary Private Secretaries are appointed in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code. They do not receive salaries or expenses.

Tony Blair: Security

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what discussions he has had with the Quartet on security arrangements for the former right hon. Member for Sedgefield in his role as Special Envoy to the Middle East; [153410]

(2) what the cost has been to the public purse of providing security protection for the former right hon. Member for Sedgefield since he left office; [153414]

(3) what estimate he has made of the likely cost to the public purse of security protection for Mr. Blair in 2007-08. [153415]

The Prime Minister: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to comment on security matters.

Yemen

Keith Vaz: To ask the Prime Minister when he next plans to meet the President of Yemen. [156277]

The Prime Minister: I have no current plans to do so.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Postal Services: West Yorkshire

10. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when his Department plans to announce which post offices in West Yorkshire are due to close and the proposed dates of the closures. [156877]

Mr. McFadden: On 17 May, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced the Government's response to the public consultation on the post office network.

Post Office Ltd is carrying this forward through 50 local area implementation plans over the next 15 months.

No decisions have been made about any individual post offices in West Yorkshire. According to the timetable set out by Post Office Ltd., which is publicly available on its website, the local consultation on the West Yorkshire plan is scheduled to begin in April next year.

Economic Partnership Agreements

11. Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on negotiations on the European Union economic partnership agreements. [156878]

Mr. Thomas: The economic partnership agreements that the European Union is negotiating with the six regions of the African Caribbean and Pacific countries are at a critical point. We would be happy to keep the House informed as the negotiations progress.

Postal Services

13. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made with the Post Office's network consultation; and if he will make a statement. [156880]

Mr. McFadden: On 17 May, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced the Government's response to the public consultation on the post office network. Post Office Ltd is now carrying that forward through around 50 local implementation plans.

Consultations on the first area plans were launched on 2 October. This process will continue over the next 15 months.

Competition Policy

14. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's policy is on promoting competition within the EU. [156881]

Mr. Timms: Our policy is for an effective, proactive competition regime, as key to tackling—for example—hard-core cartels, and to encouraging innovation, quality and value for money. The UK and EU have among the best competition regimes in the world. We are committed to further improvement.

Renewable Energy

15. Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will consider the introduction of a feed-in tariff to support the development of renewable energy. [156882]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have considered the use of feed-in tariffs for this purpose. However, we remain firmly committed to the renewables obligation as the principal means of driving the deployment of large-scale renewable electricity in the UK. The renewables obligation has been successful in driving deployment, offers continuity of policy to maintain investor confidence, and fits well with our pro-competitive approach to energy markets.

World Trade

16. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the progress of negotiations in the current world trade round. [156883]

Mr. Thomas: Negotiations on all aspects of the Doha Development Agenda continue to take place at the WTO in Geneva. The UK Government remain fully committed to working with the EU Trade Commissioner, other EU member states and other WTO members to secure an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha Round.

Yorkshire Forward

17. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications there have been to the small business recovery scheme provided by Yorkshire Forward. [156884]

Mr. Timms: By the end of last week there had been 1,135 applications.

Enterprise: South Derbyshire

19. Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on potential infrastructure development to permit business location and growth in South Derbyshire. [156887]

Mr. Timms: The Regional Funding Allocation processes prioritises key infrastructure schemes of regional significance. The South Derbyshire Local Transport Plan sets out local schemes to be brought forward for funding consideration. Key current projects in South Derbyshire include access to the Drakelow Power Station site, and the new rail freight facility. The report on the latter project is due to be published next month.

UK Competitiveness

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he plans to take to improve UK competitiveness. [156885]

Mr. Timms: The Government are committed to achieving continued long-term improvements in UK competitiveness, through raising long-term productivity growth and thereby reducing the productivity gap with our international competitors.

This week's pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review illustrate that continued commitment with policies aimed at improving performance through the five drivers of productivity: investment, innovation, skills, enterprise and competition. These include increased investment in higher education and skills, continued development of a world-class science base and simplifications of the tax system.

This is underpinned by the Government's commitment to maintaining macroeconomic stability, which provides firms and individuals with the certainty needed to invest for the future.

Coats Viyella

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much the East Midlands Development Agency paid for the Coats Viyella site in Worksop; and how much has been spent on security for the site. [155602]

Mr. Timms: The East Midlands Development Agency (emda) purchased the Coats Viyella site for £576,000 on 30th March 2001. Between 30th March 2001 and 25th April 2006, when emda owned the site, it spent £223,000 on its security.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what accounts directions were issued by his Department's predecessors in financial year (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156626]

Mr. Timms: Under the Government Resources and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issues accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Funds Act 1973 to trading funds.

The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform operates a policy for the issue of accounts directions, where they remain existent until superseded by a new direction.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies. Where an existing accounts direction is in place this has also been noted.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department and its predecessors have bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156740]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has not purchased any new laptops, mobile telephones or personal digital assistant devices as a consequence of any Cabinet reshuffle. The Department recovers assigned ICT equipment from departing ministerial teams and reallocates the devices accordingly. If insufficient devices for ministerial teams are available at the time of a Cabinet reshuffle, the Department utilises devices that are within the reserve capacity held by the Department's ICT suppliers as contingency and recovered devices are returned to this capacity pool. The Department's arrangements with its ICT suppliers are structured such that this capacity is not charged for until used and the net effect on the ICT budget as a consequence is zero.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service: Complaints

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to publish the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service's consultation on its complaints policy; and if he will make a statement. [154955]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 10 October 2007]: This is a matter for the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (CAFCASS). Anthony Douglas, the Chief Executive, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Anthony Douglas, dated 13 September 2007:

I am writing to you in response to the parliamentary question that you recently tabled:

153997 - To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he intends to publish the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service's consultation on its complaints policy; and if he will make a statement.

Cafcass plans to review its complaints policy, to update it in line with the Department for Children, Schools and Families' Guidance "Getting the Best From Complaints" issued in August 2006, for Local Authorities on how complaints from children are responded to. Cafcass would like to incorporate parts of the guidance into its complaints policy.

Cafcass has started an internal review, and it plans to consult externally next year.

A copy of this reply will be placed in the House Library.

Children: Autism

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the amount of money provided for in the Transition Support programme which will be spent on helping young people with (a) autism and (b) Asperger's syndrome; and if he will make a statement. [157340]

Kevin Brennan: We are committed to introducing the Transition Support programme over the next three years, with £19 million secured as part of the Comprehensive Spending Review settlement for the Department. In the "Aiming high for disabled children: better support for families" report published in May, we acknowledged that children and young people with more complex needs require more carefully prepared and intricate packages of support as they move to adulthood.

We have not undertaken any estimate of indicative spending on young people on the autistic spectrum. The focus of the programme is not to target by type of special educational need or disability but to enable and support all disabled young people to move towards and into a new stage of life.

To make initial progress, the Department will be publishing transition guidance jointly with Department of Health later this month, to support local agencies to better support disabled young people to make the transition to adulthood.

Private Education: Greater London

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age in each London borough attended independent schools in each year since 2003-04. [157082]

Jim Knight: The available information is shown in the following tables.

National and regional totals may not appear to equal the sum of the component parts because numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Pupils: Intimidation

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research the Government have conducted into bullying of (a) transgendered pupils at school and (b) children at school who have one or more transgendered parent. [157806]

Kevin Brennan: We have not conducted any research into the bullying of transgender pupils at school, or into children at school who have one or more transgender parents. However, we are aware of the research which Professor Stephen Whittle carried out for the Equalities Review on this issue.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155886]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department's actual and planned spend on promotional and advertising campaigns for 2007-08 is follows:

(i) Television	1,500,000
(ii) Radio	305,000
(iii) Print media	5,552,080

Publicity budgets are not held centrally and the budgets for 2008-9 have not yet been agreed.

Fire Services: Quedgeley

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the future of fire control at the tri-service emergency headquarters in Quedgeley. [156298]

John Healey: The Gloucestershire tri-service centre will continue to house staff from all three emergency services and support tri-service working after the fire and rescue service control is moved to the South West regional control centre. The Government are committed to creating a new national network of nine resilient regional control centres which will enhance the ability of the Fire and Rescue Service to respond to major incidents and natural disasters in a co-ordinated, efficient and effective manner, which will better protect the public. The new regional control centres will however build on the valuable lessons learnt on joint working from the tri-service pilots, including the recent experience of dealing with flooding in Gloucestershire.

Immigration: Housing

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the proportion of total housing demand which would result from the Office for National Statistics' assumption of long-term net migration of 190,000 each year for the number of years for which forecasts are available; and what number of housing units this proportion would represent. [156472]

Mr. Iain Wright: An updated estimate of the amount of household growth attributable to net migration will be part of the next major release, due in 2008, of the Department's household projections. The household projection updates follow the rolling programme of the Office for National Statistics (ONS) population projections. The ONS is due to publish, on 23 October, the 2006-based national projections that include the assumption of long-term annual net migration into the UK of 190,000. In 2008, the ONS will publish sub-national population projections on this 2006 the base which will feed into the next major update of the household projections. These new household projections will also take account of the recent trends in household formation and of the Office for National Statistics' latest projections of marital status and cohabitation.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Big Lottery Fund

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the balance is of the Big Lottery Fund; and how much of the balance is (a) committed and (b) uncommitted. [156927]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Big Lottery Fund's National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) balance at 30 September 2007 was approximately £550 million.

At 30 September its outstanding 'hard' commitments were £1,060 million and its 'soft' commitments were £94 million. Its total forward commitments, therefore, exceeded its NLDF balance by about £604 million.

Cricket: Floods

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what steps his Department has taken to help cricket clubs affected by the summer floods; [156928]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2140W on cricket: floods, if he will provide an update on Sport England funding to cricket clubs affected by flooding. [156931]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Funding from the National Sports Foundation, managed on behalf of the Government by Sport England, may support flood repairs for sports facilities, taking into account all proceeds from insurance cover. To date no applications of this nature have been received. In addition, Sport England's Yorkshire and West Midlands regions are providing advice and guidance to support sports provision provided by clubs and others affected by the floods.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156733]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department does not record this information on a year-by-year basis. Additionally, when an individual no longer requires a piece of equipment, it is often passed to another user. Therefore, it is not possible to provide a breakdown by departmental Minister.

National Sports Foundation

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the future of the National Sports Foundation and its funding levels. [156930]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The intention is for Sport England to build on the success of the National Sports Foundation, but I am not yet in a position to confirm funding allocations for sport.

Sportsmatch

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the future of Sportsmatch. [156929]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The intention is for Sport England to build on the past success of Sportsmatch, but I am not yet in a position to confirm funding allocations for sport.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Housing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on upgrading Single Living Accommodation units to Standard One in each financial year since 1997. [153388]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Expenditure on upgrading Single Living Accommodation (SLA) to Grade 1 physical condition was not centrally collated until 2002-03. The information available is as follows:

	SLAM	Other SLA	£ million Total
2002-03	1.0	24.2	25.2
2003-04	67.7	63.8	131.5
2004-05	120.9	166.1	287.0
2005-06	151.0	62.0	213.0
2006-07	131.1	100.7	231.8

The figures for 2002-03 represent only part of the expenditure in that year and the beginning of specific recording of such expenditure.

Expenditure for earlier years could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on upgrading Service Families accommodation to Standard One in each financial year since 1997. [153423]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The former Defence Housing Executive (DHE) was responsible for the maintenance and new build of housing in Great Britain until 2004 after which the responsibility passed to Defence Estates (DE). The DHE only published agency accounts from 2001-02. The information available from this source and DE is as follows:

	Capital	Other	£ million Total
2001-02	25.3	n/a	25.3
2002-03	25.5	n/a	25.5
2003-04	25.2	8.3	35.5
2004-05	12.1	6.0	18.1
2005-06	28.0	4.4	32.4
2006-07	3.9	12.5	16.4

The maintenance and investment in service families accommodation overseas and in Northern Ireland is carried out by the respective budget holders. It is therefore held separately and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

During the period from 1 April 2000 to 31 March 2007 this Department upgraded around 15,000 houses in Great Britain to Standard One for Condition.

Departments: BAe Systems

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1617W, on Departments: BAe Systems, for what reasons the annual figures for applicants given differ from those in the answer of 5 July 2007, Official Report, 1132W. [156751]

Des Browne: My answer given on 5 July 2007, Official Report, column 1132W, noted that the figures had been compiled from manual historic records and that it was therefore possible that some cases might not be included in the figures. Further research of records allowed my answer of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1617W, to give a fuller picture of the applications in each year.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155893]

Derek Twigg: Not all the information is held in the format requested.

The projected spending on recruit advertising and marketing campaigns for the armed forces for financial year (FY) 2007-08 is detailed in the following table. It should be noted that these figures take no account of departmental public relations activities or Veterans awareness campaigns.

Naval Service	2.600	0.020	0.450	3.070

Figures for FY 2008-09 are not yet available as the services are in the process of preparing budget requirements for next year, and details will not be confirmed until March 2008.

The projected spending for MOD civilian advertising and promotional campaigns organised centrally for FY 2007-08 is £1.1 million, and for FY 2008-09 it is £1.5 million. It is not possible to break down these costs further.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers wounded in Iraq and Afghanistan have received treatment for physical or psychological injuries in the NHS in the last six months. [155720]

Derek Twigg: The MOD collates statistics of personnel evacuated from Iraq and Afghanistan to the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine (RCDM) located at University Hospital Birmingham Foundation Trust (UHBFT) which is the main receiving hospital trust for service personnel who are medically evacuated from overseas. In the period 1 April until 30 September 2007 RCDM had admitted 197 UK service patients from Iraq and 222 UK service patients from Afghanistan to UHBFT and other NHS hospitals in the Birmingham area. The figures relate to patients aeromedically evacuated from theatre as a result of battle injuries, non-battle injuries and disease. They do not include patients being reviewed or returning for further surgery following earlier treatment in the UK. The breakdown of these figures is set out as follows:

	Iraq	Afghanistan
Battle field injuries	88	111
Non-battle field injuries	70	59
Disease	39	52
Total	197	222

Other less seriously injured patients may be seen at other NHS facilities, but no central records are held and accurate information could only be provided at disproportionate cost. However, on average, the total number of military in-patients in NHS hospitals across the UK is, typically, about 60 to 75 for all illnesses and injuries, however sustained.

The MOD does not normally use the NHS for treatment of psychological injuries. Military patients suffering from psychological injuries are treated either by mental health professionals deployed in theatre or at one of 15 MOD Military Departments of Community Mental Health or, for those requiring in-patient treatment, at private facilities under contract from the Priory Group.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what location the 500 British armed forces logistics personnel mentioned in the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, will be stationed. [157148]

Des Browne: I have nothing to add to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in response to the right hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Cameron) on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 27.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what role Gila Sacks holds in his Department. [153381]

Edward Miliband: Gila Sacks is a permanent civil servant.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds: Smuggling

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when officials in his Department last discussed measures to prevent the illegal importation of wild birds into the EU with the relevant European agency. [156832]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 10 October 2007]: DEFRA officials hold regular discussions, on this and a range of other issues, with colleagues in the EU.

Eggs: EC Action

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) European counterparts and (b) UK egg producers on the 1999 EU Laying Hens Directive. [156831]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 10 October 2007]: DEFRA officials hold regular discussions, on this and a range of other issues, with stakeholders and colleagues in the EU.

Energy: Conservation

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to exercise his powers pursuant to section 4(3) of the Sustainable Energy Act 2003 to give an energy efficiency direction to some or all of the energy conservation authorities that have achieved energy efficiency improvements in their domestic housing stock of less than 20 per cent. for the period 1 April 1996 to 31 March 2006; and if he will make a statement. [154082]

Mr. Woolas: Government policy to support and incentivise increased local authority action on climate change is outlined in the 2006 UK Climate Change Programme and the 2006 Local Government White Paper. In addition, the Government have undertaken a review of the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995 (HECA) to assess its success in delivering improvements in energy efficiency in the household sector over the last 10 years. DEFRA has published its review and is seeking the views of stakeholders on its findings and options for the future of the HECA.

Paper: Waste Disposal

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his timetable is for issuing guidance to local authorities with regard to strategies for dealing with waste paper. [155746]

Joan Ruddock: The Government's "Waste Strategy for England 2007" set a new national target for reducing the amount of household waste not reused, recycled or composted, and increased national targets for the percentage of household waste recycled and composted. It also set a target for the amount of municipal waste recovered.

Local authorities also have limits on the amount of biodegradable municipal waste, including waste paper, that they may collectively landfill.

The Waste and Resources and Action Programme (WRAP) works closely with local authorities to provide advice on recycling practice, including paper and other recyclates.

In addition, the British Standards Institution, working jointly with WRAP, the Local Authority Recycling Advisory Committee, the Confederation of Paper Industries, and the Environmental Services Association, has created a Publicly Available Specification (BSI PAS 105) entitled "Recovered Paper Sourcing and Quality for UK End Markets". Published in July 2007, this is designed to boost the market for recovered paper by improving standards of production, and increasing confidence and understanding between local authorities, reprocessors, and potential end users.

A copy of BSI PAS 105 has been sent to every local authority in the UK. It will also be placed in the Library of the House.

Pirbright Laboratory: Inspections

Mr. Shepherd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many times the Institute for Animal Health sites at Pirbright and Compton were inspected in each of the last five years; who carried out these inspections; what results and recommendations were made following each of these visits; and whether either of the sites has suffered flooding which resulted in the deliberate or accidental release of hazardous waste during that period. [156932]

Jonathan Shaw: During the last five years, the Institute for Animal Health (IAH) in Pirbright was inspected by DEFRA in November 2003, August 2004, September 2005 and December 2006. Inspections were carried out by senior DEFRA veterinarians with specialist knowledge of laboratory containment, exotic animal diseases and the requirements for licensing laboratories under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998. The inspections were designed to provide an overview of general biosecurity, and to focus on new or refurbished areas, particular areas where changes are proposed or areas where particular biosecurity issues had been identified. Where any particular biosecurity issues were identified, the laboratory was required to submit action plans addressing the issues identified and, once they were agreed, implement them. These action plans addressed minor issues including management and personnel, site security, ventilation, waste handling, storage of pathogens and documentation. The progress of these plans was closely monitored. No major biosecurity issues were identified during the inspections.

At IAH Compton, DEFRA works with other enforcement authorities and liaison with these authorities ensures that DEFRA is aware of any significant issues. We are aware that the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) has undertaken two inspections at IAH Compton this year, one of which resulted in an improvement notice for the ventilation system. Reports from inspections at Compton, undertaken by DEFRA during the last five years, are not held centrally. I have asked officials to gather the information and I will write to the hon. Member when it is available. I will also arrange for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

DEFRA was not notified of any issues in relation to flooding at either site which resulted in the deliberate or accidental release of hazardous waste. A HSE-led investigation into potential breaches of biosecurity at Pirbright following the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease in Surrey, included an assessment of the potential role of flooding in the release of the live virus. This report is available from the DEFRA website and the Libraries of the House.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

African Union: EU External Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1464W, on African Union: EU external relations, when invitations will be issued to the EU-AU Summit in Portugal; and what UK Government policy is on the attendance will be issued of the President of Zimbabwe. [155370]

David Miliband [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The EU Presidency has not yet confirmed when invitations to the EU-Africa Summit will be issued.

Our policy on the attendance of President Mugabe has been made clear to the Presidency and to our European and African partners. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has publicly stated that he will not attend the summit if President Mugabe goes. We believe the EU-Africa summit can and should deliver progress on peace and security, growth, development, governance, climate change and the Millennium Development Goals. If President Mugabe were to attend, his presence would overshadow the summit, undermining the substantive business and dominating the media profile of the event. We are working with the Presidency and African partners to find an alternative solution.

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average annual cost falling on UK funds has been of running the Governor's residence in each overseas territory over the last five years; how much of each figure was accounted for by (a) rent, (b) other running costs, (c) staffing and (d) entertainment and hospitality; and if he will make a statement. [155810]

Meg Munn: It is the responsibility of overseas territories Governments to provide and maintain accommodation for Governors. However, depending on local circumstances, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) pays for some maintenance and other costs, e.g. FCO required security enhancements. The approximate average annual running costs falling to the FCO for governors' residences in each territory are listed in the following table:

Territory	Rent	Other running costs	Staffing	Entertainment and hospitality
Anguilla	0	31,557	6,000	14,610

Turks and Caicos Islands	0	0	0	37,951

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the human rights conventions with which each UK overseas territory is expected to comply. [155815]

Meg Munn: The UK's objective is to see the six core UN Human Rights Conventions and the European Convention on Human Rights extended to the populated Overseas Territories (OTs) We recognise that in some cases OTs have to implement or amend legislation before the extension of some of these Conventions can take place, which takes time. But it is important that the OTs are able to comply with the obligations under the relevant Human Rights Conventions once they have been extended to them. Listed in the table are the conventions and the Territories they apply to so far.

It was accepted for a period of five years from 14 January 2006 for the Turks and Caicos Islands, and on a permanent basis for the Cayman Islands from 21 February 2006.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Primates

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the authorities in the Democratic Republic of Congo on the fate of rare mountain gorillas in the Virunga National Park. [156725]

Meg Munn: Officials from our Embassy in Kinshasa lobbied the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) Government in August on their duty and international obligations to protect all their wildlife., including mountain gorillas. We have also reminded the DRC authorities that wildlife populations bring sustainable development and economic benefits, especially for establishing a viable tourist industry. My hon. Friend the then Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, the hon. Member for South Dorset (Jim Knight) lobbied the Congolese Minister of the Environment on the need to protect vulnerable species during his visit to DRC in 2005.

We are urging the DRC Government to do more to control the activities of the militia groups that are reportedly killing wild animals including gorillas in eastern DRC. We will continue to monitor the situation and raise with the DRC Government their duty to protect all forms of wildlife.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent by his Department on (a) staff and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153049]

Meg Munn: During the last 12 months £8,834,098 was spent by the human resources directorate in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) on staff training. These are direct training costs only.

Policy and technical training provided by other FCO Directorates, individual home departments and overseas posts has not been included because collating this information would incur disproportionate cost.

During the last 12 months £222,594 was spent by the human resources directorate on written and oral communications training.

This figure does not include media, press and public affairs training, for which a budget of £225,000 has been allocated for this financial year (FY) and approximately £200,000 was spent in FY 2006-07. Nor does it include training provided by individual overseas posts or home departments and directorates because collating this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Diego Garcia: Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government took in assessing the assurances of the US authorities over the non-use of Diego Garcia for the rendition of detainees suspected of involvement in terrorism, with reference to the answer of 26 October 2006, Official Report, column 2076W, on British Indian Ocean Territory; what contribution the UK made to the Council of Europe Parliamentary Assembly's Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights reports on secret detentions and illegal transfers of detainees involving Council of Europe member states; what steps the Government took to ascertain whether the (a) processing and (b) other administration relating to the rendition of detainees had been undertaken on Diego Garcia by US agencies; and if he will make a statement. [157081]

Meg Munn: Under the 1966 Exchange of Notes between the US and UK, of non-US and non-UK nationals who are not serving members of the US military cannot be detained without notification to the Government.

There is no US facility for foreign detainees on Diego Garcia. The only civilian detention centre is at the small UK-run police station.

The US authorities have repeatedly given us assurances that no detainees, prisoners of war or any other persons in this category are being held on Diego Garcia, or have at any time passed in transit through Diego Garcia or its territorial waters or airspace. This was most recently confirmed during the 2007 US/UK Political Military Talks held in Washington on 11 and 13 September.

The Government co-operated fully with the Council of Europe's inquiry last year, together with an inquiry on similar issues by the European Parliament. At that time the Government explained that we had carried out extensive searches of official records and found no evidence of detainees being rendered through the UK, or Overseas Territories, since 1997, where there were substantial grounds to believe there was a real risk of torture.

EU Reform Treaty

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will ensure that the Bill to give effect to the terms of the European Treaty will be drafted in such a way as to ensure that amendments requiring a referendum to be held before the enactment of the Bill are within the scope of the Bill. [157217]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to him during Foreign and Commonwealth Office oral questions on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 159.

European Commission: Information Officers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many press officers are employed by the European Commission. [154123]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested.

Further information may be available by contacting the European Commission's Representation in the UK at the following address:

European Commission Representation in the UK

Malawi: Politics and Government

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what selection procedure was used to select the next High Commissioner to Malawi; and if he will make a statement. [156331]

Meg Munn: The right hon. Jack McConnell's appointment by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister as the next high commissioner to Malawi is in line with the Government's policy of recruiting appropriate skills and experience from all areas of public life. His experience and skills make him well qualified for the job.

There have been a number of such appointments made by successive Governments.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer the letter of 6 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. M. K. J. Iqbal. [156908]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's ministerial support unit telephoned my right hon. Friend's office at the House on 20 August to request that his letter of 6 August be sent again, as the enclosures referred to in this letter were missing. A further letter was not received.

Officials from UKvisas subsequently telephoned my right hon. Friend's office on 9 October to confirm that Mr. M. K. J. Iqbal's wife had successfully appealed against her refused visa application, which was overturned on 20 September. It was agreed that a written reply would not be necessary.

Royal Visits

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what official visits are planned for His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to countries where Her Majesty the Queen is Head of State in the next 12 months; what estimated proportion of the costs of each visit will be met from (a) United Kingdom funds and (b) host country funds; and if he will make a statement; [156850]

(2) what official visits are planned for Her Majesty the Queen to countries where Her Majesty is Head of State in the next 12 months; what estimated proportion of the costs of each visit will be met from (a) United Kingdom funds and (b) host country funds; and if he will make a statement. [156851]

Mr. Jim Murphy: It is not the practice to announce royal visits until they are firm and all parties concerned have agreed that they can proceed.

HEALTH

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of primary care trusts participated in the chlamydia screening programme in the most recent period for which figures are available; which primary care trusts are not participating in the programme; and if he will make a statement. [156810]

Dawn Primarolo: As of 30 June 2007, the screening programme has been successfully rolled out to 64 per cent. of primary care trusts (PCTs). The vast majority of the remaining PCTs have active plans in place and have started recruiting staff to begin screening by the end of December 2007. At the end of June, the PCTs that have not indicated a start date to the Health Protection Agency (HPA) are given in the following list.

List of PCTs where plans to commence screening by the end of December 2007 have not been submitted to the HPA.

Doctors: Career Structure

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the (a) Library, (b) Vote Office and (c) post to the hon. Member for Worthing, West the full report, including annexes and appendices, of the 12 July final report of the Douglas review on doctors' training posts and modernising medical careers. [157218]

Ann Keen: The report of the Douglas review on modernising medical careers including annexes and appendices was placed in the Library on 6 August. A copy was posted to the hon. Member for Worthing, West on 10 October 2007.

Further copies can be made available to hon. Members via the vote office.

Health Services: Overseas Visitors

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which 12 hospitals took part in the internal departmental report on overseas visitors completed in April 2005. [154972]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The national health service bodies that took part in the project which resulted in the internal report in question did so on the understanding that the document was an informal piece of work for the Department, and that their anonymity would be guaranteed. Several of the NHS trusts involved have specifically asked for that anonymity to be maintained. That being the case, it would be inappropriate to release details of any of the NHS bodies involved.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements he has put in place to ensure NHS ambulance trusts can decontaminate their ambulances in the event of an influenza pandemic. [156777]

Dawn Primarolo: Standard infection control procedures are in place that follow current Ambulance Service Association guidelines for decontaminating ambulances, with stringent cleaning procedures between patients, such as washing and wiping down areas and surfaces within the ambulance that have been in contact with the patient with detergent or alcohol spray. Single-use equipment and clinical waste would be disposed of in accordance with current procedures.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to his Department's press release of 16 August 2007 entitled "Government announces advanced supply contracts for pandemic influenza vaccine", how many doses of pandemic vaccine have been secured as part of the advanced supply contracts; and in which country the pandemic vaccines will be manufactured in the event of an influenza pandemic. [156781]

Dawn Primarolo: As announced by the Department on 16 August 2007, advanced supply contracts have been put in place with two companies, Baxter Healthcare and GlaxoSmithKline (GSK). The contracts allow the United Kingdom to purchase up to 120 million doses of pandemic specific vaccine should a pandemic occur. The exact number of doses will be determined by the strength of the virus and its impact on the population, which will only be known once the virus has emerged. Pandemic specific vaccines will be manufactured at Baxter Healthcare's facilities in Austria and the Czech Republic, and at GSK's site in Germany.

Influenza: Disease Control

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1332W, on influenza: disease control, on what date he plans to publish the national framework. [156748]

Dawn Primarolo: The national framework for responding to an influenza pandemic and the supporting guidance are due to be published in the autumn.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to reply to Andre Menache's letters to her Department of 3 August and 23 August on the proposed experiments on the macaque monkey Felix at Oxford University. [156408]

Meg Hillier: A reply was sent to Mr. Menache by email on 19 September 2007.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons (a) the number of scientific procedures on living animals in 2006 recorded as being for the purpose of food additives rose by 368.4 per cent. on the previous year and (b) the number of procedures recorded as being for the purpose of other foodstuffs rose by 30.2 per cent. on the previous year; and if she will make a statement. [156409]

Meg Hillier: In 2005 the food additives tested were flavourings, colorants and plant extracts. In 2006 they included dietary supplements, stabilisers, sweeteners, colorants and flavouring agents. All of the work in both years was conducted to fulfil regulatory requirements. Changes from year to year depend on the requirements of industry and the regulators concerned with the safety of the products. All the "other foodstuff" testing in 2005 and 2006 was conducted to fulfil regulatory safety requirements mainly for marine biotoxins testing. Part of the increase in procedures in 2006 involved validation of a non-animal alternative for pre-screening for marine biotoxins testing as a result of which it is likely that live animal use for these purposes will begin to fall in 2007.

Domestic Violence: Entry Clearances

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for indefinite leave to remain on the grounds of domestic violence have been (a) accepted and (b) rejected since the introduction of the domestic violence rule. [156818]

Mr. Byrne: Indefinite leave to remain (ILR) on the grounds of domestic violence (DV) was brought within the rules on 18 December 2002. During the period 18 December 2002 to 30 September 2007 1,043[1] applications were granted and 2,101[1] refused.

Data are provisional management information (MI) produced by the Border and Immigration Agency. They are not National Statistics.

[1] Data do not include dependants.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time was for the final determination of immigration cases involving domestic violence at the most recent date for which figures are available. [156819]

Mr. Byrne: The average time for determination of applications for indefinite leave to remain (ILR) on the grounds of domestic violence (DV), decided between 18 December 2002 and 30 September 2007, was 61 days. This is provisional management information (MI) produced by the Border and Immigration Agency. It is not a National Statistic.

Emergency Calls

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the centralised emergency services number 999 following the impact of the recent week's events on the number of calls; and if she will make a statement. [153572]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Operational issues relating to the 999 service fall to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government. Officials from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform played an active role in the response by the Telecoms industry to the flooding during the summer. I followed the situation closely and met representatives of the telecommunications industry and some of the businesses affected by the floods. One of the key objectives of the telecoms industry response was to maintain the 999 service and the availability of the service to the public was not seriously affected by the conditions. The situation did lead to increased demand on the service and the emergency services were pressed in handling this increased number of calls.

Foreign Workers: Romania

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she next plans to assess revising restrictions on workers from Romania and Bulgaria wishing to work in the United Kingdom. [155838]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are carrying out a stock-take of the restrictions on workers from Romania and Bulgaria, and have committed themselves to making an announcement within 12 months of their coming into effect.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been added to the National DNA Database in each month since its inception, broken down by (a) category of offence and (b) stage reached in the criminal justice system; and if she will make a statement. [156284]

Meg Hillier: The number of profiles relating to individuals added to the database each month for all police forces since its foundation in 1995 is shown in the following table.

A certain number of profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, i.e. a profile for a person has been loaded on more than one occasion (one reason for this is that the person gave different names, or different versions of their name, on separate arrests). At present the replication rate is 13.7 per cent., i.e. the number of people whose details are loaded is 13.7 per cent. fewer than the number of profiles. However, as the replication rate has varied over time, an exact figure for the number of people who have been added to the database in each month since 1995 cannot be given.

The National DNA Database records the DNA profile for a particular individual. It does not hold data on arrest and criminal records. This information is held on the Police National Computer. To produce figures for the category of offence in relation to which the DNA sample was taken would require cross-searching of PNC and the NDNAD, which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

For the same reason, it is not possible to give precise figures for the stage in the criminal justice system at which someone had a DNA sample taken. However, under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act, the police have the power to take DNA and fingerprints from anyone arrested for a recordable offence and detained in a police station, and retain them indefinitely; and taking a DNA sample is now a normal part of handling of arrested persons in the custody suite. So it is expected that in most cases the sample would have been taken when the person was being dealt with in the custody suite after arrest.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many samples were added to the National DNA Database in each month since it was launched; and if she will make a statement. [156285]

Meg Hillier: It is understood that this question refers to the number of samples taken from crime scenes added to the National DNA Database, since a separate question has been asked on the number of people added. The number of crime scene samples added each month for all police forces since the foundation of the Database in 1995 is shown in the attached table. Crime scene samples are not normally retained on the Database once the crime from which they were taken has been solved. Therefore the number of such samples currently on the database is less than the total number that have been loaded since 1995.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether DNA records of citizens who have not been convicted of a crime are accessible to all police forces nationally; and if she will make a statement. [156640]

Meg Hillier: A non-convicted individual's DNA record will be accessed by the police only if it matches a record subsequently loaded from a crime scene or another individual.

The purpose of the National DNA Database (NDNAD) is to hold a record of a person's DNA which can be matched against DNA taken from crime scenes. The database can also match DNA taken from different crime scenes. The police do not have direct access to the records on the database, and receive reports on people on it only if their DNA matches DNA from a crime scene. This is true both for those convicted of a crime and those not convicted. Matches between two apparently different individuals may also occur. The usual reason is that a profile for a person has been loaded on more than one occasion (one reason for this is that the person gave different names, or different versions of their name, on separate arrests).

There may be an innocent explanation for someone's presence at a crime scene, so a match report is simply a piece of intelligence leading to further inquiries. If a match between DNA from a crime scene and DNA from an individual is found, a report of the match is sent to the police forces which loaded the crime scene data and the individual data, to make further inquiries.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many DNA files are kept on citizens who have not been charged with the offence for which they were apprehended. [156642]

Meg Hillier: The national DNA database (NDNAD) records the DNA profile for a particular individual. It does not hold data on arrest and criminal records. This information is held on the police national computer (PNC). Obtaining the information sought would require cross searching of records held on the PNC against the NDNAD, which could only be done at disproportionate cost.

Imports: Primates

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 July 2007, Official Report, column 766W, on imports: primates, whether the Nafovanny Breeding Centre in Vietnam has been accepted as a source of non-human primates for the UK for a further two-year period; and if she will make a statement. [156254]

Meg Hillier: Nafovanny is currently acceptable to the Home Office as a source of non-human primates for use in regulated procedures in the UK. The acceptance is valid until 31 August 2008. All overseas breeding centres wishing to supply non-human primates to the UK for scientific use are subject to periodic review and visits by the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate to ensure that standards of animal care and accommodation meet acceptable standards.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many primates were imported into the UK for the purposes of scientific research from each other EU member state in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [156410]

Meg Hillier: Details of non-human primates acquired from EU member states for use by designated establishments licensed under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 in 2005 and 2006 are shown in the following table. Authority to import animals is granted by DEFRA.

Personation

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the incidence of identity theft. [156886]

Meg Hillier: Identity theft and the fraudulent use of identity details is an extremely serious issue, and in 2003, we set up a public-private sector work programme to tackle all aspects of this problem.

Since this time, we have strengthened legislation and introduced tougher criminal penalties, provided more powers to share data to combat fraud, sought to ensure better co-ordination in prosecuting fraudsters, and worked extensively to raise public awareness of this issue. Our plans for a National Identity Scheme will provide people with a highly secure means of protecting their identity and help citizens to prove their identities easily, quickly, simply and with vastly improved security.

The range of activities that we are undertaking are vital if we are to protect ourselves from the misuse of identity through organised crime, illegal immigration and working, and fraudulent access to public services.

Police: Firearms

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times police armed response units were deployed in each police force area in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years; and how many and what percentage of those incidents resulted in a police officer discharging their weapon. [156482]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available centrally in the form requested. The number of police operations in which firearms were authorised to be used in each force area in the last 10 years, and the overall number of incidents where a conventional firearm was used, are shown in the following tables.

Work Permits

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many farm workers from abroad overstayed their work permit in each of the last three years. [156531]

Mr. Byrne: Since the dismantling of embarkation controls no Government of the United Kingdom have been able to say with accuracy how many irregular migrants are present in the country, and this remains the case.

On 7 March 2007 the Border and Immigration Agency published its enforcement strategy "Enforcing the Rules". This strategy sets out how the Border and Immigration Agency intends to make it increasingly difficult for individuals to continue to reside in the UK when they have no lawful basis to do so. Copies of the document are in the Libraries of both Houses. It is also available to view at:

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Constituencies: Telephones

Stephen Williams: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many constituency office telephone accounts are settled by the Fees Office; and what estimate the Commission has made of the potential costs of the imposition of a £4.50 non-direct debit charge per account by BT. [156488]

Helen Goodman: I have been asked to reply.

Members have a choice whether to ask the Department of Finance and Administration to settle constituency telephone accounts, including those for BT, or to pay them direct and reclaim the expenditure. In 2006-07 some 365 hon. Members had one or more accounts settled by the Department of Finance and Administration each of which would in future incur the new quarterly charge. On this basis the annual cost of the imposition of the charge of £4.50 is estimated to be approximately £20,000.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what contingency preparations the House authorities made for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157051]

Nick Harvey: Following the 2005 general election, the House authorities put in place revised arrangements for any future election. In bringing these arrangements to a higher state of readiness for the possibility of an autumn election a number of planning and other meetings were held. The cost of these was the staff time involved. This was not recorded.

Expenditure was incurred on the following:

Printing of revised dissolution arrangements	115
Bringing a guidebook for new Members of Parliament to a publication-ready state	4,500

It is planned to use both these documents at the next election whenever it occurs.

Coincidentally, in early October, the House authorities set up part of the temporary accommodation which is planned to be used by new Members immediately after an election. This activity had been scheduled for several months as a test of part of the post-election arrangements. The cost was £6,085.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Democratic Republic of Congo: Minerals

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what representations his Department has made to urge the Congolese Government to ensure that the current review process for mineral concessions and contracts in Democratic Republic of Congo is carried out effectively and transparently; [155670]

(2) what representations his Department has made to the Congolese Government in relation to the participation of civil society and parliament in the review process for mineral concessions and contracts in Democratic Republic of Congo. [155671]

Mr. Thomas: DFID and the FCO have raised concerns about the transparency of the review of mineral concessions with the relevant DRC authorities on numerous occasions. My colleague, Baroness Vadera, raised the mining review with the Vice-Minister of Mines during her recent visit to Kinshasa, and underlined the importance of transparency. We are not directly involved in the work of the DRC Government Commission which is undertaking the mining review, but fully recognise its importance for the future of the minerals sector. The review is vital for public confidence in DRC and investor confidence globally. While we believe that it is for the DRC Government to decide who should be involved in the review process, we will continue to use our channels with government, the private sector and civil society to push for the commission to carry out its work in the most transparent way possible.

Developing Countries

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's strategy is for (a) low-income countries and (b) middle-income countries. [155728]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) set out what the UK Government will do to reduce world poverty over the next five years in DFID's White Paper: Making governance work for the poor http://www.dfid.gov.uk/wp2006/ for both low income countries (LICs) and middle income countries (MICs).

DFID's commitment to MICs can be found in more detail in the middle income countries strategy 2005-2008

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/achievingmdgmidincome.pdf

Under DFID's public service agreement (PSA) 2005-2008 the Department planned to allocate 90 per cent. of its bilateral programme to LICs to support them in reaching the millennium development goals (MDGs). DFID is meeting its objective.

International Assistance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will ensure that his Department measures progress towards Millennium Development Goal 1 against malnutrition rates as well as income. [155920]

Mr. Malik: Progress on all Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) is measured annually by a set of indicators produced by the United Nations (UN). DFID draws on these data to monitor progress on all MDG targets and sub-targets, including progress on malnutrition rates.

JUSTICE

Burglary and Drugs: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what proportion of those convicted for burglary committed in Suffolk were given a custodial sentence in each of the last 10 years; [156764]

(2) what proportion of those convicted for supplying illegal drugs in Suffolk were given a custodial sentence in each of the last 10 years. [156765]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is in the following table. It relates to persons sentenced in Suffolk. However, it is not possible to say from statistics held centrally how many of the offences were committed in Suffolk.

2006 data will be available towards the end of the year.

Percentage of persons sentenced[1] to immediate custody for burglary and supplying illegal drugs[2] given immediate custody in Suffolk[3] 1995-2005

RDS-NOMS, Ministry of Justice

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost was of buying new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices for new Ministers in his Department following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156744]

Bridget Prentice: If laptops are allocated to Ministers, they are usually from a central pool held within the Ministry's central IT Department, and are returned to the pool when no longer required for re-allocation.

There were no purchases of laptops, mobile telephones or personal digital assistant devices for new Ministers following the Cabinet reshuffle earlier this year. Information prior to the latest reshuffle is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Driving Offences

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) people (i) over the age of 60, (ii) over the age of 25 and (iii) under the age of 25 years, (b) men and (c) women holding a full UK driving licence were convicted of (A) speeding offences and (B) dangerous driving in (1) Jarrow constituency, (2) South Tyneside, (3) the north-east and (4) England and Wales in each year since 1997; [156037]

(2) how many people (a) over and (b) under the age of 25 who did not hold a full UK driving licence were convicted of dangerous driving offences in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the north-east and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [156662]

Maria Eagle: Information held centrally by my Department on convictions for motoring offences does not identify whether the offender held a UK or other driving licence (full or provisional). Possession of a licence can only be inferred through the nature of specific offences such as driving while disqualified from holding or obtaining a licence, or failing to produce a driving licence. Information is available at police force area level only.

Driving Offences: Mobile Phones

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many drivers were given endorsements for driving while using a hand-held mobile phone for each month since the offence came into force. [156528]

Maria Eagle: New penalties for using a hand-held mobile phone while driving and for failing to have proper control of a vehicle came into effect on 27 February 2007.

2007 data will not be available until 2009.

Driving Offences: Speed Limits

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many drivers were given endorsements for speeding offences in the last five years for which data are available. [156529]

Maria Eagle: Available information taken from the fixed penalty notices collection and the Court Proceedings Database held by my Department, from 2000 to 2004 (latest available), is provided in the following tables.

2005 data will be available later this year.

Table A: Fixed penalty notices issued[1], for speeding offences[2], 2000 to 2004: England and Wales

Thousand

	Fixed penalty notices issued
2000	989
2001	1,233
2002	1,505
2003	2,078
2004	1,924

[2] Including speeding offences detected by camera.

Table B: Total endorsements[1] without disqualifications, on findings of guilt, imposed at all courts for speeding offences[2], 2000 to 2004: England and Wales

	Number of offences (Thousand)
	Total findings of guilt	Endorsements without disqualification
2000	141	126
2001	136	116
2002	125	106
2003	140	119
2004	143	126

[1] Excludes penalty points given under section 35 of the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988 (totting up system).
[2] Including speeding offences detected by camera.
Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Driving: Licences

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many drivers have lost their licences through disqualification under the penalty points system in the last five years for which data are available. [156530]

Maria Eagle: Available information taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by my Department, from 2000 to 2004 (latest available), is provided in the following table.

2005 data will be available later this year.

Persons disqualified[1] at all courts under section 35 of the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988 (penalty points system), England and Wales, 2000-04

	Number of persons
2000	33,600
2001	30,100
2002	30,500
2003	33,300

Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Work is under way to ensure that the magistrates courts case management system being implemented by the Ministry of Justice reports all motoring offences to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. This will enable more complete figures to be disseminated.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Fixed Penalties: Cycling

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fixed penalty orders were given nationwide to cyclists found cycling (a) on the pavement, (b) in the dark without lights and (c) through red traffic lights in (i) 2006, (ii) 2005 and (iii) 2004. [156462]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of fixed penalty notices issued to cyclists found cycling (a) on the pavement, (b) in the dark without lights and (c) through red traffic lights is not held by my Department.

Immigration: Judges

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many part-time fee-paid immigration judges were appointed in each of the last two years; and how many days in total were sat by those persons in that time. [157056]

Bridget Prentice: In each calendar year since 2005, the number of fee-paid immigration judges appointed by the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal (AIT) and the total number of sitting days for those judges are in the following table.

	New fee paid judges appointed	Sittings
2005	0	n/a
2006	135	2468.5
2007	3	31

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the Minister for Borders and Immigration will reply to the letter of 31 July from the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham. [157083]

Mr. Hanson: The hon. Member's letter was transferred to my Department on 17 August, as I have ministerial responsibility for prisons. I wrote to the hon. Member on 10 October. I apologise for the delay.

Prison Accommodation: Cardiff

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent housing prisoners in facilities in Cardiff court buildings (a) in total and (b) in each month in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156286]

Mr. Hanson: We have paid our contractors a total of £26,324.32 (excluding VAT) this year in respect of cells at Cardiff Crown court.

Costs for June and July were £22,814.41 and £3,509.91 respectively.

Prison Service: Strikes

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether additional payments were made to prison staff who worked through the strike by prison officers in August 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156759]

Mr. Hanson: Additional payments were made to some prison staff who worked through the Prison Officers Association strike on 29 August 2007. These payments were made in line with the Prison Service performance recognition scheme which allows managers to award a special bonus payment as an exceptional measure to give prompt and tangible recognition to staff who have given an outstanding performance.

Vehicle Number Plates

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions for the use of cloned or false number plates there were in each of the last three years. [156321]

Maria Eagle: Information collected centrally on the Court Proceedings Database held by my Department does not separately identify offences involving the use or supply of fraudulent vehicle registration marks.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Railways

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how much was spent by her office on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [153019]

Helen Goodman: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons spent £242.20 on first class train travel in the last 12 months.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Leader of the House what the cost was of buying new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices for new departmental Ministers in her office following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [156741]

Helen Goodman: Following a Machinery of Government change, information prior to 2006-07 is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how much was spent by her office on newspapers and magazines in the last 12 months. [153020]

Helen Goodman: Following a Machinery of Government change, detailed information on expenditure incurred in the 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Serials

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House to which periodicals her office subscribes. [153021]

Helen Goodman: The Office of the Leader of the House of Commons subscribes to The New Statesman, The Spectator, Tribune, The Economist and Prospect.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how much was spent by her office on taxis in the last 12 months. [153016]

Helen Goodman: Following a Machinery of Government change, detailed information on expenditure incurred in the 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how much was spent by her office on (a) staff training and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153023]

Helen Goodman: The office of the Leader of the House of Commons spent £9,000 on training in the last 12 months. It is not possible to disaggregate this by subject.

Home Affairs Committee

Mr. Burns: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 920-1, on the work of the Home Affairs Committee, (1) what work programme was undertaken by the Home Affairs Committee during the summer recess; [157057]

(2) how much was paid to the Chairman of the Home Affairs Committee for the undertaking of that role between 26 July and 8 October. [157058]

Helen Goodman: The work programme for Select Committees of the House is a matter for the individual Committees. Information on the activities of each Committee is available from the Select Committee calendar and current inquiries list (available on the Parliament website) on individual Committee websites. For additional information the hon. Member should write to the Chairman of the Committee concerned.

The Chairman of the Home Affairs Committee was paid £2,749.68 (gross) during the period 26 July to 8 October.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Spring: To ask the Prime Minister whether Gila Sacks holds a position remunerated from the public purse; and if he will make a statement. [152724]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to my answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) today.

UK Youth Parliament

Mr. Drew: To ask the Prime Minister what recent discussions he has had with the UK Youth Parliament on its future programme. [151787]

Helen Goodman: I have been asked to reply.

On 3 July 2007, the Prime Minister proposed inviting the UK Youth Parliament to meet in the Commons. As the Prime Minister said in his statement, this is principally a matter for the Speaker and my right hon. and learned Friend the Leader of the House has been liaising with the Speaker on how best to take this forward.

TRANSPORT

Airports: Security

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many security alerts there have been at each commercial airport in the UK in each of the last 10 years. [156477]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The UK national aviation security programme states that airports, airlines, in-flight caterers and listed air cargo agents report to the Department for Transport any act of unlawful interference or occurrence that may affect the security of civil aviation within their spheres of operation. It would be inappropriate to comment on the number of security alerts at UK airports.

Cars

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment the Government have made of the top speeds of the most popular cars currently using British roads and of trends in the advertised top speeds of vehicles sold in the UK. [156555]

Jim Fitzpatrick [pursuant to the reply, 8 October 2007, Official Report, c. 84W]: I should like to make clear that it is the Broadcast Advertising Clearance Centre (BACC) that is responsible for the pre-transmission examination and clearance of television advertisements, and not the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA).

Crossrail Line: Finance

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the level of public spending needed to complete the Crossrail. [156559]

Mr. Tom Harris: I refer the hon. Member to the White Paper for the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review presented to Parliament by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 9 October 2007.

Diesel: Pollution Control

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make it a requirement for all vehicles using diesel to be fitted with diesel particulate filters; and if she will make a statement. [157783]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Construction standards for vehicles, including the standards that must be met for exhaust emissions, are set at a European Union level through negotiations in which the United Kingdom plays an active part.

New emission standards for cars and vans have just been agreed. These standards will force the adoption of particulate filters on new models of diesel cars and vans brought to the market from 2009, and on all newly registered diesel cars and vans by 2012.

A proposal from the European Commission for new, and stricter, exhaust emission standards for lorries and buses is expected towards the end of this year or in the early part of the next. These standards are expected to become mandatory for new vehicles from around 2012, and to tighten particulate emissions limits by around 70 per cent.

While the retrofitting of particulate filters on cars is seldom feasible, because it is precluded by space constraints and can require reprogramming the engine management system, the retrofitting of particulate filters to heavy duty vehicles is sometimes possible. The Government encourage retrofitting existing lorries and buses with technologies designed to reduce particulate emissions through the Reduced Pollution Certificate schemes. These schemes offer operators of heavy duty vehicles a reduction in Vehicle Excise Duty for vehicles modified to meet stricter emission standards.

Driving Tests: Standards

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what duty her Department has to report to the police or any other relevant authority if a driver assessed by the Driving Standards Agency's driver quality monitoring programme is judged to be unacceptable with serious faults or unacceptable with dangerous faults. [155923]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The driver quality monitoring assessment is not a driving test, but an assessment of the driver on behalf of the bus operator. If a driver commits a serious or dangerous fault this will be relayed to the bus operator, which will then follow its own internal procedures. The Driving Standards Agency does not have a duty to report this to the police or any other relevant authority.

Driving: Standards

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Driver Quality Monitoring (DQM) programme is; how DQM assessments are conducted on bus drivers; against what scoring system drivers are assessed; and how much DQM generated for the Driving Standards Agency in each financial year since 2000-01. [156060]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Driver Quality Monitoring (DQM) is a non-statutory service that the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) performs on behalf of bus companies. Assessors travel incognito on random bus routes and assess the ability of the driver over a 20-minute period. The Assessors then prepare a report for the relevant bus operator.

The scoring system on which the drivers are assessed is:

A four band score against 10 aspects of passenger consideration (supporting explanatory comments given)

A four band score against 13 aspects of driving ability (supporting explanatory comments given)

Box 1 = Fully acceptable,

Box 2 = Acceptable with some driving faults,

Box 3 = Unacceptable with serious faults,

Box 4 = Unacceptable with dangerous faults.

Nine safety comments (Such as handling cash in motion or talking to person while driving)

This is in addition to other aspects against which an operator may require feedback such as service frequency, uniform being worn.

DSA has received the income in the following table since 2003-04.

DSA had not recorded income before 2003-04.

2000-01	n/a
2001-02	n/a
2002-03	n/a
2003-04	375,172.18
2004-05	355,119.42
2005-06	395,686.33
2006-07	416,804.76

n/a = not available

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many assessments on drivers were carried out as part of the Driver Quality Monitoring (DQM) programme in each financial year since 2000-01; and how many drivers were (a) assessed as unacceptable with serious faults and (b) assessed as unacceptable with dangerous faults in each year. [156061]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of Driving Quality Monitoring assessments carried out by the Driving Standards Agency for the last seven years is shown in the table as follows.

	Number
2000-01	5,940
2001-02	6,411
2002-03	8,580
2003-04	9,338
2004-05	8,738
2005-06	9,059
2006-07	9,089

The number of drivers who committed serious faults on their DQM assessments is in the table as follows.

	Number
2000-01	2,345
2001-02	2,477
2002-03	3,662
2003-04	4,863
2004-05	3,983
2005-06	3,311
2006-07	2,783

The number of drivers who committed dangerous faults on their DQM assessments is in the table as follows.

	Number
2000-01	99
2001-02	171
2002-03	221
2003-04	225
2004-05	163
2005-06	136
2006-07	113

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which companies hired the Driver Standards Agency to conduct driver quality monitoring in each financial year since 2000-01 [156062]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of companies for which the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) conducts Driving Quality Monitoring is in the following table, split into financial years.

2001-02	2
2002-03	9
2003-04	12
2004-05	12
2005-06	9
2006-07	11

DSA cannot name the companies involved, owing to the nature of the contractual relationship.

Fishing Vessels: Safety

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions the Maritime and Coastguard Agency has had with Irish Water Safety on the Irish experience of the impact of the introduction of compulsory personal flotation devices for fishing crews and some leisure sailors; and if she will make a statement. [156840]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has been monitoring the experience of the Irish Department of Transport Maritime Safety Directorate with interest and regular contact has taken place regarding the introduction of regulations requiring the wearing of personal flotation devices.

Research has also recently been undertaken by the MCA to assess the approach taken to the wearing of lifejackets adopted by other countries, and the effect on casualty statistics, and the MCA is currently reviewing the findings.

On a daily basis, the MCA reviews maritime leisure fatalities to assess whether the wearing or carrying of a lifejacket might have saved a life.

On the basis of this ongoing work, the National Water Safety Forum has recently approved an initiative by the MCA and in partnership with the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, the Royal Yachting Association and the British Marine Federation to investigate a three to five-year national lifejacket campaign.

Liquefied Petroleum Gas: Motor Vehicles

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the cost of extending the rebate in graduated vehicle excise duty to otherwise-qualifying liquefied petroleum gas vehicles registered prior to March 2001; and if she will make a statement. [156838]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Based on the figure of licensed vehicles as at end June 2007, the estimated revenue cost of extending the alternative fuel rate of graduated vehicle excise duty to light private goods powered vehicles registered before 2001 and currently licensed would be between £400,000 and £550,000.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the environmental effects of encouraging the use of liquefied petroleum gas and other low emissions vehicles; and if she will make a statement. [156839]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Recent research undertaken by the Department suggests that, in comparison with petrol-powered equivalents, cars professionally retrofitted to run on liquefied petroleum gas may offer some advantage in terms of CO_2 emissions, but generally perform no better in terms of air quality emissions than the equivalent petrol vehicles. The findings of the research will be available on the Department for Transport website at www.dft.gov.uk and copies will be available in the Library of the House.

M2

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to improve the design and safety of Exit 5 of the M2. [156933]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency currently has no plans to improve the design and safety of the M2 junction 5. A safety improvement scheme was carried out at this junction in 2005 and this has resulted in a fall in the accident rates at this location. However, the agency continues to monitor the situation.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average length is of queues during rush-hour on the westbound side of the M2 at exit 5 towards the Stockbury roundabout. [156934]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency has no information on the length of traffic queues during rush hour on the westbound side of the M2 at Junction 5 towards the Stockbury roundabout.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will request that the Health and Safety Executive assess the safety of exit 5 on the M2. [156935]

Mr. Tom Harris: The safety of the strategic road network in England is the responsibility of the Highways Agency.

I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 496W. Following investment in this junction between 2000 and 2005, safety improved and the junction is now a relatively low priority in safety terms. The Highways Agency continues to monitor the situation.

Motor Vehicles: Global Positioning System

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to publish on her departmental website a summary of the results of the public consultation on GPS in-vehicle information systems which closed in January 2007. [156812]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport intends to publish a summary of the results of the voluntary consultation on in-vehicle information systems by the end of the year. It will be available on the departmental website and copies will be sent to the Libraries of both Houses.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the most recent estimate is of the number of vehicles which should have an MOT safety test but do not. [156054]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A national vehicle and driver compliance check undertaken by the police in 2006 showed that, of the vehicles stopped, 4.2 per cent. were without a valid MOT certificate. This equates to approximately 1 million vehicles which should have a valid MOT certificate, but do not. The report is published on the Department for Transport website at www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/vehicles/roadspolicingoperationv79/ and copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

Passenger Focus: Information Officers

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many press officers are employed by Passenger Focus. [154465]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have been advised by Passenger Focus that it currently employs one press officer.

Railways: Portsmouth

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with First Great Western on the service offered to passengers on 15 September 2007 on its service from Portsmouth Harbour to Cardiff; and if she will make a statement. [157258]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Secretary of State for Transport has had no discussions with First Great Western on the service from Portsmouth to Cardiff on 15 September 2007.

Roads: Accidents

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many hit-and-run accidents there were in (a) South Yorkshire and (b) England in each of the last five years; and how many accidents resulted in (i) injury and (ii) death. [157099]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one hit and run driver/rider in (a) South Yorkshire and (b) England in each of the past five years, for (i) serious or slight and (ii) fatal accidents is shown in the table.

Number of accidents

	South Yorkshire		England
	Serious or slight	Fatal	Serious or slight	Fatal
2002	530	2	24,040	142
2003	600	3	24,065	130
2004	599	4	21,659	119
2005	569	1	20,289	138
2006	566	6	19,046	142

Transport: Costs

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimates she has made of the percentage change in real terms of the cost of travelling using (a) domestic air services and (b) cross-country train services since 1997. [155730]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The change in the real cost of travelling by domestic air services since 1997 is not available.

Data are not available for cross-country rail services. However, in Table 5.1 of National Rail Trends (see weblink) published by the Office of Rail Regulation a breakdown of rail fares by type of operator is shown.

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/upload/pdf/330-rev3.pdf

Transport: Livestock

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will set out the details of the relaxation of drivers hours restrictions for the transport of livestock, including the period for which the relaxation will apply, arising from the foot and mouth disease outbreak in Surrey. [157154]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The changes to the requirements of Regulation (EC) 561/2006 apply only to drivers who are wholly or mainly engaged in transporting cattle, pigs and sheep (including lambs) in connection with meeting the exceptional circumstances arising as a consequence of the foot and mouth outbreak.

They are

A daily driving limit of 10 hours (instead of the current nine hours);

A weekly rest period of 24 hours (instead of the current 45 hours);

No weekly or fortnightly driving time limits (currently 56 and 90 hours).

There is no change to the requirements for daily rest and breaks.

Drivers are also subject to the provisions of the Road Transport (Working Time) Regulations 2005 which impose limits on total working time (the period when a driver is at work rather than just driving). These regulations impose a maximum weekly limit of 60 hours. To allow drivers to use the full amount of additional driving time allowed, the weekly working time limit is raised by 10 per cent. from 60 to 66 hours (the maximum permissible under EU legislation).

The relaxation will remain in place initially until 4 November, but the situation will be kept closely under review with the relaxation either being revoked sooner or extended if appropriate. The approval of the European Commission would be required for any extension. Industry will be informed at that time.

TREASURY

Northern Rock

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set out the terms on which he has engaged Goldman Sachs to advise him on Northern Rock. [155741]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Goldman Sachs has been jointly engaged by HM Treasury and the Financial Services Authority to advise on the implications of the announcement made on 17 September that, should it prove necessary, HM Treasury, with the Bank of England, would put in place arrangements to safeguard existing depositors of Northern Rock.

Smuggling: Boats

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment HM Revenue and Customs has made of the threat to the UK, of the smuggling of (a) firearms, (b) other items subject to an import prohibition, through uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft traffic; and if he will make a statement. [156566]

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment HM Revenue and Customs has made of the threat presented to the UK of smuggling firearms and other items subject to an import prohibition through uncanalised yacht and pleasure craft traffic. [156027]

Jane Kennedy: Yachts and pleasure craft represent a very small fraction of the vehicles entering and leaving the UK which HM Revenue and Customs deals with on a regular basis. HMRC assesses the threat posed by this form of transport as part of its overall approach to tackling smuggling.

HMRC is an intelligence-led organisation which works in partnership with other customs and law enforcement agencies, both within and outside the UK, to identify and tackle the threats posed, and deploys its resources accordingly.

Taxation: Tobacco

Tom Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much net revenue was raised through the sale of tobacco products in the last 12 months. [156769]

Angela Eagle: The details of tobacco excise duty revenue figures for recent years are published by HM Revenue and Customs in Table 3 of the Tobacco Bulletin which can be found on its website at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulltobacco

HMRC does not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services.

Welfare Tax Credits: Appeals

Mike Wood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many appeals have been (a) lodged and (b) heard, broken down by outcome, in relation to the calculation of child and working tax credit entitlements. [155974]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available in the format requested. During the period April 2006 to the end of September 2007 around 60 tax credits appeals were lodged with the Appeals Service each month.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Domestic Violence

24. Chris McCafferty: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the support available to victims of domestic violence; and if she will make a statement. [156864]

Barbara Follett: We have transformed the support available for the victims of domestic violence, which often has far-reaching effects not only for themselves but also their families, particularly children.

This includes £3 million to fund independent domestic violence advisers with a commitment to ongoing funding for services, £2 million to fund the local delivery of support services for victims and their children and £59 million for housing-related support through the Supporting People Programme.

However, as this is an abhorrent crime which can never be justified, we have undertaken the biggest overhaul in legislation in 30 years to protect victims and stamp it out. The Government are determined to ensure that perpetrators are held accountable for their action which is why we have increasing the number of Specialist Domestic Violence Courts from 25 to 64.

Freemen's Guilds

25. David Taylor: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent estimate the Government have made of the proportion of women belonging to freemen's guilds in England; and if she will make a statement. [156865]

Barbara Follett: We have made no estimate of the proportion of women belonging to freemen's guilds in England. Such information is not held centrally. We are aware that some guilds do not feel that they can admit the daughters of freemen, given the terms of their charter or custom in the area. We agree that such ancient traditions should not be restricted to men and will bear this in mind should a suitable legislative opportunity become available.

Child Care

26. Ian Lucas: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the availability of child care for women seeking further and higher education. [156866]

Barbara Follett: The Childcare Act 2006 requires local authorities in England to assess child care in their areas by April 2008, and then to secure sufficient child care for working parents and those in education or training leading to work. These assessments will highlight demand for child care, including from student parents. I understand that the Welsh Assembly Government will bring the Childcare Act 2006 duties in Wales into force following the conclusion of their budget-setting process.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Poverty

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the impact on child poverty of raising to 74.6 per cent. the employment rate for lone parents whose youngest child is aged 11 years or over. [155943]

Caroline Flint: The requested information is not available.

Comptroller and Auditor General: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to paragraph 14 of the report by the Comptroller and Auditor General on the National Insurance Fund Account 2003-04 (HC 197, 2004-05), what criteria were used to determine which people over state pension age should receive letters from his Department; and how many were (a) men and (b) women. [156402]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 8 October 2007]: In the exercise that ran for 12 months from 27 September 2004 DWP wrote to pensioners who reached state pension age between 6 April 1998 and 24 October 2004; and were not receiving a full basic state pension in their own right, or not receiving a pension; and had a deficient national insurance contribution record in any of the years between 1996-97 and 2001-02; and would have received a deficiency notice from HMRC.

The Department also wrote to those customers living abroad who were also in the United Kingdom at the time and met the criteria above; customers reaching state pension age between 6 April 2004 and 24 October 2004 who had a deficient national insurance contribution in their final relevant year tax year 2003-04 and 2002-03;

customers who had already paid voluntary class 3 national insurance contributions at either the standard rate or the higher rate and who were refunded the difference, and customers who had paid voluntary class 3 national insurance contributions and did not have their state pension backdated to state pension age in line with the easements introduced with this exercise.

only those customers who could benefit from the payment of class 3 national insurance contributions were contacted.

The Department does not hold management information on the gender split of letters issued during this exercise.

Departments: Scotland

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what dates the Scotland forum of the regional change implementation programme executives has met; and if he will make a statement. [154180]

Employment: Foreigners

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of jobs created since 1997 which have been filled by immigrants, asylum seekers and foreign nationals who have arrived in the UK since 1997. [154368]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Labour Force Survey figures show that in 1997 there were 1.1 million foreign nationals in employment in the UK. In the intervening period over half (0.6 million) of these individuals have moved out of employment or have left the country, while 1.4 million foreign nationals are recorded as in employment having arrived in the UK. Accounting for these flows into and out of the UK, the total number of foreign nationals in employment in the year to the second quarter of 2007 is 1.9 million, a rise of 0.8 million since 1997. Data broken down for asylum seekers are not available.

Incapacity Benefit: Appeals

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons a general practitioner may not attend an appeal hearing with a client with respect to an application for incapacity benefits; and if he will make a statement. [155958]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Appeal hearings in respect of incapacity benefit decisions are heard by appeal tribunals which are constituted by the Lord Chancellor and are independent. The tribunal has an inquisitorial function and appellants we encouraged to attend and to present their case, which may include any written or oral evidence from those who may support their appeal such as medical practitioners. There is nothing in the tribunal rules that would exclude an appellant's general practitioner from attending such an appeal hearing.

Local Housing Allowance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people expected to receive local housing allowance in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [156403]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The local housing allowance (LHA) will be rolled out nationally from 7 April 2008; it will apply to new claims and to those that have moved address. We estimate between 45 to 60 per cent. of housing benefit cases in the deregulated private rented sector will be on LHA for the period 2008-09. This would represent between 370,000 to 500,000 cases.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with local authorities on the provision of advice on the roll-out of the local housing allowance in 2008. [156404]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department for Work and Pensions has an extensive programme of support and advice to help local authorities with the introduction of the local housing allowance (LHA) in 2008.

The Department delivered 19 regional seminars for local authorities throughout summer 2007. A range of implementation and guidance products have already been made available to assist local authorities with specific activities, based largely on examples of good practice provided by LHA pathfinder authorities.

The Department will continue to provide communications, advice and support to local authorities in the run-up to the roll-out of the LHA in April 2008. This will include an LHA guidance manual and a training brief for local authority staff.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what additional financial resources will be made available to (a) local authorities and (b) advice agencies for the provision of advice on the roll-out of the local housing allowance in 2008. [156405]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department for Work and Pensions has provided local authorities with £59 million to support the implementation of the local housing allowance (LHA).

This is intended to support the range of activities local authorities will need to undertake in order to implement the LHA effectively, including setting up appropriate structures to provide financial advice to their customers. This includes an element of funding for the provision of financial advice to customers and local authorities are free to choose how this funding is spent—including financing arrangements with advice agencies if they wish to do so.

National Insurance

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were in existence in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 tax years. [156442]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Information regarding the number of national insurance numbers in issue in Cambridgeshire is not available.

The available information regarding the number of national insurance numbers in issue in the United Kingdom in each of the last 10 years is in the following table. This information is not available by tax year.

Total approximate number of national insurance numbers in issue at 31 December in each year between 1997 and 2006

	National insurance numbers in issue (million)
1997	66
1998	67
1999	68
2000	69
2001	70
2002	71
2003	72
2004	73
2005	76
2006	77

Notes:
1. In order to maintain the integrity of the system NINOs are not removed. For example, they are retained after a person dies or moves abroad.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 1 million.

Pensioners: Poverty

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the impact on pensioner poverty if take-up of council tax benefit were 100 per cent. [155942]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have made good progress in tackling pensioner poverty. Since 1997 the number of pensioners living in relative poverty, based on a threshold of 60 per cent. of contemporary median income after housing costs, has fallen by 1.1 million, from 2.9 million to 1.8 million in 2005-06.

Take-up of council tax benefit of 100 per cent. is estimated to reduce the number of pensioners below 60 per cent. of contemporary median income after housing costs by around 200,000, based on 2007-08 benefit rates.

Social Security Benefits

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his most recent estimate is of the number of people claiming benefits with no entitlement (a) accidentally and (b) on purpose; and if he will make a statement; [155929]

(2) what estimate he has made of the total amount of benefit money claimed with no entitlement (a) on purpose and (b) accidentally in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [155931]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people found guilty of claiming benefits illegally in each of the last three years were not British. [157176]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of benefit fraud were reported in each super-output area in each of the last five years. [157185]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested.

Social Security Benefits: Separation

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people who claimed benefit for the first time owing to marriage breakdown in each of the last five years. [156920]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what assessment his Department has made of the case for the extension of the winter fuel allowance to terminally ill people; [156722]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the likely cost of extending the winter fuel allowance to terminally ill people. [156723]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The structure of the scheme, which provides an annual lump sum payment, is not appropriate for the needs of terminally ill people. Entitlement is based on a person's circumstances in a qualifying week which is the third full week in September. The process to establish entitlement then takes a further six weeks and payments are made in November and December. This ensures that older people are confident that they will be able to afford the heating that they use in the coldest part of the year. The extra heating needs of terminally ill people can arise at any time of year, not just in the winter months. Help is available for terminally ill people through the care and mobility components in disability living allowance and the disability premiums in the income-related benefits which have a substantially higher annual value and are spread over a 52 week period.

People who are terminally ill can receive the highest rate of the care component of disability living allowance without having to serve the three months qualifying period and the benefit is usually paid within 10 days from the time the claim is received. Most people who qualify for the highest rate disability living allowance care component under these special rules also qualify for the highest rate disability living allowance mobility component. Also, where a disability premium is paid in an income related benefit, a cold weather payment is payable in periods of very cold weather. Together, these payments are designed to meet the extra costs, including heating, of terminally ill people.

The annual cost of extending winter fuel payments to people aged under 60 receiving disability living allowance under the special rules related to a terminal illness is estimated at approximately £6 million.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: Executive Agencies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06 [156617]

Mr. Woodward: In the period 2005-07, the Northern Ireland Office had four executive agencies, as follows:

Compensation Agency for Northern Ireland;

Forensic Science Northern Ireland;

Northern Ireland Prison Service; and Youth Justice Agency.

Information on all NIO NDPBs for 2005-06 was published at pages 338-46 of the Cabinet Office's Public Bodies Directory 2006 and can be viewed at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/agencies/publications/pdf/public-bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf

The same information for 2006-07 was published on the NIO website at:

http://www.nio.gov.uk/public_bodies_2007_at_21_august_2007.pdf

The Northern Ireland Office has neither trading funds nor public corporations.

Police Stations: Downpatrick

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether a recent assessment of the security threat to Downpatrick police station has been made; and how the requirement for security measures at this station compares to other police stations in Down district. [156847]

Paul Goggins: I have been informed by the Police Service of Northern Ireland that a security assessment of Downpatrick police station was carried out in April 2007 and a further assessment has been scheduled for January 2008. For security reasons it would not be appropriate to comment on the exact nature of security measures taken at any police station.

SCOTLAND

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he has any plans to bring forward legislation to devolve policy relating to abortion to the Scottish Parliament; what recent representations he has received on the issue; and if he will make a statement. [158306]

David Cairns: There are no plans to devolve policy relating to abortion, and I have received no recent representations on this issue.

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on (a) first class and (b) business class flights in the last 12 months. [153198]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not separately record expenditure on first class and business class flights. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Civil Service Management Code' and the 'Ministerial Code', copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. Information relating to overseas travel by Ministers is published on an annual basis; the 2006-07 edition was published on 25 July 2007 and is also available in the Library of the House.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people have been appointed to his Department outside civil service grades in the last 30 days. [153201]

David Cairns: None.

Departments: Railways

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [153197]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not separately record expenditure on first class train tickets. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Civil Service Management Code' and the 'Ministerial Code', copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. Information relating to overseas travel by Ministers is published on an annual basis; the 2006-07 edition was published on 25 July 2007 and is also available in the Library of the House.

Departments: Redundancy Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on redundancy payments in the last 12 months. [153191]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office incurred no costs on redundancy payments in the financial year 2006-07.

Departments: Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on staff away days in the last 12 months. [153192]

David Cairns: £6,834 was spent on staff away days in 2006-07.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on (a) staff and (b) communication training in the last 12 months. [153193]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not hold information in the form requested. The staff in the Office are on loan from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, both of whom provide free access to training and development opportunities.

Departments: Tribunals

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on industrial tribunals in the last 12 months. [153194]

David Cairns: Nothing.

Elections

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what measures are in place to ensure that Scottish returning officers receive appropriate guidance on who can register for elections anonymously; and if he will make a statement. [157815]

David Cairns: Statutory responsibility for the provision of guidance to electoral administrators, including returning officers, lies with the Electoral Commission. The Commission provided guidance on anonymous registration in Circular EC24/2007 which issued to all electoral registration officers and returning officers in Scotland on 22 May this year.

Ministers

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he has held discussions with the Scottish Executive on their Ministerial Code published in August 2003. [156504]

David Cairns: No. The Scottish Ministerial Code is a matter for Scottish Ministers.

Accountability

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will list the steps taken to improve accountability of the Commission following the report produced by Sir Kevin Tebbit; and if he will make a statement. [158235]

Nick Harvey: The Commission has yet to consider this aspect of the Tebbit review but is interested to hear the views of hon. Members, not least when the review is debated in Westminster Hall on 18 October.

Delivery Services

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will replace the envelopes used to deliver the Vote to hon. Members with reusable mail pouches. [157776]

Nick Harvey: No. The possibility has been considered but it is not practical. The reusable mail pouches in use to circulate mail on the parliamentary estate are intended for enveloped mail.

Leader of the Opposition

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what square footage of (a) office space and (b) other space is available to the Leader of the Opposition on the Parliamentary Estate. [157803]

Nick Harvey: The Leader of the Opposition and his staff occupy a suite of six rooms in Norman Shaw South totalling 266.1 m^2 (approximately 2,864 ft^2). In addition he has access to, but not sole use of, two meeting rooms; one in Norman Shaw South and a second in the Shadow Cabinet Block totalling 67.9m^2 (approximately 731 ft^2).

Parliament: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission on how many occasions illegal drugs have been found in the Palace of Westminster in the last 30 years. [156911]

Nick Harvey: Police records date from 2001. Since then there have been three seizures of drugs, all cannabis, all in quantities consistent with personal use. Two of these were recorded in 2005, one in 2006.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Committee on Standards in Public Life: Electoral Commission

Mr. Todd: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what response the Speaker's Committee has made to the Eleventh Report of the Committee on Standards in Public Life, on the Electoral Commission. [158430]

Peter Viggers: As I told the hon. Member for Liverpool, Walton (Mr. Kilfoyle) on 19 January 2007, Official Report, column 1398W, the Speaker's Committee supported the Committee on Standards in Public Life in undertaking this review of the role and governance of the Electoral Commission, and was grateful to Sir Alistair Graham and his colleagues for their thorough inquiry. The Speaker's Committee published its observations on the CSPL report in its First Report 2007, which was laid before the House on 26 July as House of Commons Paper No. 996, copies of which are available in the Vote Office. The CSPL report ranged widely over the mandate, governance and accountability of the Electoral Commission and also commented on aspects of the integrity of the electoral system, making 47 recommendations in all. Not all of these are directly relevant to the functions of the Speaker's Committee, and the Committee has restricted its detailed comments to recommendations directly addressed to itself, or in relation to which it has a specific policy interest.

The Committee looks forward to seeing the Government's response to the report as a whole. It shares the view of CSPL that any primary legislation arising from recommendations it has made should be enacted in the next parliamentary Session.

Electoral Commission: Standards

Angela Browning: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Speaker's Committee has received the Comptroller and Auditor General's statutory value for money report on the Electoral Commission 2005-06. [158431]

Peter Viggers: Yes. The Speaker's Committee considered this report, entitled 'Electoral Registration: The lynchpin of democracy', at its meeting on 27 June. The report focuses on the important issue of electoral registration and makes eight recommendations to the Electoral Commission, on: the use of its new powers to request information from Electoral Registration Officers, improving the completeness and the accuracy of the electoral register, and performance measurement.

The Committee is grateful to the Comptroller and Auditor General for this thorough report on a key element in the electoral process. It has been published as an Appendix to the Committee's Second Report 2007, and the Committee is now seeking the Electoral Commission's response to its recommendations. The report was laid before the House on 26 July 2007 as House of Commons Paper No 997, and copies are available in the Vote Office.

WALES

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices bought for the use of departmental Ministers have been returned to the Department following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156729]

Mr. Hain: In July 2003 Wales Office became part of the then Department of Constitutional Affairs and new equipment was provided to the Wales Office under their contracts from April 2004.

Since that date there has been two Cabinet reshuffles where one mobile phone and one laptop were returned by the outgoing Parliamentary Under Secretary of State and re-allocated to the incoming one.

All equipment held by the Wales Office prior to 2004 was returned to the National Assembly for Wales, as supplied under their contracts.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157923]

Mr. Hain: Nil.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157924]

Mr. Hain: None.

JUSTICE

Courts: Translation Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on translators in British courts in each of the last five years. [157701]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost through the manual searching of individual court files. Her Majesty's Courts Service is giving consideration to the routine collection of data relating to interpreting and translation services used in court.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what accounts directions were issued by his Department's predecessors in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156644]

Maria Eagle: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issue accounts directions to departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Ministry of Justice and its predecessors has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

Legal Services Commission
Information Commissioner's Office
Office of the Legal Services Ombudsman
Office of the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner
Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority

Youth Justice Board

Parole Board

Criminal Cases Review Commission

42 Probation Boards

2006-07

Legal Services Commission

Information Commissioner's Office

Judicial Appointments Commission

Office of the Legal Services Ombudsman

Office of the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner

Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority

Youth Justice Board

Parole Board

Criminal Cases Review Commission

42 Probation Boards

Further specific accounts directions have been issued by HM Treasury for the following sponsored bodies:

Funds in Court in England and Wales

Official Solicitor and Public Trustee in respect of Stewardship of Third Party Monies

Returning Officer's Election Expenses

National Probation Service

Driving Offences: Prosecutions

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many drivers were prosecuted for being involved in fatal hit-and-run accidents in each of the last five years; and what the average length of sentence handed down was. [157097]

Maria Eagle: While the Department for Transport monitors details of road traffic accidents including 'hit and run', this information is not linked with details of any subsequent prosecutions.

Although the Court Proceedings Database held by my Department can provide sentencing data on the numbers of defendants convicted of motoring offences that cause the death of a person, the information held cannot distinguish hit and run incidents from those where the driver remained at the scene.

Feltham Young Offender Institution and Remand Centre

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 381W, on Feltham Young Offender Institution and Remand Centre, whether serious assaults are recorded separately from other assaults under the PSIMOn—Prison Service Information for Managers Online—system; and if he will make a statement. [157841]

Mr. Hanson: Yes, from April 2003 since when the key performance indicator for prison violence has been based on serious assaults which account for about 9 per cent. of all assault incidents. This replaced a measure based on the number of proven adjudications (the internal disciplinary process) for assaults generally. Pre and post April 2003 assault incident data cannot be readily compared.

Offenders: Females

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish his response to the Corston Review of women in the penal system. [157761]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have given a broad welcome to the report. The 43 recommendations which it makes are wide-ranging and propose action by a number of different Government Departments and organisations. We are carefully exploring the best way of taking forward the recommendations with all the Departments and agencies concerned and will publish a detailed response by late autumn.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the expenditure was on (a) treatment and (b) rehabilitation for illegal drug users and (b) treatment and rehabilitation of people dependent on alcohol within the criminal justice system in each of the last 10 years. [157232]

Mr. Hanson: Funding allocated for those engaged in drug treatment within the Criminal Justice System is given in the following table.

Funding for rehabilitation and support services is not disaggregated by type of offence.

Funding for the provision of treatment and rehabilitation of people with an alcohol dependency is not recorded.

Prison Accommodation

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions or meetings Ministers or officials in his Department had with the Home Office on the use or transfer of the Immigration Detention Estate for use in housing prisoners. [156974]

Mr. Hanson: The Ministry of Justice and the Home Office hold regular discussions on a range of estate issues.

There are no immediate plans to use or transfer any part of the Immigration Estate to prison use.

The National Offender Management Service closely monitors the prison population and continues to investigate options for providing further increases in capacity.

Prison Service: Greater London

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many appeals against dismissal have been upheld by the Prison Service Area Manager for London since he took up his post; and if he will make a statement. [157567]

Mr. Hanson: The Area Manager for London has upheld five appeals against dismissal since taking up his current post.

Prison Service: Professional Standards Unit

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 23 July 2007, Official Report, column 791W, on the Prison Service: Professional Standards Unit, (1) whether an independent appeals process is available to address concerns about the standards of a commissioning authority; and if he will make a statement; [157716]

(2) what mechanisms are in place to ensure that a commissioning authority meets its obligations and has made the appropriate quality checks; and if he will make a statement. [157717]

Mr. Hanson: Prison Service Order (PSO) 8460: Conduct and Discipline explains the mandatory requirements for all aspects of the disciplinary process, including the role and responsibilities of the commissioning manager and appeal authority. There are no formal mechanisms in place to review the actions of a commissioning manager. However, there is a right of appeal against all formal disciplinary outcomes and any concerns regarding the decisions or actions of the commissioning manager can be raised at that appeal. The appeal authority would normally be a more senior manager than the person making the original disciplinary decision.

Prisoners: European Parliament Members

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any special arrangements will be made for Ashley Mote MEP, to enable him to continue his European Parliamentary work whilst in prison. [157025]

Mr. Hanson: No special arrangements have been made to enable Mr. Mote to continue his work as an MEP. Mr. Mote's status as an MEP does not entitle him to any special privileges, or to be treated differently to any other prisoner.

Prisoners: Parole

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have passed the date on which they are eligible for parole but have not yet been assessed; and by how many days they are overdue on average. [156985]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally and could be collated only by manual checking of individual case details, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Payments

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much money a prisoner is allowed to send out of his account to those outside prison in the form of a cash disbursement; what the purpose of a prisoner cash disbursement is; what level of authorisation is required for one; whether they are used as a means of intelligence gathering at HM Prison Service establishments; and if he will make a statement. [157566]

Mr. Hanson: The Governor authorises and has discretion to decide the amount of money a prisoner can send out, having considered any security implications. The purpose of a cash disbursement is to enable prisoners to send money out of prison for a range of purposes which include providing financial support to their families. There are various means by which prisons gather intelligence and cash disbursements assist with this process.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the potential link between prisoner cash disbursements and trafficking; and if he will make a statement. [157573]

Mr. Hanson: There has been no assessment of this potential link at a national level. However, the link between the movement of cash from a prisoner's account and possible trafficking is one line of inquiry that may be explored by staff investigating individual allegations of trafficking.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what geographical subdivisions HM Prison Service uses for the purpose of administration; how many there are; how many prison establishments are located in each such area; and if he will make a statement. [158453]

Mr. Hanson: There are 11 geographical areas in HM Prison Service and the numbers of prison establishments in each is shown in the following table. A map of prison establishments in England and Wales is in the Library of the House. HM Prison Service areas correspond to the Government Regions and Wales, except that the South East Government Region is divided into two Prison Service areas.

HM Prison Service areas

Area	Number of establishments
East Midlands	15
Eastern	12
London	7
North East	7
North West	14
South East (Kent and Sussex)	12
South East (South Central)	15
South West	13
Wales	3
West Midlands	12
Yorkshire and Humberside	10
High Security Prisons (not included in geographical areas)	8
Contracted prisons (not managed by HM Prison Service)	11

Prisons: Wales

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what sites his Department has identified for a new prison in Wales. [158194]

Mr. Hanson: A number of potential sites in Wales are currently being investigated as possible sites for new prison development. Once the process has been completed the sites with the most potential will be considered and at that stage will be made public and be subject to consultation.

Young Offenders: Crime Prevention

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on crime prevention funding for youth offending teams over the next four years; and what discussions he has had on this issue with the Department for Children, Schools and Families. [157938]

Mr. Hanson: I have received representations on this matter from the Youth Justice Board, as part of the normal process of agreeing their budget, and in writing from a small number of delivery organisations. There are also ongoing discussions with Department for Children, Schools and Families. Funding arrangements for the next CSR period will be announced in due course.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was of buying new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices for new Ministers in his Department following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156726]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information requested would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Parliamentary Under Secretaries

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the two new parliamentary under-secretaries of state in his Department. [154627]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The information requested would be available only at disproportionate cost. A list of special advisers by Department and pay band will be published in due course. Details of ministerial salaries are available in the House Library and at:

http:/www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/parliamentary/pay/ministerial/index.asp

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156648]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) which DFID is responsible for are detailed in the report Public Bodies 2006, available on the following website:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/agencies/publications/pdf/public-bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf.

In addition DFID is responsible for a public corporation, CDC (see DFID's Annual Report 2007 for more details).

DFID does not have any executive agencies, tribunal NDPBs or trading funds.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the official foreign trips which (a) he has made since July and (b) are scheduled for him to take before December. [155852]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since July I have made the following official foreign trips:

Washington—for discussions with the World Bank and US Administration;

Sudan—to visit Darfur and Juba, and for discussions with the Government;

Afghanistan—to visit Kabul and Helmand, and for discussions with the Government;

New York—for the United Nations General Assembly.

Future ministerial travel plans are not disclosed on security grounds.

Developing Countries: Exports

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what restrictions are available to be applied to imported goods which are manufactured for United Kingdom-based retailers by work forces (a) employed under conditions that do not meet minimum International Labour Organisation standards and (b) operating in factory conditions that breach local environmental pollution regulations; and what mechanisms are in place to evaluate the working conditions of work forces abroad producing goods for import into the United Kingdom. [156196]

Mr. Thomas: We continue to provide support and advice to build developing countries own ability to meet International Labour Organisation (ILO) and environmental standards, rather than seeking to impose solutions from outside.

The UK has consistently promoted efforts to ensure that international trade takes place on a sustainable basis, the principles of which include respect for the rights of workers and for environmental standards. We support voluntary codes of practice such as the Ethical Trading Initiative and the Fairtrade Foundation. We also support the work of the International Labour Organisation (ILO), which has a three-year, £20 million partnership agreement with DFID. The UK Government are also supporting sustainable development through measures such as the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) and the EU Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade (FLEGT) initiative.

There are no restrictions available to be applied to imported goods which are manufactured for United Kingdom-based retailers by work forces that are either employed under conditions that do not meet International Labour Organisation (ILO) standards, or that operate in factory conditions that breach local environmental pollution regulations. This is because there would be significant practical obstacles to implementing such measures, as well as the fact that it would be difficult to make them compatible with World Trade Organisation (WTO) rules.

Developing Countries: International Assistance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which countries the Government expect (a) to meet and (b) not to meet the Millennium Development Goals by 2015. [157331]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The 2007 UN Millennium Development Goals Report, which can be found on http://mdgs.un.org/unsd/mdg/Default.aspx, reports progress on each of the goals by region and shows where the challenges to achieving them by 2015 are greatest. Country level information is not currently published.

DFID will continue to provide an update on progress against the MDGs for individual countries identified within the Public Service Agreement in its Annual report. The latest assessment of progress can be found in the 2007 report "Development on the Record", which is available at:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Pubs/files/departmental-report/2007/default.asp

Ethiopia

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia; and if he will make a statement. [157706]

Mr. Thomas: A United Nations team made an assessment of the situation at the beginning of September. It concluded that although there was no major humanitarian crisis in the Somali (Ogaden) region, humanitarian conditions within conflict areas were deteriorating; there was an urgent need for food and medical supplies and for help with water and sanitation.

The Government of Ethiopia have accepted the report's conclusions and is working with the UN on an action plan to implement the recommendations.

Restrictions on commercial traffic, which were causing dramatic increases in food prices, have now been lifted and four major cross-border commercial routes have been opened. Improvements are expected as a result of the resumption of trade and the start of the rainy season. DFID and the other donors are working with the Ethiopian Government and the United Nations to ensure that humanitarian assistance will be delivered to those who need it.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Ethiopian Government about the security situation in the Ogaden region; and if he will make a statement. [157707]

Mr. Thomas: The British ambassador raised the issue of the security situation in the Somali (Ogaden) region of Ethiopia with Prime Minister Meles Zenawi in September. This followed a United Nations assessment mission to the region from 30 August to 5 September, the conclusions of which have been accepted by the Ethiopian Government, and security is now improving. The Ethiopian response to the UN assessment has been reassuring, and we hope that the situation will continue to improve in the coming months.

Global Fund to Fight AIDS Tuberculosis and Malaria: Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make it his policy to make a contribution of £700 million over three years to the Global Fund to fight (a) AIDS, (b) tuberculosis and (c) malaria; and if he will make a statement. [156406]

Mr. Malik: At the Global Fund Replenishment conference on 27 September, the UK made an unprecedented eight-year commitment of up to £1 billion.

The Global Fund has performed sufficiently well, and the need is so great, that we decided to maintain the UK's current high level of contribution to the fund. We therefore pledged £360 million over the three-year replenishment period (2008-10), with £30 million of this subject to demand and results. This represents a 20 per cent. increase on our current level of commitment and maintains our share of the total replenishment at 7.5 per cent.

But over and above this, we also pledged an additional £640 million from 2011-15, providing the Global Fund is receiving good quality demand, continues to perform well, and is demonstrating sustainable impact.

People suffering from HIV/AIDS need life-long uninterrupted treatment. Building up the health services of developing countries to treat HIV/AIDS sufferers and cure those afflicted by TB and malaria requires reliable and sustained investment. The long-term predictable funding now committed by the UK to the Global Fund will significantly enhance the fund's capacity to support developing countries in fighting the three pandemic diseases and making the investment in their health systems needed to sustain this fight and serve the full health needs of their populations.

Iraq: International Assistance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects the (a) International Monetary Fund and (b) World Bank has financed in Iraq. [156071]

Mr. Malik: Since 2003, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) has had two programmes in Iraq. The first of these was the Emergency Post-Conflict Assistance programme, approved in September 2004 to the value of Special Drawing Rights (SDR) 297 million. The second and current programme is the Stand-By Arrangement (SBA), which gives Iraq access to SDR 475 million should it require assistance. This programme will finish in December 2007, and the Government of Iraq and IMF are currently discussing a successor programme. The IMF is also providing US $6 million in technical assistance and capacity-building on fiscal, monetary, financial and statistical issues.

The World Bank, which started to re-engage with Iraq in mid-2003, manages a multi-donor Trust Fund to provide short and medium-term reconstruction needs. It has committed most of its resources, but disbursement has been limited ($108 million out of $490 million to date). This year the World Bank has approved four International Development Association loans worth $400 million for projects in the electricity, infrastructure and education sectors. It is also providing important analytical services to help strengthen public institutions: for example it is carrying out an assessment of Iraqi public financial management systems with the intention of developing a reform programme. Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects to reply to the letter of 10 July from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire addressed to the Prime Minister and passed to his Department, on international development issues, on behalf of Mr. Owen Morgan. [157431]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My hon. Friend Baroness Vadera has replied to the hon. Member for West Worcestershire's letter of 10 July.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he will respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 10 July, addressed to the Prime Minister and passed to his Department, about international development issues, on behalf of Mrs. D. M. Green. [157950]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My hon. Friend Baroness Vadera has replied to the hon. Member for West Worcestershire's letter of 10 July.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean dated

6 July to the right hon. Member for Kirkcaldy and Cowdenbeath on international aid. [158039]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My hon. Friend Baroness Vadera has replied to the hon. Member for Forest of Dean's letter of 6 July.

Zimbabwe

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussion he has had with the (a) United Nations, (b) EU and (c) African Union on the humanitarian and economic situation in Zimbabwe; and what steps he is taking to improve that situation. [156295]

Mr. Thomas: The Secretary of State for International Development recently discussed the situation in Zimbabwe with the UN Secretary General in New York. He and the Foreign Secretary have also had high level discussions in recent weeks with the AU and EU, and key member states of both.

We continue to provide between £30 million and £40 million of humanitarian assistance a year to protect the Zimbabwean people from the worst effects of the current crisis, and are giving support to those in Zimbabwe working for democratic change. When the time is right, we stand ready to support a major international programme to assist Zimbabwe's recovery.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many prisoners have been taken by UK forces in Afghanistan in each (a) week and (b) month since June 2006. [156591]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We do not operate a policy of internment in Afghanistan. UK forces do occasionally briefly detain suspected criminals so that they can be passed to the Government of Afghanistan. Our records indicate that the number of detainees that have passed through British custody between June 2006 and August 2007 are as follows:

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) 5.56 mm, (b) 7.62 mm and (c) 105 mm rounds have been discharged in Afghanistan by British forces since June 2006. [157026]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of rounds of these types of ammunition used by UK forces in Afghanistan from June 2006 to the end of September 2007 are as follows:

Ammunition type	Number of rounds discharged
5.56 mm	Approx 1.1 million rounds
7.62 mm	Approx 1.6 million rounds
105 mm high explosive	Approx 12,000 rounds

Armed Forces: Casualties

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the regulations governing the return of fatalities to the UK; whether they are transported on aircraft carrying soldiers; and whether coffins are transported in view of travelling personnel. [157164]

Des Browne: Military aircraft involved in the repatriation of a fatality do not normally carry passengers unless it is judged operationally essential, for example when injured personnel require aeromedical evacuation. When injured personnel or other passengers are aboard, a screen is placed across the aircraft to separate them from the coffin carrying the deceased. Any additional personnel would also disembark separately, prior to the repatriation ceremony.

Armed Forces: Prisons

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency plans exist for using the armed forces to replace prison guards during a strike. [157048]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Service personnel are only used to provide cover during industrial disputes such as prison strikes as a last resort. There are accordingly no armed forces personnel on permanent stand-by to provide cover for striking prison officers. In the event of a strike, HM Prison Service will explore all available options, with armed forces personnel being used only if necessary.

Chad

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he had with his European counterparts on a European Union military mission to Chad during the meeting of Defence Ministers in Evora, Portugal, 28 September; and if he will make a statement. [157037]

Des Browne: I discussed issues relating to force generation and funding for the planned EU-led military mission to Chad/Central African Republic, although no decisions were taken. I emphasised that the UK supports the mission as an important contribution to regional stability and a resolution to the Darfur crisis, but we have made it clear that the role of the UK armed forces in any mission will be very limited given the extent of our commitments elsewhere.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's (a) administrative expenditure, (b) other current expenditure, (c) grant expenditure, (d) operating appropriations in aid (A in A), (e) capital and (f) non-operating A in A outturn, broken down in (i) near cash and (ii) non-cash terms, was for financial years 2001-02 to 2006-07. [156001]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the right hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Prime Minister's statement of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, on Iraq, where the 2,500 British personnel in Iraq will be based from spring 2008 providing the security conditions on the ground in Iraq to permit the reduction of British military forces. [157133]

Des Browne: From spring 2008, around 2,500 British forces personnel will be based in southern Iraq, with the majority located at the contingency operating base at Basra air station.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current mission objectives are of British forces operating along the Iraq-Iran border. [157134]

Des Browne: The mission objectives are to enhance border security and deter and intercept the smuggling of illegal weapons through the training and mentoring of Department of Border Enforcement personnel and by discrete supporting operations.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his American counterpart on the future security of the Iraq-Iran border. [157135]

Des Browne: I hold regular discussions with the US Defense Secretary on issues of mutual interest, including the situation in Iraq.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the security situation in (a) Basra, (b) Maysan, (c) Dhi Qar and (d) Al Muthanna. [157139]

Des Browne: While there are still problems and challenges to be overcome, the general security situation in Basra province remains relatively stable and attacks against coalition forces have reduced sharply in recent months. Crime rates in Basra during September remain similar to the levels prior to the handover of Basra palace to Iraqi control. Where security incidents have occurred, the Iraqi security forces, under the leadership of General Mohan, have demonstrated their ability to deal with them swiftly and effectively.

The three other provinces in Multi-National Division South East are all under provincial Iraqi control. The overall security situation in all three is generally stable, and where isolated incidents of violence have occurred, the Iraqi security forces have again demonstrated that they are well able to deal with them effectively.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his American counterpart on the use by British forces of the American military base Camp Arifjan in Kuwait; and if he will make a statement. [157143]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with my US counterpart on issues of mutual interest, including the deployment of British forces in support of Operation Telic.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which private contractors provided force protection for British forces in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each year since 2001, broken down by company. [157144]

Des Browne: The MOD has not employed private military or security companies to provide force protection for its military personnel deployed in Iraq or Afghanistan. ArmorGroup was contracted to provide guards for the UK Defence Advisers' accommodation in Kabul for three months.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the reduction of British forces from 4,500 to 4,000 mentioned in the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq, 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, will result in the difference of 500 troops being (a) sent home to the United Kingdom or (b) to another base outside Iraq but still in the region; and if he will make a statement. [157145]

Des Browne [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The Prime Minister made clear the position with respect to future UK force levels in southern Iraq in his statement to the House on 8 October.

Reductions in UK force levels in Southern Iraq below the level of 4,500 are planned to result in troops being withdrawn from the region to their home bases in the UK and Germany.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what date the 500 British Armed Forces logistics personnel mentioned in the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, will enter the area of operations. [157146]

Des Browne [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The move of logistics and support personnel out of Iraq will straddle the roulement of UK forces. As a result some will transfer from Basra while others may deploy directly from the UK or Germany. It is not possible to provide a breakdown at this stage. It is planned that this process will be complete by the end of the year.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cap badge is of the military personnel performing force protection duties at Basra airfield. [157147]

Des Browne [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Force Protection arrangements at Basra airfield are complex, multi layered and constantly evolving to respond to the changing security situation. Royal Air Force, British Army and coalition personnel contribute to this in many different roles. It is not practicable to give the cap badge of every military personnel involved at any particular time.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by what date British forces will total 4,000 personnel in Iraq. [157149]

Des Browne [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The drawdown of forces to 4,000 is conditions-based. No date has been set.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where the 1,000 personnel to be withdrawn from Iraq are to be located following their withdrawal. [157214]

Des Browne: 500 troops are in the process of returning to home bases now. The process of moving 500 logistic and support staff from Iraq to elsewhere in the region will also begin shortly. This process will extend over the next roulement of forces. Some troops will reposition directly from Iraq and others will return to the UK and will be replaced by troops who will deploy from UK and Germany to new locations in the region. It is not possible to determine the precise breakdown at this stage.

Further reductions will involve troops returning to their home bases.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Minister for Veterans will reply to the letter of 21 August 2007, Departmental reference MC04605/2007, from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire. [157432]

Derek Twigg: I replied to the hon. Member on 30 September.

Military Exercises

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what involvement the UK has in Exercise Vigilant Shield 08; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the UK of the exercise. [157799]

Des Browne: The UK is not engaged in Exercise Vigilant Shield 08 but is participating in Exercise Global Lightning 08, a related exercise under the aegis of the US Department of Homeland Security's overarching exercise "Top Officials 4". The costs to the UK are estimated at around £5,000 and have been met from existing travel and subsistence budgets.

Military Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any units of the British Army have declined to take (a) Snatch Landrovers and (b) other vehicles to operational theatre. [157079]

Des Browne: The Permanent Joint Headquarters determines which vehicles are deployed, based on advice from operational commanders. Units deploy vehicles to meet this requirement. No unit has declined to take vehicles required for use in theatre.

Written Questions

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons Questions (a) 154393, (b) 154394 and (c) 154397 on the Royal Navy, tabled by the hon. Member for New Forest East on 26 July 2007 for named day answer on 8 October 2007, have not yet received substantive answers; and if he will make a statement. [157434]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The answers were delayed as my weekend ministerial box was not delivered to the office until 9 October as a result of the postal strike. I replied to the hon. Member on 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 501 and 510-11W.

TRANSPORT

Cars: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the car-free day initiative in Hampshire in September 2007; and if she will make a statement. [157257]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport sponsors a national coordinator to promote the car free initiative ('In Town, Without My Car') and to collate information about local authorities who wish to register. This event takes place annually on 22 September as part of European Mobility Week. We also provide a good practice guide—Making 'In Town, Without My Car' Work—which is available free of charge to the public. Records of participating towns and cities throughout the UK are kept on the Mobility Week website. This year there were 58 participating towns although none of them were in Hampshire. The link is at:

http://www.mobilityweek.eu/cities/participants_eu.php?page=rubique

The event is voluntary and it is for local authorities to decide whether they take part and how they wish to participate. Each year European Mobility Week has a theme aimed at promoting sustainable travel initiatives. This year's theme was 'Streets for People'.

Local authorities are aware that the Government see most merit in initiatives that reduce the need for car use and encourage better facilities for cyclists and walkers and we have stressed that it is essential that sufficient good quality public transport is provided to meet the needs of those who wish to travel on the day.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will list her Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156647]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Details of the Department for Transport's executive agencies, non-departmental public bodies, trading funds and public corporations for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are set out in the Department's annual reports for 2006 and 2007.

The Cabinet Office provided a central list of all non-departmental public bodies for 2005-06 in its publication 'Public Bodies 2006'. The Cabinet Office also publishes the List of Ministerial Responsibilities, which is updated on a regular basis and lists all executive agencies.

Home Zones

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the location is of each (a) completed Home Zone and (b) Home Zone under construction. [157958]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government do not hold information on the location of all Home Zone schemes, as local authorities are able to implement them independently and are not required to provide details. Locations of completed schemes funded from the Government's Home Zones Challenge programme, and the pilot Home Zone schemes which preceded it, are listed in the following table.

Lorries: Accidents

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of all collisions involving large goods vehicles involved foreign-registered vehicles in the latest period for which figures are available. [158360]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested for reported personal injury road accidents involving foreign registered vehicles is available from table 53 of 'Road Casualties Great Britain: 2006 annual report'. Copies of the report have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. This table can also be found on the Department's website at the following web address:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/172974/173025/221412/221549/227755/285672/WebTables4153.xls

M1: Castle Donington

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 2 July 2007, Official Report, column 906W, on the M1: Castle Donington, if, following the traffic management pilot project on the M42 south east of Birmingham, she plans to allow the use of hard shoulders on motorways at times of severe congestion. [157546]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Highways Agency is still evaluating the Active Traffic Management pilot project on the M42 and hopes to be in a position to make the results of its findings available shortly.

My hon. Friend, the then Minister of State for Transport, the hon. Member for South Thanet (Dr. Ladyman) announced in December 2006 that we will work with the Highways Agency to develop the case for productivity Transport Innovation Fund funding for an Active Traffic Management Scheme on the Birmingham Motorway Box. Beyond this, there are no plans at the present time to allow traffic to use the hard shoulder in response to severe congestion.

M1: Dunstable

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to build junction 11a of the M1 during the widening of this stretch of the M1; and if she will make a statement. [157543]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Secretary of State accepted the regional assembly's advice that the scheme should be funded in the period 2011-12 to 2015-16 but that it should be considered for an earlier start if there is slippage on other schemes in the East of England region.

In the meantime, the Highways Agency has been instructed to progress the scheme through the statutory process, including a public inquiry if necessary, to allow construction of the whole scheme, or junction 11a only, concurrently with M1 widening junction 10-13 in 2010-11 if funding can be made available.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the latest estimate is of the additional cost of building junction 11a of the M1 after the M1 has been widened between junctions 10 and 13, over and above the previous estimate of £14.6 million given by the Highways Agency. [157545]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The latest estimate of the additional cost of construction of the proposed M1 junction 11a (part of A5-M1 link (Dunstable Northern bypass)) in 2013-14, compared to construction concurrently with M1 widening junction 10-13 in 2010-11, is £11.5 million (including the effect of inflation).

Motor Vehicles: Navigation

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make a statement on her Department's consultation on in-vehicle information systems. [157602]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has conducted an informal consultation on in-vehicle information systems and intends to publish a summary of the results by the end of the year.

It will be published on the departmental website, and copies will be sent to the Libraries of both Houses.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the expected timescale is for the publication of the proposals on in-vehicle information systems. [157603]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has conducted an informal consultation on in-vehicle information systems and intends to publish a summary of the results by the end of the year. The responses to this consultation, together with other information, will inform any proposals on how to move forward.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the likely impact of Galileo on the In-Vehicle Information System; and if she will make a statement. [157604]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has made no formal assessment of the likely impact of Galileo on In-Vehicle Information Systems. It is not expected to have any significant effect.

Motor Vehicles: Testing

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many heavy goods vehicles (HGV) and public service vehicles (PSV) were tested in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; how many such vehicles were not tested; how many such vehicles were fitted with speed limiters; how many centres in fitting limiters were approved by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in the relevant period; and how many HGVs and PSVs failed a test in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [157159]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) is responsible for heavy goods vehicles (HGV) and public service vehicles (PSV) annual tests. Data on the number of vehicles tested, how many failed and the number of approved speed limiter sealer centres is published annually in its Effectiveness Report which is available online at www.vosa.gov.uk or from the House of Commons Library, Business and Transport Section.

VOSA does not hold data on the number of HGVs and PSVs that were not tested or how many vehicles were fitted with speed limiters.

Railway Network: St. Pancras Railway Station

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to build a network of high speed rail lines radiating from St. Pancras; and if she will make a statement. [157583]

Mr. Tom Harris: A high speed line from St. Pancras will open for revenue earning service on 14 November 2007, serving both Brussels and Paris. The White Paper, Delivering a Sustainable Railway, discussed the merits of further high speed rail lines but concluded that decisions on building such lines need not be made until 2012.

Roads: Accidents

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the extent to which STATS 19 returns underestimate the actual number of road traffic accident casualties; and when her Department became aware of the issue. [157158]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Very few, if any, fatal accidents do not become known to the police. However, research conducted on behalf of the Department for Transport has shown that an appreciable proportion of non-fatal injury accidents are not reported to the police. There is no legal duty in Great Britain to report personal injury road accidents to the police provided the participants exchange details at the scene.

One of the earliest attempts to quantify the level of reporting in STATS 19 was published in 1979 in the report "Classification of injury severity by length of stay in hospital".

Further studies have been undertaken which also provide estimates of this shortfall and the most recent work on reporting levels was drawn together in the report "Road Safety Research Report 69: Under-reporting of Road Casualties - Phase 1" commissioned by the Department and published in June 2006:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roadsafety/research/rsrr/theme5/underreportingofroadcasuahi4788

A note on levels of reporting on STATS 19 can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/accidents/roadaccidentstatisticsgrea1835

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will assess the merits of replacing existing speed cameras with vehicle-activated speed signs; and if she will make a statement. [157512]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Traffic authorities have a wide range of measures at their disposal to achieve appropriate vehicle speeds and they are best placed to decide the most suitable approach at a particular location. Vehicle activated signs and safety cameras are used to tackle different speeding problems. Vehicle activated signs are generally used to tackle inappropriate speed and have proven particularly effective when used to warn drivers of approaching hazards on rural roads. Safety cameras are effective in tackling excessive speed (i.e. over the posted speed limit).

Speed Limits: Schools

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what difference has been recorded in the number of casualties which have occurred outside schools after the creation of 20 mph zones outside these schools; what percentage change that figure represents; and what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of 20 mph zones outside schools. [157959]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does not hold information on how many schools fall within 20 mph zones nor therefore how many casualties have occurred outside schools after the creation of 20 mph zones. Local authorities are responsible for introducing 20 mph speed limits where they deem it appropriate.

No specific assessment has been made of the effectiveness of 20 mph zones outside schools. The Transport Research Laboratory conducted two reviews of 20 mph zones in 1996 and again in 1998. The 1996 review found that 20 mph zones which incorporated traffic calming measures achieved an average 9 mph reduction in vehicle speeds, annual accident frequency fell by 60 per cent. and overall reduction in child accidents of 67 per cent.

The 1998 review looked at wider issues in terms of vehicle speeds and included 20 mph zones and 20 mph limits where there was lesser or no traffic calming. This found reductions in vehicle speeds were minimal when only speed limit signs were used.

Transport Direct: Internet

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the contribution of the Transport Direct portal to journey decisions since December 2005, with particular reference to modal shift. [154752]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The portal service includes a self-completion feedback questionnaire. The responses to the questionnaire suggested that for individuals who had made the journey before (about a third of the 2,034 respondents):

17 per cent. claimed they would change their route;

24 per cent. would change when they intended to travel.

Indicative findings also suggest a predisposition for those travellers who have made a journey before, to change how they might travel:

7.7 per cent. intended as a result of what they found on Transport Direct to use public transport rather than the car, while 2.3 percent. intended to use the car instead of public transport.

This information corrects that given on 18 July 2006, Official Report, column 264W, to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Carmichael).

Travel: Concessions

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if she will make a statement on the progress of discussions with her counterparts in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland on the prospects for mutual recognition of concessionary bus passes across the UK; [156237]

(2) whether any assessment has been made of the feasibility and cost of allowing people aged 60 and over, and eligible disabled people, to be provided with free travel on public transport around the UK; and if she will make a statement. [156238]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Concessionary travel is a devolved policy area and the devolved Administrations have their own arrangements in place.

From 1 April 2008, people aged 60 and over and eligible disabled people in England will be entitled to free off-peak local bus travel anywhere in England, not just within their local area as at present. This is provided for in the Concessionary Bus Travel Act 2007. The Government announced that up to £250 million of additional funding is to be made available each year for the national bus concession. This equates to £212 million for England after allocations to the devolved Administrations under the Barnett formula.

The Act also contains a power to allow, via future secondary legislation, for the possibility of mutual recognition of bus passes across the UK. The Department for Transport had initial discussions with the devolved Administrations last year about the proposal and all indicated support for inclusion of this power. However, it was also acknowledged that we would need to discuss it further and work together to resolve various technical and resource issues before mutual recognition could be pursued in practice.

At present, the Government's priority is successful implementation of the national concession in England from next April. These arrangements will see the largest number of people benefiting from concessionary travel and will also be the most expensive in the UK. Until we understand the impact of the national bus concession in England it is very difficult to cost the mutual recognition of passes across the UK. Consideration would also have to be given to the possible harmonisation of modes, timings and eligibility in England, with those in the rest of the UK where there are differing arrangements—all of which increase the potential cost of providing UK wide free travel.

Local authorities in England will continue to have the flexibility to offer more than the statutory concession to their residents, for example morning peak bus travel for disabled and/or older people. English local authorities neighbouring Scotland or Wales can also offer concessionary travel that crosses the border. Any such enhancements are discretionary and are based on an authority's own assessment of local need and their overall financial priorities.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Floods

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the cost to farmers in England of the summer floods, broken down by (a) county and (b) region; and if he will make a statement. [157272]

Mr. Woolas: Data on the economic cost to farmers in England of the summer 2007 floods are not yet available due to the nature of the flooding. DEFRA has commissioned work to estimate the value of immediate crop and livestock losses from flooding, and will publish this when it is complete later in the year.

Battery Hens: EU Law

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to support the introduction of the prohibition on battery cages in 2012 contained in the 1999 EU Laying Hens Directive. [157050]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Council Directive 99/74/EC prohibits the use of conventional (battery) cages from 1 January 2012. The Directive has been transposed into domestic legislation and includes the deadline for the ban on these cages.

Circuses

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislation regulates the use of wild animals in travelling circuses; and if he will make a statement. [157343]

Jonathan Shaw: The Protection of Animals Act 1911 long made it an offence to cause unnecessary suffering to a domestic or captive animal. The Animal Welfare Act 2006 (AWA), which became law on 6 April 2007 in England (on 27 March in Wales), repealed and replaced the 1911 Act. Importantly, it introduced a duty of care which allows a prosecution to be brought where an animal, although not currently suffering, is being treated in a way that fails to meet its welfare needs.

In March 2006, my hon. Friend the then Minister for Animal Welfare (Ben Bradshaw) announced that he was minded to introduce regulations under section 12 of the Animal Welfare Act 2006 to ban the use, in travelling circuses, of certain non-domesticated species whose welfare needs could not be satisfactorily met in that environment. A Circus Working Group was formed to inform our decisions as to what form regulations should take. The Working Group will, shortly, provide a report setting out its findings.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156650]

Jonathan Shaw: A full list of delivery bodies in the above categories can be found at notes 37 and 38 of the Department's latest published resource accounts, for the 2005-06 fiscal year. The draft 2006-07 resource accounts include two new executive NDPBs:

The Commission for Rural Communities; and Natural England.

Departments: Publications

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to which individuals and organisations his Department's "Tomorrow's Climate, Today's Challenge" pack has been distributed; and what the cost of distributing the pack has been (a) in total, (b) for research, (c) in staff time and (d) for printing. [157981]

Mr. Woolas: The "Tomorrow's Climate, Today's Challenge" (TCTC) pack, which was published on 4 June 2007, has been distributed to a very wide range of organisations. To date, DEFRA has distributed around 4,167 copies of the TCTC pack and will distribute the remaining 5,833 over the course of the year.

I have arranged for a list of the organisations which have been sent the TCTC pack to be placed in the Libraries of the House. Most of the organisations requested the pack and some organisations have been sent more than one copy.

The information the hon. Member requests regarding individuals has not been provided as disclosure of this information would constitute unfair and unlawful use of personal data.

The costs of distributing the pack (including VAT where applicable) are set out in the following table. They do not include figures for producing the content of the DVD included in the pack as this was part of a separate project.

(a) Cost of distributing in total	Estimated at [1]34,521
(b) Research[2]	16,807
(c) Staff time[3]	Estimated at [1]3,670
(d) Printing (10,000 copies)	12,043.75

[2] Research here is taken to mean design and gathering of information as no primary research was undertaken.

[3] Excl. staff time at Central Office of Information who developed the pack. This is included in research costs.

Environment Agency

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he expects to meet the full budget recently requested by the Environment Agency. [154114]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA's formal Comprehensive Spending Review settlement for 2008-09 to 20010-11 has been announced. The Secretary of State has also announced that annual Government spending on flood and coastal erosion risk management will rise to a minimum of £650 million in 2008-09, and £700 million in 2009-10, reaching £800 million by 2010-11. These figures compare with a forecast spend of £600 million in 2007-08 and is the minimum we propose to spend in each of the coming years. It is too early to determine whether this will be the final allocation, or whether it will be possible to go further.

DEFRA will now consider its own financial allocation process, during which budgets for the Environment Agency will be determined. This process will be based on careful prioritisation across the Department and all its sponsored bodies. Allocations between operating authorities will be confirmed following the medium-term planning exercise for capital projects later this year.

Fisheries: Quotas

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the fishing opportunities available for UK vessels in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [157274]

Jonathan Shaw: No such estimates have been made. The second instalment of the scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES), covering a number of stocks of importance to the UK, is not due to be published until later this month. We do not expect the Commission proposals for these and other relevant stocks to appear until late November.

Fisheries: Subsidies

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with his counterparts in (a) the Scottish Executive, (b) the Welsh Assembly Government and (c) the Northern Ireland Executive on the UK Operational Programme for the European Fisheries Fund priorities; when he expects the draft Operational Programme to be ready for consultation; and if he will make a statement; [157247]

(2) if he will make a statement on the progress of the UK Operational Programme for the European Fisheries Fund. [157246]

Jonathan Shaw: Officials from the four fisheries administrations in the UK are currently working on the draft UK Operational Programme which will set out our proposals for the European Fisheries Fund (EFF) funding priorities. We aim to consult with fishermen and other stakeholders on the Operational Programme in early 2008.

We cannot finalise the draft programme until agreement is reached on the split of the EFF budget between the devolved Administrations. The UK budget split was discussed by devolved Fisheries Ministers on 5 October without resolution. I am continuing to seek a resolution and, if necessary, will do so through the dispute resolution procedures set out in the devolution agreements.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much European Fisheries Fund funding is available to the fishing industry in the UK over the period January 2007 to December 2013; how much has already been paid to the UK fishing industry, broken down by (a) licensing district and (b) sector; and if he will make a statement. [157248]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK portion of the European Fisheries Fund (EFF) budget is €137.8 million (approx. £96 million), of which €43 million (approx. £30 million) is for convergence areas and €94.7 million (approx. £66 million) is for non-convergence areas (in current prices).

No EFF payments have been made in the UK to date. Payments cannot be made until the UK has finalised its Operational Programme and received approval of the programme from the Commission.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the size of the European Fisheries Fund for the period January 2007 to December 2013 is in (a) euros and (b) pounds sterling; and how much is being allocated to each country. [157249]

Jonathan Shaw: The European Fisheries Fund has a budget of €3,849 million (approximately £2,665 million) for the period 2007-13 (2004 prices). This equates to €4,387 million (approximately £3,038 million) in current prices.

The amount allocated to each country is set out in the following table:

Allocation of EFF to each country in 2004 prices

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons the UK Operational Programme containing the UK priorities for the European Fisheries Fund will be scrutinised by the European Commission; how long he expects this process to last; and if he will make a statement. [157250]

Jonathan Shaw: The European Commission (EC) will appraise the proposed Operational Programme to determine whether it contributes to the objectives set out in Article 4, the guiding principles set out in Article 19 and the relevant part of the National Strategic Programme. The EC will take into account the ex ante evaluation referred to in Article 48 of the European Fisheries Fund Regulations (1198/2006).

If within two months following receipt of a member state's proposed Operational Programme, the EC considers that the programme is not consistent with the above factors, it may ask the member state to provide additional information. Where appropriate, the EC will ask the member state to adapt the proposed Operational Programme accordingly and re-submit it for approval.

Thereafter, the member state shall submit its Operational Programme to the EC which shall adopt a decision approving it as soon as possible, but no later than four months after the re-submission.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding priorities he has identified for the allocation of grants from the European Fisheries Fund for the period January 2007 to December 2013; and if he will make a statement. [157251]

Jonathan Shaw: The European Fisheries Fund identifies priority axes for funding which, for England, have been provisionally classified as follows:

Priority axis—England

	Priority axis
1.	Adaptation of the Community fishing fleet	Low priority
	(e.g. decommissioning and other fleet restructuring/effort management measures as well as skills development, retraining for alternative occupations and early retirement. Also vessel modernisation and engine replacement).	Target: more stocks within safe biological limits year by year, during 2007-13.
2.	Aquaculture, inland fishing, processing and marketing of fisheries and aquaculture products	Low priority
	(e.g. investment in aquaculture, inland fishing, and processing and marketing. Consideration is given to the environment, safety, working conditions and both public and animal health).	Target: to increase profitability and sustainability and improve environmental standards in the UK aquaculture sector between 2007-13.
3.	Measures of common benefit	High priority
	(e.g. measures of common interest with a broader scope than those normally undertaken by private enterprises. So this can include protection and development of the marine environment, promotion of port facilities, new markets and pilot projects including partnerships between scientists and industry. Also covered are improving quality, promoting more selective fishing methods and upgrading skills).	(Emphasis on marine protection and partnership projects rather than capital works).
		Target: to encourage responsible fishing that helps to safeguard the marine environment.
4.	Sustainable development of fisheries areas	Medium priority
	(e.g. assistance for the sustainable development of fisheries areas and improvements to the quality of life in such areas. Areas eligible for funding are being selected and have to implement a local strategy which seeks to implement the objectives of the CFP taking particular account of socio-economic effects. Funding can support measures taken to maintain economic and social prosperity, develop jobs, promote the coastal environment and promote co-operation between fisheries areas).	(Measures under axis 1-3 are applicable under axis 4 for the selected fishing areas and for Convergence areas will be given a high priority).
		Target: employment diversification in fishing areas consistent with regional policy priorities.

Priority axis—England

These will be finalised in light of responses to the consultation on the draft UK Operational Programme.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the UK Strategic Plan in relation to the European Fisheries Fund for the period January 2007 to December 2013. [157252]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK National Strategic Plan for Fisheries describes the UK fisheries sector and UK objectives and priorities for fisheries between 2007 and 2013. It covers catching, aquaculture, inland fishing, processing and marketing. The UK has to draft this document to demonstrate to the European Commission that it has clear strategic objectives for managing fisheries and on which to base its priorities under the European Fisheries Fund.

We are planning to submit the UK National Strategic Plan to the European Commission as soon as possible, pending its finalisation.

Flood Control

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what frequency was assigned to the recent floods in the Thames and Severn catchments on the basis of the existing modelling; what changes have been made to the flood frequency modelling since those events; and if he will make a statement. [157234]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's Midlands and Thames Regions are working to assess the frequency of the flooding at key locations. It is expected that final results will be available in the Midlands Region by mid-December.

The Environment Agency's initial findings are that the July 2007 flooding at Gloucester had an annual probability of 0.5 per cent. in any one year (1 in 200 year return period).

The return period (or frequency of flooding) has yet to be calculated for the recent floods on the Thames. However, tributaries of the River Thames such as the River Evenlode, the River Windrush, the River Ock and the River Loddon, experienced the highest recorded river levels. It is too early to determine the impact of these floods on future probability analysis, but they will be fully accounted for in any new river modelling work.

Floods

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of (a) sea level rise, (b) storm occurrence and (c) subsiding land mass on calculations of flood risk. [154413]

Mr. Woolas: The Government's 2004 Foresight Future Flooding report took a long-term view of national flooding and coastal erosion risks to 2100. It estimated that future climate change, together with increased economic wealth which increases losses, could lead to potentially significant increases in future risk by the end of this century.

The Government advise the operating authorities to factor climate change effects into the design of present-day river and coastal defences. An allowance should be made for acceleration of sea level rise, as a result of climate change already locked in to the global system, from the current 2.5-4 millimetres (mm) a year to 13-15 mm a year by the end of the century, depending on location. As part of a precautionary approach, this advice also includes predicted land level changes as very gradually the south east of England has been lowering and the north of the country rising since the last ice age. Such guidance for flood and coastal erosion risk management activities has been provided since 1989 and is kept under review (most recently revised in October 2006).

Sensitivity tests are also recommended for a 20 per cent. increase in the river flows as a result of climate change. Increases in rainfall intensity are also recommended in planning guidance (PPS25) for new urban drainage.

On storm occurrence, the scenarios to be published by the UK Climate Impacts Programme in 2008 are expected to provide further insight into changes that may occur over the next century and these will be taken into account in future guidance.

Hares: Conservation

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold discussions with the Game Conservancy Trust on plans to conserve the mountain hare. [155944]

Joan Ruddock: The new list of UK Biodiversity Action Plan Priority Species and Habitats contains 65 habitats and 1,149 species, including the mountain hare. A large number of groups, and in excess of 500 individual experts in total, were involved in the production of this list. It is impossible, therefore, for me to meet with specific conservation groups to discuss individual species. Instead, the UK Biodiversity Partnership as a whole is considering how to take forward the conservation of species and habitats on the new list.

Inland Waterways: Pollution

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 July 2007, Official Report, column 1380W, on Inland Waterways: pollution, what records, other than those relating to consented discharges, the Environment Agency keeps of the potential sources of pollution. [154078]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency holds a range of information on potential sources of pollution. These include the Pollution Inventory which covers information from approximately 2,000 industrial sites on chemical releases, including those to controlled waters.

Operator Pollutant Risk Appraisal information is used to assess the environmental risk of Environment Agency regulated sites. The Compliance Classification scheme shows the sites which have failed to comply with permit conditions.

Seas and Oceans: Environment Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) for what reasons the (a) Marine Bill and (b) Draft Marine Bill was not included in the 2006 Queen's Speech; and if he will make a statement; [157238]

(2) whether a (a) Marine Bill and (b) Draft Marine Bill will be included in the 2007 Queen's Speech; and if he will make a statement; [157239]

(3) what discussions he has had with (a) the Prime Minister and (b) Cabinet colleagues on the inclusion of a (i) Marine Bill and (ii) Draft Marine Bill in the 2007 Queen's Speech; and if he will make a statement; [157240]

(4) what priority he has given to the inclusion of a (a) Marine Bill and (b) Draft Marine Bill in the 2007 Queen's Speech; and if he will make a statement. [157242]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government are firmly focused on meeting their commitment to introduce a comprehensive Marine Bill in this Parliament. Proposals have been developed for a Bill that covers a broad and complex set of marine issues spanning many different interests and which, in some cases, break completely new ground.

The Government's draft legislative programme states that we are considering publishing a draft Marine Bill in the next session of Parliament—we are working to do this in early 2008. Publishing the Marine Bill in draft will allow us to get the legislation right and lead to a better Bill.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) has regular discussions on a range of issues with the Prime Minister and Cabinet colleagues.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on (a) the issuing of offshore consents and (b) a Marine Bill; and if he will make a statement. [157241]

Jonathan Shaw: My right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn) and the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (Mr. Hutton) meet regularly to discuss matters of mutual interest, including the Marine Bill. Discussions about offshore consents took place during the preparation of "A Sea of Change: a Marine Bill White Paper".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Trafficked Children

16. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what additional resources she plans to make available to those local authorities offering refuge provision and special support to child victims of trafficking uncovered by Pentameter II. [157292]

Mr. Coaker: Children rescued within Operation Pentameter will be referred to the local authority which has duties to safeguard all children who are at risk of harm and accommodate those in need. The NSPCC and ECPAT will be on hand to offer specialist advice on the needs of child trafficking victims.

Inward Migration

17. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her estimate is of the number of (a) legal and (b) illegal immigrants arriving in the UK in the last 12 months. [157294]

Mr. Byrne: The latest information on non-EEA nationals granted leave to enter the United Kingdom relates to 2006 and shows that a total of 12.9 million such persons were granted leave to enter the United Kingdom by immigration officers. The majority of these persons, around 94 per cent. (12.1 million), were either: visitors, both ordinary and business; passengers in transit; or passengers returning after a temporary absence abroad.

No Government has ever been able to produce an accurate figure for the number of people who have entered the country illegally. By its very nature it is impossible to quantify accurately, and that remains the case.

Remembrance Day

18. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on her negotiations with the Royal British Legion on arrangements for Remembrance Sunday parades in 2007. [157296]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has not had any negotiations with the Royal British Legion on arrangements for Remembrance Sunday Parades in 2007. However I can assure the Royal British Legion of our support should they encounter any obstacles in making arrangements.

People Trafficking

19. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to tackle human trafficking. [157297]

Mr. Coaker: We have published the UK Action Plan to tackle Human Trafficking which contains 64 action points as part of the UK's end to end strategy to combat this terrible crime. Strategic oversight of the plan's progress will be discussed at the meeting of the Inter Departmental Ministerial Group of which I am chair and on which the Scottish Executive sit.

We have also launched the operational phase of Pentameter 2 to tackle those responsible for trafficking people for the purposes of sexual exploitation, and are implementing the Council of Europe Convention on Action Against Human Trafficking.

Police Priorities

20. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she plans to take to give local communities a greater role in the determination of local policing priorities. [157298]

Mr. McNulty: Neighbourhood policing already gives local communities a role in determining local policing priorities. In addition, monthly local crime information will be provided to allow people to understand better their local community safety issues, and hold the police to account for the way in which they tackle the communities' local priorities. We have also asked Sir Ronnie Flanagan to look at how we can improve both local involvement and local accountability and he will be reporting on this early in 2008.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

21. Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department has issued to police forces on the use of antisocial behaviour orders in respect of persons under the age of 18. [157299]

Mr. Coaker: Revised comprehensive guidance on antisocial behaviour orders was published in August 2006. This is part of the toolkit we have provided to all antisocial behaviour practitioners in England and Wales to tackle antisocial behaviour. ASBOs are just one of those important tools.

Police Numbers: Bournemouth

22. Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on police manning numbers in Bournemouth. [157300]

Mr. McNulty: At 31 March 2007, there were 315 police officers and 36 police community support officers in Bournemouth. Total staffing levels in Dorset have increased by 35 per cent. since 1997.

Community Policing

23. Patrick Hall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to further develop community policing. [157301]

Mr. McNulty: We remain committed to Neighbourhood Policing—which is very much a shared endeavour between the police service, local agencies and the community. We have already signalled our intention to put Neighbourhood Policing at the heart of Neighbourhood Management and as part of that we will also consider pooled and participatory budgets.

Fingerprinting: School Pupils

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the use by police of pupils' fingerprint data collected by schools; and if she will make a statement. [157282]

Meg Hillier: Using the data collected by schools would not meet the investigative needs of the police or the evidential requirements of the criminal justice system.

Schools are recording only an algorithmic representation of the fingerprint and not the fingerprint itself.

The algorithmic records held by schools are not compatible with the national automated fingerprint system used by police forces.

Acceptable Behaviour Contracts

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many acceptable behaviour contracts were (a) made and (b) breached in each of the last five years. [157381]

Mr. Coaker: Data on acceptable behaviour contracts (ABCs) are not collected by the Home Office as they are voluntary agreements and therefore not suitable for central data collection. However, surveys carried out by the Respect Task Force of the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) indicated that over 25,000 ABCs have been made since October 2003. The Home Office recently issued updated and comprehensive guidance for practitioners on the use of ABCs.

Airguns: Licensing

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) meetings she has had with the Cabinet Secretary for Justice in the Scottish Executive and (b) discussions her Department has had with the Scottish Executive on proposals to (i) introduce restrictions on the use of airguns and (ii) require licensing of all new sales of airguns; and if she will make a statement. [156841]

Mr. Coaker: The misuse of air weapons in Scotland was one of a number of issues raised when I met with the Cabinet Secretary on 19 July.

The Government are determined to tackle the problem of misuse wherever it takes place and have taken action to tighten up the legislative framework. We worked closely with Scottish Ministers to include provisions in the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 which require businesses selling air weapons to register with the police as firearms dealers and to complete sales face-to-face; increase to 18 the age limit for buying and possessing air weapons; and make it an offence for any person to fire an air weapon across the boundary of premises.

These measures have only recently come into force and should be given time to take effect before further changes in the law are contemplated. We shall continue to work with Scottish Ministers to ensure communities across the country are protected from all aspects of firearms misuse.

Anti-terrorism Control Orders

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many individuals issued with control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 have had their financial assets frozen; [156300]

(2) how many individuals have been subject to control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005; [156301]

(3) how many individuals issued with control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 have absconded; [156302]

(4) what proportion of individuals who have been issued with control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 are British citizens. [156303]

Jacqui Smith: 30 individuals have been subject to control orders under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005. Of these, 11 are British citizens. Seven of the 30 individuals have absconded—including an individual who is now in police custody. One of the 30 individuals has had their assets frozen.

Crime: Homophobia

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress her Department has made in ensuring that homophobic crimes are dealt with in a sensitive manner. [156757]

Mr. Coaker: In March 2005 we worked with the Association of Chief Police Officers to produce a tactical guide for tackling all hate crime including homophobic hate crime.

In December 2006 we issued further guidance to Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships and Community Safety Partnerships, specifically aimed at helping practitioners tackle hate crime including homophobic hate crime.

We are currently working to update both of these, which both emphasised the importance of dealing with victims of these crimes in a sensitive manner, and we will be developing further good practice from projects funded through the Victims Fund to tackle hate crime. Through this fund we allocated over £100,000 to projects tackling homophobic hate crime.

Extradition: Russia

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British citizens were extradited to Russia in each of the last five years. [154576]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer provided by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Office (Meg Hillier), of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1843W.

Firearms: Crime

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to reduce gun crime since June 2007. [155049]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The Government have an ongoing programme of work to tackle gun crime, focusing on the themes of:

Policing—ensuring the police are equipped to tackle gun crime.

Powers—giving the police and courts the powers to deal with offenders.

Prevention—empowering communities to work with local agencies to take action to prevent gun crime and gang culture, and offering support to parents to challenge their children's behaviour.

Nevertheless, there is more that can be done. It was announced on 9 September that the Government, working with the police, other delivery partners and communities, would be taking forward a programme of targeted work in the local areas facing the greatest challenges with respect to gangs and gun crime. The Tackling Gangs Action Programme will focus on neighbourhoods in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Liverpool. Jon Murphy, of Merseyside Police, has been seconded to head up a special team taking forward this work, which will report to a new cross-Government ministerial task force chaired by the Home Secretary.

The task force met for the first time on 19 September and committed to take forward a range of action including using the local area agreement framework to highlight work on guns and gangs at local level; improved data sharing; development of diversionary activities through sport, music and arts; improving measures for witnesses. The on-going programme of work is also informed by the Home Secretary's round table on guns, knives and gangs, which has met nine times since 2003, most recently on 26 June. A further meeting is being planned.

An additional £1 million has been allocated for this work.

The Government have also asked Ken Jones, President of the Association for Chief Police Officers (ACPO), for a report on the scale and nature of the problem in relation to guns and gangs, and proposals for what more the Government, the police and other agencies can do to improve the situation.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines she has issued on the use of fixed penalty notices. [154716]

Jacqui Smith: My Department issued in April 2006 "Revised Guidance on the Operation of the Fixed Penalty System for Offences in Respect of a Vehicle". The document is available on the Home Office website at:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/road-traffic.html

Overall policy in respect of fixed penalty notices is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice (Mr. Straw).

Forensic Telecommunications Services

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if she will make a statement on the theft of the telephone evidence database from Forensic Telecommunications Services Ltd.; [155644]

(2) what assessment she has made of the potential value to terrorist groups of the stolen telephone evidence database from Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd.; [155798]

(3) what discussions officials from her Department have had with Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd. regarding the security of data processed; [155799]

(4) when her Department last made an assessment of the security procedures of Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd.; [155800]

(5) how much the Government spent on the services of Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd. in each year for which records are available; [155801]

(6) which Government Departments and agencies had data compromised during the database robbery from Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd.; and when were those agencies informed of the theft; [155802]

(7) whether her Department has communicated with any foreign governments regarding the theft of the telephone evidence database from Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd. [155803]

Mr. McNulty: On 7 August, offices belonging to the Forensic Telecommunication Services Ltd. in Kent were burgled and computer equipment was removed. That equipment has since been recovered in a police operation. When recovered, an examination of the server referred to by my right hon. Friend was carried out. That examination indicates that the server was not accessed and that no data was compromised. One individual has been arrested in connection with the burglary and I understand this offence has been considered as part of his sentencing. I have asked the chief constable of Kent to write to my right hon. Friend directly regarding this matter.

Home Office officials have been kept informed, as a matter of routine, but have had no direct involvement in this incident. Individual Departments and the police make their own arrangements for handling their protectively marked assets according to relevant security manuals and procedures.

Genetics: Databases

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children have their DNA details stored on a database. [157295]

Meg Hillier: 317,015 under-18s and 132,465 under-16s had a record on the National DNA Database on 30 September 2007.

Homophobia: Prosecutions

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what work her Department is undertaking to tackle homophobic crimes. [156447]

Mr. Coaker: This Government take all hate crime including homophobic hate crimes very seriously. We have identified five priorities for tackling hate crime:

Increasing reporting

Bringing more offences to justice

Increasing confidence that hate crime will be taken seriously

Using local and national data to understand better the nature and extent of hate crimes

Tackling repeat victimisation.

This June the Government made £250,000 available through the victims fund to tackle hate crime and support victims. Over £100,000 of this money has been awarded to tackling homophobic and transphobic hate crime.

Since April 2007 we have asked the police to flag homophobic and other hate crimes so we can better understand the nature and extent of homophobic hate crime. The Race for Justice Steering Group works to bring more hate crime offences to justice, including homophobic hate crimes. In December 2006 we produced guidance to community safety practitioners to help them tackle homophobic hate crime.

We are also planning to amend the Criminal Justice and Immigration Bill to provide for offences to tackle the incitement of hatred on grounds of sexual orientation.

Illegal Immigrants: Crime

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals residing illegally in the UK were charged with criminal offences in each year since 2002. [156306]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested regarding the immigration status of those arrested or charged with a criminal offence is not collated centrally by the Office of Criminal Justice Reform or the Crown Prosecution Service, and as such this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when she plans to answer the letter of 12 July from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Ewmid Hasan Abdulla; [156906]

(2) when she plans to answer the letter of 6 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. E. Abdulla. [156907]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to the right hon. Member on 11 October 2007.

Money Laundering

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to tackle international money laundering. [157293]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have a comprehensive strategy in place to seize criminal assets and to combat money laundering, with over £300 million recovered over the last three years. We will continue to work closely with our European and international partners, and with industry, to provide global solutions to a global problem.

North Yorkshire Police: Finance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on funding for North Yorkshire police in 2008-09. [157709]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office will announce a Provisional Finance Settlement on the level of funding for the police for the CSR years, 2008-09 to 2010-11, with the local government finance settlement in late November/early December as in previous years.

Passengers: Terrorism

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passengers have been charged with (a) terrorist and (b) other offences following security checks on departing passengers at (i) Heathrow, (ii) Gatwick and (iii) Stansted in each of the last 12 months. [156322]

Mr. McNulty: Information on charges or convictions arising from stops at ports of entry could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Statistics detailing the number of individuals charged under the terrorism legislation are available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk

Police Community Support Officers

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers there are in each basic command unit. [156668]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is published in the Supplementary Tables of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 13/07 "Police Service Strength, England and Wales, 31 March 2007". A copy is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1307add_tab.xls

Police: Casualties

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of police officers have been injured in the line of duty in each police force area in each of the last 10 years. [156474]

Mr. McNulty: The numbers of assaults on police officers are available, and are published each year in the Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary (HMIC) Annual Report. The total numbers of assaults have been given. The vast majority of these assaults are categorised as minor and no injury. The HMIC Annual Reports can be downloaded from the following link:

http://inspectorates.homeoffice.gov.uk/hmic/inspect_reports1/annual-reports/

The available data are for 1999-2000 to 2004-05 only, and have been given in the following table. The percentage of police officers injured in the line of duty cannot be accurately determined from the available data.

[1] Data collated on behalf of and published by HMIC. Serious assaults are those for which the charge would be under Sections 18 and 20 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861. Other assaults include those with minor or no injury. Recording practices may vary over time and between forces.

[2] Financial year runs 1 April to 31 March inclusive.

[3] HMIC did not publish a force breakdown of assaults prior to 1999-2000. HMIC have advised that assaults data will no longer be published in their Annual Report and that the data for 2004-05 is the last series of these data to be published.

[4] Greater Manchester was not able to provide data in 2003-04.

[5] Lancashire was not able to provide breakdowns of numbers for different assaults in 2003-04 and 2004-05.

[6] Metropolitan police was unable to provide data in 2000-01 and was unable to provide breakdowns of numbers for different assaults from 2001-02 to 2003-04.

[7] Northamptonshire was not able to separate serious and other assaults from 1999-2000 to 2002-03.

[8] South Wales was not able to provide breakdowns of numbers for different assaults in 1999-2000.

[9] West Midlands was not able to provide breakdowns of numbers for different assaults in 2003-04 and 2004-05.

Police: East Midlands

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on police force collaboration in the East Midlands. [157084]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 October 2007]: We welcome the progress being made on collaboration in the East Midlands, the approach being taken by the five constabularies and their police authorities and their commitment to working together. Collaborative working is key to delivering the necessary improvements in protective services and offers opportunities for efficiency gains. I announced in a written ministerial statement on 17 July 2007, Official Report, columns 13-14WS, that we will be supporting 10 separate initiatives by police forces and authorities, including one in the East Midlands, to demonstrate joint working solutions in a range of protective services. The demonstration site in the East Midlands will build on existing collaborative work and help develop a shared body of knowledge that the police service as a whole will benefit from.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will meet representatives of the East Midlands Strategic Board to discuss the consultation on the police grant funding formula. [157422]

Mr. McNulty: I met the chief constables and police authority chairs from the East Midlands on 6 September. We will take account of all written representations received in response to the consultation on police grant formula.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the East Midlands Strategic Board's submission to the consultation on the police grant funding formula. [157423]

Mr. McNulty: The consultation period closed on 10 October. We will take account of all representations received in reaching final decisions on the police grant settlement for the CSR years.

Prison Service: Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department plans to transfer establishments from the Immigration Estate to Her Majesty's Prison Service; and if she will make a statement. [156977]

Mr. Byrne: There are no immediate plans to use or transfer any part of the immigration detention estate to prison use.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the Ministry of Justice on the use of the Immigration Detention Estate for the housing of prisoners; and if she will make a statement. [156978]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office and the Ministry of Justice hold regular discussions on a range of estate issues.

There are no immediate plans to use or transfer any part of the immigration detention estate to prison use.

Prisoners: Genetics

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 16 April 2007, Official Report, column 498W, on prisoners: genetics, of the 5,400 prisoners identified as not having a profile on the database why no more than 3,722 subsequently had a sample taken. [155193]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 September 2007]: The report cited in the 16 April 2007, Official Report column 498W, is from 2003. It used a comparison of prisoner records with the Police National Computer (PNC) and the National DNA Database. As many identity profiles were not exact, it was necessary for methodological reasons to undertake manual checking within individual prisons to confirm matches. Due to the "snapshot" nature of the study some of the prisoners had been released by the time sampling teams reached the prison in which they had been held.

There are good reasons for believing that those in prison now are on the DNA database. Police powers to take and retain DNA were extended in 2001 and 2003 so that DNA could be taken from anyone arrested for a recordable offence.

Since 2000, forces have received funding, first through the DNA Expansion Programme and then through general Police Grant, enabling them to take DNA samples from all eligible individuals. It is now standard procedure to take DNA and fingerprints in the custody suite when someone is arrested.

Stop and Search

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Taunton of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 977W, on stop and search, what the equivalent figures for each individual police force area were in each year since the introduction of the Terrorism Act 2000. [156480]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Information on stop and searches and resultant arrests under Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 from 2001-02 to 2004-05 by police force is given in the following tables. Statistics for 2005-06 will be available in the last quarter of this year.

[1] Searches may be conducted on vehicles only, occupants only or both may be searched. Where a vehicle and driver occupier are searched simultaneously the search is recorded against the driver (occupant). Any other passengers searched are recorded as occupants.
[2] The Terrorism Act 2000 came into force on 19 February 2001.
[3] Includes arrests under the Terrorism Act, arrest for terrorist related matters and other serious crimes.
Note:
Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of persons were stopped and searched under the Terrorism Act 2000 (a) at airports, (b) on London Underground and (c) at train stations in each of the last 10 years. [156483]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Information on the percentage of those stopped under Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 and the location of those stops and searches is not available.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what targets the Government have set in relation to stop and search by police officers in England and Wales. [156484]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The use of stop and search powers is an operational matter for individual officers based on individual circumstances. Therefore, there are no Government targets on the exercise of these powers by police officers.

Crime: Detection Rates

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the detection rate was in 2006-07 for (a) theft and handling stolen goods, (b) fraud and forgery, (c) criminal damage, (d) violence against the person, (e) sexual offences, (f) robbery and (g) all violent crime, calculated by the methodology used to calculate the figures presented in Table 7.03 of Crime in England and Wales 2004-05. [156589]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is given in the table and relates to all detections for recorded crime. The Home Office now concentrates on publishing detections data in terms of sanction detections rather than all detections. Sanction detections provide a more meaningful comparison of individual force performance and some forces have made a policy decision to significantly limit their use of non-sanction detections in recent years.

A number of changes have also been made in response to suggestions in the two reviews of crime statistics. One such change is that for police recorded crime there are separate violence against the person, sexual offences and robbery categories but these is no longer a combined total 'violent crime' category.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Civil Nuclear Constabulary

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding was made available to the Civil Nuclear Constabulary in each year since its establishment. [156349]

Malcolm Wicks: The then Department of Trade and Industry provided the Civil Nuclear Police Authority (CNPA) with £6 million as working capital on its set-up in April 2005.

£3 million was then made available to the CNPA for 2006-07, and a further £3 million for 2007-08, for capital spending. To date, £1 million only of this funding for 2006-08 has been drawn upon. Capital costs will be recovered by the CNPA through depreciation charges. The costs of the CNPA and the Civil Nuclear Constabulary are met by the civil nuclear operating companies to whom policing services are provided.

Details of the operating costs of the CNPA can be found on the CNPA's website at: www.cnpa.police.uk/funding and within the CNPA's annual report and accounts, also available on the website.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many arrests were made by the Civil Nuclear Constabulary in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007; and how many of these resulted in successful prosecutions. [156350]

Malcolm Wicks: In the 2004-05 Crime Year, officers of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary (CNC) made three arrests, of which one resulted in a successful prosecution and one resulted in a caution being given.

In the 2005-06 Crime Year, CNC officers made seven arrests, of which four resulted in successful prosecutions and two resulted in cautions being given.

In the 2006-07 Crime Year, CNC officers made three arrests, of which one resulted in a successful prosecution and one resulted in a caution being given.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent on training for the Civil Nuclear Constabulary in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007; and how much is proposed to be allocated in each of the next five years. [156351]

Malcolm Wicks: The costs of the Civil Nuclear Police Authority and the Civil Nuclear Constabulary are met by the civil nuclear operating companies to whom policing services are provided. Training costs for the Constabulary are as follows:

Energy Supply

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received from energy suppliers on their programmes of assistance to vulnerable consumers; and if he will make a statement. [156371]

Malcolm Wicks: Meetings have been held or are to be held with representatives of Centrica, Scottish Power, Npower, Powergen, Scottish and Southern Energy and EDF at both ministerial and official level to discuss their programmes of assistance to vulnerable consumers.

Energy Supply: Rural Areas

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many rural households in England are in fuel poverty; and if he will make a statement. [156373]

Malcolm Wicks: In 2004, 325,000 households in rural areas were in fuel poverty. These households accounted for around a quarter of all households in fuel poverty in that year.

Energy Supply: Disadvantaged

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how he plans to determine whether the corporate social responsibility assistance provided by each energy supplier to help vulnerable consumers is adequate and proportional; and if he will make a statement. [156361]

Malcolm Wicks: A range of factors are being taken into account in considering the corporate social responsibility assistance provided by each energy supplier to help vulnerable consumers, drawing on the evidence in Ofgem's review of supplier's voluntary initiatives to help vulnerable customers. Major factors include the level of assistance delivered to vulnerable customers relative to the size of the supplier and the overall price level offered by the supplier.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he has set a deadline for energy companies to put into place the programmes of assistance described at paragraph 2.1.21 of Meeting the Energy Challenge—A White Paper on Energy; and if he will make a statement. [156362]

Malcolm Wicks: No deadline for the introduction of programmes of assistance has been set. However, companies will need to indicate a commitment by the end of October 2007 to put in place any further programmes of assistance, so that decisions can be taken as to whether powers should be taken in the Energy Bill in line with the Energy White Paper.

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which consumer groups will be targeted by the winter 2007-08 cross-Government communications campaign on energy-related assistance for vulnerable and low-income households. [156374]

Malcolm Wicks: The campaign is directed towards older, vulnerable and at-risk people to help eliminate fuel poverty and promote independence and well-being, by ensuring that those needing help are aware of, and take advantage of, the advice and financial support available to help keep them and their homes warm.

Energy: Meters

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the Government's policy is on introducing smart meters for gas and electricity in the domestic sector; over what time scale meters are expected to be introduced; and if he will make a statement. [156349]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are currently consulting on proposals on metering and billing set out in the Energy White Paper, including smart meters. The Paper included an expectation that smart meters would be universally rolled out within 10 years, and the current consultation aims to gather stakeholder views on how this objective might best be delivered. The Government will develop their approach on smart metering in the light of information from the consultation and other work being undertaken by the Government, Ofgem, energy suppliers and interested bodies.

Export Credits Guarantee Department

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what environmental criteria are taken into account before the Export Credits Guarantee Department offers guarantees for projects to commence. [156355]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD undertakes a review of all projects in accordance with its Case Impact Analysis Process, which is available on its website. The environmental impact analysis of each case will vary depending on the nature, scale and location of the project.

It is ECGD's policy that projects should comply in all material respects with the relevant safeguard policies, directives and environmental guidelines of the World Bank Group.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many approved independent and environment consultants the Export Credit Guarantee Department uses when assessing the environmental impact of a project; how these consultants are selected; and what safeguards are in place to ensure their assessments are impartial. [156356]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD has contracts with two environmental consultancy organisations to provide review and advice services on a call-off basis. The contracts were procured through an open competition in line with EU procurement rules. Each contract provides that the consultancy will perform its tasks with all due skill, care and diligence, while informing ECGD of any conflicts of interest.

On projects where ECGD is part of a lender group, an independent environmental consultant may be employed. The usual role is to review on behalf of the lender group the environmental information provided by the project sponsor. Typically, the lender group will agree the terms of reference for the appointment of the independent environmental consultant with the project sponsor, together with a short list of companies to be invited to tender for the appointment. It will review the tender proposals received and will attend tender interviews. The project sponsor will then appoint the independent environmental consultant taking into account the recommendations of the lender group. The appointed independent environmental consultant undertakes the work on the instructions of the lender group, and its terms of engagement will provide an express duty of care to each member of the lender group.

First Solution Money Transfer

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what action the Insolvency Service has taken to investigate the circumstances in which individuals have lost money as a result of their use of First Solution Money Transfer services; and if he will make a statement. [157833]

Mr. McFadden: In the light of the financial difficulties and apparent closure of First Solution Money Transfer Ltd. in June 2007 Companies Investigation Branch ('CIB') of the Insolvency Service appointed investigators to examine the facts of the case. This investigation is continuing. CIB investigations are confidential and do not result in a publishable report. However, CIB can use the information in a number of ways, for example, to seek to disqualify any directors shown to be unfit to run limited companies or to pass information to a criminal prosecutor or other regulator for action as necessary. It can also petition the court to wind up the company compulsorily and such a petition was presented to the High Court on 2 August. The court has fixed 7 November 2007 to hear that petition. In the meantime the official receiver has been appointed provisional liquidator to preserve and protect remaining assets.

Fuel Poverty

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2068W, on fuel poverty, what definition his Department uses of a proportional programme of assistance; what methodology is used by his Department to measure proportionality; and which of the major six energy companies offer a proportional programme of assistance. [156822]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 10 October 2007]: A range of factors are being taken into account in considering the corporate social responsibility assistance provided by each energy supplier to help vulnerable consumers, drawing on the evidence in Ofgem's review of supplier's voluntary initiatives to help vulnerable customers. Major factors include the level of assistance delivered to vulnerable customers relative to the size of the supplier and the overall price level offered by the supplier. A supplier is said to be offering a proportionate programme of assistance if it is offering a level of assistance under these measures around or above the industry average at the time of publication of the White Paper. We are currently analysing the findings of the Ofgem update report on "Ofgem's review of Suppliers' voluntary initiatives to help vulnerable customers" published on 8 October to determine which of the major six energy companies offer a proportional programme of assistance.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date Ministers were informed of a separate claims handling agreement between the then Department of Trade and Industry and Vendside in relation to vibration white finger. [156925]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The then Minister responsible was briefed on the development of the CHA between the former Department of Trade and Industry and Vendside with respect to vibration white finger in December 1998 and prior to the agreement being signed off.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date Ministers were informed of a separate claims handling agreement between the then Department of Trade and Industry and the Union of Democratic Mineworkers for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. [156926]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The then Minister responsible was briefed on the development of a claims handling agreement between the former Department of Trade and Industry and the Union of Democratic Mineworkers with respect to Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease in November 1999 and prior to the agreement being signed off.

Industrial Diseases: Solicitors

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what criteria were used in determining solicitors' fees for coal health claims in the (a) CSG—the Claimants Solicitors Group—and (b) UDM Vendside agreements. [156575]

Malcolm Wicks: Solicitors' fees were negotiated as part of the original Claims Handling Agreement between the Department and the group representing claimants' solicitors. These are court based schemes and the Department was obliged to negotiate all elements including solicitors' involvement and associated costs. At the time, it was felt that the fees reflected fairly the cost of the provision of legal advice to claimants.

The Department negotiated a reduction of legal costs of 16.66 per cent. for claims represented by UDM/Vendside, compared to the group representing claimants' solicitors.

Iran: Overseas Investment

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether his Department is advising UK businesses not to invest in Iranian oil and gas-related projects; and if he will make a statement. [157389]

Mr. Hutton: UK Trade and Investment advice makes clear to British companies the considerable commercial and political risks associated with investment in Iran, including the implications of existing and potential future sanctions. However, investment decisions within the current legal boundaries remain a commercial decision for individual companies.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding has not yet been committed under phase one of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [156259]

Malcolm Wicks: From a budget of £36 million for the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1 there remains £16,492,729 uncommitted.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been committed under phase one of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (a) in total and (b) in each region in each month since the scheme began; and if he will make a statement. [156260]

Malcolm Wicks: As at 30 September, a total of £19,507,271 had been committed under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1. This includes amounts for grant offers, management fees and funds used by the Clear Skies and Solar PV Major Demonstration Programmes to smooth the transition between these programmes and the Low Carbon Buildings Programme.

Further details have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Nuclear Power: Reviews

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many responses were received to the Government's nuclear policy consultation document (a) on-line and (b) in hard copy submissions; what communications his Department has received from non-governmental groups that formally withdrew from the consultation; and what requests were received from interested parties for the release of support documentation for the consultation. [157325]

Malcolm Wicks: The total number of (a) online responses received to the Government's nuclear policy consultation document recorded on 11 October was 2,144. (b) The total number of hard copy submissions recorded on this date was 623.

Detailed breakdown on communications received from non-governmental groups that formally withdrew from the consultation, and requests received from interested parties for the release of support documentation, is currently not available.

The majority of the responses to the consultation have been made online, but we will take into account any responses that have been delayed for a variety of reasons.

Offshore Industry

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he plans to maintain responsibility for the granting of offshore oil and gas consents under the Petroleum Act 1998; and if he will make a statement. [157244]

Malcolm Wicks: Yes. As the North sea continues to mature it remains a key Government objective to ensure that economic recovery of UK hydrocarbon resources is maximised. The current regulatory regime, which has been refined over the years to encourage exploration and development and attract investment, is ensuring that industry is in the best position to realise the full potential of the UK's oil and gas reserves.

Post Offices: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date he plans to announce the future of Post Office branches in Greater London; and if he will make a statement. [157064]

Mr. McFadden: On 17 May my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced the Government's response to public consultation on the Post Office network. Now that the Government have announced their decisions it is for Post Office Ltd. to strategically develop the network through around 50 local area implementation plans over the next 15 months.

According to the timetable set out by Post Office Ltd., which is publicly available on its website, the local consultation on the Greater London implementation plan is scheduled to begin in April 2008. Final decisions on closures will be taken by POL in light of responses to the consultation.

Postal Services: Strikes

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will take steps to encourage a settlement in the postal dispute that takes into account postal workers' views of changes to working practices and pensions. [156921]

Mr. McFadden: The Secretary of State and I continue to encourage both the Royal Mail and the CWU—Communication Workers Union—to resolve the current dispute through talks. We have done so at a number of meetings and will continue to do so.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what meetings he has had with representatives of (a) Royal Mail Ltd. and (b) the Communication Workers Union at which the resolution of the postal strike has been discussed. [157264]

Mr. McFadden: The Secretary of State and I have had a number of meetings with Adam Crozier and Allan Leighton and Bill Hayes and Dave Ward to discuss the postal dispute and other matters.

Regional Development Agencies: Public Appointments

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what criteria are used to appoint individuals to the boards of regional development agencies (RDAs); and how many appointments in each RDA are (a) trade union appointments and (b) party political appointments. [158118]

Mr. Timms: A detailed specification is drawn up for each role on the Regional Development Agency Boards. These specifications are subject to public consultation with national and regional stakeholders and subsequently set out in the adverts for the posts. Applicants are asked to complete an application form detailing their competencies against the requirements set out in the specification.

Each region has one trade union board member.

There are no party political appointments.

Renewable Energy

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been committed for the installation of (a) wind turbines, (b) wood fuelled boiler systems, (c) solar thermal hot water, (d) solar photovoltaics, (e) small hydro projects, (f) heat pumps, (g) ground source heat pumps and (h) biomass room heaters and stores under phase one of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (i) in total and (ii) in each region to date in each month since the scheme began; and if he will make a statement. [156258]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the projection is of the percentage of energy in the UK which will be produced from renewables by 2020. [157091]

Malcolm Wicks: DTI projections in May 2007 indicated that by 2020, on the basis of existing policies, renewables would contribute around 5 per cent. of the UK's energy consumption. However, once a decision has been reached on each member state's contribution to the EU's target of 20 per cent. renewable energy by 2020, we will bring forward the appropriate measures, beyond those set out in the Energy White Paper, to make our contribution.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to meet the EU target of 20 per cent. of energy consumption from renewable sources by 2020. [157199]

Malcolm Wicks: As set out in the Energy White Paper, once a decision has been reached on each member state's contribution to the EU's target of 20 per cent. renewable energy by 2020, we will bring forward the appropriate measures to make our contribution. In the meantime, the measures and market framework set out in the Energy White Paper allow us to make significant progress on this important agenda.

Renewable Energy: EU Law

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will establish a 2020 Renewables Taskforce to assist in meeting the UK element of the EU renewables directive; and if he will make a statement. [154917]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 10 September 2007]: I do not believe it necessary to set up a new 2020 Renewables Taskforce as the Renewables Advisory Board (RAB) is an existing NDPB set up by government specifically to advise on these issues. RAB exists to improve Government understanding of the obstacles and opportunities for the development and deployment of renewable technologies in the UK and make specific recommendations for this purpose. It is already providing valuable assistance to us in our consideration of the EU 2020 renewable energy target, including by setting up a specific sub-group to advise on the EU 2020 target.

Renewable Energy: Rural Areas

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department is taking to help rural households to overcome planning issues to implement alternative sources of energy, including microgeneration, and to become more energy efficient. [156365]

Malcolm Wicks: The Microgeneration Strategy, published in March 2006 commits to tackling the barriers currently preventing widespread uptake of microgeneration, including issues around planning. With regard to planning issues, the Government have consulted on proposals to help householders install microgeneration technologies without the need to apply for planning permission and responses to the consultation are currently being considered. We have also recently published an energy measures report for local authorities compiling information they can use to improve energy efficiency and reduce greenhouse gas emissions in their communities.

Research Council: Finance

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2042-43W, on the Research Council: finance, what restructuring of British Energy was involved; and if he will make a statement. [157731]

Malcolm Wicks: As part of the restructuring of British Energy (BE) in January 2005, the Government took on responsibility for the company's historic spent fuel liabilities for the period up to the restructuring. The total cost of these liabilities was estimated in the Department's 2006-07 accounts as £2.4 billion, and is based on the forecast payment schedule up to 2029 which is set out in the waste processing contracts agreed between BE, BNFL and the Department.

Payments since 2004-05 have been approximately £200 million per annum, and future payments are estimated to be £200 million (undiscounted at March 2007 prices) per annum until 2013-14. Amounts are then expected to fall each year thereafter until 2029.

Royal Mail: Pensions

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions his Department has had with representatives of Royal Mail Ltd. on the proposed changes to the pensions scheme for Royal Mail staff. [157266]

Mr. McFadden: Royal Mail has developed its proposals on the reform of its pension scheme following discussions with the workforces' representatives. My department received a briefing on the final proposals from Royal Mail but has not been involved in their formulation.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the potential impact of the proposed changes to the pensions scheme on Royal Mail staff. [157267]

Mr. McFadden: I have not carried out an assessment of the impact of the proposed changes to the pension scheme on Royal Mail employees. Royal Mail's proposals document sets out how the changes would affect staff.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on the pensions holiday taken by Royal Mail Ltd. between 1995 and 2002. [157268]

Mr. McFadden: During the period 1995-2002, the pension fund was in surplus. In 2001, the fund was some 105 per cent. funded. The current deficit arose because of market changes, revised assumptions in life expectancy and the new accounting standards, which required pensions to be reported on company balance sheets. Royal Mail is now addressing the deficit through additional contributions to the fund.

Severn Barrage: Environment Impact Assessment

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the proposed feasibility study for a Severn Barrage energy scheme will include a full environmental impact assessment. [156922]

Malcolm Wicks: The feasibility study will include detailed analysis of the environmental impacts of a barrage including mitigation and compensation aspects and compliance with the relevant legislation.

A full environmental impact assessment would need to be carried out by the developer as part of the planning process.

Union of Democratic Mineworkers

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) phone calls and (b) meetings took place between (i) Ministers and (ii) civil servants and (A) the Union of Democratic Mineworkers and (B) Vendside in (1) 1998, (2) 1999, (3) 2000 and (4) 2001. [155595]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department does not keep records of the number of phone calls between the Department and the Union of Democratic Mineworkers or Vendside. Officials have had formal business meetings with UDM/Vendside but we do not have comprehensive records of these, and an accurate number is not, therefore, available. I should also add that similar business meetings have also taken place with the Claimants' Solicitors Group. There is no record of any Minister having met the UDM or Vendside.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many records there are of (a) gifts and (b) hospitality received by civil servants from his Department and its predecessors from solicitors acting for (i) the Union of Democratic Mineworkers and (ii) Vendside in cases concerning miners' industrial diseases in (A) 1998, (B) 1999, (C) 2000 and (D) 2001. [155596]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department keeps records of gifts and hospitality received but no records match these criteria.

Utilities: Fees and Charges

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what measures he is taking to prevent energy companies demanding payments arising from not recalibrating token meters and subsequently seeking backdated payments; [157103]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the energy regulator on energy suppliers who charge backdated payments after delays in the recalibration of token prepayment meters; and if he will make a statement; [157104]

(3) what measures he plans to take to assist households who have received backdated payment requests by energy suppliers who have not recalibrated token prepayment meters; and if he will make a statement. [157105]

Malcolm Wicks: The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, including matters related to prepayment meters, and I have no plans to meet with the energy suppliers on this issue. I welcome Ofgem's commitment to working with suppliers to improve their performance in recalibrating and replacing certain prepayment meters. My Department continues to monitor progress. Ofgem has provided regular updates on suppliers' progress, with the latest published in a letter of 9 August from its Director of Governance. This letter, which included details of the progress on customer communication made by Scottish Power, Powergen and npower, is available from Ofgem's website at:

www.ofgem.gov.uk

TREASURY

Children: Poverty

Paul Rowen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to his Pre-Budget and Comprehensive Spending Review Statement on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 167, when he expects the Government's target of a 50 per cent. reduction in child poverty to be attained; [157941]

(2) on the Pre-Budget and Comprehensive Spending Review on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 167, how many children will be lifted out of poverty in each of the years between 2008 to 2010 according to the measure proposed in his statement. [157942]

Jane Kennedy: The Government remain fully committed to their ambition of halving child poverty by 2010-11 on the way to eradicating child poverty by 2020.

Building on Budget 2007 announcements that will lift 200,000 children out of poverty by 2010-11, the pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review announced additional financial support for low income families with children, including an increase in the child element of child tax credit by £50 a year above earnings indexation by April 2010, and substantial increases in disregards for child maintenance in income-related benefits. Together these measures will lift around 100,000 additional children out of poverty by 2010-11.

Coinage

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether all the coins in use in the United Kingdom are manufactured in the UK. [157437]

Kitty Ussher: All legal tender United Kingdom circulating coins are manufactured in the UK by the Royal Mint.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices bought for the use of departmental Ministers have been returned to the Department following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156730]

Angela Eagle: In the last Parliament, all laptops, mobile telephones and personal digital assistant devices bought for the use of departmental Ministers that are no longer in use by them, have been returned to or purchased from the Department. Information prior to this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

HM Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the target time is for responses to be made to correspondence sent to HM Revenue and Customs. [156821]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC aims to deal with 80 per cent. of general correspondence within 15 working days of receipt and 95 per cent. within 40 working days.

Inheritance Tax: East Midlands

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the number of estates that would pay inheritance tax at a threshold of £1 million in (a) the East Midlands, (b) Nottinghamshire and (c) each parliamentary constituency in Nottinghamshire; [157738]

(2) how many and what proportion of estates paid inheritance tax in (a) the East Midlands, (b) Nottinghamshire and (c) each parliamentary constituency in Nottinghamshire in the last year for which figures are available. [157739]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for estates paying inheritance tax and amounts of tax paid are not available at local levels.

Inheritance Tax: High Peak

Tom Levitt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in High Peak paid inheritance tax in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [157610]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for estates paying inheritance tax and amounts of tax paid are not available at local levels.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will require the Chairman of the Board of Customs and Excise to reply to the letter to him of 29 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Ms K. Cassidy. [156909]

Jane Kennedy: The chairman of HMRC replied to the right hon. Member on 5 October 2007.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the letter of 12 July (PO Ref: 1/50946/2007) from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire. [157430]

Jane Kennedy: I replied to the hon. Member on 10 October 2007.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Economic Secretary will respond to the letter of 8 August from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire (PO REF: 5/02368/2007). [157951]

Jane Kennedy: I have done so.

Office of Strategic Co-ordination of Health Research: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the combined budget allocation is for the Office of Strategic Co-ordination of Health Research for each financial year from 2008-09 to 2010-11. [157945]

Andy Burnham: The combined budget allocation for the Office of Strategic Co-ordination of Health Research (OSCHR) will be £1,465.8 million in 2008-09, £1,567.9 million in 2009-10 and £1,674 million in 2010-11.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much public expenditure there is per capita in 2007-08 for residents of (a) Scotland and (b) England; and what estimate he has made of what the equivalent figures will be once the Comprehensive Spending Review decisions take effect. [157428]

Andy Burnham: The latest available figures for total identifiable public spending per head are published in Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses. In 2006-07 spending per head was £7,121 in England and £8,623 in Scotland. Later figures will be published in Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses next spring.

Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letters to HM Revenue and Customs (Tax Credits) from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 12 June, 9 July, 13 August and 4 September on behalf of Mr R. White (Ref: 2007/0600 2871) of Writtle, Chelmsford. [157065]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I made to Parliament on 25 July 2007 about the administrative issue which affects some older tax credits awards. HM Revenue and Customs wrote to inform all affected customers about this issue, including the hon. Member's constituent, around the end of August 2007.

Revenue and Customs: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when HM Revenue and Customs expects to vacate its tax office premises at Regent House, Darlington. [157441]

Jane Kennedy: Decisions on the future of HMRC offices in the Middlesborough/Stockton urban centre, which includes Regent House in Darlington, are expected to be announced this week. Once an announcement is made HMRC will work with its strategic property partner to agree plans for vacation and release of any offices that will close.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) Mapeley have had made available to them a lease break in respect of Regent House, Darlington. [157581]

Jane Kennedy: The current lease for Regent house, Darlington expires in 2012. However, as part of a wider town centre redevelopment, planning permission for alternative use has been granted. Mapeley are consequently in discussions with the landlord regarding lease surrender terms. Any proposed vacation of the building will be dependent on the successful outcome of negotiations and subject to decisions regarding HMRC's restructured needs.

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when HM Revenue and Customs plans to announce decisions about the future of Darlington tax office. [157615]

Jane Kennedy: Decisions on the future of HMRC offices in the Middlesbrough/Stockton urban centre, which includes Regent House in Darlington, are expected to be announced this week.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of stamp duty on (a) the London Stock Exchange's competitiveness and (b) the value of equities; and if he will make a statement. [154282]

Kitty Ussher: The Government keep all taxes and their effects on markets under constant review. However, it is difficult to accurately isolate the effects of stamp duty on either the London Stock Exchange or equity values given the number of other factors influencing it.

The continued long-term growth in both the number of trades completed on the London Stock Exchange and the number of new companies listed highlights that the City of London continues to be a leading global centre for financial services.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of stamp duty on the housing market; and if he will make a statement. [154283]

Kitty Ussher: The Government keep all taxes and their effects on markets under constant review. However, it is difficult to accurately isolate the effects of stamp duty land tax on the housing market given the number of other factors influencing it.

Since 1997 the stability and prosperity of the UK economy has allowed nearly two million more people to become homeowners. Last year in England, 185,000 net additional homes were added to the housing stock, the highest level since 1990.

Surveys: Costs

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the marginal cost of (a) asking one additional question to all responders and (b) computerising the additional data for (i) the British Household Panel Survey, (ii) the Expenditure and Food Survey and (iii) the Labour Force Survey. [156903]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 15 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking what estimate has been made of the marginal cost of (a) asking one additional question to all responders and (b) computerising the additional data for (i) the British household panel survey, (ii) the expenditure and food survey and (iii) the labour force survey. (156903).

I am unable to answer for the British household panel survey, which is funded by the Economic and Social Research Council, and managed by the Institute for Social and Economic Research at Essex University. Contact details for the Institute for Social and Economic Research are available on their website at http://www.iser.essex.ac.uk/.

For the ONS expenditure and food survey and labour force survey, the cost of questions can vary quite substantially and it is not possible to provide an average cost or the cost of computerising the additional data. In some cases answers to questions can be derived from other existing questions and in such cases there will only be a small extra cost for computerising the additional data. However, in other cases the cost of adding a new question and computerising the additional data depends on the complexity of the question. New questions may need to be extensively research tested in the field which will lead to much greater costs.

Tax Credit Office: Correspondence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Tax Credit Office will respond to the letters of 26 March and 28 June 2007 from the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire to the Director. [156820]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC have written to the hon. Member on 12 October and very much regret the delay in doing so.

Welfare Tax Credits: Armed Forces

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many members of the armed services are in receipt of tax credits. [157443]

Jane Kennedy: Information on the number of tax credit claimants broken down by occupation is not available.

Welfare Tax Credits: Foreigners

Andrew Selous: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many children of foreign nationals who are living outside the UK are in receipt of tax credits; and how many received tax credits in each of the last five years, broken down by country; [157541]

(2) how many children of foreign nationals who are living outside the UK are in receipt of child benefit; and how many were in each of the last five years, broken down by country. [157542]

Jane Kennedy: This information is not available. For child benefit, the information could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Welfare Tax Credits: Northern Ireland

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases in Northern Ireland are affected by administrative error in HM Revenue and Customs' Tax Credit Office; and if he will make a statement. [156846]

Jane Kennedy: Following my written ministerial statement of 25 July 07, on tax credits administration, HMRC will be reviewing approximately 8,400 awards for claimants in Northern Ireland.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many awards of tax credits were adjusted in-year due to excess payments in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06 and (d) 2006-07; whether excess payments are included in the annual supplement on payments figures; what the average value was of the excess payment; what the total amount recovered in-year was; and how many and what proportion of these cases were disputed. [155939]

Jane Kennedy: The aggregate value of overpayments, the number and the distribution of overpaid awards are published annually in 'Supplement on Payments' publications. Figures for 2003-04 to 2005-06, which can be used for calculating the average value of an overpayment in each year, are published on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Information on the level of overpaid tax credit awards in 2006-07 will not be available until May 2008.

For information on the number of overpaid awards that have been disputed I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 415-16W, and on 7 February 2007, Official Report, columns 1036-37W.

Information relating to the recovery of overpayments of 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 awards is contained in section 2, table 4, of the Comptroller and Auditor Generals Standard Report in the HM Revenue and Customs 2006-07 accounts, which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/hmrc-accounts2007.htm

Information on recovery of overpaid tax credits in 2006-07 will be published in the HM Revenue and Customs 2007-08 accounts, which is due to be released in the summer of 2008.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Young people: Unemployment

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of (a) 16, (b) 17, (c) 18, (d) 16 to 18 and (e) 19 to 24 year olds of each social class were not in education, employment or training in each (i) local education authority area, (ii) region, (iii) borough and (iv) parliamentary constituency in each of the last five years. [155624]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The Department's estimates of the number and proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) cannot be disaggregated by region or local authority level. However, we can give an indication of the number and proportion of 16, 17 and 18-year-olds NEET in 2005 and 2006 at local authority level using data provided by Connexions services, and this is in the tables attached. Information cannot be broken down by parliamentary constituency, nor is it available at local authority level before 2005. Equivalent information is not collected for 19 to 24-year-olds.

Data provided by Connexions services are used to monitor NEET in each local authority area. However, it should be noted that figures are calculated on a different basis from that used in the Department's estimates, and therefore do not give the same totals.

The Youth Cohort Study can provide an estimate the proportion of young people who are NEET according to their parents' occupation. The following table shows the findings of the 2005 survey of 17-year-olds, and relates to young people in England and Wales:

Parental occupation	Percentage of 17-year-olds NEET
Higher professional	3
Lower professional	5
Intermediate	7
Lower supervisory	9
Routine	12
Other/unclassified	14
Overall	8

PRIME MINISTER

10 Downing Street: Official Hospitality

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) which (a) hon. Members, (b) former hon. Members and (c) Peers who are not members of the Labour Party he has invited to Downing Street since becoming Prime Minister; [157813]

(2) if he will publish a list of all those he has invited to Downing Street since becoming Prime Minister. [157814]

The Prime Minister: Information on official and charity receptions held at Downing street will be published in the usual way following the end of the financial year.

Departments: Manpower

Chris Grayling: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many full-time members of staff are employed in Number 10 Downing Street; [152246]

(2) how many people are employed in the Prime Minister's Policy Unit; [152247]

(3) how many people are employed in the Prime Minister's Strategic Communications Office; [152248]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how many press officers are employed by his Office. [153164]

The Prime Minister: The total number of staff on the No. 10 payroll as at 1 April 2007 is set out in the following table:

	1 April 2007
Prime Minister's Office	215
No10 Policy Unit	9
No10 Strategic Communications Unit	6
No 10 Press Officers	[1]6

Figures for 2007-08 will be published after the end of the financial year.

General Election: Costs

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Prime Minister what contingency preparations were made by No. 10 Downing Street for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157054]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 11 October 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office today.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Prime Minister what factors he took into account in deciding when to inform the Secretary of State for Defence of his decision to announce troop withdrawal from Iraq. [157215]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Prime Minister when he expects to reply to the letter of 2 August 2007, on fighting poverty, from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire. [157433]

The Prime Minister: My Office replied to the hon. Member on 8 August.

Tony Blair

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister on what date he last met Tony Blair. [157791]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

ChangeUp Hubs of Expertise

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the legal status is of the ChangeUp Hubs of Expertise and of any intellectual property or other assets associated with the hubs; [156943]

(2) for what reasons the decision was taken to abolish the ChangeUp Hubs of Expertise; and what input the Office of the Third Sector had in the decision. [156941]

Phil Hope: Six partnerships of national voluntary organisations make up the ChangeUp hubs of expertise. The hubs are partnerships of organisations rather than organisations constituted in their own right, and as such do not have a legal status.

Each of the six hubs has an accountable body that receives and administers funds on the hubs behalf. All of the hubs have protocols setting out governance, legal and financial arrangements between the accountable body and their partnership organisations.

As grant recipients the accountable bodies for the hubs have agreed to terms and conditions for their grant(s) which are governed by English law and the jurisdictions of English courts and include specific conditions relating to intellectual property rights and assets.

Shortly after being set up Capacitybuilders' Board committed itself to a programme of change in the future delivery of national support services (hubs). The board decided to undertake the review following stakeholder feedback on hub performance. The review addressed what local, sub-regional and regional third sector organisations need from a national set of services and what is the best way of delivering on these needs.

Following consultation with the sector Capacitybuilders board have agreed that Capacitybuilders will directly commission the national support programme and identified a range of priority themes.

Capacitybuilders have been established at arms length from the Government, and as such the decision regarding the future delivery of national support services is a decision for Capacitybuilders board. However, the Office of the third sector's interest is in ensuring that the appropriate mechanisms are in place to deliver the ChangeUP 2014 vision, and that capacity building of the third sector is handled in an effective manner.

Civil Service Appeal Board

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many cases were taken to the Civil Service Appeal Board in 2006; and how many of those related to (a) dismissals and (b) other disciplinary matters. [158229]

Gillian Merron: The remit of the board does not extend to appeals in relation to disciplinary matters which fall short of dismissal.

Statistics on the number of appeals heard in each of the last 10 years can be found in Appendix 3 of each of the board's annual reports. Copies can be found on the board's website at www.civilserviceappealboard.gov.uk.

Civil Service Commission

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the declared individual political affiliations are of the Civil Service Commissioners. [156719]

Gillian Merron: The Civil Service Commissioners are an independent body. They undertake their role in accordance with their Code of Practice, which includes provisions for handling conflicts of interest. The Code of Practice can be accessed via the Commissioner's website at www.civilservicecommissioners.gov.uk Copies are also available in the Libraries of the House.

Civil Service: Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will amend the Directory of Civil Service Guidance to reflect the new Civil Service code in respect of the requirements of the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998. [158232]

Gillian Merron: We are in the process of updating the Directory of Civil Service Guidance. The new version will reflect the provisions in the new Civil Service Code.

Departments: Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to improve his Department's arrangements on whistleblowing; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the current policy. [158230]

Edward Miliband: We are reviewing our Whistleblowing policy and will look to adopt good practice from other Departments. Once the policy has been reviewed we will place a copy in the Library.

Departments: Official Hospitality

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many receptions have been held by the Cabinet Office since January 2007; on what dates they were held and at which venues; what the purpose was of each; who (a) hosted and (b) paid for each; what the estimated attendance was of each; and what each cost his Office. [157767]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 2W.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155884]

Gillian Merron: The only Cabinet Office campaign currently planned for 2007-08 is to encourage more and better quality nominations of 'local heroes' for official honours. The choice of media for this campaign has not yet been finalised.

My Department has not yet agreed budgets for any communication activity in 2008-09.

General Elections: Costs

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what contingency preparations his Office made for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157055]

Edward Miliband [holding answer 11 October 2007]: The guidance covering the conduct of official business during a general election was last issued in May 2005. This guidance, and other relevant procedures and processes, are kept under constant review by the Cabinet Office and other relevant departments so that they are ready to be put in place when a general election is called.

Leader of the Opposition: Civil Servants

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what Civil Service support is available to the Leader of the Opposition. [157804]

Gillian Merron: The Directory of Civil Service Guidance sets out the circumstances in which there may be contacts between senior civil servants and members of the Opposition parties. Copies of the Directory are available in the Libraries of the House.

Non-Profit Making Associations

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what budget has been allocated to the commissioning of social enterprise think pieces as announced by the Office of the Third Sector on 8 February. [155626]

Phil Hope: The budget allocated for think pieces in 2007-08 is £50,000.

More information is available at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector/social_enterprise_research/think_pieces.asp

Olympic Games: Greater London

Janet Anderson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether the Red Arrows will be appearing at the 2012 London Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [158443]

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what plans there are to include the Red Arrows in the opening or closing ceremonies of the 2012 Olympics. [158444]

Tessa Jowell: Newspaper claims that the Government have banned or advised against the Red Arrows' involvement in the Opening Ceremony or any other celebrations associated with the 2012 games are completely untrue and unfounded.

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for deciding what to include in the Opening Ceremony and other celebrations. No decisions have yet been taken about the content. The Red Arrows have already played a memorable role in the celebrations, when they flew over Trafalgar Square to mark London winning the games.

Voluntary Work

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what definition his Department uses of a volunteering opportunity for the purposes of its policy to promote volunteering. [156940]

Phil Hope: For the purposes of volunteering policies the Cabinet Office defines volunteering and volunteering opportunities as any non-compulsory activity which involves spending time, unpaid, doing something which is of benefit to others (excluding relatives), society or the environment.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Archaeology

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) adults and (b) children came to events organised with the Portable Antiquities Scheme as part of National Archaeology Week 2007; and if he will make a statement. [156938]

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) adults and (b) children came to events organised with the portable antiquities scheme as part of National Archaeology Week 2007; and if he will make a statement. [157361]

Margaret Hodge: Of the people who attended events organised by the Portable Antiquities Scheme as part of National Archaeology Week 2007, (a) 4,193 were adults; and (b) 3,040 were children. This highlights the excellent work the PAS does in educating people about archaeology.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many finds were (a) identified and (b) recorded by the portable antiquities scheme as part of National Archaeology Week 2007; and if he will make a statement. [157067]

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many finds were (a) identified and (b) recorded by the portable antiquities scheme as part of National Archaeology Week 2007; and if he will make a statement. [157367]

Margaret Hodge: During National Archaeology Week 2007, the portable antiquities scheme (a) identified 2,331 finds; and (b) recorded 659 finds. This highlights the excellent role the scheme is playing in helping us learn more about our past.

Broadcasting Programmes: Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his assessment is of the contribution of public service children's television programmes to children's development of knowledge and understanding of themselves and their environment; and if he will make a statement on future investment in UK commissioning and production of such programmes. [158433]

James Purnell: UK originated children's television programming is a much valued and important part of the UK's broadcasting environment.

The Government recognise that there are challenges to the ability of commercial public service broadcasters to sustain this type of programming. Ofcom issued a discussion paper on 3 October and the responses received will inform Phase 1 of their Public Service Broadcasting Review, which will be published in spring 2008, and the Government's consideration of the future funding of public service provision.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the 2008 Concessionary Fare National Scheme on tourism in the UK. [156021]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS has made no assessment of the impact of the national bus concessions scheme on tourism.

Casinos

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the written statement of 16 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1-3WS, on casinos, what progress has been made with the review of the introduction of small, large and regional casinos. [157972]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The work that the Secretary of State announced in his written statement of 16 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1-3WS, is now well under way, and the intention is to make a further announcement later this year.

Casinos: Milton Keynes

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether a process is available for Milton Keynes to open a casino; and if he will make a statement. [157311]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Milton Keynes is one of the local authorities earmarked by the Government for one of the eight large casino licences permitted by the Gambling Act 2005, following the recommendation of the independent Casino Advisory Panel.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced in a written statement on 16 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1-3WS, that he had written to the local authorities, including Milton Keynes, to put forward for the new casinos, to ask them to confirm whether they still wish to license a new casino.

A further announcement will be made once Ministers have had the opportunity to consider the responses of the local authorities.

Creative Partnerships: Finance

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what changes to the funding of creative partnerships will occur as a result of the Comprehensive Spending Review. [157612]

James Purnell: Although the Department's overall CSR settlement was announced on 9 October we are still finalising detailed allocations to NDPBs and programmes such as Creative Partnerships.

I therefore regret that I am not yet in a position to go into detail about either the programmes' future shape or funding.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156620]

Margaret Hodge: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issue accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department for Culture, Media and Sport has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

Historic Royal Palaces

2006-07

Big Lottery Fund
Horserace Betting Levy Board
Olympic Delivery Authority
Olympic Lottery Distributor
Olympic Legacy Trust
The Regional Cultural Consortiums
Royal Household

For S4C the Accounts Direction has not changed but a Memorandum of Understanding including the existing accounts direction was issued in May 2007.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156621]

Margaret Hodge: Details of the public bodies for which DCMS was responsible in the financial year 2005-06 can be found in the Cabinet Office publication Public Bodies 2006, copies of which are in the Library and also available online at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/agencies/publications/pdf/public-bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf

For the financial year 2006-07 the details can be found in the DCMS publication DCMS Public Bodies Directory 2007, copies of this publication are also available from the Library and online at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/NR/rdonlyres/4BEE00DC-62FF-4F5C-8012-E3B82B915112/0/DCMSPublicBodiesDirectory20072.pdf

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155883]

Margaret Hodge: The Department's projected spending on advertising and promotional campaigns for 2007-08 and 2008-09 with the areas specified is zero.

Digital Broadcasting: Celtic Languages

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to ensure spectrum allocation for (a) Gaelic and (b) Welsh language service on digital terrestrial television after the digital switchover. [156859]

James Purnell: The BBC announced earlier this year its intention to launch a Gaelic language channel—the Gaelic Digital Service (GDS)—on digital terrestrial television in Scotland, to be run as a partnership between BBC Scotland and Seirbheis nam Meadhanan Gaidhlig (Gaelic Media Service). A public value test into this proposed service is currently ongoing.

A Welsh language service—S4C—is already provided on digital terrestrial television in Wales, and multiplex capacity will be available for S4C to continue to provide that service.

At present, therefore, it is intended that both Gaelic and Welsh language services will be provided on digital terrestrial television after digital switchover.

Horse Racing: Drugs

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the World Anti-Doping Agency's (WADA) decision to revoke the accreditation of the Horseracing Forensic Laboratory in Newmarket as a WADA-accredited laboratory; and what assessment he has made of and the implications of this decision for drug-testing in the UK. [158207]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In light of discussions with UK Sport, the UK's National Anti-Doping Organisation, the Horseracing Forensic Laboratory (HFL) had its World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) accreditation revoked in September.

The development of UK Sport's intelligence-based testing programme, the aim of which is to use intelligence to target drug tests more effectively, means that UK Sport is unlikely to significantly increase the number of tests it conducts year on year. As a result, UK Sport could not guarantee the number of tests HFL required to make its accreditation status financially viable.

Kings College, the remaining WADA accredited laboratory in the UK, will undertake analysis of all UK Sport's anti-doping programme tests.

UK Sport advises that this is an approach endorsed by WADA, and will have no adverse implications for drug-testing in the UK.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to reply to the letter of 16 August (departmental reference 76546) from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire. [157429]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A reply to this letter was sent on 8 October 2007.

Museums and Galleries: Finance

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was awarded to national museums and galleries in each year since 1995-96 in constant 2007-08 prices. [156708]

Margaret Hodge: Grant in aid for the 14 national museums since 1995-96 in constant 2007-08 prices is set out in the following table.

	Grant in Aid (£ million)
1995-96	285.66
1996-97	269.90
1997-98	254.03
1998-99	245.53
1999-2000	259.17
2000-01	263.88
2001-02	276.24
2002-03	293.20
2003-04	297.07
2004-05	292.67
2005-06	299.07
2006-07	313.65
2007-08	323.55

National Film Theatre

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 30 July 2007, Official Report, column 1594W, on the National Film Theatre, if he will make a statement about future plans for the library of the British Film Institute. [156246]

Margaret Hodge: The British Film Institute (BFI) is in advanced discussions with the Higher Education sector to achieve a long term strategic partnership that would provide much needed new investment and improved access to the BFI's world leading collections, including the Library, as a significant research resource.

Such a partnership would also enable the BFI to develop international scholarship, training and teaching programmes which fully utilise the Nation's film and TV collections.

In the longer term, it is intended that the partnership would continue by establishing a centre of research excellence within a National Film Centre being proposed by the BFI for 2012-13.

Sports: Safeguarding of Vulnerable People Act 2006

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make a statement on the effect of the Safeguarding of Vulnerable People Act 2006 on sport. [158226]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Safeguarding of Vulnerable Groups (SVG) Act 2006 will help safeguard children and vulnerable adults participating in sport by introducing a strengthened vetting regime for those working in this area, and barring those who are unsuitable.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families, Department of Health and the Home Office have been working with a wide range of stakeholders including sports bodies and organisations and will continue working with the Department for Culture Media and Sport and sports bodies to help inform Regulations and prepare for implementation of the SVG Act. The Government are planning to consult later in the year on a number of detailed elements of the scheme.

Sports: Schools

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if his Department will revise the Child Protection in Sport guidance to ensure more structured risk in school sport. [157985]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The NSPCC's Child Protection in Sport Unit and Sport England have developed Standards for Safeguarding and Protecting Children with the National Governing Bodies. These standards positively promote the adoption of safe practice that minimises the risk to young people participating in sport including school sport.

Stonehenge

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to improve tourism, parking and traffic facilities at Stonehenge. [155776]

Margaret Hodge: A new Stonehenge Visitor Centre, allowing for improved tourist facilities, was granted planning consent on 29 March 2007, subject to conditions, one of which is that improvements to the A303 proceed, as set out in the published Stonehenge Improvement Order 2000.

The Government are currently considering the findings of the inter-Departmental Review of Options for the A303 Stonehenge Improvement and will make an announcement shortly on the way forward.

Television: Scots Gaelic Language

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on which (a) channels and (b) broadcasting platforms the Gaelic language television channel will be available; and if he will make a statement. [150315]

James Purnell [holding answer 18 July 2007]: The Gaelic Media Service is working with the BBC with the aim of establishing a high-quality Gaelic Digital Service which is capable of meeting the needs and expectations of the Gaelic audience in the most cost-effective way possible.

The expectation is that the GDS would be launched on satellite and digital cable. The aim would be to make it available on digital terrestrial after the completion of digital switchover. Prior to digital switchover the new service would be showcased in the limited slot available for TeleG.

Tourism: Finance

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funds have been allocated by HM Treasury to his Department to promote British tourism; and how these funds have been affected by the pre-Budget report. [157970]

James Purnell: My right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced the overall DCMS settlement on 9 October. The funding allocation for tourism will be announced shortly, following discussion with VisitBritain.

Tourism: Manpower

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many economists in his Department work specifically on tourism. [155611]

Margaret Hodge: We have a small central team of four economists who provide support for the department as a whole including tourism policy. It is difficult to estimate precisely how much time is spent specifically on tourism policy but officials estimate that it is less than one full time member of staff.

VisitBritain: Offices

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will list the locations of overseas offices of Visit Britain. [155650]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain currently operates 19 offices in the following countries: Brazil—Sao Paulo, Canada—Toronto, US—New York and Los Angeles, Australia—Sydney, Hong Kong, India—Delhi, Japan—Tokyo, Singapore, UAE—Dubai, Belgium—Brussels, Denmark—Copenhagen, France—Paris, Germany—Berlin, Hungary—Budapest, Italy—Milan, Netherlands—Amsterdam, Spain—Madrid and Sweden.

VisitBritain have representatives in the following countries: China—Beijing and Shanghai, India—Mumbai and Bangalore, Malaysia—Kuala Lumpur, South Korea—Seoul, Thailand—Bangkok, South Africa—Johannesburg, Greece—Athens, Norway—Oslo, Portugal—Lisbon and Russia—Moscow.

They have a virtual presence in the following countries where there is a localised website and they undertake activities and campaigns which are managed from/by the countries listed in brackets: Argentina and Mexico (managed from Brazil); New Zealand (managed from Australia); Austria (managed from Germany); Czech Republic (managed from Hungary); Finland (managed from Sweden); Poland (managed from Hungary); Switzerland (managed from Germany).

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will take steps to persuade the United States of America to reverse its policy of spraying the poppy crop in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [157427]

Dr. Howells: Counter narcotics policy and implementation, including opium poppy elimination, is the responsibility of the Government of Afghanistan. We work very closely with the US to support the Afghan government on implementing their National Drug Control Strategy. The Government of Afghanistan opposes the use of aerial and ground based spraying to eradicate opium poppy.

The US government advocate spraying as one method of implementing non-negotiated forced eradication. But in their counter narcotics strategy for Afghanistan, published in August, they recognise that

"no herbicidal spray program would be implemented without the consent of the Government of Afghanistan".

The UK continues to support the piloting of ground-based spraying, subject to the agreement of the Afghan government, to test its efficacy and impact. It should be well explained to local populations and targeted in areas of Afghanistan where the security situation permits and there is good access to legal livelihoods for farmers. At present, we judge that the disadvantages of aerial spraying outweigh the benefits. We have made our position clear to both the Afghan government and the US.

Afghanistan: Resettlement

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-8WS, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff, whether he has considered extending the scheme to Afghanistan. [157539]

Dr. Howells: Locally engaged Afghan staff working for our armed forces and civilian missions in Afghanistan have made an invaluable contribution to the UK's efforts to help support the spread of security, stability and development in their country. I acknowledge their contribution with gratitude. But given the difference in circumstances between them and their colleagues in Iraq, there are no plans for a similar scheme of assistance.

Bolivia: Official Visits

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what role his Department played in the visit to the UK of Bolivian opposition Senator Oscar Oritz Anselo; which elements of Mr. Anselo's programme have been organised by his Department; what future meetings are planned between his Department and Bolivian opposition leaders; what steps he is taking to develop relations with the democratically-elected President and government of Bolivia; and how many visits his Department has facilitated to the UK on the part of Bolivian government representatives since May 2006. [157947]

Dr. Howells: Through our Embassy in La Paz, Senator Oscar Ortiz asked the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) to make parliamentarians, and others with an interest in Bolivia, aware of his visit to the UK. We responded to this request and also informed the Bolivian Embassy in London.

Since May 2006 the FCO has not facilitated any visits to the UK on behalf of the Bolivian government. However, Bolivian Foreign Minister David Choquehuanca made a private visit to the UK in June 2007. The FCO was informed of this visit shortly beforehand and responded to a request to arrange a call on my right hon. Friend the then Minister for Sport (Mr. Richard Caborn).

Our relationship with Bolivia continues to develop. We maintain a dialogue with the Bolivian Government and also welcome engagement with all political parties in Bolivia. The UK works with the Bolivian government, both bilaterally and through the EU, on a range of issues, including counter-narcotics, climate change, security sector reform and energy. The UK also supports projects in these and other areas in Bolivia, at national and local government level.

British Overseas Territories

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what oversight his Department has of the granting of belongers status, or other comparable status, by overseas territory governments to people from outside the territories; and if he will make a statement. [157206]

Meg Munn: Responsibility for immigration, including the granting of Belonger, or equivalent, status, has been devolved to overseas territories governments. The Government would not seek to intervene in the immigration policy of a territory unless it breached constitutional or other legal provisions or international obligations such as those in the European Convention on Human Rights, or it was leading to serious concerns about the good governance of the territory.

British Overseas Territories: Internet

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons for variations in the web content of the websites of overseas territories on (a) the list of Human Rights Conventions with which they are expected to comply and (b) details of the gross domestic product per head of population. [156912]

Meg Munn: The Overseas Territories Governments are responsible for the material on their websites and for keeping it up to date. This includes the provision of information on human rights conventions and of data such as gross domestic product per capita.

Chechnya: Politics and Government

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the security situation in Chechnya. [157570]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The North Caucasus, particularly Chechnya, remains fragile and vulnerable to human rights abuses.

Although some reconstruction work is now being undertaken, much of the Chechen Republic's urban and rural infrastructure was destroyed in fighting between separatist rebels and federal troops allied with local forces loyal to Moscow. While large-scale military action by federal troops has now ceased, low intensity fighting involving local Chechen forces continues. There are frequent reports of explosions and shootings in the republic and elsewhere in Southern Russia carried out by rebel groups.

Russian forces claim to have eliminated many rebel groups and fighters, including the death of Shamil Basayev in 2006. But long-term security in the region is undermined by poor social and economic conditions as well as credible reports of widespread human rights violations by all sides.

Instability within Chechnya has affected neighbouring republics, particularly Ingushetia and Dagestan, where the frequency of violent incidents has increased in recent years. The situation in Chechnya and the wider North Caucasus remains an issue of importance in our on-going bilateral and EU discussions with Russia. With EU partners, we raised the latest developments in Chechnya with the Russian Government at the EU-Russia Human Rights Consultations on 3 October 2007.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from Russia on co-operation with United Kingdom authorities to address the conflict in Chechnya; and if he will make a statement. [157571]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government, with EU partners, regularly discusses the situation in Chechnya with the Russian authorities, including in the context of both UK-Russia and EU-Russia Human Rights Consultations. I welcome the recent commencement of the €20 million technical assistance to the Commonwealth of Independent States Programme, agreed under the UK's EU presidency in 2005, which demonstrates that Russia and the international community are willing to work together to address the root causes of instability which drive conflict in the region. Through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool, we are working with local partners in the region, among other things, to build capacity and conflict awareness among local officials, police and other law enforcement bodies, as well as to help train Russian prison officers.

David Manning: Gifts

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list all gifts made by former UK Ambassador to the United States Sir David Manning to members of the US Administration which were financed by the UK Exchequer; what the cost was of each gift; and if he will make a statement. [157824]

Dr. Howells: The information requested by my hon. Friend is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156734]

Mr. Jim Murphy: This information is not held centrally, as Foreign and Commonwealth Office departments are responsible for their own budgets. To collate the information requested by the hon. Member would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Legalisation Office

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of retaining a Legalisation Office of his Department in central London and opening a second Legalisation Office outside London to deal with postal and DX applications for legalisation. [155922]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) Legalisation Office needs to move from its current premises in the Old Admiralty Building because of security concerns, lack of space as the business expands, and the FCO's commitment to move positions out of London under the Lyons relocation programme. The additional space for an expanded operation will allow us to improve significantly the current levels of service.

We explored options outside central London, notably Birmingham, Milton Keynes and Bristol, to allow for the much needed expansion of the office, an improved office environment and a readily available employment pool, while at the same time addressing security concerns and our Lyons relocation commitments.

Our initial assessment pointed to moving the entire operation outside London. FCO officials met with a group of representatives from a cross-section of the Legalisation Office's customers in the FCO on 3 July. Following this initial meeting and subsequent discussions with the Confederation of British Industry and our key stakeholders, we received strong representations for a continued presence in London.

We have now completed our consultation exercise and will be shortly announcing our decision on the future location of the Legalisation Office.

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library copies of (a) written guidance and instructions provided to officials in his Department who draft parliamentary answers and (b) the declaration required to be made by such officials on submitting drafts for ministerial approval; and if he will make a statement. [156849]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested by my hon. Friend will be placed in the Library of the House. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials are not required to sign a declaration on submitting draft answers for ministerial approval.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's (a) administrative expenditure, (b) other current expenditure, (c) grant expenditure, (d) operating appropriations in aid (A in A), (e) capital and (f) non-operating A in A outturn, broken down in (i) near cash and (ii) non-cash terms, was for financial years 2001-02 to 2006-07. [156000]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Part II: Subhead detail table in Main Estimates for each year provide outturn data for one prior year, but this is only broken down to net total resources for each section in the table.

There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of this data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which are in the Library of the House) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash Departmental Expenditure Limit split (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08). However, we have been able to provide a near-cash/non-cash split against administrative expenditure, other current expenditure, grant expenditure, operating appropriations in aid (A in A), capital and non-operating A in A outturn, broken down in near cash and non-cash terms, for financial years 2001-02 to 2006-07 by taking information from our 2006-07 Resource Accounts along with data that underlies our Departmental Report common core tables. This is set out as follows:

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07

[1] Data for 2001-02 to 2005-06 is taken from information underlying our Departmental Report common core tables and is on an internally consistent basis. Data for 2006-07 is taken from Resource Accounts. Resource Accounts and Parliamentary Supply Estimates do not completely reflect Treasury re-classifications to previous years. Detailed notes on re-classifications have been provided in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Annual Reports for the years in question.

[2] All non-cash for the above years has been counted as administrative expenditure.

Data taken from Supply Estimates or resource accounts is not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the Departmental Expenditure Limit budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury. The ability of Departments to provide such a split will depend partly on the extent of reconciliations between voted provision and budgetary limits.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155896]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is unable to provide the forecast expenditure details on advertising and promotional campaigns for the next two financial years, as the information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Temporary Accommodation

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 2004W, on departments: temporary accommodation, for how long the British Embassy Officer has been living in a tent in Juba, Sudan; and for what reason secure permanent accommodation has not been available for this officer hitherto. [156400]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The officer has been living in a tent on the secure compound of the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs in Juba since November 2005. Permanent accommodation that meets Government security requirements has not been available. Local infrastructure is poor due to the impact of the prolonged civil war there. Many other Juba-based international staff are similarly accommodated. As the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Heeley (Meg Munn), noted in her answers to the hon. Member on 10 September 2007, Official Report, columns 2004-05W, and Official Report, column 2008W, our Embassy in Khartoum is pursuing options to upgrade the officer's accommodation and aims to have a solution in place by early 2008.

Egypt: Religious Freedom

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Egyptian Government in relation to the protection of Eman Muhammad el-Sayed. [157261]

Dr. Howells: Eman Muhammed el-Sayed is a 26-year-old Egyptian woman, who converted from Islam to Christianity. We understand that she was arrested by the Egyptian police in July 2007 but released shortly afterwards.

We are aware of the case, but have seen nothing to suggest that Eman is currently in danger and are therefore not planning any representations at this stage.

EU Countries: Overseas Workers

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the number of UK citizens working in each of the other EU countries. [153311]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not hold this information centrally. The hon. Member may wish to refer to "Brits Abroad", an independent report from the Institute for Public Policy Research, sponsored by the FCO, which considers the question of British emigration in the context of global migration trends. A copy of this report will be sent to the hon. Member and copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

EU Reform: Treaties

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what legal advice the Government has requested regarding the inter-governmental conference mandate. [154591]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government received legal advice on all aspects of the mandate for an EU Reform Treaty. As I made clear in my evidence session with the House of Lords Select Committee on 12 July, the Government do not disclose their legal advice, as has been the case with previous Governments for all previous inter-governmental conference processes.

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to what extent the Government's decision on whether a referendum should be held on the Constitutional Treaty, or whether that Treaty should be rejected, is dependent upon the Government's judgment that the Treaty incorporates the red lines requested by the Government. [158018]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The draft Treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe is now defunct. The Inter-Governmental Conference Mandate records the agreement of all 27 member states that "the constitutional concept, which consisted in repealing all existing Treaties and replacing them by a single text called 'Constitution', is abandoned".

The new Reform Treaty is significantly different to the old Constitution. And we have secured extra safeguards on each of the UK's red lines set out by the Government ahead of the June European Council.

Following my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's oral evidence session with the Foreign Affairs Committee on 10 October, he agreed to write to the Committee and place in the Library of the House a document setting out how the Government's red lines are reflected in the latest draft of the Reform Treaty.

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his response of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 151, on the Constitutional Treaty, to the Supplementary Question from my hon. Friend the Member for Kettering (Mr. Hollobone) if he will clarify which legal draft he referred to; what the status is of the Opinion of the European Commission (COM(207) 412 final) in that regard; which parts of the draft to which he referred differ from the draft document on which the European Scrutiny Committee has already reported; what the evidential basis is for his statement that the new draft makes clear the direction in which Europe is moving and respects the red lines which the Government has requested; and to what extent that evidential basis is derived from the changes incorporated into the new document. [158022]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The legal draft that my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary referred to on 9 October during Foreign and Commonwealth Office oral questions was the draft Reform Treaty in English, including Protocols, Declarations and Preamble (references CIG 1/1/07 REV, 1 CIG 2/1/07 REV 1, CIG 3/1/07 REV 1, CIG 4/1/07 REV 1). These were sent to the Clerks of the Foreign Affairs Committee, European Scrutiny Committee, Lords EU Select Committee and placed in the Libraries of both Houses on Friday 5 October.

The European Scrutiny Committee has reported on the Inter-Governmental Conference. The Government will provide a full response to all points raised in the Committee's report.

Following my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's oral evidence session with the Foreign Affairs Committee on 10 October, he agreed to write to the Committee and place in the Library of the House a document setting out how the Government's red lines are reflected in the latest draft of the Reform Treaty.

Iraq: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the number of Turkish troops deployed on the border with Iraq. [149627]

David Miliband: We have no confirmed reports of the exact number of Turkish troops deployed along the Turkish border with northern Iraq. We are aware of counter-terrorist operations by the Turkish security forces close to Turkey's border with northern Iraq. A series of Kurdistan Workers Party (PKK) attacks have targeted military and civilian targets in Turkey recently, causing a significant number of fatalities. We utterly condemn the attacks carried out by the PKK, as we do all acts of terrorism. The PKK, its aliases and its subgroups have been proscribed in the UK and listed as terrorist organisations in the EU.

Iraq: Resettlement

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28W, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff, whether the scheme will apply to (a) non-Iraqi nationals who work, or have worked, for UK armed forces and civilian missions in Iraq since 2003 and (b) staff who work, or have worked, for UK armed forces and civilian missions in Iraq who have been injured as a result of, or in the course of their service regardless of whether they meet the other criteria. [157540]

Dr. Howells: I respect and value the brave and selfless service of all our staff, including those from third countries. But their circumstances are qualitatively different from those of our Iraqi local staff. We have no plans to extend the assistance scheme to those not covered by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement on 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28WS.

Official Hospitality: Lancaster House

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total cost of (a) hospitality and (b) entertainment at Lancaster House was in each of the last 10 years. [156613]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Government Hospitality (GH), part of Protocol Directorate in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, manages all official hospitality or entertainment offered by Government Ministers at Lancaster House. GH has a remit to work for all Government Departments, and organises events in government houses, official residences and outside venues. GH organises on average 60-65 per cent. of its events each year at Lancaster House. GH does not maintain separate records of expenditure per venue. In each of the last 10 years GH's overall expenditure has been as follows:

	Amount (£)
1997-98	342,131
1998-99	407,399
1999-2000	406,486
2000-01	489,994
2001-02	552,924
2002-03	623,892
2003-04	705,384
2004-05	869,418
2005-06	809,529
2006-07	592,592

Palestinians: Politics and Government

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek assurances from the Hamas leadership in Gaza that there will be no restrictions on the activity of Christian groups. [156804]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned about the safety of Gaza's Christian community. We call upon Hamas to uphold their commitment to preserve the status of that community. But we have no contact with Hamas at present, due to their failure to respect the Quartet's three principles: non-violence, recognition of Israel and acceptance of previous agreements and obligations, including the Roadmap.

We condemn the recent killing of Rami Ayyad, the manager of a Christian bookshop in Gaza. Our thoughts are with Mr Ayyad's family.

Poland: Homosexuality

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the Polish government's stance towards homosexuality, with particular reference to the status of gay teachers and professors in the Polish education system and the proposed education bill; what representations he has made to his Polish counterparts on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [154183]

David Miliband: The Polish Education Ministry's proposed plans to introduce a law banning the promotion of homosexuality in schools were never put to the Polish parliament. The proposal was heavily criticised in the liberal media and by gay rights groups in Poland.

Quebec: Anniversaries

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans for the UK (a) to take part in and (b) be represented at next year's 400 year celebrations in Quebec; and if he will make a statement. [157436]

Dr. Howells: Officials are in contact with the Governments of Canada and Quebec about the 400th anniversary celebrations. UK participation/involvement is under discussion.

Uganda: Politics and Government

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports that Ugandan Government ministers and members of parliament recently (a) wore military uniforms and (b) carried out military drills during their annual retreat at the Kyankwanzi ideological training school; and if he will make a statement. [153787]

David Miliband: We are aware of the above mentioned reports but cannot confirm their accuracy. We know that the Kyankwanzi National Leadership Institute remains in use and is responsible for preparing senior government officials.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the Ugandan government's treatment of opposition leader Dr. Kizza Besigye and the extent of its surveillance of Dr. Besigye; and if he will make a statement; [153788]

(2) what representations he has made to the Ugandan authorities on the trial for treason of the opposition leader Dr. Kizza Besigye; what his policy is on whether this trial will affect relations with the Ugandan government at the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting in November; and if he will make a statement. [153789]

David Miliband: We continue to monitor closely the People's Redemption Army trial, in which Dr. Besigye is a defendant, and are pushing for a swift and fair conclusion of the legal process. We regularly raise this issue with senior members of the Ugandan government, through the local Heads of Mission Partners for Democracy and Good Governance Group in Kampala. In the course of our regular dialogue with the government of Uganda, we continue to press them, including at senior political level, on the need to engage with the opposition and develop further multi-party democracy.

The Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting in November will be a chance for the Ugandan government to demonstrate the progress they are making on good governance to a watching world. We continue to urge the Ugandan government to make the best use of this opportunity.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Alarm Notification Orders

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have instituted alarm notification orders. [158017]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA does not keep records of which local authorities (LAs) have instituted alarm notification areas. It is up to the LA to decide if it will designate an area as an alarm notification order. It is not compulsory to inform DEFRA.

Council Housing: Home Information Packs

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will require all social housing to have energy performance certificates; and if she will make a statement. [157438]

Yvette Cooper: The Energy Performance of Buildings Directive requires member states to introduce Energy Performance Certificates on construction, sale or rent of all buildings, including social housing by January 2009. The Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations 2007 (SI 991) implement these requirements in England and Wales.

Council Tax

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average (a) Band D council tax bill and (b) overall council tax bill was in (i) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall, (ii) the South West and (iii) England in each year since 1979. [156663]

John Healey: Details of the average area band D council tax bill and the council tax requirement in each billing authority area in Cornwall, the South West and England in each year since 1993-94, when council tax was introduced, are shown in the following tables. It is not possible to show the data by parliamentary constituency.

Council Tax Benefits

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to respond to the recommendations in the Communities and Local Government Committee Report on council tax benefits (HC 718); and if she will make a statement. [156695]

John Healey: The Government's formal response to the Select Committee's report on council tax benefit will be published shortly.

Council Tax Benefits: Armed Forces

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will amend the regulations on mandatory council tax discounts to give the spouses or partners of members of the armed forces a single person discount while their partner is away on active service overseas. [155704]

John Healey: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced on 25 September 2007 that armed forces personnel deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan who pay council tax, will receive a flat-rate, tax free payment of £140 for a six month tour of duty. The payment is worth around 25 per cent. of the average council tax bill for six months.

The Ministry of Defence intends to widen the scheme to all those deployed on operations and we will continue to liaise with the Ministry of Defence on the feasibility, in the longer term, of a statutory discount scheme.

Departments: Visits Abroad

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the foreign trips which (a) she and (b) each other Minister in her Department has undertaken at cost to the public purse since the creation of her Department; and what the (i) destination and (ii) purpose was of each visit. [155688]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government publish on an annual basis a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500, as well as the total cost of all ministerial travel overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Libraries of the House. Information for 2006-07 has been published and a nil return was entered for Communities and Local Government.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

First Time Buyers: West Midlands

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many first-time buyers there were in (a) the West Midlands, (b) Birmingham and (c) Birmingham, Northfield in the last year for which figures are available. [157713]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data on numbers of first time buyers (FTBs) using a mortgage is available from the regulated mortgage survey which is supplied to Communities and Local Government by the Council of Mortgage Lenders. However, as the survey is a sample, data on the number of FTBs is unavailable.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average price was for (a) a house and (b) a house bought by a first-time buyer in (i) the West Midlands, (ii) Birmingham and (iii) Birmingham, Northfield in the last year for which figures are available. [157714]

Mr. Iain Wright: The mean property price for a property and the mix-adjusted mean price for a property bought by a first-time buyer in the West Midlands and Birmingham are as follows.

Mean property price 2006

	All buyers	First time buyers
West Midlands Region	168,854	128,832

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (PQ 157713).

Home Information Packs

Mr. Syms: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on the marketing and advertising campaign to promote home information packs and energy performance certificates in the South West Government Office Region; and if she will make a statement. [151588]

Yvette Cooper: By the end of September 2007 the Department will have spent in the order of £169,800 on the publicity and advertising campaign promoting home information packs and energy performance certificates in the south west of England.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home condition reports have been uploaded to the home condition report database. [152543]

Yvette Cooper: Between 6 November 2006 and 16 September 2007, 1,574 home condition reports have been lodged in the home condition report register.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government why energy performance certificates will be valid for 10 years for properties for rent but not for properties for sale. [155684]

Yvette Cooper: We will shortly consult on the appropriate age for an energy performance certificate (EPC).

Homeowners want up-to-date information on what is likely to be one of the most important purchases of their lives. Once they move in they are more likely than tenants to invest in the property especially in the first year after buying. So it is important that they have recent information at their disposal which is why we are proposing EPCs on properties for sale are no more than one year old.

For tenants the EPC plays a different role. Renters are less likely to invest in the property they live in. That is why the current proposal is for the maximum life of an EPC for rented properties to be 10 years.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she expects home information packs to cost more for (a) four bedroom homes and (b) three bedroom homes than the figures stated previously for an average pack. [155711]

Yvette Cooper: The price of a home information pack is be set by the market, not by Government. A number of home information pack providers are charging a standard rate for all properties regardless of size and location.

The only new cost to the home buying and selling process is the EPC which is providing valuable energy information for the first time and many local authorities have reduced their search charges.

Home Information Packs: Enforcement

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding has been provided under the new burden principle to local authority building control departments to enforce home information packs and energy performance certificates for new build properties. [156565]

Yvette Cooper: No funding is being provided under the new burden principle to local authority building control departments to enforce energy performance certificates for new build properties because the Building (Local Authority Charges) Regulations 1998 requires local authorities to set their own charging schemes to recover the cost of their prescribed building control functions. Home information packs are enforced by the local weights and measures authority and not by local authority building control: authorities have been given additional funding to do so.

Home Information Packs: South East Government Office

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of home condition reports commissioned to date in the south-east Government office region; and if she will make a statement. [154570]

Yvette Cooper: 1,562 home condition reports have been lodged in the HCR register to date. The Department does not hold details of the number of home condition reports by Government office region.

Housing: Consultation Papers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for the review of the regional spatial strategies before 2011, further to the publication of the Housing Green Paper; and whether this will be undertaken by the regional chambers. [153993]

Yvette Cooper: The eight RSSs which cover England are currently being reviewed and the indicative timetables are as follows.

The task of reviewing the RSSs is being undertaken by the Regional Assemblies and the Secretary of State in accordance with guidance in PPS11.

The Housing Green Paper stated that the revision of existing RSSs, will continue—with subsequent partial reviews if necessary.

Housing: Databases

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) home condition reports and (b) energy performance certificates have been logged on their respective online registers. [153794]

Yvette Cooper: 1,562 home condition reports have been lodged in the HCR Register to date and 37,879 energy performance certificates have been lodged in the CPC Register as of 5 September 2007.

Housing: Energy

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the likely annual number of energy performance certificates that will need to be commissioned for (a) Social Homebuy sale, (b) New Build Homebuy sales and (c) Open Market Homebuy sales. [156563]

Yvette Cooper: At present, energy performance certificates (EPCs) are only required for those properties which also require a home information pack (HIP).

Currently all three or more bedroom properties for sale on the open market, including those bought under open market homebuy, require the marketer of the property to provide a HIP. We will roll out to all properties having taken into account market operation and other factors ensuring a smooth implementation. As new build homebuy properties are also marketed, they will also require an EPC in line with the HIP duties.

Sales under the social homebuy scheme to sitting tenants are not subject to the HIP duties and do not currently require an EPC. As we are still rolling out HIPs, it is not yet possible to make an estimate of the number of homebuy properties that the HIP duties will apply to. HIPs will help first-time buyers who will receive the packs for free, giving them extra support as they try to get onto the housing ladder.

Housing: Grants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding was allocated to the Planning Delivery Grant programme in each year of its operation. [157475]

Mr. Iain Wright: The total funding for Planning Delivery Grant was £605 million which can be broken down to:

2003-04	50
2004-05	130
2005-06	170
2006-07	135
2007-08	120

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets local authorities will have to meet to receive housing and planning delivery grant. [157674]

Mr. Iain Wright: The mechanism for rewarding housing and planning delivery grant will be subject to a consultation exercise during the autumn.

Housing: Immigrants

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many A8 accession state nationals have (a) obtained a social housing tenancy from a local authority, (b) obtained a social housing tenancy from a registered social landlord and (c) have purchased social housing from either a local authority or a registered social landlord in each year since 2004; [155994]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2129W, on Housing: Low Incomes, if she will give a break down by region of the number of social lettings let to foreign nationals in 2005-06; [156010]

(3) what estimate she has made of the number of foreign nationals obtaining general needs lettings in 2005-06, broken down by nationality; and what recent estimate she has made of the total number of foreign nationals who are tenants of social housing. [156250]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the number of foreign national households allocated social housing is collected in the Continuous Recording of Lettings form (CORE). These data are collected on behalf of Communities and Local Government and the Housing Corporation by the Centre for Housing Research at the University of St. Andrews. These data provide information on the "flow" of new tenants entering social housing each year, as well as the movement of existing social housing tenants transferring from other social housing properties. A question on nationality was first introduced for the 2006-07 data collection period.

It is not possible to breakdown the estimate provided in the answer of 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2129W, on Housing: Low Incomes further. However, the final year data are scheduled to be published on the CORE website by St. Andrews university by mid November 2007. The link for the CORE website is:

http://www.core.uk

The number of households headed by an A8 accession state national that have obtained a social housing tenancy from a registered social landlord in 2006-07 is 1,268 (based on provisional data). This is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 606. The link for this table is:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/152609

Historically CORE has only collected information from registered social landlords but an increasing number of local authorities are now providing information as well. The number of households headed by an A8 accession state national that have obtained a social housing tenancy from local authorities completing CORE during the 2006-07 period, will be published on the CORE website by mid November 2007.

Currently, information on the number of A8 accession state nationals that have purchased a social housing property from either a local authority or a registered social landlord is unavailable. A question on nationality was only added to the Continuous Recording of Sales form for the 2007-08 collection period. These data will be available for the full year in the 2008 autumn period.

A breakdown of the number of social lettings allocated to households headed by foreign nationals by region and by nationality will be available when the full year data are published on the CORE website in November 2007.

Using the Survey of English Housing (SEH) data, the most recent estimate of the total number of foreign national headed households is 309,000, equivalent to about 8 per cent. of the total social housing stock. This survey information provides details on the "stock" of social housing, as opposed to the "flows" and "movement within" social housing recorded by CORE. The Survey of English Housing (SEH) introduced a question on nationality for the first time in 2005-06. This information is available on the Communities and Local Government website, in Housing in England 2005-06—Table 1.31. The link for this table is:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/pdf/HousingEngland0506

Housing: Inspections

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) home inspectors and (b) domestic energy inspectors will be issued with official identity cards. [154179]

Yvette Cooper: Each Certification and Accreditation Scheme will issue identification cards to its members to use when entering a domestic dwelling to carry out their duties. Householders will have been given the name of the HI/DEA when the appointment would have been made for the inspection.

Housing: Low Incomes

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the ability of key workers in London to buy property in London. [155609]

Yvette Cooper: We do not hold data on the ability of key workers to buy property in London. Any such assessment would be for key worker employers to carry out.

We are doing all we can to help people on modest incomes into housing. Since 2004 we have helped just over 16,000 key workers into a home through the key worker living programme.

Key worker living is one element of the Government's HomeBuy scheme which will expand the opportunity for home ownership to over a 120,000 households by 2010. We expect 30,000 of those helped through HomeBuy to be key workers.

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to introduce the Key Worker Living Programme (a) in Weston-Super-Mare and (b) elsewhere in the South West. [155915]

Yvette Cooper: The Key Worker Living programme is focused on helping key workers in London, the East and the South East of England regions as areas with the greatest recruitment and retention issues.

The Government provide each of the nine English regions with funding for affordable housing and asks the regional housing assemblies (previously the regional housing boards) to recommend how the money should be invested based on regional and local housing priorities. All the assemblies were asked whether they wished to recommend allocating a percentage of their resources to help key workers and only London, the East and South East have done so for the 2006-08 funding period. The South West regional housing board recommended that key public sector workers providing essential public services should be one of the priority groups for low cost home ownership assistance through the 2006-07 to 2007-08 National Affordable Housing Programme.

From April 2006, key workers have become eligible for all Government funded low cost home ownership schemes alongside social tenants, those on the housing register and priority first-time buyers recommended by regional housing boards around the country. In addition, 50 per cent. of homes provided through the First Time Buyers Initiative, being delivered by English Partnerships, which includes areas outside the South East are also available for key workers.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what further steps she plans to take to increase the supply of affordable shared equity and rented family homes in (a) Warrington and (b) other housing hot spots in the North West. [158419]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Green Paper recently announced a 50 per cent. increase in Government investment in affordable homes; at least £8 billion will be spent over the next three years.

In addition the Government committed to deliver at least 25,000 new shared ownership and shared equity homes nationally each year, by 2010-11.

The Government Office for the North West is working with regional partners and stakeholders to develop proposals for a regional equity loans product. Although in its early stages, this demonstrates a commitment to tackle affordability issues in the region.

Furthermore, all housing providers have the opportunity to bid in the Housing Corporation's current investment round for affordable housing. Warrington has the opportunity to bid for Housing Growth Point status, with any bid needing to demonstrate how affordability will be addressed.

Housing: Prices

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average sale price for a (a) one, (b) two and (c) three bedroom dwelling was amongst the properties constructed in each area that took part in the design for manufacturer competition. [156600]

Yvette Cooper: Construction of the homes on the 10 sites included in the Design for Manufacture competition is still ongoing.

However, I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 26 June 2007, Official Report, columns 628-29W, and the hon. Member for North-East Milton Keynes (Mr. Lancaster) on 6 March 2007, Official Report, column 1890W.

Housing: Renewable Energy

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to make changes to the Merton Rule on renewable energy in new developments; and if she will make a statement. [155745]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bexhill and Battle (Gregory Barker) today (PQ 155448).

Local Authorities: Audit Commission

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the indicators which the Audit Commission collects from local authorities. [155677]

Mr. Iain Wright: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and I will ask the Chief Executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 4 October 2007:

I am writing in response to your parliamentary question asking for a list of the performance indicators collected from local authorities by the Audit Commission.

Although we do have powers to specify performance indicators, we have not used these powers for several years.

However, you will be aware that the Government, through the Department for Communities and Local Government, specifies the Best Value Performance Indicators (BVPIs). The Commission collects this information on its behalf and analyses the data.

The attached spreadsheet shows the data returns we collect from councils. As you will see, some indicators have several sub parts and each of this has a data return. In summary we collect:

116 returns for Best Value Performance Indicators (BVPI) directly from local authorities via our electronic data collection system (EDC);

35 data items for BVPIs directly from government departments/ national agencies as these are part of other returns such as the Performance Assessment Framework for social care; and 27 user satisfaction indicators which are generated by surveys carried out every three years, the last one being 2006/07. Authorities submit the survey responses via a website.

A copy of this letter will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Local Government Executive: Pay

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the average annual salary costs of directly elected mayors in England for each of the last five years for which figures are available. [156561]

John Healey: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportional cost.

National Housing and Planning Advice Unit

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the (a) purpose and (b) budget is of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit; [155690]

(2) who the board members of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit are; and by what process they were appointed; [155691]

(3) how many full-time equivalent staff work for the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit. [155692]

Yvette Cooper: The National Housing and Planning Advice Unit's objective is to advise Government and the regions on the implications for the level and broad distribution of future house building of the Government's national ambitions for long-term market affordability and housing supply. The unit's budget for 2007-08 is £1,459,000 to include funding research and expert analysis on future housing trends.

The board members of the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit are:

Stephen Nickell (Chair), Warden of Nuffield College, Oxford

Prof. Glen Bramley, Professor of Housing and Urban Planning, Heriot-Watt University

Prof. Paul Cheshire, Professor of Economic Geography, LSE

Bob Lane, Chief Executive for Catalyst Corby/North Northants Development Co.

Max Steinberg, Chief Executive of Elevate East Lancashire

Dr. Peter Williams, Independent consultant on housing and mortgage markets and housing policy and acts as Executive Director of the Intermediary Mortgage Lenders Association.

The board appointments were made in accordance with the Code of Practice of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

There are 12 full-time equivalent staff who work for the National Housing and Planning Advice Unit.

Noise: Wind Power

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish the guidelines for noise emission from wind turbines to be taken into account by planning authorities; and whether she has plans to review such guidelines. [158019]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning policies for renewable energy technologies, including wind turbines, are set out in Planning Policy Statement 22 (PPS22). PPS22 is supported by a companion guide which provides practice guidance on planning for renewables. Both documents are available at www.communities.gov.uk

PPS22 expects local planning authorities to "ensure that renewable energy developments have been located and designed in such a way to minimise increases in ambient noise levels"; and in doing so, assess and rate noise from wind energy developments using the 1997 report by the Energy and Technology Support Unit. This report is available on the BERR website (www.berr.gov.uk). There are no plans to review this guidance at present.

Planning: Appeals

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1693W, on planning: appeals, how many planning appeals have been considered and ruled upon by the Planning Inspectorate in relation to planning applications for residential development within the curtilage of existing residential development since 1 April; how many were allowed; and how many were dismissed. [157505]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Planning: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the revenue from planning fees in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2006-07. [157654]

Mr. Iain Wright: The revenue income from planning fees for 2007-08 is estimated to be £234 million.

The revenue income from fees for the period 2006-07 was estimated to be £232 million.

Planning: Renewable Energy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has plans to prevent local authorities from adopting a Merton rule in the planning process; and if she will make a statement. [156609]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 9 October 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bexhill and Battle (Gregory Barker) today (PQ 155448).

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what impact she expects the recent changes to the Merton rule to have on progress towards the Government's targets for carbon dioxide emission reduction. [155448]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The Government have set out a timetable to cut carbon emissions from new homes. Major reductions will be required in 2010 and 2013. By 2016 all new homes must be zero carbon including appliances. These reductions need to be underpinned in the planning system as well as in building regulations, and they will require major increases in the use of renewables. "Merton Rules" are an important part of this framework.

As we gear up to our zero-carbon ambition, councils will be able to continue with and adopt new Merton Rules, although it is very important they are properly tested as part of development plan documents to ensure that standards are compatible with increasing affordable housing in the area. We also believe they should be sufficiently flexible to allow for off site as well as on site renewable technologies and councils should also consider wider local low carbon opportunities. The emphasis should be on minimising carbon emissions and maximising the scope for innovation. When there are clear carbon savings to be had from local energy supplies they should be included.

As we have said in "Building a Greener Future", councils should have a strategy for securing decentralised and renewable and low carbon energy in new development. Our new Planning Policy Statement on climate change will therefore support local strategies that include both site (and area) specific targets and Merton-style rules. The area specific targets should be set for locations where higher proportions of renewable and low carbon energy are feasible and viable.

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Government's policy is on the Merton Rule; and if she will make a statement. [158237]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bexhill and Battle (Gregory Barker) today (PQ 155448).

Right to Buy Scheme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's (a) estimate and (b) target is for the annual number of (i) local authority and (ii) housing association Right to Buy sales in England in the next period for which figures are available. [157476]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government do not set any targets for right to buy sales. The right to buy is available to secure tenants of local authorities and housing associations, while assured tenants of housing associations who have transferred with their homes from local authorities have a preserved right to buy. Social landlords are required by the Housing (Right to Buy) (Information to Secure Tenants) (England) Order 2005 to give their tenants an outline of the provisions of part 5 of the Housing Act 1985 (the right to buy scheme). It is up to individual tenants to decide whether they wish to exercise their right to buy, in the light of their personal circumstances.

Sleeping Rough

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to reduce levels of street homelessness. [158149]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 1998 the Prime Minister set a target that by 2002 the number of rough sleepers should be reduced by at least two-thirds. The target was met ahead of time and is being sustained. In 1998 there were 1,850 rough sleepers on the streets of England on any single night. In 2007 there were just over 500.

In addition, our £90 million Hostels Capital Improvement Programme is helping make hostels places of change with 178 projects in 62 local authority areas. Hostels will provide better opportunities for people who have been homeless and prevent them from returning to the streets.

St. Paul's Cathedral

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward legislation to protect the viewing corridor of St Paul's Cathedral from Richmond Park. [157629]

Mr. Iain Wright: The viewing corridor from Richmond Park to St. Paul's Cathedral is one of the 11 protected vistas identified in the Mayor of London's view management framework. Directions requiring consultation on proposals that may affect these vistas have now been issued by the Secretary of State and came into effect on 13 July 2007.

Thames Gateway: Finance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which capital projects were funded in the Thames Gateway project in each year since its inception; and how much each has cost. [149680]

Yvette Cooper: The total amount of capital funding by year was:

	£ million
2003-04	38.4
2004-05	136.4
2006-07	118.3

Since 2003 central Government have invested over £7 billion into the Gateway for major infrastructure, roads, schools, and other facilities, as well as project funding provided by my Department. The Gateway also benefits from the £1.8 billion public sector contribution to the channel tunnel rail link enabling international services via Ebbsfleet from 14 November this year, and domestic services from 2009.

Unitary Councils

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for laying and ratification of secondary legislation in relation to areas where unitary local government bids (a) are still being considered and (b) have been approved. [156577]

John Healey: Subject to the enactment of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, we intend, in late November or early December, to take final decisions on all unitary local government bids and to lay any draft implementation orders before Parliament. Subject to parliamentary approval of the drafts, we intend to make implementation orders around the end of 2007. We also intend to make regulations making general provision about such matters as the transfer of property, rights and liabilities and staff.

Wind Power: Planning

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she has given to planning authorities on the minimum distances between wind turbines and residential accommodation; and what information she holds in relation to the equivalent guidance given in (a) Scotland and (b) Wales. [158020]

Mr. Iain Wright: The companion guide which supports Planning Policy Statement 22 notes that 'fall over' distance (i.e. the height of the turbine to the tip of the blade) plus 10 per cent. is often used as a safe separation distance; but advises that the minimum desirable distance between wind turbines and occupied buildings, calculated on the basis of expected noise levels and visual impact, will often be greater than that necessary to meet safety requirements.

Guidance for Scotland and Wales is a matter for the Scottish Executive and for the Welsh Assembly Government.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether a new academy may be approved in an area where the local education authority is opposed to it; and if he will make a statement. [151880]

Jim Knight: A large majority of academies replace existing weak or under-performing schools. Others are proposed by local authorities as brand new schools in areas needing extra schools places. Each of these academies is, in effect, jointly commissioned by the Department and the local authority, with the local authority a signatory to the formal academy project expression of interest.

Other academy projects are brought forward where an academy proposal wins the competition now required under the Education and Inspections Act 2006 for most new and replacement schools. The purpose of the competitions is to ensure that new schools exhibit the highest standards and quality and that they meet the needs of each locality. Competitions are decided by the relevant local authority, unless the local authority itself enters a proposal in the competition, in which case the competition is decided by the independent schools adjudicator.

There are also a small number of former fee-paying day schools, which want to become academies in order to transform their contribution to local education by expanding and broadening their pupil intake to the benefit of all local students. In these cases, the local authority is not a signatory to the expression of interest, but the Secretary of State is under a duty to consult the local authority before considering the academy's formal funding agreement.

Academies: Capital Investment

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the capital cost was of each academy (a) opened and (b) planned since 2002. [150837]

Jim Knight: Originally, academies were built with capital grant paid directly by the Secretary of State, together with a contribution from the sponsors. A new method under which academy buildings are being procured through Building Schools for the Future (BSF) or Partnership for Schools' (PfS) national framework has now been introduced.

Capital grant paid by the Secretary of State is paid under a funding agreement with the relevant academy trust. The first table as follows lists estimated costs including capital grant and sponsorship funding, for academies where a funding agreement has been signed, and the Secretary of State is paying capital grant to the relevant academy trust. For some such academies, no estimated cost is available because the design process is still at an early stage, and the section of the funding agreement relating to capital grant has yet to be agreed. Academies marked with an asterisk are operating in completed buildings.

A number of other academy projects are still at the feasibility stage of development and as no part of the funding agreement has yet been signed, and no estimated costs are available, these are excluded from the table.

Academies: Governing Bodies

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and which academies appoint an elected teacher or staff representative to their governing bodies. [156438]

Jim Knight [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department does not collect these data.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new (a) primary and (b) secondary schools will (i) start construction and (ii) be completed under the Building Schools for the Future programme in each of the next three financial years; and what proportion of those schools will be (i) new build and (ii) refurbishment of existing facilities. [148140]

Jim Knight: Building Schools for the Future (BSF) is a core part of the DCSF's capital strategy, providing a new approach to capital investment in secondary schools. The programme aims to create world-class, 21st-century schools—environments which will inspire learning for decades to come and provide exceptional assets for the whole community. Subject to future public spending decisions, the intention is to achieve this aim for every secondary school pupil within 15 waves. BSF was launched in 2004.

In financial year 2008-09, we expect that 51 schools will be completed, of which 34 will be new build and 17 will have been refurbished. A further 155 are expected to start construction.

In financial year 2009-10, we expect that 117 schools will be completed, of which 50 will be new build and 67 will have been refurbished. A further 174 are expected to start construction.

In financial year 2010-11, we expect that 167 schools will be completed, of which 60 will be new build and 107 will have been refurbished. A further 121 are expected to start construction.

These figures represent current plans, and will be subject to change as projects develop. In particular, the scope of projects in waves four, five and six is still in development, with timelines and the ratio of new build to refurbishment yet to be confirmed.

The BSF programme does not include primary schools. Our Primary Capital Programme will provide additional investment of £1.15 billion for primary schools between 2008 and 2011, with the assumption that the programme will run for 14 years, subject to future public spending decisions.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Academies

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy to agree to fund Building Schools for the Future programmes where the local authority has produced a sound plan for the development of secondary education whether or not an academy is included. [157224]

Jim Knight: It already is our policy to fund Building Schools for the Future projects whether or not an academy is included. However, where a Building Schools for the Future project includes a weak or underperforming school that meets the criteria for consideration as a potential academy project, we strongly urge the authority to consider this option, and where it does not choose to do so, to show that it has equally strong alternative and innovative plans that will achieve the same outcome of raising standards at the school.

Children: Exercise

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age children undertaking two hours physical exercise per week in (i) 1997 and (ii) 2007. [154789]

Jim Knight: The annual PE and School Sport Survey was introduced in 2003/04 and collects data relating to participation in PE and School Sport over the last three years. The percentage of pupils who took part in at least two hours of high quality PE and school sport each week is as follows:

	Primary	Secondary	Percentage Total
2003/04	52	73	62
2004/05	64	75	69
2005/06	82	78	80

Prior to 2003/04, no data were collected relating to the amount of time spent on PE and school sport.

Children's Plan 8 to 13 Working Group

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who sits on the Children's Plan 8 to 13 working group; and how frequently it meets. [155921]

Jim Knight: The 8 to 13 Expert Group is chaired jointly by Lord Andrew Adonis, Kevin Brennan MP and Sir Alan Steer, Head Teacher Seven Kings High School, Ilford, Essex.

The following are members of the group:

Sir Keith Ajegbo—a former Head Teacher who has recently led the Citizenship and Diversity Curriculum Review for Government.

Graham Badman—Director of Children's Services at Kent local authority.

Sue Campbell—Chair of the Youth Sport Trust

Rosie Chadwick—Head of Prevention Services at Crime Concern

Jonathan Douglas—Director of the National Literacy Trust

Fiona Edwards—teacher at Stebon Primary School in Tower Hamlets, London

Dr John Guy—Principal of Farnborough Sixth Form College, Hampshire

Fiona Hammans—Head Teacher at Banbury School, Oxfordshire

Barbara Hearn—deputy Chief Executive of the National Children's Bureau

Jim Herbert—teaching assistant at Little Ilford School, Manor Park in London

Ron Jenkinson—Head Teacher at St. Osmund Middle School, Dorchester, Dorset

Carol Lake—Managing Director, JP Morgan

Brian Lamb—Chair of the Special Educational Needs Consortium

Denise Lynch—Attendance Leader in Education Welfare, Children's Services, Salford local authority

Mary MacLeod—Chief Executive of the Families and Parenting Institute

Dame Mary Marsh—Chief Executive of the NSPCC

Kris Murrin—child psychologist and presenter on the BBC

Penny Rogers—consultant in the North Essex Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service

Caroline Ryder—Head Teacher at Carr Junior School in York

Vicky Scott—Joint Commissioning Manager for the Primary Care Trust and Local Authority, Lewisham, London

Sheila White—Head Teacher at Wyborne Primary School, Greenwich, London

Sir Michael Wilshaw—Principal of Mossbourne Community Academy Hackney, London

The group has met once already, and will do so again twice more over the course of the autumn term. There are no plans to extend the group beyond this point.

Danley Middle School

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions his Department has had with Kent County Council on its plans to close Danley Middle School and sell it for development. [156936]

Jim Knight [holding answer 11 October 2007]: There have been no discussions with Kent county council about the closure of Danley Middle School and disposal of the site. Kent county council is considering proposals to reorganise schools in the Isle of Sheppey as part of plans to establish a new academy. The realisation of capital receipts from the sale of the Danley Middle School site was one of Maurice Smith's key recommendations in his review of the Sheppey Academy proposals, commissioned by Ministers.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what accounts directions were issued by his Department's predecessors in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156623]

Jim Knight: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 the HM Treasury issues accounts directions to the Department and its pension scheme.

For the financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following bodies sponsored by the former Department for Education and Skills:

2005-06

Adult Learning Inspectorate
British Educational Communications Technology Agency
Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service
Children's Commissioner

Quality Improvement Agency—operational from 1 April 2006
School Food Trust—operational from 1 April 2006

Departments: Employment Agencies

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much the Department paid in fees to recruitment agencies for (a) temporary and (b) permanent staff in each year since 1997. [151682]

Jim Knight: The Department for Education and Skills was established in June 2001. The sums paid by the then Department for Education and Skills to recruitment agencies for temporary staff are shown as follows. These figures include the fees paid to the agency and the wages paid for those temporary staff. A breakdown of that information, and information prior to April 2002, could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Financial year (April to March each year)	Agency spend (£)
2002-03	2,688,149
2003-04	1,621,233
2004-05	1,498,420
2005-06	2,315,552
2006-07	1,500,682

Sums have also been paid to recruitment consultants for executive search and selection services, mainly in recruiting at senior civil service level. For that information I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given earlier in PQ 140034. A breakdown of the information provided in that answer to distinguish between the costs incurred in recruiting people who were appointed on either indefinite, fixed term, secondment or loan contracts could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will list his Department and its predecessors in (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156646]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be found in the following sources:

for 2005 and 2006 "Public Bodies 2005" and "Public Bodies 2006" published by the Cabinet Office for 2007 the DCSF website lists the DfES bodies for 2007 (http://www.dfes.gov.uk/ndpb/)

Current position, following Machinery of Government Changes of July 2007, can also be found in the DCSF website, including a list of those now moved to DIUS.

These sources list all the bodies requested and indicate whether they are Executive, advisory or tribunal NDPBs, or public corporations. The previous DFES and latterly the DCSF do not have any executive agencies or trading funds.

Education: Gender

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has conducted into the gender gap in school achievement; and what steps he is taking to close this gap. [157751]

Jim Knight: In England, girls have out-performed boys since GCSE examinations were introduced in 1988. In 2006 63.4 per cent. of girls and 53.8 per cent. of boys achieved 5+ A*-C grade GCSEs (2007 results will be published later this month). Girls are ahead of boys overall at each phase of education from early years and foundation onwards. The largest gaps are in literacy and the smallest are in mathematics and science subjects. The gaps in England have been broadly stable over two decades, and are in line with those in other OECD countries.

The reasons for girls' better attainment in literacy and indeed overall are complex, but appear mainly related to biological differences, differences in maturation, and differences in attitudes to learning and reading at different ages. The Department's recently published research paper "Gender and education: the evidence on pupils in England", of which there is a copy in the Library of the House, sets out the research evidence.

Four points should be noted:

first, boys' attainment has improved sharply over the past decade, broadly keeping pace with that of girls;

second, there are also issues of girls' under-attainment, and of girls' subject choices, which are worthy of attention;

third, gender gaps can be minimised by inclusive teaching strategies, and by the encouragement of reading; fourth, the key objective is that every individual pupil is stretched to his or her full potential.

The Government's strategy, reflecting this last point, is to continue to improve teaching and learning with a special focus on personalised learning and the progress made by each individual pupil. In addition, the Department is planning a programme of school-level investigations and action research activities on gender issues. This programme will build on existing departmental initiatives focused on boys' literacy, such as "Boys Into Books" which has enabled every state-funded secondary school in England to select for its library 20 free books targeted at teenage boys. It will also include issues of girls' under-attainment, and girls' subject choices. The activities will feed into the forthcoming National Year of Reading which will promote reading both for leisure and school attainment purposes.

Folk Culture: Curriculum

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will bring forward proposals to include the teaching of English folk dance and song in the national curriculum; and if he will make a statement. [157781]

Jim Knight: For children aged 5-11, dance is already a compulsory part of the current physical education curriculum, and schools may choose to teach English folk dancing as part of that compulsory requirement. The current National Curriculum Programme for the Study of Music states that the breadth of study should be taught through a range of music from different times and cultures which may include music from the British Isles.

For pupils aged 11-14 there has been some freeing up of the Programmes of Study in the new secondary curriculum, which is being phased in over a three-year period beginning in September 2008. Dance is one of six optional activities within the National Curriculum for Physical Education and schools will be able to teach more dance for their pupils if there is sufficient demand for it. The new Programme of Study for Music at Key Stage 3 says that the study of music should include "a range of classical and popular traditions" and this is expected to include "music from different national and cultural traditions", which not only includes the western classical tradition but can also include folk music.

Further Education

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which 200 secondary schools had the lowest post-16 staying-on rate in full-time education at the most recent date for which figures are available. [156635]

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of people aged (a) 16, (b) 17 and (c) 18 were in (i) education, (ii) training, (iii) employment and (iv) none of the above in each year since 1995; [157821]

(2) how many and what proportion of 15-year-old secondary school leavers left school for (a) employment, (b) further education, (c) employer-funded training, (d) work based learning, (e) other education and training and (f) inactivity in each year since 1997. [157822]

Jim Knight: The figures provided in this answer are for individuals at academic age 16, 17 and 18[1]. Participation is broken down by: full-time education; work based learning (WBL); employer funded training (EFT); other education and training (OET); not in any education or training—in employment; not in any education, employment or training (NEET). There will also be those that are in a category, e.g. full-time education, and also in employment.

Information on destinations of school leavers does not exist in this form. The tables for 16-year-old participation show the activities of all young people in the year following the end of compulsory schooling.

These figures are available in the Statistical First Release published by the Department in SFR 22/2007, please see the following web link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000734/8fr22_2007.pdf.

Definitions

WBL for young people comprises advanced apprenticeships, apprenticeships, entry to employment (E2E) and NVQ learning.

EFT covers employees who have received training in the past four weeks; these figures are restricted to training other than WBL. It will include non-WBL apprentices and others on long and short term training programmes, but exclude those who have previously received training in their current job, though not in the last four weeks. It covers only young people who are in employment.

OET covers young people who are studying but are not included in other categories. For example: those attending independent colleges or training centres; at any college in part-time study not reported as released from a job; or receiving training in part-time education but not currently employed.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the annual cost of bringing per capita funding of pupils aged 16 to 18 years old in further education colleges in line with funding levels in secondary schools. [154337]

Jim Knight: Following a consultation earlier this year the Learning and Skills Council will introduce, from 2008/09, a new, common funding methodology for all 16 to 18-year-old learners. This will ensure that comparable funding is offered for comparable activity, irrespective of the type of institution providing the education and training to the learner.

Per capita funding for pupils aged 16 to 18 years old is at a broadly comparable level in school sixth forms and further education colleges. In 2005-06 per capita funding for full time equivalent 16, 17 and 18-year-old learners in further education colleges was £5,000. In 2006-07 we estimate this will rise to £5,100 but this will not be confirmed until final student numbers are available later in the year.

For 16, 17 and 18-year-olds in school sixth forms the level of funding per pupil was £4,900 in 2005-06, this rose to £5,200 in 2006-07.

Funding figures for school sixth forms and colleges are not directly comparable as a range of factors affects them including the mix of provision offered, achievement and retention levels and the location in which the provider is based. It is also impossible to get an entirely accurate full-time equivalent learner figure for college students whereas for schools, as almost all pupils study full-time in sixth forms, the pupil count is precise.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of GCSE students achieved (a) five GCSEs at A-C and (b) English and mathematics GCSEs at A-C since 1995-96; and if he will make a statement. [154711]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table:

Percentage of 15-year-old pupils achieving (a) 5 or more GCSE at grades A-C and (b) English and Mathematics GCSE at grades A*-C since 1996*

[1] Aged 15 at the beginning of the academic year, i.e. 31 August.
[2] Percentages from 2004 onwards include GCSEs and equivalents.

Standards in secondary schools have risen dramatically since 1996. Record numbers of pupils are now achieving five good GCSEs.

Over 91,000 more pupils achieved five good GCSEs last year compared with 1996 and 78,000 more achieved five good GCSEs including English and maths compared with 1996.

This is as a result of a number of factors, including: challenge and support through the secondary National Strategy; swift and targeted intervention to tackle school failure; more effective use of data by schools and local authorities, helping to track and monitor the progress of pupils; and a system within which schools and local authorities are setting ambitious targets for their pupils.

The new secondary curriculum, to be introduced from 2008, will raise standards further still. Less prescription will allow for more time in the school day to concentrate on English and maths, particularly where pupils are struggling with literacy and numeracy. It will also allow schools to personalise learning in order to make teaching more engaging.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Gender

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) girls and (b) boys gained five GCSEs at grade A to C in each year since 1987-88; and if he will make a statement. [154601]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given as follows:

Primary Education: Buildings

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary schools in each local education authority area primarily occupy buildings built before 1930. [156634]

Jim Knight: It is not possible, on the basis of data received from local education authorities on the ages of buildings, to assess numbers of primary schools primarily occupying buildings built before 1930.

Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £6.4 billion in 2007-08 and will rise further to £8.0 billion by 2010-11. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock.

Primary Education: Standards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils attained (a) level 2 or above, (b) level 2A or above and (c) level 3 or above in the key stage 1 assessments in (i) mathematics, (ii) reading and (iii) writing in each year between 1995 and 2007. Note:
Fine grading at level 2 did exist in 1995, 1996 and 1997 but these data are not easily amenable.

Pupil Mobility Rate

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average pupil mobility rate was in schools in (a) England and (b) each English local authority area in (i) 2005 and (ii) 2006. [155606]

Jim Knight: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pupils

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in England and Wales were in school years (a) six and (b) 11 in each year since 1995. [157820]

Jim Knight: The information available is set out in the following table:

Pupils: Autism

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on cases where schoolchildren have been categorised as having fabricated and induced illness but where it has transpired that the symptoms giving rise to this concern were the result of the child being on the autistic spectrum. [152219]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has recently received a letter from Autism Consultancy Services which, among much else, mentions the issue of the parents of autistic children "being scrutinised unnecessarily for conditions such as Munchausen's Syndrome by Proxy".

In 2002 the Government published their guidance 'Safeguarding children in whom illness is fabricated or induced: Supplementary guidance to Working Together to Safeguard Children'. In view of the controversy concerning the term Munchausen's Syndrome by Proxy the guidance refers only to cases of 'fabricated or induced illness', specifically where such behaviour constitutes an abusive act against a child. The National Autistic Society made representations to officials and Ministers at the Department of Health on the text of the draft guidance and said that the Society was content with the final text. It included advice on the importance of clarifying the contributing factors and identifying any underlying conditions which may play a part in the developmental delay of children who have been identified as having illness fabricated or induced.

Pupils: Fingerprints

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in England have the ability to collect and hold fingerprint data for pupils; and if he will make a statement. [156969]

Jim Knight: We have no information on the number of schools with the ability to collect and hold fingerprint data for pupils. There is no requirement for schools to inform the Department when they introduce any biometric technology systems. The systems used in schools collect and hold data generated from fingerprints but not images of fingerprints themselves.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many fingerprints have been collected of pupils in English schools; and if he will make a statement. [156970]

Jim Knight: Fingerprints are not collected in schools only algorithmic data generated by them. There is no requirement for schools to inform the Department when they introduce any biometric technology system.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance has been given to schools on collecting and holding fingerprint data for pupils. [156971]

Jim Knight: On behalf of the Department, Becta, the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency, issued guidance for head teachers, governors and parents on 23 July. This guidance can be found on the Becta website at:

http://schools.becta.org.uk/index.php?section=lv&catcode=ss_lv_saf_dp_03&rid=14160.

Pupils: Qualifications

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2007, Official Report, column 1127W, on pupils: qualifications, where on the National Database of Accredited Qualifications website the number of qualifications included in the secondary school (GCSE and equivalent) performance tables that are considered to be equivalent to (a) three, (b) four and (c) five or more GCSEs are. [149870]

Jim Knight: The National Database of Accredited Qualifications (NDAQ) website at www.ndaq.org.uk provides an up to date list of all approved qualifications for the GCSE and equivalent achievement and attainment tables. For each qualification, the contribution made to the level 1 and level 2 thresholds within the tables can be found by clicking the 'Performance Figures' link under the qualification's description. A qualification with a contribution of at least 60 per cent. is equivalent to three or more GCSEs. The exact number of qualifications treated as equivalent to three, four and five or more GCSEs can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Runaway Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will include a requirement to collect information relating to the safeguarding of runaway and missing children in his review of the public service agreement indicators. [158417]

Beverley Hughes: A new national indicator on young people who have run away from home or care overnight is included in the national indicators that will underpin the new performance framework for local authorities. This was published on 11 October 2007.

We are considering a number of different options to gather data on young runaways in connection with the new indicator, working closely with the Home Office, the police, local authorities and The Children's Society.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to give schools complete control over non-selective admissions policy. [154528]

Jim Knight: Through the Education and Inspections Act we have provided a framework for giving more freedoms to an increased number of schools. This includes more schools, both selective and non-selective, being able to set their own admission policies following local consultation.

However, this is in the context of a robust system of checks and balances. All admission authorities, whether local authorities or school governing bodies, must act in accordance with the mandatory provisions of the new School Admissions Code, which rules out unfair practices and criteria. We have also extended the circumstances in which objections to admission arrangements can be made to the schools adjudicator, whose decisions are binding for up to three years. This will ensure that school admission arrangements provide fair access for every child regardless of their background.

Schools: Community Relations

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which person or body is responsible for promoting community cohesion within schools; [157338]

(2) who is responsible for monitoring and assessing the degree to which schools are achieving the objective of community cohesion. [157339]

Jim Knight: The Education and Inspections Act 2006 placed a new duty on maintained schools in England to promote community cohesion. The duty came into effect from 1 September 2007. Ofsted will report on the contribution made by the school to community cohesion from September 2008, to give schools time to embed the duty within their institution.

The duty applies to the governing body of a maintained school in England. We published guidance in July on how schools can build on what is happening already in light of the new duty. Within each school, it is for the governing body and senior management team to discharge the duty to promote community cohesion as part of its leadership and management role, leading the school, and involving the school work force and pupils in the promotion of community cohesion.

Schools: Floods

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of schools that were flooded in England in June and July 2007. [153844]

Jim Knight: According to information received from local authorities in the areas hit by the floods, a total of 857 schools were damaged by the floods: 467 in June and 390 in July.

Schools: Governing Bodies

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the increase has been in parental representation on school governing bodies since the introduction of the Education and Inspections Act 2006. [149853]

Jim Knight: The Department does not routinely collect information on the composition of the governing bodies of maintained schools. However, parents must comprise at least one third of the places on the governing bodies of all maintained schools in England.

Schools: Health Hazards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of health and safety implications of the use of interactive whiteboards in classrooms. [154520]

Jim Knight: Becta provides the DCSF and subsequently schools and local authorities with appropriate guidance on the health and safety implications of using interactive whiteboard technologies. Re-assessment of the value of the guidance is regularly undertaken however guidance must be based upon current information provided by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and the Health Protection Agency (HPA). Becta maintains close links with these organisations to ensure that this guidance remains up to date.

Schools: Injuries

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many school-related injuries were recorded as requiring outside medical attention in each of the last 10 years. [151161]

Jim Knight: Employers must report to the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) injuries to staff causing death or absence from work for more than three days, and injuries to members of the public causing death or for which the injured person was taken to hospital from the site of the accident. The HSE has supplied the data for the education sector set out in the following tables.

Injuries in school not reportable to the HSE which may require attention by, for example, a GP, are normally recorded in school accident books and my Department does not hold information on such injuries.

As the footnotes to the tables explain, the reported figures in later years (from 2003-04) are based on different methods of data collection and should not be taken as indicating any trends, such as an apparent steep decline in pupil injuries from 2002-03 to 2003-04. Footnote 6 reflects the HSE's view that the increased figures for 2005-06 may be due to changes in reporting practice.

The tables from the HSE include fatalities and injuries reported during educational visits in Great Britain. School employers are not required to report overseas incidents to the HSE. My Department receives information about these, and our records indicate that 11 pupils from English schools suffered fatal injuries while on an educational visit abroad between 1996 and 2006.

One pupil was fatally wounded in an English school by another pupil in 2003. The HSE figures, which relate to incidents arising out of or in connection with work, do not include this.

[1] Injuries are reported and defined under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995. The information available under RIDDOR 95 includes two categories of severity for members of the public: fatal injuries and non-fatal injuries that cause a person to be taken from the site of the accident to hospital.

[2] Schools are identified using Standard Industrial Classification 1992 (SIC92) codes 80100 'Primary education', 80200 'Secondary education' and 80210 'General secondary education'.

[3] The Health and Safety Executives Field Operations Directorate is the responsible enforcing authority for health and safety in the education sector.

[4] Standard Occupational Classification (SOC 1990 and 2000). There are four occupation categories for members of the public: Member of the public; School pupil/student; Patient under medical or residential care; and Prisoner.

[5] In 2003-04 there was a change to the employer database against which HSE non-fatal injury reports are assigned. This affected the spread of non-fatal injury numbers by industry. The change was particularly marked in the education sector. As a result injury figures prior to 2003-04 cannot be compared with more recent data for this industry group. In essence, they are two separate series. Until more data are available on the new basis, an accurate assessment of a long-term trend cannot be made.

[6] In 2005-06 there was a change of procedures within the HSE, which may mean that some injuries previously recorded under the category of 'public administration' will now be recorded as 'education'. An increase in the number of sports injuries may also reflect an increase in reporting rather than just an increase in the number of such injuries.

Schools: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many incidents there were in schools involving the use of (a) knives and (b) firearms in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [153968]

Jim Knight: Concerning the number of incidents in schools involving knives, I refer the hon. Member to my reply to questions 151219, 151220, 151232 and 151233 of 26 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1406-07W, which provides a table covering the period from 1999 to 2005 supplied by the Ministry of Justice. There is no comparable table for firearms carried in schools since there is no offence specific to schools. But schools are very safe places. The huge majority of pupils never wrongfully carry a knife in school let alone use one; and firearms in school are not an issue in this regard. Schools can screen pupils using metal detectors; they may also, if they wish, search without consent any pupil they suspect of carrying a weapon.

Schools: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his latest estimate is of total expenditure on outstanding private finance initiative transactions relating to schools and early years for each year from 2007-08 to 2020-21; and if he will make a statement. [154539]

Jim Knight: Information on all signed private finance initiative contracts, including balance sheet treatment and future unitary charges, is included in HM Treasury's PFI signed projects list, which is available through www.hm.treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.

The information covers the unitary charge payment projections up to 2033-34. (A unitary charge can frequently include capital repayments, service provision, inflation and major refurbishment).

This is a working document containing information on current signed PFI projects. It is updated on a six-monthly basis to reflect the updates HM Treasury receives from Departments at Budget and pre-Budget report.

Schools: Religious Sects

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the offering of grants to organisations against which there have been allegations of cultish behaviour to support their activities in schools. with particular regards to (a) Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) new Kadampa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International; and if he will make a statement. [152368]

Jim Knight: The Department has offered no grants to: (a) Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) new Kadampa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International.

All Government Departments follow stringent procedures, seek appropriate references and use independent assessors to examine the constitutions and financial records/accounts of all organisations before they make any recommendations for funding.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if he will extend the freedoms available to academies to all state schools which meet minimum performance criteria; and if he will make a statement; [154529]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 17 July 2007, Official Report, columns 287-88W, on academies, if he will extend to all schools the freedoms available to academies; and if he will make a statement. [154791]

Jim Knight: Academies are independent state schools that have additional freedoms to help them implement innovative approaches to combating the impact of deprivation on educational attainment and to break the cycle of underachievement and low aspirations that afflicts too many of our communities.

Although the vast majority are established with the full agreement of the relevant local authority, academies are not maintained by them; academies are not bound by the School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document; they have enjoyed additional freedoms relating to the national curriculum (though this has, as a whole, been made more flexible to accommodate the kind of innovation that academies have enjoyed, and since July, new Academy Funding Agreements have required them to follow the National Curriculum Programmes of Study in English, maths, science and ICT); and although, like other state-funded schools, academies have stakeholder governors, in order to determine the ethos and leadership of the academy and ensure clear responsibility and accountability, the lead sponsor will always appoint the majority of governors to an academy governing body.

My Department has no plans to extend these freedoms more widely. However, where there is a clear case for doing so, additional freedoms may be allowed to other state funded schools through the Power to Innovate. This allows the Secretary of State for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) to suspend or modify education legislation that may be holding back, or even stopping, innovative approaches to raising standards.

Schools, colleges of further education, local authorities or trusts (acting on behalf of trust schools) may apply for a time-limited order to allow the testing of an innovative idea that has the potential to improve outcomes for pupils and students.

There are no preconceptions about the kind of ideas that could be supported. Since introduction in 2002, the power has been used in a diverse range of innovative projects—from testing 'virtual' governance, to allowing a group of schools to introduce a transitional sixth form for those pupils unlikely to be in education, training or employment after completing year 11. Power to Innovate inquiries have also prompted changes to general legislation, for example enabling schools to offer HE foundation modules.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools in Greater London are in special measures. [157345]

Jim Knight: The following table lists the schools in Greater London that are currently in special measures. It also shows the unique reference number, phase, local authority and the date each school was placed in the category by Ofsted. The list shows the position on 10 October 2007.

The number of Greater London schools in special measures has reduced from 26 on 1 September 2005 to the current figure of 20. The number of secondary schools in the category has reduced from seven to three during the same period.

Secondary Education

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary school places were maintained in each year since 1997. [154449]

Jim Knight: The Department collects information from each local authority (LA) on the number of school places maintained via an annual survey. The earliest data available are for 1998 and the most recent are for 2006. The number of school places was not collected in 2002 to allow for a change in the method of assessing school capacity.

Currently, the number of school places is calculated using the net capacity method of assessment which was introduced in 2003. Up to 2001 the capacity of a school was calculated using the MOE (More Open Enrolment) method. The following table shows the number of maintained secondary school places calculated by the net capacity method of assessment between 2003 and 2006 and the MOE method between 1998 and 2001.

Secondary Education: Teaching Methods

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his latest estimate is of the proportion of secondary school pupils in England who are taught in classes with (a) setting, (b) streaming and (c) no setting or streaming; and if he will make a statement. [150670]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 25 July 2007:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

You asked for the latest estimate of the proportion of secondary school pupils in England who are taught in classes with (a) setting, (b) streaming, and (c) no setting or streaming.

Ofsted data on the use of streaming and setting are based on lessons observed during inspections. Since September 2005, under section 5 inspection arrangements, the recording of class organisation has been based either on discussions with the headteacher or teacher or by reference to the lesson plan at the time of observation. Whereas with section 10 arrangements all full-time teachers were observed by inspectors, under section 5 inspections this is not likely to be the case. Under section 5 inspections, a much smaller number of lessons is observed than would have been seen under the section 10 framework; and the lessons they see are not necessarily representative of the pupil grouping in the school as a whole. Retrieval from the lesson observation data would not therefore allow us to estimate what proportion of pupils nationally is taught in mixed ability or setted/streamed classes.

Lessons are recorded as being setted/streamed, mixed ability or otherwise organised. For clarity, setting is the term used to describe the organisation of pupils in classes on the basis of their prior attainment in the particular subject being taught. The term banding, which is very similar to streaming, is used when the decision as to which pupils are included or not in a class is based on the prior attainment in a range of subjects.

Although I am unable to answer the particular question you have raised, I have set out overleaf the data Ofsted has on the proportion of lessons observed in secondary schools during 2006/07 which were taught in setted/streamed and in mixed ability classes.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Sixth Form Colleges

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1413W, on sixth form colleges, how many new sixth form colleges were (a) established, (b) closed and (c) merged with other institutions in each of the last 10 years; and what steps his Department is taking to promote the establishment of new sixth form colleges. [157525]

Jim Knight: The number of sixth form colleges that were established, closed and merged in each of the last 10 years is as follows:

Sixth Form Colleges Established Since 1997:

1998

2001

Brooke House Sixth Form College

2002

Longley Park Sixth Form College

[1] Established as a result of merger involving North Bolton College & South College Bolton

Sixth Form Colleges Closed and Merged Since 1997 (no colleges have simply been closed):

1997

South Park Sixth Form College

1998

Clarendon College
North Bolton College
South College, Bolton

1999

York Sixth Form College
High Pavement Sixth Form College
Arnold and Carlton College

2000

Phoenix College
The Rutland College

2001

Rowley Regis College
Shena Simon College

2003

2005

Tynemouth College
Haywards Heath College

2006

North Area College
Josiah Mason Sixth Form College
Widnes and Runcorn Sixth Form College

2007

Spelthorne Sixth Form College
Farnham Sixth Form College

We want to encourage a strong and growing Sixth Form College sector; Sixth Form Colleges generally are successful, high achieving and popular with students and parents. The White Paper 'Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances' (Cm 6768) includes our undertaking to expand the sector. New Sixth Form Colleges will be considered as one option where the Learning and Skills Council runs a competition for new 16-19 places. Following a competition in Rochdale, proposals for a new Sixth Form College are now being developed by the Rochdale Education Partnership working with the Learning and Skills Council. The 'FE presumption', under which high performing colleges are able to expand in order to deliver Diplomas, will provide capital grant for new provision at eligible Sixth Form Colleges.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained special educational needs schools were operated in each local education authority in England in (a) 1996-97 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [158141]

Jim Knight: Data on the number of maintained special educational needs schools that were operated in each local education authority in England in 1996-97 and 2006-07, are shown in the following tables:

Teachers: Qualifications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to raise the minimum standards required to teach in the state-funded sector. [154522]

Jim Knight: We have recently reviewed and revised the complete suite of professional standards required of qualified teachers. These began to operate from 1 September 2007 and can be seen at:

http://www.tda.gov.uk/partners/ittstandards.aspx?keywords=qts+standards

The new standards clarify the professional characteristics that a teacher should be expected to maintain and to build on at different career stages, and apply equally to experienced teachers and those in training.

Teachers: Sick Leave

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many teachers are on long-term sick leave; [151163]

(2) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers were assaulted by a parent in each of the last 10 years. [151235]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons mature students born before 1 September 1979 are required to have a GCSE at grade C or above (or recognised equivalent) in science in order to begin initial teacher training; and if he will make a statement. [154521]

Jim Knight: All entrants to initial teacher training must have at least a GCSE at grade C in English and mathematics or have reached an equivalent standard. Additionally, those wishing to train to teach in primary schools also need to have a GCSE at grade C in science or to have reached an equivalent standard. This additional requirement is to ensure that non-specialist teachers who teach science in the primary schools have some background knowledge in the subject. This is not required in secondary because science will normally be taught by a specialist.

Since 1 September 2007 the new Requirements for Initial Teacher Training have applied the science requirement to all primary trainees regardless of their age because we consider it essential that all primary teachers must have the necessary knowledge to teach science to pupils. Prior to this, primary trainees who were born before 1 September 1979 were exempted from the GCSE science requirement because their school days would have been before science in Key Stage 4 became compulsory in the National Curriculum. However, as it is quite possible for people in this category wanting to apply for initial teacher training in primary to study for and pass GCSE at grade C in science or reach an equivalent standard before they do so, and in view of the importance of science teaching in schools, we decided that the previous exemption should be formally discontinued from September 2007.

The exemption was informally removed in October 2006 to comply with new legislation on age discrimination and in anticipation of the change planned in the Requirements. By this time the vast majority of 2006/07 primary applicants had already been accepted for, or had already begun, their courses and were unaffected. The main change will be for those wishing to pursue primary training from 2007/08.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will assess the effectiveness of the on-line system used by the Graduate Teacher Training Registry, with particular reference to its effectiveness in (a) processing and (b) tracking applications. [155656]

Jim Knight: The Graduate Teacher Training Registry processes applications for postgraduate Initial Teacher Training (ITT) and Initial Teacher Education (ITE) courses in England, Wales and Scotland. Courses applied for are provided at universities, colleges and school-centred initial teacher training consortia. Applications are made primarily through an on-line system. Over 99 per cent. of applicants use the on-line facility but a paper form is also available. Applicants can track their application throughout the cycle, viewing decisions made by providers and updating their choice and personal details. During the 2006-07 cycle 26,223 applicants were accepted onto courses. The 2007-08 cycle opened on 12 September.

I have no reason to believe that the system does not provide a good service for both applicants and providers.

Vocational Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the development of the (a) 14-19 curriculum and (b) vocational education. [154517]

Jim Knight: We are making good progress on the development of new Diplomas—the first five qualifications were accredited in September 2007 and will be taught by schools and colleges within selected consortia areas by September 2008. By 2013 every young person will be entitled to study for a diploma across all employment sectors, combining academic study with practical experience to give young people a strong platform of skills development and insight into the ways a sector works.

Work-related learning (WRL), is an increasingly important part of the 14-19 curriculum, and is a key feature of Diplomas. WRL helps to develop the skills and attitudes that are essential in preparing young people for the world of work and has been a part of the statutory requirement at Key Stage 4 since 2004. Surveys from the QCA and Ofsted in 2007 provide good evidence that it is helping deliver better results for young people. In addition over 120,000 young people are involved in applied learning programmes such as the Increased Flexibility Programme, Young Apprenticeships and KS4 Engagement, leading to a range of applied qualifications, skills, motivational developments and progression opportunities. The final report of the review of work-related learning, published on 4 October 2007, sets out how we will build on the best practice that exists to embed work-related learning across the 14-19 curriculum. A copy of the report has been placed in the House Library.

Young People: Education

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) males and (b) females aged between 16 and 25 were not in education, employment or training in (i) 1997, (ii) 2001, (iii) 2005 and (iv) 2007. [156164]

Beverley Hughes: The main official estimates for those not in education, employment or training (NEET) are for academic ages 16[1] to 18. This is the age group covered by the Department's Public Service Agreement (PSA) target on NEET, to "reduce the proportion of young people not in education, employment or training (NEET) by 2 percentage points by 2010 (from a baseline of 10 per cent at end 2004)."

The 16-18 NEET estimates can be accessed in a Statistical First Release (SFR) published by the Department, see web link:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000734/index.shtml.

The latest figures available are for 2006. The following figures are for individuals between the academic ages of 16 and 18 who were NEET in 1997, 2001, 2005 and 2006.

[1] Academic age is the age of the individual measured at the beginning of the academic year, 31 August. Academic age 16 would be for those individuals in the year following compulsory education.

Males

	16-18 NEET	16-18 population	Percentage of 16-18 NEET
1997	71,264	915,761	7.8
2001	92,137	950,433	9.7
2005	124,624	1,025,799	12.1
2006	117,376	1,030,999	11.4

Females

	16-18 NEET	16-18 population	Percentage of 16-18 NEET
1997	83,048	890,568	9.3
2001	83,750	898,104	9.3
2005	92,439	968,640	9.5
2006	88,808	970,609	9.1

All

	16-18 NEET	16-18 population	Percentage of 16-18 NEET
1997	154,312	1,806,328	8.5
2001	175,888	1,848,537	9.5
2005	217,063	1,994,139	10.9
2006	206,185	2,001,608	10.3

Although fluctuating, the percentage NEET has risen slightly overall between 1997 and 2004 with a rise to a peak in 2005. This was due to a combination of factors; numbers in education and training fell at the start of the decade, and numbers in employment have fallen since 2003.

More encouraging though, the latest (2006) NEET figures show that the proportion of young people who are NEET fell, especially among 16 and 17-year-olds. The last three years have seen a steady rise in participation rates, which shows that our education reforms are having an impact.

The number of 16 to 25-year-olds who are not in education, employment or training can be estimated using the Labour Force Survey (LFS), although it should be noted that these are not directly comparable to the SFR estimates. The following figures are for individuals between the academic age of 16 and 25 who were NEET in 1997, 2001, 2005, and 2006. They are estimates from quarter 4 (October-December) of the LFS, which historically has been the quarter providing figures closest to the SFR for 16 to 18-year-olds.

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold this information.

HEALTH

Ambulance Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in developing measures of patient outcome and experience of provision of NHS ambulance services referred to on page 60 of Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance services, published on 30 June 2005. [156797]

Mr. Bradshaw: Recommendations concerning audit, including measures around patient outcome and experience, are the responsibility of the ambulance trusts, and are currently being addressed by the ambulance trusts.

Ambulance Services: Emergency Calls

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to implement the recommendation in paragraph 4.13 of Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance services, published on 30 June 2005, to encourage greater clinical decision-making during initial telephone calls to (a) 999, (b) NHS Direct, (c) out-of-hours providers and (d) other telephone access points in the NHS. [156798]

Mr. Bradshaw: Ambulance services across the country work with partner agencies to implement referral pathways and introduce telephone advice systems into their operations centres. Ambulance Trusts are also currently taking forward work on the delivery of a national competency framework, and of a performance management framework, for control rooms and these will be used to inform the development of nationally recognised education and training programmes for ambulance call handling staff.

With regard to NHS Direct, out-of-hours providers and other telephone access points, it is for the care providers to ensure that calls are handled efficiently and safely to ensure the right outcomes for patients. NHS Direct and out-of-hours providers work to nationally agreed standards, including response times, and the Royal College of General Practitioners has developed a toolkit which will assist primary care trusts, and help providers to monitor their performance against the out-of-hours quality requirements.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he has made in increasing consistency in call handling across urgent care referred to in Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance services, published on 30 June 2005. [156799]

Mr. Bradshaw: Ambulance trusts are working with other care providers to improve consistency in call handling. Measures include multi-agency agreed referral pathways between services, and the development of technical links between providers to minimise call waiting times and improve patient satisfaction.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has established the standard competency framework and core training syllabus for call-handling staff referred to in Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services, published on 30 June 2005. [156802]

Mr. Bradshaw: Ambulance trusts are currently taking forward work on the delivery of a national competency framework, and of a performance management framework, for control rooms and these will be used to inform the development of nationally recognised education and training programmes for ambulance call handling staff.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has commissioned to establish the level of medical support necessary to maximise the effectiveness of clinical telephone advice following publication of Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services on 30 June 2005. [156811]

Mr. Bradshaw: No research has been commissioned to establish the level of medical support necessary to maximise the effectiveness of clinical telephone advice. All services are, however, expected to have appropriate clinical governance arrangements in place to monitor safety and patient satisfaction with any clinical advice that is provided.

Ambulance Services: Protective Clothing

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requests he has received from ambulance trusts for additional funding for the purchase of stab proof vests. [155977]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is not aware of having received any requests from ambulance trusts for additional funding for the purchase of stab proof vests.

Ambulance staff across the country can have stab vests if it is decided they are necessary by their local NHS ambulance trust, with some ambulance services already having introduced them.

Ambulance Services: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department plans to issue revised guidance or instructions to primary care trusts on optimum ambulance travel times to accident and emergency units. [157017]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has not issued guidance or recommendations on travelling times to accident and emergency (A and E) departments, and there are no plans to issue such guidance or instructions to primary care trust's.

The way the national health service responds to emergencies needs to focus not just on getting the patient to a location but also on taking care to the patient. This is why it is necessary to focus on a range of measures, including response times by the ambulance service, its ability to administer a wide range of treatment and provision of urgent and social care in the community.

It is a matter for the local NHS to ensure there is appropriate provision of urgent and emergency care services that are responsive to people's needs. This includes A and E provision. The aim should be to provide safe, high quality care as close to home as is compatible with clinical safety.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department issues on safe travel times for emergency admissions to hospitals in England. [157018]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has not issued guidance on travel times for emergency admissions to hospitals in England.

The way the national health service responds to emergencies needs to focus not just on getting the patient to a location but also on taking care of the patient. This is why it is necessary to focus on a range of measures, including response times by the ambulance service its ability to administer a wide range of treatment and provision of urgent and social care in the community.

It is a matter for the local NHS to ensure there is appropriate provision of urgent and emergency care services that are responsive to people's needs. This includes accident and emergency provision. The aim should be to provide safe, high quality care as close to home as is compatible with clinical safety.

Ambulance Services: West Midlands

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will assess the (a) methodology and (b) accuracy of the analysis conducted by the West Midlands Ambulance Service of responses to its consultation on reconfiguration of its emergency operations centres. [158227]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is clear that arrangements for where ambulance service control rooms are situated, and how calls into the control rooms are received, are a matter for the ambulance services themselves.

The consultation on changes to emergency operations centres currently being held by the West Midlands Ambulance Service is locally led. Therefore, the West Midlands Ambulance Service would be in the best position to provide more details about the arrangements in place in this area.

Barlborough Independent Sector Treatment Centre

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients have been treated in each of the last three years by the Barlborough Independent Sector Treatment Centre. [156583]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of procedures that have been carried out at Barlborough NHS Treatment Centre in each of the last three years since it opened on 1 April 2005 are shown in the following table.

	Number of patients
April 2005 to March 2006	3,668
April 2006 to March 2007	3,864
April to August 2007	1,681
Total	9,233

Care Homes: Crewe

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many private care homes are situated in Crewe and Nantwich; how many residents are in each unit; on what date each was last inspected; how many have contracts with the local primary care trust or social services departments for residences from Crewe and Nantwich; and what the average payment is for such contracts. [156064]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have been informed by the Chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that data on the numbers of homes in Crewe and Nantwich constituency are not available separately.

As at 10 September 2007, there were 124 privately-run care homes within the boundaries of Cheshire council area, which includes Crewe and Nantwich. The following table shows types of home, the number of beds registered at each and with the most recent inspection date. Information on occupancy levels and contracts with primary care trusts and local authorities and their value is not collected centrally.

Clacton Hospital: Closures

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of the recent local consultation to determine whether to shut the Peter Bruff Ward at Clacton hospital. [156984]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally. This is a matter for the local national health service and the East of England strategic health authority as the local headquarters of the NHS.

Contaminated Blood and Blood Products Inquiry

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has submitted evidence to the Archer inquiry into the safety of blood products; and if he will make a statement. [156814]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is co-operating fully with the inquiry. Officials have met the inquiry team twice, on 25 April and 19 September, to hear their concerns. The evidence held by the Department is in the form of the official documents covering these issues in the years 1970-85. These documents have been prepared in line with the Freedom of Information Act and released to the inquiry team in monthly batches starting in June, and the final batch will be released this month.

Departments: Offices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to establish regional offices of his Department; and whether they will be based on (a) strategic health authorities and (b) Government Office for the Region boundaries. [158186]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have no plans to establish regional offices of the Department.

The Department already has a public health presence which is co-located in each Government office for the region.

Following its high level review, the Department has considered options to improve our capacity and capability at a regional level; to strengthen our relationships with local authorities across their responsibilities for adult social care and improving public health.'

Our proposals focus on building the capability and capacity of our presence in each Government office for the region. Our proposals do not suggest any change to the functions of strategic health authorities.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155892]

Dawn Primarolo: Figures for spend 2007-08 are as follows:

Sexual health: total campaign budget £1,177,000 (advertising expenditure only).

Spend to date on specified channels

TV	565,000
Radio	187,000
Press	195,000

Further planned spend:

Radio: £230,000

Flu immunisation: total budget £879,000 (advertising expenditure only).

Spend to date on specified channels

TV	542,000
Press	282,000
Radio	42,000

Further £13,000 is planned for later in the year.

Hepatitis C: total budget: £890,000 (advertising expenditure only).

Planned spend

Press	300,000

Tobacco control: £11,390,000 (advertising expenditure only).

TV	3,400,000
Radio	755,000
Press	735,000

Further £6,500,000 is planned for the rest of the year.

The aforementioned figures only refer to campaigns which are solely funded by the Department.

Next financial year (2008-09)

Figures for spend 2008-09 cannot be provided at this stage as budget and media allocations have not been finalised.

Departments: Reorganisation

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the basis is for the decision to put in place new arrangements for a comprehensive regional presence outlined in his Department's Capability Review and Development Plan, published on 12 September 2007; which arrangements currently exist to support the Department's regional presence; whether he anticipates the reconfiguration of strategic health authorities in support of the new arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [156808]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following its high level review, the Department has considered options to improve our capacity and capability at a regional level; to strengthen our relationships with local authorities across their responsibilities for adult social care and improving public health.

At present the Department has a smaller presence in each Government office for the regions (GOR) than comparable Departments of State.

Our proposals focus on building the capability and capacity of our presence in each GOR. Our proposals do not suggest any change to the functions of strategic health authorities.

Departments: Temporary Employment

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of his Department's staff were provided by agencies at the most recent date for which figures are available; and what the (a) average, (b) highest and (c) lowest cost was per agency staff member for the most recent period for which figures are available. [156188]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not keep records that would provide such an analysis of agency staff. The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Emergency Services: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people resident in Suffolk were charged with attacking emergency service workers in each of the last 10 years. [156766]

Ann Keen: This information is not collated centrally in relation to emergency workers engaged in delivery of national health service services.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the written statement of 24 July 2007, Official Report, columns 52-4WS, on GP services (better access), what the scope is of Lord Darzi's work on the Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF); whether his work will inform the QOF indicators which will apply in 2008-09; how Lord Darzi plans to seek views from (a) GPs, (b) other NHS staff and (c) other interested parties on his work; and if he will make a statement. [154515]

Ann Keen: The national health service Next Stage review announced on 4 July and led by Lord Darzi is addressing four challenges as set out in the terms of reference available in the Library and summarised as follows:

ensuring clinical decision making is at the heart of the NHS; improving the quality of patient care;

delivering more accessible and convenient care, reflecting best value for money; and ensuring services are responsive to patients and local communities.

In pursuing these issues, the review will consider the provision of primary medical services and the underpinning contractual incentives including the quality and outcomes framework. Discussions with the British Medical Association (BMA) and others about contractual matters are being taken forward in the normal way.

In the past 10 weeks Lord Darzi has met more than 1,500 patients and NHS staff to garner their views on the issues in question. He has also met the representatives of 250 stakeholder groups, including patient representative organisations, NHS trusts, primary care trusts and strategic health authorities, as well as Royal Colleges and the voluntary sector and seen 1,400 letters and emails from individuals.

Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many urgent care networks there are in England; where they operate; and if he will make a statement. [156800]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not collected centrally. However, we have commissioned the Medical Care Research Unit at Sheffield University to investigate the operation of urgent and emergency care networks in the national health service.

Health Services: Bedfordshire

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) target levels of funding based on health needs and (b) actual level of funding received was for (i) the Bedfordshire Primary Care Trust and (ii) the Luton Primary Care Trust in each year since the trusts were established; and if he will make a statement. [155632]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Revenue allocations were made to primary care trusts (PCT) for the first time in 2003-04. The following table show the allocations and distance from targets for Bedfordshire PCT and Luton PCT for the two allocation rounds 2003-06 and 2006-08.

PCT name	Actual allocation (£000)	Closing distance from target (Percentage)
2003-04
Bedfordshire PCT	299,591	-3.2
Luton PCT	153,586	-6.7
2004-05
Bedfordshire PCT	328,456	-3.0
Luton PCT	168,759	-6.3
2005-06
Bedfordshire PCT	359,454	-2.9
Luton PCT	185,096	-6.0
2006-07
Bedfordshire PCT	434,053	-4.4
Luton PCT	223,068	-5.1
2007-08
Bedfordshire PCT	483,955	-3.3
Luton PCT	247,703	-3.5

Notes:
1. 2003-04 to 2007-08 allocations were made to Bedford PCT and Bedfordshire Heartlands PCT, which merged to form Bedfordshire PCT on 1 October 2006.
2. 2003-04 to 2005-06 allocations were covered by a single resource allocation formula, which also took account of general medical services (GMS NCL) expenditure. Most GMS NCL funding was included in 2006-07 and 2007-08 allocations.
3. The distance from target (DFT) represents the actual allocation compared to the target allocation. With a DFT of -1 per cent. the actual allocation is 1 per cent. less than the target allocation.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account has been taken of (a) the number of people who have difficulties with the English language in Bedfordshire and Luton, (b) the sustainable communities growth areas, (c) the provision of (i) prescribing services, (ii) primary medical services, (iii) HIV/AIDS services for Bedfordshire and Luton and (iv) hospital and community health services, (d) the level of inward migration into Bedfordshire and Luton, (e) the weighted population for Bedfordshire and Luton, (f) the pace of change element for Bedfordshire and Luton and (g) the particular health needs of Bedfordshire and Luton when allocating funds for (A) Bedfordshire Primary Care Trust and (B) Luton Primary Care Trust; and if he will make a statement. [155926]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The formula which informed 2006-07 and 2007-08 allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) is described in "Resource allocation: weighted capitation formula (fifth edition)".

The calculations behind 2006-07 and 2007-08 allocations, including populations, age, need, market forces factor and other adjustments, and pace of change policy are provided for the 303 PCTs to which those allocations were made in the publication entitled "2006-07 and 2007-08 PCT initial revenue resource limits".

Both publications are available in the Library and at www.dh.gov.uk/allocations

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the age and accuracy of statistical information used when allocating funds for (a) Bedfordshire Primary Care Trust and (b) Luton Primary Care Trust; and if he will make a statement. [155928]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The weighted capitation formula that is used to inform revenue allocations to primary care trusts is continuously overseen and developed by the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation (ACRA).

"Resource allocation: weighted capitation formula (fifth edition)" describes the statistical information in the weighted capitation formula which informed allocations to primary care trusts in 2006-07 and 2007-08.

"Allocation of resources to English areas; individual and small area determinants of morbidity and use of healthcare resources (Sutton M, Gravelle H, Morris S, Leyland A, Windmeijer F, Dibben C, Muirhead M)", report to the Department, further explains the statistical information used to develop need adjustments in the hospital and community health services and prescribing components of the formula.

Both publications are available in the Library and also at www.dh.gov.uk/allocations

ACRA also keep the accuracy of the information under review.

Health Services: Community Care

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are in receipt of NHS continuing care services in each primary care trust; and what percentage this represents per 50,000 of each trust's population. [158432]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Continuing care, primary care trusts (PCT)

Department of Health form LDPR 2007-08 Q1, Office for National Statistics 2005 mid-year population estimates.

Hearing Impaired: Waiting Times

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the waiting times are for digital hearing aid (a) assessment and (b) fitting in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area. [157997]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The latest figures for July 2007 indicate that the number of people waiting over 13 weeks for an audiology assessment at Stockport Primary Care Trust was 1,296. The Department does not collect data on the numbers of people waiting to be fitted with a hearing aid.

Hospital Beds

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets were set for delayed discharge of patients aged (a) below 65 years and (b) 65 years and over in each year since 1997. [157704]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The national health service plan contained a commitment to reduce widespread delayed discharges by 2004.

Councils and their NHS partners have already made significant progress in reducing delays in hospital. Between September 2001 and June 2007 the number of people over the age of 75 delayed in hospital reduced from 5,673 to 1,627, a reduction of 71 per cent., and total delays for the same period reduced from 7,065 to 2,173, a reduction of 69 per cent.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many delayed discharges there were of patients aged (a) below 65 years and (b) 65 years and over nationally in each year since 1997, broken down by health trust. [157705]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information has been placed in the Library.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was to the public purse of the Ipsos MORI research study on public engagement to inform the 2007 pandemic influenza national framework and supporting guidance, published on 30 May 2007; whether his Department is undertaking any other programmes of work to engage the public on plans to prioritise treatment in the event of an influenza pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [156772]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of the research study on public engagement was £59,000. After the publication of the "National Framework for responding to an influenza pandemic" in the autumn, we will further test the public's reactions to many issues in pandemic planning and decision-making. This will include issues of prioritisation of access, should that be necessary, to clinical countermeasures. Work continues on the design of a public engagement programme to facilitate this process.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the modelling referred to in the paper published on his Department's website on 8 August 2007 entitled Use of antiviral drugs in an influenza pandemic. [156774]

Dawn Primarolo: The modelling summary referred to in the antiviral paper has been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/sagpf/minutes/modelling-implications-summary-jan07.pdf.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the potential impact of an influenza pandemic on the (a) supply of and (b) demand for (i) blood and (ii) blood components; what steps he is taking to ensure an adequate supply of blood in the event of a pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [156778]

Dawn Primarolo: NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT), together with the Department modelling team, have created a series of planning assumptions based on the best available estimates of demand for blood, the experience within NHSBT and that of other blood services, and the best possible estimate of supply under these conditions. While supply is dependent upon donors continuing to make altruistic gestures during the pandemic the current estimate based on these assumptions is that, in the worst case scenario, supply could fall by about 20 to 30 per cent.

Likewise, the estimates that can be made for demand are based on best available evidence and current knowledge. NHSBT's conservative estimate is that current demand for red cells could fall by about 10 to 25 per cent., while the demand for fresh frozen plasma and platelets could reduce by lesser amounts, although it is possible that demand could fall further.

NHSBT has a well-developed emergency planning system, which includes specific plans covering pandemic influenza. NHSBT's plans are regularly reviewed and updated to keep them in line with the latest emerging guidance.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths resulting from influenza infection there were in each year since 1979; what the population coverage of seasonal influenza immunisation was in each year since 1979; and in which years since 1979 there were epidemics of seasonal influenza. [156780]

Dawn Primarolo: It is not possible to determine the precise number of deaths due to influenza in a population because influenza itself is rarely the direct cause of death. Influenza may be complicated by bacterial infections, such as pneumonia, or may worsen an underlying illness, such as heart disease, and death results from the subsequent illness. In addition, by the time someone whose illness began with influenza gets to hospital, or dies, no evidence is apparent that the individual had influenza.

As a result, estimates of the number of deaths resulting from influenza epidemics are based on the number of deaths from all causes occurring during a period when influenza is circulating in the community, from which is subtracted the total number of deaths that would have been expected to have occurred in the absence of on influenza epidemic. This is generally referred to as the number of excess deaths due to influenza.

Estimates for excess deaths from influenza in England and Wales have been made by the Health Protection Agency for the 1988-89 to 2005-06 influenza seasons, and are given in the following table:

Estimated excess deaths due to influenza in England and Wales

Influenza season	Number of excess deaths
1988-89	358
1989-90	26,945
1990-91	8,125
1991-92	5,967
1992-93	1,687
1993-94	14,544
1994-95	2,480
1995-96	16,241
1996-97	21,770
1997-98	0
1998-99	17,982
1999-2000	22,040
2000-01	1,067
2001-02	7,078
2002-03	6,559
2003-04	5,207
2004-05	1,795

Flu vaccine uptake in those aged 65 and over since 2000-01 is shown in the following table. Data were not held centrally prior to 2000-01.

	Uptake in those aged 65 and over (Percentage)
2000-01	65.4
2001-02	67.5
2002-03	68.6
2003-04	71.0
2004-05	71.5
2005-06	75.3
2006-07	74.0

Epidemic years have been classified as those in which "higher than average seasonal activity" has occurred. Since 1979, the following seasons would be classified as epidemic using this definition: 1989-90, 1993-94, 1996-97, 1998-99 and 1999-2000.

Influenza Pandemic

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1223W, on influenza pandemic, whether any of the stockpile of A/H5N1 vaccines have been used; at what cost the stockpile was purchased; and what the shelf-life of the vaccine is. [156749]

Dawn Primarolo: None of the current stockpile of H5N1 vaccine has been used. The stockpile was purchased at a cost of £33.4 million. Vaccine from two different manufacturers has been stockpiled. Vaccine from one manufacturer has a shelf life of two years and the vaccine from the other has a shelf life of 12 months, and is subject to on-going stability testing by the National Institute for Biological Standards and Control and the manufacturers.

Mental Health Services

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds were available in England for those with mental health problems in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [157607]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is shown in the following table. The reduction in mental health bed numbers reflects the increasing provision by the national health service in England of treatment for patients with mental health conditions in primary care and community settings, without the need for hospital admissions.

Average daily beds available for acute mental health services in the national health service in England

	Number
1996-97	37,640
1997-98	36,601

Department of Health form KH03.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients in England with mental health problems were prescribed (a) drug and (b) psychological treatment in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [157608]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Around 7 million adults in England have a common mental health problem, with approximately 90 per cent. of these people being treated in primary care. However, information is not collected centrally about diagnoses for any condition in primary care, so reliable data are not available about the number of people who receive, or have received specific treatments, including those with mental health problems who have been prescribed drug treatments or psychological therapies.

We know that there is a significant level of unmet need for people suffering with depression and/or anxiety disorders. This is why the Government announced on 10 October their commitment to building a new psychological therapy service, with additional investment rising to £170 million over the next three years. By 2011, this service will help to treat 900,000 more people with depression, who would otherwise not have been treated.

Mentally Ill: Public Participation

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations his Department received from the voluntary sector about mental illness in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [157609]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not collected by the Department.

The Department is committed to working with all mental health stakeholders. The voluntary and community sector has had and continues to have a positive role in both helping to shape policy and its implementation, and in delivering services to people with mental illness.

Mentally Ill: Suicide

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many suicides were committed by those with mental illness in England in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [157606]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of suicides by people in contact with mental health services in England in each year from 1997 to 2005 is as follows:

	Number
1997	1,203
1998	1,253
1999	1,258
2000	1,248
2001	1,258
2002	1,246
2003	1,235
2004	1,280

[1] 87 per cent. complete.

Information on suicides by people in contact with mental health services is collected by the National Confidential Inquiry (NCI) into Suicide and Homicide by People with Mental Illness. The NCI is funded by the National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA) to ensure that everyone involved in mental health services learns and implements lessons from the factors associated with serious mental illness. The Department has been and remains committed to taking appropriate action in response to the inquiry's findings.

Mobile Phones: Health Hazards

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent discussions he has had with the mobile phone industry on developing increased protection for users from radiation from prolonged mobile phone use; [157416]

(2) what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on developing greater protection for users from radiation from prolonged mobile phone use. [157418]

Dawn Primarolo: No discussions have taken place with the mobile phone industry or our European counterparts on such matters. Mobile phones comply with the international guidelines set out in the European Council Recommendation EC/519/1999.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evaluation his Department has made of recent international research into the health effects of prolonged mobile phone use. [157417]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department receives advice from the Health Protection Agency (HPA) on the health effects of electromagnetic fields and radiofrequency radiation exposure such as that emitted by mobile phones. The HPA's independent Advisory Group on Non-ionising Radiation published a comprehensive detailed review of mobile-phone related studies in "Health Effects from Radiofrequency Electromagnetic Fields" (Documents of the NRPB, Vol. 14, No. 2, 2003). This report and HPA advice are available on its website at www.hpa.org.uk/radiation. More recently a number of individual studies have been published and will be taken into account in the next detailed review. It may be appropriate to undertake such a review when the results of the large international INTERPHONE study are known.

The INTERPHONE study is being co-ordinated by the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC), a part of the World Health Organization located in Lyon, France. IARC published an update on 25 September 2007, in which it indicated the study is nearing completion and summarised the results from scientific papers that have already been published by some of the national components. The update is available at:

www.iarc.fr/ENG/Units/INTERPHONEresultsupdate.pdf

The programme management committee of the UK's Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research Programme (MTHR) published a report on 12 September 2007. The MTHR report described the work it has supported in the United Kingdom and placed it in context with work going on in other parts of the world. The committee's report is available at:

www.mthr.org.uk/.

Modernising Medical Careers

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his response is to each of the questions in Sir John Tooke's interim report on medical careers. [157207]

Ann Keen: The Department would like to thank Sir John Tooke and his review group for investing so much time and expertise in providing recommendations for the future of medical training for 2009 and beyond. We will consider Sir John's findings carefully.

Since the interim report is out to consultation it is inappropriate to comment in detail to each of the questions raised.

NHS Treatment Centres

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1200W, on NHS Treatment Centres, whether the review of NHS walk-in centre funding arrangements is complete; and when he plans to publish the review report. [156747]

Mr. Bradshaw: An initial review of NHS walk-in centres and their funding arrangements has been undertaken. Further work is now taking place as part of the package of measures announced in the interim report of the national health service next stage review, including the development of a strategy for primary and community care. The conclusions of this work will be published in due course.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many providers of clinical decision support software supply products to the NHS there are; which providers (a) supplied such software to the NHS in June 2005 and (b) supply software now; what steps he is taking to rationalise the number of software programmes used following the recommendation in paragraph 4.8 of Taking Healthcare to the Patient: Transforming NHS Ambulance Services, published on 30 June 2005; and if he will make a statement. [156803]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not centrally hold information on providers of software used by all ambulance trusts in June 2005. Ambulance services across England now use only one call prioritisation system for 999 call handling, the internationally recognised Advanced Medical Priority Dispatch System, with the exception of north-east ambulance service who are piloting NHS Pathways, and the Royal Berkshire area of south central ambulance service, who are using a computerised criteria based despatch system.

NHS: Research

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total allocated budget is for NHS research for each of the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. [157929]

£ million

National Institute for Health Research budget[1]	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Revenue	829.8	879.4	942
Capital	50	50	50
Total	879.8	929.4	992

[1] Includes medical and dental research training.

NHS: Translation Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS spent on translators in each of the last five years. [157702]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National health service bodies are not required to report their planned or actual spending on interpretation and translation services to the Department. When planning such services, NHS bodies should take due account of their legal duties, the composition of the communities they serve, and the needs and circumstances of their patients, service users and local populations.

Nurses: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many matrons were employed in the NHS in each year since 1997. [156779]

Mr. Bradshaw: Modern matrons were recorded for the first time in the 2005 annual workforce census.

Prior to 2001, the pay grade "matron" had been obsolete for over 30 years as the number of nurse managers had been recorded in the national health service census with general and senior managers.

The September 2006 census showed there were 1,982 modern matrons in post, an increase of 376 or 23.4 per cent. since 2005. Numbers of community matrons were recorded for the first time in 2005. The September 2006 census showed there were 366 community matrons in post, an increase of 99 or 37.1 per cent. on 2005.

We are committed to increasing the number of community matrons and local development plans strongly suggest this is happening. Anecdotal evidence suggests there are more community matrons in post than the census suggests.

Personal Care Services

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place a note in the Library updating that of January 2004 on the costs of free personal care. [157780]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In England, the Government have accepted each of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on long-term care except the recommendation that personal care should be provided free at the point of delivery to all in all settings. We estimate that the cost of implementing free personal care in England would be around £1.5 billion at 2003-04 prices.

The Personal Social Services Research Unit has recently published 'Paying for Long-Term Care for Older People in the UK: Modelling the Costs and Distributional Effects of a Range of Options', which models a range of options for funding long-term care, including making personal care free to all in all settings.

The report gives estimated public expenditure costs at 2002 prices of between £1.35 billion and £1.8 billion, depending on the way in which free personal care is implemented. This covers residential and home care for older people. It covers the whole of the United Kingdom. The England equivalent range would be about £1.2 billion to £1.6 billion. These estimates take account of limited offsetting savings of disability benefits.

Pharmacy

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost was of a medicines use review per patient in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what assessment he has made of the benefits to patients of such reviews; [156752]

(2) what percentage of medicines use reviews resulted in a change of drug treatment or dosage in 2006; [156753]

(3) how many medicines use reviews were conducted in Wirral in 2006; and at what cost; [156754]

(4) what factors are considered before a medicines use review is undertaken; [156755]

(5) what happens to the drugs prescribed to a patient before a treatment change as a result of a medicines use review. [156756]

Dawn Primarolo: Medicines use reviews (MUR) aim to improve patients' knowledge and use of the medicines prescribed for them, through a specific consultation between an accredited pharmacist and the patient. They may be triggered by concerns over patient concordance or where the patient is receiving medicines regularly and the pharmacist thinks a patient may benefit from an MUR. MURs can be conducted with patients on multiple medicines and those with long-term conditions, every 12 months. Primary care trusts (PCTs) can identify patient groups that would particularly benefit from such a review. Routine MURs, initiated by the pharmacist, must only be provided for patients who have been using the pharmacy for the dispensing of prescriptions for at least the previous three months.

The fee payable to accredited pharmacies providing this service increased from £23 to £25 per MUR from 1 October 2006, and from £25 to £27 per MUR from 1 October 2007.

In 2006-07, accredited pharmacies in the area covered by Wirral Primary Care Trust were paid £100,185 for providing 4,091 MURs. The Prescription Pricing Division (PPD) of the NHS Business Services Authority records the number of claims contractors make for MURs they have provided. The data for Wirral PCT were sourced from the PPD Information System and do not include adjustments for overpayments or the late submission of claims.

Information on the number of drug treatments or dosages changed as a result of an MUR is not collected centrally. The Department has not made any national assessment of the benefits of MURs.

Any dispensed medicines no longer required as a result of an MUR should be returned to a pharmacy for safe disposal.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) HIV, (b) chlamydia, (c) gonorrhoea, (d) syphilis, (e) genital warts and (f) genital herpes there were in England in each year since 1997. [156792]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is provided in the following tables.

Individuals newly diagnosed with HIV in England by year of diagnosis (1997-2006)—cumulative data to the end of June 2007

	Number
1997	2,542
1998	2,661

Thrombosis

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussion the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) and his Department's Implementation Working Group have had with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) on the differences between the CMO's recommendations for the prevention of venous thromboembolism (VTE) in hospitalised patients and the NICE guidelines on reducing the risk of VTE in patients undergoing surgery; and if he will make a statement. [154349]

Dawn Primarolo: The Chief Medical Officer and Dr. Anita Thomas OBE, the chair of the Implementation Working Group, have had discussions with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence about improving the prevention and management of venous thromboembolism (VTE). The focus of these discussions has been on how all parties can work closely together to ensure that the risk of VTE can be minimised, for example by assessing what needs to be done to make a risk assessment for every hospitalised patient a reality.

WALES

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157925]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office has operated one bilingual website since 2001 at a running cost of £1,600 per annum.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157926]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office operates one bilingual website. It does not record number of visitors.

General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [156991]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

SCOTLAND

Energy Supply

8. Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on energy supply issues. [156896]

David Cairns: The Government's position on energy supply was set out clearly in our Energy White paper. The Scottish Executive has responded to the White Paper and to our consultation on nuclear energy.

Drugs in Prison

9. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he next expects to meet Ministers from the Scottish Executive to discuss policy on drugs in prisons. [156897]

David Cairns: I have no plans to meet Scottish Ministers to discuss this matter.

Economic Trends

10. Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent assessment he has made of economic trends in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [156898]

11. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the performance of the Scottish economy in the last quarter. [156899]

Des Browne: Thanks to the policies of this Government the Scottish economy is performing admirably with economic growth of 2.4 per cent. for the year to Q1, which continues to exceed the long-term average, and extends an impressive run of 11 consecutive quarters of greater than trend growth.

International Aid

12. John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the First Minister of Scotland on international aid and development. [156900]

David Cairns: No such discussions have taken place.

Glasgow Commonwealth Games Bid

13. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with Scottish Ministers on the Glasgow Commonwealth Games bid. [156901]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has been working closely with the Scottish Executive, DCMS and the Intellectual Property Office to facilitate and support Glasgow's bid for the 2014 Games.

Clean Coal

14. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the future for clean coal in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [156902]

David Cairns: As made clear in the Energy White Paper, the Government are working at a national and international level to develop clean coal technology. I have had a number of meetings with the coal industry and related sectors in Scotland at which clean coal technology has been discussed.

Wind Farms

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussion he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on generation of electricity by wind farms in Scotland. [156892]

Des Browne: I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on a wide range of energy matters, including generation from wind farms. In the last couple of months I have also met Scottish and Southern Energy, ScottishPower and Talisman Energy Ltd.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK military and related personnel have been maimed or injured in Afghanistan since June 2006, broken down by (a) category and (b) severity of injury. [156590]

Derek Twigg: Information on casualty figures for Afghanistan can be found on the relevant section of the MOD website, which is updated twice per month at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/FactSheets/OperationsFactsheets/OperationsInAfghanistanBritishCasualties.htm

Between 1 June 2006 and 15 September 2007, field hospitals in Afghanistan recorded 842 admissions for UK military and civilian personnel. Of these, 249 were categorised as wounded in action, with the other 593 admitted for disease or non-battle injuries.

Over the same period, 33 personnel were recorded as very seriously injured or wounded and 36 as seriously injured or wounded.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel have lost limbs, or parts thereof, from mine strikes in Afghanistan on (a) WMIK and (b) Snatch Landrover vehicles. [157162]

Derek Twigg: I will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK infantry units in Afghanistan are not equipped with the Blue Force tracker system. [157305]

Des Browne: No UK infantry units are equipped with the Blue Force tracker system, which is a US system. All formed company-level UK infantry units in Afghanistan are equipped with Bowman, which provides a blue force tracking capability. Other systems are also available to UK forces in Afghanistan. I am withholding details of the distribution of free standing blue force tracking systems as their release would prejudice the safety or security of our armed forces.

Armed Forces: Commonwealth

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many recruits from the new Commonwealth have applied to have their (a) spouse and (b) children join them in the UK in each of the last five years; and how many have applied for British citizenship since becoming members of the armed forces. [156325]

Derek Twigg: It is very much a personal decision as to whether non-British personnel bring their families over to the UK to join them, and whether serving members of the armed forces apply for British citizenship. The information requested is therefore not recorded by the Department.

Armed Forces: Correspondence

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many instances of lost mail between military personnel and their families have been recorded in the last 12 months. [157049]

Derek Twigg: The British Forces Post Office handles approximately 92 million items of mail per year. Between October 2006 and October 2007 there have been 520 confirmed claims for non-delivery of mail.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will undertake a review of the provision of post-operative rehabilitation services available to members of the armed forces who have suffered injury while carrying out their duties; and if he will make a statement. [158716]

Derek Twigg: MOD has excellent medical rehabilitation services. If military patients require further rehabilitation care following initial hospital treatment, they may be referred to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (DMRC) at Headley Court in Surrey, which is the principal medical rehabilitation centre run by the armed forces and widely praised for its work. DMRC provides both physiotherapy and group rehabilitation for complex musculo-skeletal injuries, plus neuro-rehabilitation for brain-injured patients, after they have completed their hospital care.

In exceptional circumstances, where specialist care is required that cannot be provided at Headley Court, such as cases of severe brain trauma, patients may be referred to specialist facilities in either NHS or private facilities.

The Complex Rehabilitation and Amputee Unit, based within DMRC, provides high quality prosthetics and adaptations, manufactured on site and individually tailored as necessary to the specific patient. Priority is given to the provision of prosthetics to enable service personnel to resume service duties. In July 2007, I opened officially a new 30-bed annex at Headley Court, providing accommodation for low-dependency patients.

Personnel with less serious musculo-skeletal injuries may also be referred to one of MOD's 15 Regional Rehabilitation Units in the UK and Germany, which provide accessible, regionally-based assessment and treatment, including physiotherapy and group rehabilitation facilities. They are staffed by specially trained doctors, physiotherapists and rehabilitation instructors, and enable patients to be assessed and treated in a timely fashion, with the aim of returning them to operational fitness when this is clinically possible.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the disposals made to fund the £80 million towards single living accommodation announced on 25 September; and how much was generated by each. [157034]

Derek Twigg: This additional investment is not directly linked to one specific disposal.

Army: Drugs

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the principal conclusions are of the 12 month study by the Directorate of Army personnel strategy begun in April 2006, with particular reference to the reasons given for drug use by those who tested positive for (a) cannabis only, (b) ecstasy only and (c) cocaine only. [157337]

Derek Twigg: The research report 'Prevention of Drug Misuse in the Army' study, which is being conducted by the Directorate of Army Personnel Strategy, has not yet concluded.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason no debate, consultation or oral statement took place in the House before the decision announced in his written statement of 25 July to allow the installation and operation by the US Administration of equipment to allow receipt of satellite warnings of potentially hostile missile launches at RAF Menwith Hill; and whether any intelligence received via the installation will be made available to the United Kingdom at the same time as to the United States. [157315]

Des Browne: Defence Ministers routinely answer written and oral questions on missile defence issues and there are regular defence debates scheduled throughout the year to allow MPs to raise specific issues on the Floor of the House. My written ministerial statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 71WS was intended to keep the House informed of developments in areas of UK support to the US missile defence programme.

The missile attack warning information to be routed through RAF Menwith Hill will be shared between the UK and US, as indicated in my written statement of 25 July 2007.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when a Memorandum of Understanding was signed between the UK and US governments on the formal use of RAF Menwith Hill in the American Missile Defense System; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [157779]

Des Browne: There is no memorandum of understanding covering these specific arrangements.

D Notices

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many D-Notices were issued by the Defence Press and Broadcasting Advisory Committee in each year since 1997. [158231]

Des Browne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: D Notices were replaced by the Defence Advisory (DA) Notice system in 1993. There are five standing DA Notices that constitute a voluntary code that provides guidance to the United Kingdom media on the publication and broadcasting of national security information. They cover:

DA Notice No 1: Military Operations and Plans;

DA Notice No 2: Nuclear and Non-Nuclear Weapons and Equipment;

DA Notice No 3: Ciphers and Secure Communications;

DA Notice No 4: Sensitive Installations and Home Addresses;

DA Notice No 5: United Kingdom Security and Intelligence Service and;

Special Services.

These are published at:

www.dnotice.org.uk.

Additional guidance is issued on behalf of the Committee by its Secretary to all editors in the United Kingdom to cover specific circumstances or to meet particular concerns. Since January 1997, the Committee Secretary has written to all UK editors on the following occasions in relation to various DA Notices:

1997: No record of any letter being issued;

1998: No record of any letter being issued;

1999: Three letters;

2000: Two letters;

2001: Three letters;

2002: One letter;

2003: Two letters;

2004: Two letters;

2005: Two letters;

2006: Two letters;

2007: Seven letters.

The Defence Press and Broadcasting Advisory Committee Secretary may also write on behalf of the Committee to a particular editor, author or broadcaster when a breach in the DA Notice guidance is judged to have occurred. Such letters are written on a 'personal and in confidence' basis, to remind the editor, broadcaster or author concerned of the content of the code and the availability of advice. Since January 1997, the Secretary has written to individual editors on the following occasions:

1997: One letter;

1998: No record of any letters being issued;

1999: Two letters;

2000: Five letters;

2001: Five letters;

2002: Six letters;

2003: Four letters;

2004: Three letters;

2005: Four letters;

2006: Nil;

2007: Nil.

Defence Export Services Organisation: Offices

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where the overseas offices of the Defence Export Services Organisation are situated; when each office was established; how many staff are employed in each; and what the cost of each (a) was in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07 and (b) is expected to be in 2007-08. [156339]

Des Browne: The information on overseas offices of the Defence Export Services Organisation (DESO) is set out in the following table. The entries for Kuwait and Saudi Arabia refer to trade promotion offices. These are separate from the Project Offices in those countries, information about which I gave the hon. Member in a written answer on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 504W. The two project offices were established in Saudi Arabia in 1987, and in Kuwait in 1993. Customer governments meet the costs of the project offices and I am withholding that information as its release would be likely to prejudice relations with those governments.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157864]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft programme; and if he will make a statement. [157953]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: AirTanker Ltd, the Department's Preferred Bidder, is currently undertaking a funding competition to raise the required private finance for the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft procurement. The consortium aims to complete this process as soon as possible.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour intervals are for each unit deploying to Iraq in the autumn. [154252]

Des Browne: Details of the most recent tour intervals for the formed Army units due to deploy to Iraq in November and December are as follows:

Unit	Tour Interval (months)
The Royal Dragoon Guards	31
1st Bn Scots Guards	31
The Royal Scots Borderers, 1st Bn The Royal Regiment of Scotland[1]	1 Royal Scots: 18 1 King's Own Scottish Borderers: 16
1st Bn The Duke of Lancaster's Regiment (King's, Lancashire and Border)[2]	n/a
1st Bn The Cheshire Regiment	37
21 Engineer Regiment	31

[1] Royal Scots and 1 King's Own Scottish Borderers amalgamated to form The Royal Scots Borderers in August 06.
[2] King's Own Royal Border Regiment, 1 King's Regiment and the 1 Queen's Lancashire Regiment amalgamated in July 2006 to form 1 Lancashire Regiment and 2 Lancashire Regiment. Op TELIC 11 will be the first unit operational deployment for 1 Lancashire Regiment.

The formation of 1 Lancashire Regiment and 2 Lancashire Regiment involved the amalgamation of 1 King's Own Royal Border Regiment, 1 King's Regiment and the Queen's Lancashire Regiment, with both of the new regiments containing personnel from each of the three original regiments. It is not possible therefore to calculate meaningful historic average tour intervals for 1 Lancashire Regiment but, for information, 1 King's Own Royal Border Regiment returned from its previous deployment in April 2006 (equivalent to an 18 months interval) and 1 King's Regiment and the Queen's Lancashire Regiment returned from their previous deployments in October 2003 (equivalent to a 50 month tour interval).

Royal Air Force ground units operate differently to those of the Army. While a unit might be deployed for four months, RAF personnel can rotate through the unit rather than remain deployed with it throughout. Therefore unit and personnel tour intervals are not necessarily the same.

Unit	Tour Interval (based upon last operational tour and current deployment)
2 Force Protection Wing Headquarters	12 months
34 Sqn Force Protection	12 months

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total annual cost was to the (a) defence budget and (b) reserve of payments made to servicemen arising from service in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan in the latest period for which figures are available. [157086]

Des Browne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The net additional cost for service personnel for service in Iraq and Afghanistan in the last period for which figures are available is as follows:

Operating cost 2006-07

Service manpower	£000 Total outturn
Iraq	99,779
Afghanistan	49,487

These net additional costs are met from the HM Treasury Reserve and not from the Defence budget.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft are in service in the RAF, broken down by type. [157047]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 509W.

Military Aircraft: Manpower

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of those who set out to be pilots of (a) Eurofighter, (b) GR7 Harrier, (c) Merlin, (d) Lynx, (e) Sea King, (f) Chinook and (g) Apache were successful in each of the last three years. [157076]

Derek Twigg: After extensive early flying training, the RAF personnel are streamed, according to aptitude into one of three streams: Fast-jet (FJ), Rotary-wing (RW) or Multi-engine (ME). All of the Army personnel go to RW, most of the Navy personnel follow this same route, although some go on to FJ training. All of this ab initio training is conducted within the Air Force system.

Following successful completion of ab initio training pilots enter an Operational Conversion Unit (OCU) where they learn to operate the specific aircraft type for which they have been selected. The following table shows pass rates for pilots entering the OCU:

	Successful (percentage)
2004-05
Typhoon	100
GR7 Harrier	92
Merlin	100
Lynx	100
Sea King	100
Chinook	94
Apache	95
2005-06
Typhoon	100
GR7 Harrier	100
Merlin	100
Lynx	100
Sea King	100
Chinook	100
Apache	98
2006-07
Typhoon	97
GR7 Harrier	100
Merlin	100
Lynx	98
Sea King	100
Chinook	94
Apache	89

Notes:
1. All totals have been rounded to the nearest whole percent.
2. Factors affecting success include: Failure to achieve course standards, medical downgrading and premature voluntary retirement. Unsuccessful candidates may be given employment elsewhere within the Service.

Nuclear Weapons: Transport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether approval has been granted for the main gate business case for the Defence Nuclear Weapons Transportation Continuation project. [157793]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Main Gate Business Case for the Nuclear Weapon Transportation Capability Continuation Project was approved on 7 May 2007.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the option to use a refurbished truck cargo heavy duty trailer for future high security vehicle or special nuclear material movements is still under consideration. [157794]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Yes.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason it is his Department's policy that convoys carrying special nuclear materials should not look the same as convoys carrying nuclear weapons; and if he will make a statement. [157796]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The nature of individual convoys will determine their constitution. I am withholding details of the procedures governing convoy operations as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security and defence of the UK.

Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many roulements have been delayed in entering theatre due to aircraft availability in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq in each year since 2001. [157039]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Each roulement involves a large number of flights.

Inevitably, some individual flights are delayed for a range of reasons. As far as our records can determine, however, in no instance since 2001 has there been a significant overall delay to a roulement, with the timing of the Transfer of Authority from the departing to the arriving force structures going ahead essentially as originally planned.

RAF Blenheim Crescent

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role is of RAF Blenheim Crescent; and for what reason it was divested to the United States Air Force on 1 October 2007. [157777]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Blenheim Crescent is currently undergoing a programme of renovation works. Upon completion of these works the following units will be based there; the European Office of Aerospace Research and Development, the US Army International Technology Center Atlantic, the Office of Naval Research Global, the Naval Criminal Investigative Service, the Joint NATO National Support Element, the Defense Energy Support Center and the Fleet Industrial Supply Center.

Blenheim Crescent was transferred to the United States Air Force for administrative purposes following the disestablishment of the Commander US Naval Activities in the UK.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many US (a) Army, (b) Navy, (c) Marines, (d) Airforce, (e) civilians and (f) contractors are working at RAF Blenheim Crescent. [157778]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Blenheim Crescent is currently vacant as the building is undergoing renovation. The US plans to move around 120 personnel into Blenheim Crescent over a period of several months with the first expected to arrive in November 2007. A precise breakdown of the final figure is not yet available although under current plans it is expected that the majority of personnel, around 50, will be employed by the US Navy with around 30 for the US Army and 25 for the US Air Force. The remainder will be a mix of contractors and civilian staff.

Sea King Helicopters

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the age is of each Sea King helicopter operated by the Department; and if he will make a statement. [157575]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the age of each Sea King helicopter currently operated by the Department.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hours of service and maintenance were needed to support one hour of flying for the Sea King helicopter fleet in each year from 1990-91 to 2006-07; what his estimate is of the equivalent figure for 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [157576]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of maintenance hours needed to support one hour of flying for the Sea King helicopter fleet are shown in the following table:

	Number
1998-99	18.3
1999-2000	15.3
2000-01	15.0
2001-02	18.5

2007-08	[1]15.2

[1] The 2007-08 hours are those recorded to date (i.e. up to 10 October 2007).

The hours prior to 1998-99 are not available from a central source and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Fisheries: Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1800W, on fisheries: protection, what factors were taken into account in deciding to reduce the number of patrol days per year; and what the basis was for the assessment that the operational needs could be delivered through fewer days. [157564]

Jonathan Shaw: The key factors that were taken into account were the cost of the provision of the service to the Marine and Fisheries Agency, the available budget and future operational needs. The 700 patrol days for 2008-09 will be delivered by the River Class Patrol Vessels. These vessels are purpose built and more effective and efficient for the equivalent time at sea than the Hunt Class vessels, which provide some of the current patrol time.

Floods: Chesterfield

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Government expects flood defences to be put in place for the river (a) Whitting, (b) Hipper and (c) Rother. [157398]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency's Flood Risk Management Strategy on the Don Catchment will take approximately 18 to 24 months to complete. A decision about flood risk measures will be made following its completion.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what guidance the Commissioners follow on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158600]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Commissioners do not have a formal target for responding to such correspondence but they do aim to respond in the shortest time reasonably possible. I believe that hon. Members receive from the Commissioners sufficiently swift responses or holding replies where the matter requires more detailed research.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what guidance the Commission follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158593]

Nick Harvey: The Commission receives relatively little correspondence from hon. Members but answers some 300 parliamentary questions a year. Parliamentary questions are answered whenever possible within the normal targets and other correspondence is dealt with as expeditiously as possible.

Departments: Manpower

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many people work on the Commons part of the Parliamentary Estate. [158623]

Nick Harvey: About 4,700 people work in the nine buildings of the House of Commons part of the Parliamentary Estate. Apart from 646 Members, there are about 1,200 MPs' staff, 1,700 staff of the House and up to 1,200 contractors' staff (many of whom work for both Houses).

Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will place in the Library a copy of the Commission's policy on whistleblowing. [158233]

Nick Harvey: The House is not within the scope of the relevant sections of the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998. However, the staff handbook, which is available on the parliamentary intranet, does contain sections on safeguarding official information (section 5.18), crises of conscience (section 5.28) and grievance (section 6). These are supported by a core values statement on integrity, in serving the House of Commons, its Committees and Members, and the public with honesty, probity and political impartiality. The statement can be found in House of Commons corporate business plan 2007 which is also available on the intranet.

Escalators

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the original life expectancy was of the escalators installed to access Portcullis House; how long elapsed before they were replaced; how much the recent works to install new escalators at this location have cost; and for what reason the motion sensitivity feature is not being deployed. [158234]

Nick Harvey: Escalators of this type would be expected to have a life expectancy of about 10 years—those in Portcullis House were installed in 1999 and replaced after eight years in 2007. The tender cost was £327,000 and the project was completed on budget. The motion sensitivity feature is not currently operational as a precautionary measure due to a component in similar escalator being found to be faulty. It is anticipated that the motion facility will be re-instated for Monday 12 November 2007.

Food: Allergies

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what training and advice staff in the Refreshment Department receive on food allergies. [158622]

Nick Harvey: Food handlers working in the House of Commons Refreshment Department receive training on food allergy risks and control procedures as part of their food hygiene training. Over 250 staff have attended foundation or basic level training, and more than 10 per cent. of staff are further trained to intermediate or advanced level. Specific allergy awareness training was delivered to approximately 40 staff in November to December 2006. In consultation with an external specialist, the Department is currently in the process of designing and coordinating a tailored programme of food allergy training, to be delivered to all food handlers over the next six months.

Procedures for managing the risks and control of food allergens are set out in the Department's Food Safety Manual, which is regularly reviewed, updated and promulgated to staff. Further guidance is set out in the publication "Allergy Catering Manual", a copy of which is provided to food procurement and food stores staff as well as being available in each kitchen.

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission when the Refreshment Department last reviewed its policies and procedures on food allergies. [158624]

Nick Harvey: The Refreshment Department last reviewed its policies and procedures on food allergies in January 2007. This was carried out in consultation with the Department's retained food hygiene adviser, Hygiene Audit Systems, who have to date provided food allergy training to 800 environmental health practitioners under a contract awarded by the Food Standards Agency.

The Department's Food Safety Policy and Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP) Manual, which sets out procedures for food handlers in respect of the control of food allergens, was last reviewed by Westminster city council's Environmental Health Officer as part of their regular inspection of the House of Commons catering premises in March 2007.

Portcullis House: Refrigerators

Lynne Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the efficiency rating is of refrigerators installed in hon. Members' offices in Portcullis House; and what advice is issued to hon. Members about maximising the efficiency of those refrigerators. [157585]

Nick Harvey: The efficiency rating of the fridges installed in hon. Members' offices in Portcullis House is A. Improving the efficiency by fitting energy saving controls and removing the doors to the cupboards containing the fridges is being considered at present. Written advice on maximising the efficiency of the fridges is to be issued shortly to hon. Members.

Press Gallery: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Doran: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make a statement on the refurbishment of the press gallery. [158669]

Nick Harvey: The refurbishment of the Press Gallery has been a project to modernise accommodation used by the journalists and political correspondents based in the Palace of Westminster for the purposes of reporting on the business of Parliament. The press have had a recognised presence in the House of Commons since 1803, when Speaker Abbott ruled that they should have privileged access to the Gallery.

The Press Gallery is one of the last areas of the Palace to be modernised. Over the 2006 summer recess, the House of Commons began the first phase of the project to bring the offices in line with workplace health and safety and disability discrimination regulations. The second and final phase of works was completed over the 2007 summer recess, during which the entire Press Gallery was decanted. The project also involved refitting and updating the catering facilities in that area of the Palace in order to make more efficient use of the space. The final handover of office accommodation and the new catering facilities took place on 15 October.

The project was completed at a total cost of £7.71 million to the House. As well as modern office accommodation, the improved facilities include a new kitchen and a multi-purpose restaurant and cafe/bar, to be called "Moncrieff's". The refurbished Press Gallery will be launched by Mr. Speaker on 20 November.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departments: Fixed Penalties

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157887]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not incurred any fixed penalty tickets, within its purview, in the last year.

Sports: Community Development

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what effect he expects the establishment of a sporting village to have on the local community. [158664]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Central (Mr. Caborn) on 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 743W.

Swimming Pools

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many diving pits there are in England; and where each is located. [158741]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Active Places database lists 64 diving pools which can be defined as diving pits using the following criteria—an indoor pool specifically for diving which is usually square in shape and deeper than the main pool.

I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 335-36W, for the location of these 64 diving facilities.

In addition and since my reply of 8 October 2007, a new diving pool/pit has opened in Leeds. This facility will be included on the Active Places database in due course.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 334-6W, on swimming pools, (1) how many diving pools have (a) closed and (b) opened in England since 1997; and how many of the diving pools are open to the public; [158744]

(2) how many of these diving pools are open to the general public. [158746]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on diving pool closures across England was not collected centrally prior to 2004, when the Active Places sports facilities database was established. We are aware that two diving pools have closed permanently since that time (William Thompson Recreation Centre, Burnley and Edmonton Leisure Centre).

64 diving pools listed on Active Places are usually accessible to the public. However, one (Crystal Palace Sports Centre) is temporarily closed for refurbishment. Six of these diving pools have been newly built since 1997 and a further 15 refurbished over the same period.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 334-6W, on swimming pools, how many of the diving pools referred to provide a 10 metre high diving board. [158745]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We are aware of six diving pools listed on the Active Places database which provide 10 metre high diving boards. They are located in: Leeds; London; Manchester; Plymouth; Sheffield; and Southampton. Five of these facilities are currently available for use and one (London) is closed temporarily for refurbishment.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what representations she has received on proposals for a combined equality duty. [157757]

Barbara Follett: We have received around 1,000 responses on the Government's proposals for a single equality duty from a variety of stakeholders including public authorities, equality stakeholders and individuals. We are currently considering these responses and will publish a formal Government response to the consultation in due course.

Gender: Equality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what plans she has to protect transgender people from discrimination, beyond those who have had, or seek, gender reassignment; and if she will make a statement. [157756]

Barbara Follett: The Sex Discrimination Act 1975 provides protection from discrimination to people who intend to undergo, are undergoing or have undergone gender reassignment in the area of employment and vocational training. Our recent consultation "A Framework for Fairness" set out our proposals for implementing the EU Gender Directive and for a single Equality Bill, including proposals to extend the current protection on grounds of gender reassignment to the area of goods, facilities, services, premises and public functions. We have received a wealth of representations on the issue of widening the group of people protected under these provisions and are continuing to consider carefully people's views and the range of evidence that has been provided.

JUSTICE

Animal Welfare: Prosecutions

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions for animal cruelty were brought in (a) Lancashire and (b) England and Wales in each of the last five years. [158712]

Mr. Hanson: The number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences of animal cruelty in Lancashire, and England and Wales from 2001 to 2005 are shown in the following table. Data for 2006 will be available in November 2007. Charging statistics are not held by my Department.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates court for offences relating to cruelty to animals, in England and Wales and Lancashire police force area for the years 2001 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Lancashire	46	51	39	32	43
England and Wales	1,121	1,145	1,106	1,117	1,227

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Dangerous Driving

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward proposals for legislation to provide for an offence of causing the death of an unborn baby by dangerous driving; what recent representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [158376]

Mr. Hanson: There are no current plans to introduce a specific offence of causing death of an unborn child by dangerous driving. We do not believe such an offence is necessary. Dangerous driving is already an offence. If an unborn child is killed but the mother survives, the driver could be charged with causing the mother grievous bodily harm under section 20 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 if they acted recklessly. We have received one petition with 910 signatures about this issue.

Family Courts

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether there are plans to require parties in children's cases to attend a meeting with a mediator; [157507]

(2) whether there are plans to change family proceedings rules to require parties in children's cases to meet a mediator before proceeding; [157508]

(3) if he will require the parties in cases concerning residence of children and contact to attend a mediation assessment before commencing court proceedings. [157509]

Bridget Prentice: Parties applying for public funding under the Community Legal Service are already required to attend a meeting with a mediator to consider mediation. This requirement may be waived if there are special circumstances such as domestic violence or the case is very urgent.

The Government continue to encourage the greater use of family mediation but do not believe that it should be made compulsory or that all parties in disputes over child residence and contact should be required to attend a meeting with a mediator.

The Government will make changes to court rules and application forms to facilitate referrals to family mediation where the court considers this would be beneficial.

The Children and Adoption Act 2006 when fully implemented will enable the court to direct parties to attend a meeting to learn about mediation in cases where it considers this is appropriate.

Featherstone Prison: Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the usable operational life expectancy is of the rapid build residential units at HMP Featherstone. [158349]

Mr. Hanson: The Rapid Build Residential Unit (64 places), opened in July 2007, has a 40 year life expectancy.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison places created since 1997 are in accommodation with an operational life expectancy of less than 10 years. [158342]

Mr. Hanson: The modular temporary units providing 1,160 prison places, installed in the financial years 2002-03 and 2003-04, have an estimated life expectancy of less than 10 years.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison places created since 1997 have been created by putting more prisoners in existing cells. [158346]

Mr. Hanson: Of the over 20,000 prison places provided since 1997, around 3,000 have been created by placing more prisoners in existing accommodation.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many spaces in modular temporary units built between 2002 and 2006 the Ministry expects to reach the end of their useful operational life in each of the next five years. [158347]

Mr. Hanson: Condition surveys are currently being undertaken to establish the condition of the modular temporary units provided in the years 2002-03 and 2003-04 and a forecast of each one's remaining operational life.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison spaces are in modular temporary units; and how many of these have been in use for (a) more than five years, (b) between four and five years, (c) between three and four years and (d) less than three years. [158350]

Mr. Hanson: The 1,160 prison places provided in modular temporary units were delivered between August 2002 and August 2003 and all units are still in use.

Prison Service: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many investigations are ongoing at HM Prison Service Investigation Support Unit; what proportion of these are staff disciplinary matters; and if he will make a statement. [157574]

Mr. Hanson: On 10 October HM Prison Service's Investigation Support Section held on file details of 547 open investigations. All of these investigations are noted on this database as being conducted under the terms of PSO 8460 Conduct and Discipline.

Prisoners

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the evidential basis is upon which his Department projects the rate of expansion in the prison population to 2010-11. [158344]

Mr. Hanson: Prison population projections are calculated using a range of mathematical models. The evidential basis for these calculations is a mixture of observed prison population data, sentencing data (wherever this is possible) and stakeholder assumptions. The stakeholders are experts drawn from the Ministry of Justice, the Home Office and across the Criminal Justice System. The latest projections were published in the Ministry of Justice Statistical Bulletin "Prison population projections 2007-2014, England and Wales" (August 2007).

This is available on the Ministry of Justice website (http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonpopulation.htm). The models used in the calculations are described in Annex C and the stakeholder assumptions in Annex B of the Statistical Bulletin. Copies of the Statistical Bulletin will be sent to the Libraries of the House.

Prisoners Release: Drugs

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners died of a drugs overdose or drugs related illness while on early release in each of the last three years. [157844]

Mr. Hanson: A comprehensive treatment framework is available in prisons to address the problems caused by substance misuse. This includes:

clinical interventions;

CARATs (Counselling, Assessment, Referral, Advice and Throughcare service); intensive drug treatment programmes.

CARAT teams offer harm minimisation advice and work closely with the Drug Interventions Programme and Offender Managers in making the necessary throughcare arrangements to ensure continuity of drug treatment on release.

Drug users can experience a reduced tolerance to drugs from their time in custody, which can increase the risk of drug related overdose on release. The prison treatment framework is designed to reduce that risk.

Improved quality of clinical treatment is being introduced in 53 prisons through IDTS[1], which will see maintenance prescribing much more widely used according to need and will reduce considerably the risk of overdose on release.

The information requested is not directly available. The latest research shows that newly-released prisoners are at considerably increased risk of a drugs overdose compared to their peers in the community, particularly in the first two weeks after release.

However, the research relates to a period prior to the introduction of the treatment framework and does not reflect the most recent advances in prison treatment.

[1] Integrated Drug Treatment System

Prisoners: Females

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the Government will publish its response to the Corston review. [158351]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have given a broad welcome to the report. The 43 recommendations which it makes are wide-ranging and propose action by a number of different Government Departments and organisations. We are carefully exploring the best way of taking forward the recommendations with all the Departments and agencies concerned and will publish a detailed response by late autumn.

Prisoners: Transsexuality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidelines are in place for dealing with transgender prisoners; and if he will make a statement. [157760]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners are entitled to receive the full range of NHS services. In rare cases where a prisoner has or has had a gender dysphoria, a draft prison service order has been prepared. This contains guidance on the management, treatment and care of these prisoners—both pre and post-operative transsexual people.

This document is currently subject to a formal consultation exercise involving a wide range of stakeholders. The document will be reviewed in light of the comments received and issued at the beginning of next year. Copies will be placed in the Library.

Prisoners: Voting Rights

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Government plans to legislate to give convicted prisoners the right to vote following the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights in Hirst v. UK. [158397]

Bridget Prentice: The Government are currently considering how to take forward the implementation of the Hirst judgment in light of the first stage consultation on this issue.

Prisons: Education

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment his Department has made of the value of courses on enhanced thinking skills for convicted prisoners. [157711]

Mr. Hanson: In 2004 RDS commissioned a qualitative study to examine programme experience of prisoners completing cognitive skills training (Clarke et al. 2004). Both prisoners and staff reported short term benefits for prisoners such as improved prisoner behaviour; increased self-confidence; enhanced literacy skills and better interpersonal skills. Completion of cognitive skills also helped to prepared prisoners for other offending behaviour programmes.

A randomised control trial of ETS, commissioned by Research, Development and Statistics—National Offender Management Service (RDS NOMS) will be published in December 2007. This will robustly evaluate the immediate impact of ETS on interim measures of thinking and prison behaviour. The current RDS NOMS programme also includes further research on the effectiveness of other Offending Behaviour Programmes based on rigorous research designs.

Prisons: Information

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what categories of information not held centrally within HM Prison Service are collected across (a) HM Prison Service regions and (b) HM Prison establishments; by what means such information is collected; and if he will make a statement. [158454]

Mr. Hanson: Prison establishments hold detailed records and reports on individual prisoners and members of staff and local operational records in a variety of electronic and paper formats. While much of these data can be interrogated centrally, there are some questions that can only be answered by analysing paper files manually, and therefore at disproportionate cost. Information held in HM Prison Service area offices is normally accessible centrally for the purpose of answering parliamentary questions.

Public Defender Service

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the Public Defender Service and the role it will play in the criminal justice system. [157414]

Maria Eagle: The Government commissioned an independent team of leading academics to undertake a full assessment of the Public Defender Service (PDS) pilot. The report concluded that the PDS has established a reputation amongst clients and other criminal justice professionals for the robust and independent defence of its clients. The final report entitled "Evaluation of the Public Defender Service in England and Wales" was published on 8 January 2007 and can be found on the Legal Services Commission's website and in the Libraries of the House.

Repossession Orders: Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) mortgage repossession claims and (b) mortgage repossession orders were made in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available. [158272]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the number of mortgage repossession claims issued and mortgage repossession orders made in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 2006-07.

Number of mortgage repossession claims issued and orders made in the county courts of England and Wales, 1996-97 and 2006-07[1]

	Claims issued	Orders made[2] (inc. suspended orders)
1996-97	72,169	65,555
2006-07	132,781	91,131

[1] Figures for 2007 Q2 are available online at http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgatelandlordpossession.htm

[2] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all orders result in the properties actually being repossessed.

Solicitors Regulation Authority

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost to the public purse was of the Solicitors Regulation Authority in the latest period for which figures are available. [157849]

Bridget Prentice: The Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) is funded by the solicitors' profession through the Law Society and incurs no cost to the public purse.

Some public funding is given, however, to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal (SDT) which, although independent of both the SRA and the Law Society, is an integral element of the profession's disciplinary arrangements. This funding amounted to £55,569.47 in the financial year from April 2006 to March 2007; and £49,259.49 in the calendar year from January to September 2007. These figures include spends on SDT fees, social security contributions and travel and subsistence payments.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the full membership of the Solicitors Regulation Authority is; and when members were appointed. [157850]

Bridget Prentice: The Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA) board consists of 16 members—nine solicitors (one of whom chairs the board) and seven lay people. Board members were appointed for a term of four years from 1 January 2006.

The current board members are:

Peter Williamson (Chair); Alan Baker; Yvonne Brown; Duncan Gear; Sally Irvine; Alan Kershaw; Sir Stephen Lander; Andrew Long; Penelope Owston; Sally Ruthen; Edward Solomons; Dr. Jonathan Spencer; John Stoker; Richard Taylor; Stephen Walzer; and Stephen Whittle.

Full details about the board members can be found on the SRA's website.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received about the effectiveness of the Solicitors Regulation Authority. [157851]

Bridget Prentice: I am not aware of any formal representations received by this Department about the effectiveness of the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA). However, several Members of Parliament have explicitly endorsed the SRA's efficiency and effectiveness in handling specific regulatory issues. In addition, this Department routinely receives general correspondence from Members of Parliament and from the public concerning the SRA.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he last met Mr. Antony Townsend, Chief Executive Officer of the Solicitors Regulation Authority. [157852]

Bridget Prentice: The Secretary of State has not met with Antony Townsend in his capacity as Chief Executive of the Solicitors Regulation Authority. Mr. Townsend has, however, met with Ministers on several occasions since his appointment. I hosted the most recent of these meetings on 10 July 2007.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received from ethnic monitoring firms about their treatment by the Solicitors Regulation Authority. [157853]

Bridget Prentice: I am not aware of any representations received by this Department from ethnic minority firms about their treatment by the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA). However, as a result of internal concerns about a statistical disparity showing that black and minority ethnic solicitors were over-represented in regulatory decisions, the SRA commissioned an external analysis of this issue, resulting in the publication in July 2006 of the report "The impact of regulatory decisions of the Investigations and Enforcement Unit on black and minority ethnic solicitors". The SRA is now following a programme of action aimed at discharging its responsibility for protecting the public interest fairly and in a manner that is non-discriminatory.

Youth Offending Teams: Finance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what future funding is planned for youth offending teams; and what change this represents compared with current levels. [157830]

Mr. Hanson: Youth offending teams are local authority multi agency teams made up of five statutory partners: police, probation, social services, education and health. YOTs are funded by these five statutory partners, the local authority chief executive and by the Youth Justice Board.

The existing funding arrangements by probation services will continue for 2008-09 and the options for funding beyond this are currently being explored in light of the new arrangements contained in the Offender Management Act. Probation services will remain a statutory partner in YOTs.

The Youth Justice Board provide a variety of grants to YOTs and decisions on future levels of payment have yet to be made.

PRIME MINISTER

Cabinet Committee on London

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Prime Minister for what reasons the Cabinet Committee on London (MISC 26) has been abolished. [158072]

The Prime Minister: The Government remains fully committed to delivering high quality public services throughout London. On 23 July I announced a new Cabinet Committee structure (Official Report, column 46WS), copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. There are now a smaller number of broader ranging, more cross-cutting Committees. Under the new structure, the delivery of public services in London will be considered by the Cabinet Committee with responsibility for the relevant policy area.

Committee on Standards in Public Life

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) for what reasons and on what date it was decided to not invite Sir Alistair Graham to serve a second term as Chairman of the Committee on Standards in Public Life. [157801]

(2) what the recruitment process is for appointing a new permanent Chairman of the Committee on Standards in Public Life; and on what date he expects to make such an appointment. [157802]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2167W.

Departmental Responsibilities: Offshore Industry

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Prime Minister what consideration he gave when he last re-organised Government departments and their responsibilities to giving the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs responsibility for offshore oil, gas and energy consents; and if he will make a statement. [157243]

The Prime Minister: I announced changes to the Machinery of Government in a Written Ministerial Statement on 28 June 2007 (Official Report, columns 36-40WS). Departmental responsibilities are kept under constant review.

Departments: Taxis

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on taxis in the last 12 months. [153161]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Lincoln (Gillian Merron) on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 531W.

Foreign Relations: Video Recordings

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Prime Minister what record is kept of video conferences between him and the President of the United States; and if he will make a statement. [157066]

The Prime Minister: Records are kept in accordance with 'Private Office Records Guidance' prepared by the Cabinet Office and the National Archives. Copies of this guidance are available on the National Archives website.

Prime Ministerial Visits

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Prime Minister which NHS hospitals he has visited since 27th June. [158459]

Anne Main: To ask the Prime Minister when he last visited a tax credit office in his official capacity. [158569]

The Prime Minister: A list of my UK visits will be published in the usual way following the end of the financial year. My visits cover a range of matters including health, education, criminal justice and the economy, details of which can be found on the No. 10 website.

Martin Howard: Honours

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister who nominated Martin Howard for an honour. [157800]

The Prime Minister: In accordance with the practice of successive governments, the identities of those making nominations for honours, and the detailed handling of nominations, are kept confidential.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Prime Minister if he will expedite the reply to the letter to him dated 2nd August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. C. Fairhurst, which he forwarded for reply to the Department for Communities and Local Government. [157302]

The Prime Minister: A reply has been sent.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Department Accountacy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156616]

Paul Goggins: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issue accounts directions to departments, pension schemes and agencies, and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Northern Ireland Office has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

Police Service of Northern Ireland

2006-07

Police Rehabilitation and Retraining Trust

Northern Ireland Police Fund

Northern Ireland Election Office (Returning Officers Expenses)

Office of the Oversight Commissioner

Armed Conflict

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether his Office has provided any support to other national Governments dealing with community conflict. [155828]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 451-52W.

From time to time embassies and high commissions engage with the NIO to learn more about the Northern Ireland peace process.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost was of buying new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices for new Ministers in his Department following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156727]

Paul Goggins: The following table illustrates the cost of buying new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices for new Ministers by the Northern Ireland Office.

Financial year	Number of laptops purchased	Cost (£)	Number of mobile phones purchased	Cost (£)	Number of personal digital assistant devices (blackberries) purchased	Cost (£)

Economic Policy

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what policies his Office has adopted to assist the United Kingdom's fulfilment of the Lisbon Agenda criteria. [155830]

Paul Goggins: Policies adopted in Northern Ireland to assist fulfilment of the Lisbon Strategy for jobs and growth is a matter for the devolved Administration in Northern Ireland.

The Northern Ireland Executive contributed to the update published by HM Treasury in September 2007 on progress in implementing the Lisbon Strategy for jobs and growth. This is available at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/international_issues/european_economic_reform/int_lisbonstrategy_jobs.cfm.

Northern Ireland Office: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155882]

Paul Goggins: The following table illustrates the total projected spend on advertising and promotional campaigns by the Northern Ireland Office, excluding its Agencies and executive NDPBs. We are unable to provide the breakdown requested by the hon. Member.

Advertising/promotional campaign	Projected expenditure (£) 2007-08	2008-09

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many bonus payments were made to Child Support Agency staff in each year since 1997, broken down by value of payments. [143579]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the earlier response to his parliamentary question on 8 February 2007, Official Report, column 1192W.

Child Support Agency: Vertex

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on performance in relation to Child Support Agency work carried out by Vertex at its offices in Bolton. [146170]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 16 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will make a statement on performance in relation to Child Support Agency work carried out by Vertex at its offices in Bolton. [146170]

Vertex Data Science Ltd manages the CSA Bolton site, a new unit we have established to deal with our clerical cases. These are cases, which for technical reasons it is not possible for our new computer system to progress. By moving all the clerical work undertaken by the Agency to one site we have released people to focus on other improvement work including reducing the number of uncleared applications to the lowest levels since 1999 and strengthening enforcement.

While the arrangement has been generally beneficial, we have experienced some operational issues including expressions of concern from some clients, MPs and the Independent Case Examiner about how the Bolton site is currently managing complaints. The Agency has now taken steps to ensure that our service to clients improves in the future. All complaints with MP or Independent Case Examiner involvement as well as those cases that require a review will be transferred to specialist caseworkers within the Agency over the coming months.

As you will know, the Agency has cleared significant numbers of applications in the last year, with uncleared cases falling by 31% across both schemes. As a result the increase in volumes of cases requiring clerical processing to be dealt with in Bolton has been higher than initially forecast and transferring complaints work to other sites within the Agency will allow CSA Bolton to focus on collecting maintenance in those cases.

Our Minister, Lord McKenzie has also recently written to all MPs concerning the changes the Agency has made to the complaints resolution process, including transferring these complaints from the Bolton office.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on the performance of the Bolton office of the Child Support Agency; and if he will make a statement. [149340]

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what account directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156618]

Mrs. McGuire: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issue accounts directions to departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 the Department for Work and Pensions has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies:

2005-06

The Pension Protection Fund

The Pensions Regulator

2006-07

None

Directions were also issued to the following sponsored bodies prior to the above dates and these were still extant during the period in question:

2004-05

Health and Safety Executive

Health and Safety Commission

Pensions Compensation Board

2001-02

Disability Rights Commission

Occupational Pensions Regulatory Authority

Departments: Manpower

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people are employed by his Department, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [157169]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions employed a total of 117,854 staff (equating to 106,040 full-time equivalents) as at the end of August 2007. It is not possible to break down the number of staff by parliamentary constituency since the Department's staffing is not recorded on this basis. To obtain information on this basis would be at disproportionate cost.

Disability Living Allowance

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many new Disability Living Allowance claims were processed between April 2006 and January 2007; how many were (a) rejected, (b) rejected or reduced following medical evidence and (c) appealed, broken down by the result of the appeal. [155900]

Mrs. McGuire: Between April 2006 and January 2007, there were 350,400 decisions made on Disability Living Allowance (DLA) new claims. 187,480 new claims were refused and of these 117,854 were rejected or refused following medical evidence. The available information about the number of claims that were appealed is in the following table.

DLA appeals broken down by type of award: April 2006 to January 2007

	Number
Withdrawn after submission	5,476

1. Totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.
2. Figures for May 2002—February 2007 are taken from the DWP Information Directorate: Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study.
3. Figures for May 2002—February 2007 are rounded to the nearest 10. Some additional disclosure control has also been applied.
4. Figures for May 1997—May 2001 are taken from the Department for Work and Pensions, Information Directorate, 5 per cent. sample.
5. Figures for May 1997—May 2001 are rated in line with WPLS totals and rounded to the nearest 100. Totals may not sum due to rounding.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many terminally ill people are receiving disability living allowance. [156724]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 11 October 2007]: At February 2007, around 50,200 terminally ill people were in receipt of Disability Living Allowance.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of adults of working age were claiming incapacity benefits in (a) each Welsh unitary authority, (b) each English region, (c) Wales, (d) Scotland and (e) Northern Ireland in (i) 1997, (ii) 2001, (iii) 2005 and (iv) at the latest date for which figures are available. [155634]

Mrs. McGuire: Information about Northern Ireland is a matter for my hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland. The available information is in the following tables.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what plans he has to simplify the applications process for incapacity benefits; and if he will make a statement; [155956]

(2) what plans he has to reduce the length of time an applicant for incapacity benefits has to wait until they receive their benefits; and if he will make a statement. [155957]

Mrs. McGuire: The average time for clearing incapacity benefit claims nationally is 13.9 days against a Jobcentre Plus target of 18 days from receipt of a claim. The performance of Jobcentre Plus offices against this target is kept under review. Jobcentre Plus continues to look for improvements in the processing of claims and recent examples include the introduction of a rapid reclaim process for people who return to incapacity benefit and the implementation of a single 0800 number for customers to use when making a claim.

The Government's Welfare Reform Act 2007 makes provision for a new benefit, the Employment and Support Allowance (ESA), to replace the current incapacity benefits system for new and repeat claimants from autumn 2008. ESA aims to provide a modernised and simpler benefit which is designed to help people with health conditions and disabilities to focus on their aspirations to return to work and to provide support where an immediate return to work is not possible.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of applications for incapacity benefits were successful in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [155959]

Mrs. McGuire: The available information is in the following table.

Incapacity benefit claims volumes

			Thousand
	Awarded	Refused	Percentage of decisions that result in an award
2002-03	222	329	40.3
2003-04	271	414	39.6
2004-05	260	347	42.9
2005-06	241	305	44.1
2006-07	230	330	41.1

Notes:
1. Results have been provided by the Information Directorate (BIC).
2. Volume figures have been rounded to the nearest thousand.
3. The volume figures represent the number of new claims awarded and refused in each financial year.
4. The total awarded and refused does not constitute the figure for claims received.
5. It is not possible to deduce proportions of the total claims received that are successful or unsuccessful as claims received in a given year may not necessarily get a decision in that same year.
6. The percentage awarded figures represent the proportion of awarded decisions of all decisions i.e. of the total of awarded and refused combined. These percentages represent the best view of the award success rate, but only reflect decisions that are recorded in the counts that can be extracted from MISP.
7. There is limited information available about how the counts are derived, and so there may be some claims excluded from these results, and some claims included twice e.g. if a claim is initially refused, goes to appeal and is then awarded, it could be counted in both the awarded and refused volumes.

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of (a) the reasons for regional variations in incapacity payments and (b) the impact of regional variation on claimants, with particular reference to variations between the Midlands and the North. [156485]

Mrs. McGuire: No assessment has been made of the reasons for regional variations in levels of incapacity payments.

UK Commission for Employment and Skills

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many places on the UK Commission for Employment and Skills will be guaranteed for commissioners from Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland respectively. [157313]

Caroline Flint: Commissioner recruitment is currently under way, working with officials across the four countries. It has been agreed that a place on the Commission will be guaranteed for a commissioner from each of Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

TRANSPORT

Airports

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average time was for a person arriving at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick and (c) Stansted to clear airport procedures in (i) the last year for which figures are available and (ii) each of the previous five years. [157310]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not held by this Department.

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the amount of emissions from each type of aircraft using UK airports; what plans she has (i) to incentivise and (ii) to penalise the worst offending operating companies; and if she will make a statement. [157262]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Individual aircraft are internationally certified according to their noise level, emissions of oxides of nitrogen (NOx) and emissions of particulates during landing and take-off. The Department uses the noise data of individual aircraft in models that build up a map of the total noise at designated airports. These are then published.

The project for the sustainable development of Heathrow is collating the total emissions inventory for different scenarios. The basic aircraft emissions data are derived from the publicly available certification data for each type of aircraft. We will be consulting on this shortly.

The Civil Aviation Act 2006 provides powers for all airports to introduce charges that reflect the noise and NOx generated by each aircraft type. In addition to these charges penalties can be imposed for exceedences of noise levels specified in the noise control schemes.

Channel Tunnel Railway Line

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of constructing the high speed rail link from Folkestone to St. Pancras. [157582]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The final construction cost has not been established as some contracts have still to be completed. However, the anticipated final outturn cost is currently £5.8 billion.

Crossrail Line: Contracts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when a decision will be taken on letting a construction contract for Crossrail. [158497]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Assuming that the Crossrail Bill gains Royal Assent in summer 2008, Cross-London Rail Links Ltd. expects to commence the procurement process in the first quarter of 2009 and let construction contracts in the first quarter of 2010.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps need to be completed before a construction contract can be let for work on Crossrail. [158498]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Crossrail Bill needs to be given Royal Assent; the Department for Transport and Transport for London need to conclude a suite of agreements on project funding and governance arrangements; the relevant property needs to be acquired; and Cross-London Rail Links Ltd needs to complete project design and contract development work, and issue invitations to tender and assess the resulting bids.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in what circumstances the partners in the Crossrail project would not proceed with a construction contract. [158491]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend is confident that the construction of Crossrail will proceed as planned and can foresee no likely obstacles to that. She will of course keep progress under review to ensure that the project offers best value for money in its construction and implementation.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the design work on Crossrail will be complete. [158496]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Design is a continuous process. Cross-London Rail Links Ltd. expects to complete design work for the purpose of tendering construction contracts by the first quarter of 2009.

Cycleways: Finance

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding the Government has provided to local authorities in (a) England and (b) Wirral South for the establishment or maintenance of cycle tracks in the last five years. [158015]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Government funding for integrated transport improvements, including the establishment of cycle tracks, is provided in the annual local transport capital settlements, published on the Department for Transport website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/. It is for local authorities to decide exactly how to spend this funding in accordance with their local policies and priorities.

Government funding for routine highways maintenance, including the maintenance of cycle tracks, is included in the formula grant settlement administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government. Details of this are published at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/0607/grant.htm

In addition the Government are providing specific funding for national standard cycle training, including £250,000 in 2007-08 for the Merseyside local authorities.

Cycling: Finance

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what resources have been allocated under the Comprehensive Spending Review for the Cycle City scheme. [157980]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The funding for cycling will be finalised in the context of the Department's Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 settlement announced on 9 October. We will publish a breakdown of the Department's spending plans in the Department's Annual Report.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157922]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A variety of methods is used across the Department for Transport and Executive agency websites to gather such metrics for 'hits'. To determine which sites are the most and least popular based on 'hits' requires consideration of both unique visitor and actual visit figures to all sites. These data are not available for all sites and as such it is not possible to provide the information requested.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff are seconded to her Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157920]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Appointments on inward secondment to the central Department for Transport and its Agencies are outlined in the following table:

Organisation	Number of secondees	Duration of secondment
First Group Plc	1	3 years
French Transport Ministry	1	3 years
RNIB	1	2 years
QinetiQ	1	2 years
Energy Saving Trust	1	4 months
Deloitte	1	1 year
Freshfields	1	6 months
PricewaterhouseCoopers	1	1 year
Swedish Transport Ministry	1	1 month
Civil Aviation Authority	2	3 years
KPMG	1	3 to 6 months
Kent Fire Brigade	1	4 years
Strathclyde Fire Brigade	1	3 years
Dutch Department for Roads and Waterways	1	1 year

Driving Tests: Foreigners

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assistance the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency makes available for people taking a driving test whose first language is not English. [158305]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driving Standards Agency offers assistance for non-English speaking candidates taking the theory and practical test.

The theory test is offered in 20 languages in addition to English. The non-English learner uses headphones to listen to an interpretation of the on-screen instructions.

On the practical element of the driving test, interpreters are allowed to accompany learners. Driving examiners are trained to identify any inappropriate assistance given by interpreters to a candidate.

The interpreter is only allowed to repeat the examiner's instructions e.g. "take the next road on the right". Therefore, the translation is short and it would be obvious if more was being said as the instructions are very repetitive. The candidate is not allowed to speak directly to the interpreter during the test.

Should an examiner suspect that the interpreter is interfering with the conduct of the test, he will ask the interpreter to only repeat what he has said. If the examiner feels that the interpreter has ignored the request he will terminate the test. This system works well and we have no evidence to suggest that it is being abused.

Lorries: Publications

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Truckstop Guide provided by the Highways Agency; [157986]

(2) when her Department last assessed the (a) availability and (b) range of services provided at truckstops in England. [157987]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Truckstop Guide was a trial publication produced by the Highways Agency during 2006. Research indicates that the guide has been effective in raising awareness of designated freight parking facilities and promoting driver safety and journey planning information to both UK and continental drivers. Options for its future development are currently being considered.

Since 1992, it has been Government policy that the responsibility for identifying and acquiring appropriate motorway and trunk road service area sites lies with the private sector. The most recent assessment of truckstop availability and services was conducted early in 2007 as part of an update to the information originally gathered to inform the Truckstop Guide.

M40: Accidents

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport why both carriageways of the M40 motorway were closed on 12 and 13 August when the incident being investigated by police occurred only on the southbound carriageway; and if she will make a statement. [158157]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The M40 was closed on 12 and 13 August as a result of a major investigation by Warwickshire police into a fatal shooting that occurred on the southbound carriageway, between Junctions 12 and 13. The northbound carriageway was closed at the request of the police as their investigations proceeded. It is entirely for the police to decide the extent of closures required during such investigations.

Maritime and Coastguard Agency: Finance

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding increases in real terms are proposed for the Maritime and Coastguard Agency for each of the next five years. [158160]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The funding for the Maritime and Coastguard Agency for the next three years will be finalised in the context of the Department for Transport's Comprehensive Spending Review 07 settlement announced on 9 October; no decisions on internal allocations have been made yet. We will publish a breakdown of the Department's spending plans in the Department's annual report.

Maritime and Coastguard Agency: Industrial Disputes

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make a statement on the industrial action taking place affecting the Maritime and Coastguard Agency; what contingency arrangements are in place should the dispute escalate; and what steps she is taking to settle the dispute. [158159]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Industrial action short of a strike has been taking place within the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) since the end of May this year. This action while regrettable, has not affected emergency response and search and rescue work.

The MCA are meeting regularly with union representatives with a view to bringing the dispute to a conclusion as soon as possible. I have also met the unions and listened to their concerns on this issue.

The MCA has detailed contingency plans in place to cover emergency situations should the dispute escalate.

Motorcycles

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many motorcyclists there were in the UK in each year from 1997. [158670]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Data regarding the number of motorcyclists in the United Kingdom are not available.

However, the numbers of licensed motorcycles, including scooters and mopeds, registered to keepers residing in Great Britain are available within table 1.1 of "Vehicle Licensing Statistics 2006". A copy of the report, published on 28 June 2007, was placed in the House of Commons Library and it is also available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/vehicles/licensing/vehiclelicensingstatistics2006

Motorways: Road Traffic

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will issue advice to chief police officers advising them of the necessity of keeping motorways open to vehicular traffic whenever possible. [158156]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Highways Agency has signed a Strategic Agreement on Traffic Incident Management with the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and formed a partnership group. This group will develop a detailed guidance framework on managing incidents on the Strategic Road Network with the aim of improving the time taken to investigate accidents and open lanes.

The police and the Highways Agency Traffic Officer Service work together to open motorway lanes as soon as possible after an incident and are often able to do so quickly. On those occasions where this are not possible, the situation is reviewed regularly and alternative options for managing and relieving congested traffic are considered.

Railways: Brent

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times trains were (a) delayed, (b) delayed by more than one hour and (c) cancelled through mainline stations in Brent in 2006. [157632]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not receive the information about delays to individual trains on specific days. Low-level data of this type are not required by the Department in order to fulfil its responsibilities.

The day-to-day operation of train services, and associated record keeping, is the responsibility of train operators. Network Rail as the operator of the rail network also holds information on train operations.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation: Animal Products

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will meet representatives from the oleochemical and soap industries to discuss the impact of the proposed Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation on their use of tallow as a raw material. [158715]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I would be happy to do so on her behalf.

Road Signs and Markings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on highway signage on local authority-controlled roads. [158105]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport prescribes those signs that may be erected on any road by means of the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions, the latest version of which was published in 2002.

The Department has also published guidance on the correct use of traffic signs, including road markings, in the various chapters of the Traffic Signs Manual and in Local Transport Note 1/94 "The Design and Use of Directional Informatory Signs".

The "Manual for Streets" published by the Department for Transport and the Department for Communities and Local Government in March 2007 gives further advice on the appropriate and sensitive use of traffic signs for residential streets.

Road Traffic Offences: Foreigners

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to introduce the commencement order for section 9 and Schedule 2 of the Road Safety Act 2006 which makes penalty point endorsement available to non-GB counterpart holders, including those in Northern Ireland. [157973]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government plan to commence section 9 and schedule 2 of the Road Safety Act 2006, together with related sections, as soon in 2008 as is practicable.

Roads: Horses

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether she is planning to place restrictions on horse riders when using roads; and if she will make a statement. [158722]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We do not have any plans to place a general restriction on horse riders on roads. This is a matter for local traffic authorities who are best-placed to consider what is appropriate in particular circumstances within the powers available to them.

Roads: Lewes

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans the Minister for the South East has to address the noise emanating from the Lewes by-pass; and if she will make a statement. [157792]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Whenever a road needs to be resurfaced, for safety and maintenance reasons, quieter surfacing is used as a matter of course. In 2004, a 1 km stretch of the A27 Lewes bypass was repaired using low noise material.

In financial year 2006-07, the Highways Agency completed a further technical survey for this location, which identified that only a short section of the bypass, lane 1 of both the eastbound approach and westbound exit from Southerham roundabout, requires resurfacing. The works are planned to be carried out in 2008-09 financial year, subject to funding.

The Agency currently has no plans to erect noise barriers at this location as the site does not meet the necessary criteria.

Underground Railways: Security

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions each London Underground station has been closed because of security alerts in each of the last 10 years. [156479]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held by the Department for Transport but by London Underground who can be contacted at the following address:

Lucy Webster
Head of Stakeholder Communications
London Underground

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departments: Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what functions of the Deputy Prime Minister's Office have been transferred to the Cabinet Office following the recent machinery of government changes. [158189]

Edward Miliband: None of the statutory functions that were vested in the Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State have been transferred to the Cabinet Office. Chairmanship of Cabinet Committees and other duties were reallocated as part of the Prime Minister's appointments of his Government.

Government Departments: Equality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to ensure that all Government departments fully comply with their equality duties. [157758]

Edward Miliband: Legislation under which the equality duties have been put in place makes each individual government department responsible for its own compliance with the equality duties. It is the responsibility of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights (CEHR) (and before 1 October 2007 the relevant equality commission—the Commission for Racial Equality, Equal Opportunities Commission or the Disability Rights Commission) to monitor compliance.

All Government Departments have worked with the Commissions on compliance since the introduction of the equality duties, and before then regarding other equality legislation. They will continue this work with the new CEHR.

Cross-department support has been provided to departments on the equality duties. This includes information events for departmental equality teams on the general equality duties and on specific aspects, such as equality impact assessments. Cabinet Office and the Department for Work and Pensions (the sponsoring body for the CEHR) will continue supporting departments in such steps to assist with them with compliance.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to her answer of 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1291W, on the Olympic Games: Greater London, how much the consultants employed by the Olympic Delivery Authority and her Department cost in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [150116]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 16 July 2007]: In my previous answer to the hon. Member for Faversham and Mid-Kent on 9 July 2007, Official Report, column 1291W, I stated that the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) had not employed consultancy firms to work on the 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games in the current financial year (2007-08) and that two consultancy firms were employed in 2006-07.

However, it has since come to light that during 2006-07 a total of six consultancy firms were employed by DCMS on Olympic-related business. One of these firms continued to work on Olympic-related business in 2007-08 and a further four consultancy contracts had also, as of 9 July, been entered into during 2007-08.

The total costs incurred for consultants employed in 2006-07 was £721,266.36 (including VAT) and for those commissioned as of 9 July 2007 was £202,314.33 (including VAT).

Since my answer of 9 July, the Department has entered into five further Olympic-related consultancy contracts. Their costs are not included in the aforementioned figure.

The cost of consultancy firms employed by the Olympic Delivery Authority in 2006-07 was £50,494,000 and in 2007-08 (as of 9 July) was £10,753,000. A significant percentage of these costs is attributed to five major contracts in 2006-07 (Atkins, EDAW Limited, Ernst and Young LLP, Ove Arup and Partners Limited, and Rockpools) and three major contracts in 2007-08 (Atkins, EDAW Limited, and Ove Arup and Partners Limited).

These costs reflect the process of establishing the ODA, and building up organisational capacity, while ensuring key delivery milestones are achieved.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Accommodation Addresses: Crime

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what evaluation she has made of the potential abuse of accommodation address agencies by perpetrators of (a) terrorism, (b) serious organised crime, (c) fraudulent passport applications, (d) identity fraud and (e) other criminal activities. [156595]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Home Office has made no such evaluation. I understand that colleagues at the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform are discussing with a range of interested parties whether Government intervention is appropriate.

Alcoholic Drinks: Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to tackle underage sales and irresponsible promotion of alcohol. [158418]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 October 2007]: We have carried out two tackling underage sales of alcohol campaigns (the most recent of which included a 10 week operational phase which concluded on 13 July) through which police and trading standards officers have targeted 2,683 potential problem premises that break the law by selling alcohol to under-18s. Prior to this, we carried out four national alcohol misuse enforcement campaigns (AMECs) between 2004 and 2006.

In 2004, the overall test purchase failure rate was 50 per cent. In 2006, it had dropped to 20 per cent. In this latest and more targeted campaign it now stands at 15 per cent overall.

Nearly 9,000 test purchase operations were carried out on 2,683 premises in the recent national tackling underage sales enforcement campaign. Children were only able to obtain alcohol in 14.7 per cent of cases. Only 22 actual premises (0.8 per cent of premises targeted) sold alcohol to children on three separate occasions. These figures again signal further improvements in the reduction of the test purchase failures since the national enforcement campaigns began three years ago, Through 'Safe. Sensible. Social. The next steps in the National Alcohol Strategy', the Government are committed to carrying out an independent review of the relationship between alcohol price, promotion and harm, and following public consultation, will consider the need for regulatory change in the future, if necessary. This review is being led by the Department of Health and has gone out to tender. We anticipate publishing the review's findings in the summer of 2008. In addition, the Government are also committed to carrying out a review and consultation on the effectiveness of the alcohol industry's Social Responsibility Standards document in contributing to a reduction in alcohol harm, and following public consultation, will consider the need for regulatory change in the future, if necessary. We anticipate launching the public consultation in November 2008.

Alcoholic Drinks: Public Places

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether (a) consent and (b) permission of (i) the police, (ii) central Government and (iii) regional government offices is needed for a local authority to introduce a public drinking ban in an area in their locality; [158132]

(2) what guidance has been given to local authorities on introducing public drinking bans. [158133]

Mr. Coaker: The Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 gave local authorities the power to designate public areas through the introduction of a Designated Public Place Order (DPPO) restricting antisocial public drinking in areas where alcohol related disorder or nuisance has been experienced.

DPPOs are sometimes mistakenly referred to as 'public drinking bans'.

Once in place a DPPO provides the police with the power to enforce the restriction, where necessary because of the antisocial alcohol misuse, by confiscating both opened and sealed containers. It is an offence to drink alcohol in a designated public place after being required by a police officer not to do so.

The Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Places) Regulations 2001 require a local authority to consult with the police, parish or community council and licensees of any premises which may be affected before making the order. The local authority must also take reasonable steps to consult the owners or occupiers of any land within the proposed DPPO area. The local authority is required to consider the representations that it receives after consultation with the bodies listed above.

The local authority must also publish the details of the proposed DPPO in a newspaper and invite representations as to whether or not an order should be made.

Local authorities have been provided with the Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Place Regulations 2001 and 2007; Explanatory Memorandum to the Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Places) Regulations 2007 and a Home Office Circular (13/2007) to chief executives of local authorities and chief constables in England and Wales on the Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Places) Regulations 2007.

This information along with links to Frequently Asked Questions and examples of best practice can be found on the following website:

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the (a) treatment and (b) proposed experiments on Felix the macaque monkey by compliance of the Oxford university with the project licence granted in respect of the primate; if she will suspend this licence pending investigation of the matter; and if she will make a statement. [157219]

Meg Hillier: The university has advised that Felix was humanely killed in early June 2007 on completion of the work in which he was involved and in accordance with the requirements of the relevant project licence. I am satisfied that the requirements of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 have been fully met, and I do not consider there is a need to vary or suspend the licence.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what method of record keeping she requires establishments with a certificate of designation under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 to use; and what guidelines her Department has issued on consistency of such record keeping. [158151]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Record keeping requirements for designated establishments are set out in paragraphs 4.27 to 4.33 and Appendices B and C of the published Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321). A number of formats have evolved that satisfy these requirements and meet local needs. The records must be made available to the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate on request. Failure to maintain records in a format that is acceptable to the Secretary of State is in breach of the terms and conditions of authorities issued under the 1986 Act.

Drugs: Serious and Organised Crime Agency

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many intelligence referrals on drug trafficking were (a) investigated and (b) brought to court (i) in each of the three years before the establishment of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) and (ii) by SOCA since its establishment. [156180]

Mr. Coaker: SOCA and its predecessors receive intelligence from numerous sources and in a variety of forms. This is assessed, analysed and acted upon in different ways depending on the content. It is not therefore possible to quantify "intelligence referrals" as a unit of measurement.

The report, Drug Offenders in England and Wales (23/05), shows that in 2004 (the latest year for which data exist) 4,500 individuals were dealt with for the unlawful supply of all drugs. Of these, 3,350 were for Class A drugs. These include both cases dealt with by SOCA's predecessor organisations and the police forces of England and Wales.

In its first year (2006-07) SOCA casework in the UK led to the arrest of 601 individuals for drug-related offences. In the SOCA cases that reached the courts in 2006-07, convictions were secured against 211 individuals for drug-related offences. Additionally, at least 490 individuals were arrested in 2006-07 for Class A drugs-related offences as a result of SOCA's international casework. These figures relate only to SOCA casework. They do not include arrests and convictions in 2006-07 that have resulted from police or HMRC casework.

Hizb-ut-Tahrir

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the merits of proscribing Hizb-ut-Tahrir. [156381]

Mr. McNulty: The case for the proscription of Hizb-ut-Tahrir is kept under close review.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 3 September from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Butt. [156910]

Mr. Byrne: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 8 October 2007.

Northamptonshire Police: Manpower

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the manpower levels are of the Northamptonshire Police Force; and what she estimates they will be after the conclusion of the ongoing review of the force. [157614]

Mr. McNulty: At 31 March 1997 Northamptonshire Police had 1,301 police officers, 1,009 police staff and 129 PCSOs. Staffing levels are an operational matter for local agreement between the chief constable and the police authority.

Offensive Weapons: Young People

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many minors were arrested in possession of (a) a gun and (b) a knife in each of the last three years. [156292]

Mr. Coaker: The arrests collection undertaken by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform provides data only on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary etc. More detailed data about specific offences or circumstances behind arrests do not form part of this collection.

Police: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to meet representatives of Cambridgeshire Police Authority to discuss funding of Cambridgeshire police in the next six months; and if she will make a statement. [156760]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend, the Home Secretary wrote to the chairman of Cambridgeshire Police Authority on 8 October indicating that she would be happy to visit Cambridgeshire Constabulary when an opportunity arises.

Police: Immigration

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received from (a) Cambridgeshire Constabulary, (b) Cambridgeshire police authority, (c) Lincolnshire Constabulary, (d) Lincolnshire police authority and (e) right hon. Members on the effects of immigration into the region on police budgets and manpower; and if she will make a statement. [156396]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Home Office received a written representation from the Chief Officer of Cambridgeshire Constabulary commissioned by the Cambridgeshire Constabulary and police authority on the effects of migration in their force area. The authority has also written separately on this issue.

No representations have been received from Lincolnshire.

The hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) tabled a question about the effects of immigration on 7 February 2007, Official Report, column 975W, but no other representations have been received from hon. Members.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it Government policy to ensure that an increased proportion of police officers is deployed on road traffic enforcement duties. [158146]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The allocation and deployment of resources are operational matters for individual chief officers of police. It is right that day to day decisions should be taken at the local level in the light of changing situations and circumstances and public concerns at different times and in different places.

We have made clear on numerous occasions our view of the importance of roads policing, including by references in National Policing Plans and the National Community Safety Plan. In January 2005, the Home Office, Department for Transport and ACPO issued a jointly agreed national Roads Policing Strategy to set roads policing in the context of over-all police work, establish continuing priorities and identify underpinning principles for operational practice and the development of policy. Ministers wrote earlier this year to all chief officers stressing the importance of roads policing and of treating offences on the roads as seriously as other offences.

We do not believe it helpful to focus exclusively on numbers. More effective roads policing is in general delivered chiefly by better use of intelligence, more targeting and more efficient use of resources. The Government have, moreover, increased the number of police over-all by more than 14, 000. This means more officers available for all aspects of police work, including roads policing. All police officers can enforce road traffic legislation as appropriate, whether or not they are dedicated to roads policing.

Separation: Indian Subcontinent

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of women from the Indian sub-continent left destitute and on the street after failed marriages; and what steps she is taking to afford those women shelter and support. [157943]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Home Office does not routinely collate this information and people are expected to return home if they have a spouse visa and their marriage fails during the probationary period as the reason for entry no longer exists. However, if the marriage fails due to domestic violence, an individual can apply for indefinite leave to remain under the Immigration Rules as a victim of such abuse. Steps have been taken to improve the timeliness and effectiveness of application processing and evidence-gathering in these cases.

We are aware that there are a small number of women who are victims of domestic violence during the probationary period following marriage and can find themselves homeless and unable to access refuge or other emergency accommodation while the application for indefinite leave to remain is being processed.

The Government have asked local authorities to be mindful that some victims of domestic violence could have specific needs for care and attention and/or have dependent children. These factors may make them eligible for assistance under a range of other relevant legislation on a case-by-case basis.

Stop and Search

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Taunton of 12 June 2007, Official Report, column 977W, on stop and search, what the (a) gender, (b) ethnicity and (c) age was of each person stopped under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000. [156481]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 11 October 2007]: Data on individuals stopped and searched under Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 are not collected by gender or age. However information on the breakdown by ethnicity of persons stopped under Section 44 is provided in the following table.

Statistics are published by the Home Office under Section 95 of the Criminal Justice Act 1991, and can be found on the Home Office website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pubsstatistical.html

Searches of vehicles[1] and occupants, and pedestrians under Section 44 (1) and (2) of the Terrorism Act 2000[2], England and Wales 2001-02 to 2004-05

	Ethnicity
	White	Black	Asian	Other	Not recorded	Total
2001-02	6,629	529	744	358	260	8,520
2002-03	14,429	1,745	2,989	1,259	1,155	21,577
2003-04	20,600	2,701	3,659	1,324	1,099	29,383
2004-05	23,389	2,511	3,485	1,480	1,197	32,062

[1] Searches may be conducted on vehicles only, occupants only or both may be searched. Where a vehicle and driver occupier are searched simultaneously the search is recorded against the driver (occupant). Any other passengers searched are recorded as occupants. These figures exclude searches of vehicles only.

[2] The Terrorism Act 2000 came into force on 19 February 2001.

Note:

Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Vetting

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Criminal Record Bureau checks were carried out in each year from 2000 to 2006. [157435]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) has issued 12.2 million Disclosures since its launch in March 2002 to 31 March 2007. The following table illustrates the breakdown, in each financial year:

Financial year	Number of Disclosures issued
2002-03	1,441,704
2003-04	2,287,109
2004-05	2,434,290
2005-06	2,772,929
2006-07	3,283,356
Total	12,219,388

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

China: Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with the government of China on the one child policy; and if he will make a statement. [158369]

Mr. Malik: DFID has not had any recent discussions with the Chinese Government specifically focused on the one child policy. However, DFID works closely with China on reproductive health and rights more generally, especially in the context of our support for HIV and AIDS prevention and for health policy. In these contexts the Chinese Government are regularly made aware of our strong endorsement of the principles of the International Conference on Population and Development. Although the one child policy remains in place, China has made good progress in ensuring reproductive health rights more generally, especially through its implementation of the 2002 Law of Population and Family Planning. The law spells out rights and responsibilities for clients, service providers and family planning officials. Most provinces have now enacted their own regulations in accordance with the national law.

China: United Nations Population Fund

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the United Nations Population Fund in promoting non-coercive approaches to family planning in China since July; and if he will make a statement. [158368]

Mr. Malik: DFID has not made any specific assessment of UNFPA effectiveness in China since July. However, DFID works closely with UNFPA on reproductive health issues in China, especially in relation to HIV and AIDS prevention, the reduction of maternal mortality and the promotion of gender equity in China's health system. UNFPA programmes in China seek to influence China towards the full acceptance of the principles of the International Conference on Population and Development. The focus of UNFPA support is on improving the quality of care and increasing equity of access to reproductive health services.

Debts

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to identify and cancel outstanding international illegitimate debts. [156857]

Mr. Malik: The poorest countries are eligible for 100 per cent. debt cancellation on their bilateral debts under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative, as well as 100 per cent. debt cancellation on their debts to the World Bank, International Monetary Fund (IMF) and African Development Bank under the Multilateral Debt Relief Initiative (MDRI). The UK is at the forefront of debt cancellation for poor countries and international poverty reduction. We exceed our commitments under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) and Multilateral Debt Relief Initiatives (MDRI), providing the poorest countries with 100 per cent. cancellation on their bilateral and multilateral debts. The HIPS and MDRI systems have cancelled billions of pounds worth of debt and we continue to believe that they are the most appropriate way to tackle sovereign debt problems. Unpayable debts should not hinder the poorest countries from making progress towards the millennium development goals.

All of our loans are made to internationally recognised governments, are bound by legal contracts and are recognised in international law, we do not therefore consider them to be "illegitimate". We believe that debt relief should be provided on the basis of a country's economic situation rather than their history of poor or corrupt governance. Many countries that have a history of poor governance are now middle-income countries. If we cancelled so-called "illegitimate" debts for such countries, the full cost would have to be met from DFID's aid budget, diverting vital resources away from poorer countries. It is also likely that creditors and investors would take a negative view of the credit worthiness of developing countries in case the loans were later repudiated. This would be damaging for developing countries trying to strengthen their economies and reduce poverty through access to international investment and financing.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156997]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157877]

Mr. Malik: In its May 2007 departmental website review, DFID identified 48 sites that had received departmental funding. Figures are not available for 1 January 2005. Three of these sites have subsequently closed as part of our ongoing efforts to rationalise the number of websites we support. Details of the costs of the four main DFID-funded sites are given in the table. Compiling cost information for other departmental websites could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157878]

Mr. Malik: In its May 2007 departmental website review, DFID identified 48 sites that had received departmental funding. Compiling visitor information for all these sites could be done only at disproportionate cost. Foreign Workers: Clothing

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations have been made to his Department regarding the wages paid to the workers of UK high street fashion suppliers based in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [157962]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has not received any specific representation on the issue of wages paid to workers of UK high street fashion suppliers based in developing countries in the last six months. However we are engaged on these issues through a number of organisations and initiatives.

These include the Ethical Trading Initiative (ETI), which DFID helped set up, and funds. We have provided over £2 million to support the ETI, which is an alliance of companies, trades unions and non-governmental organisations committed to improving working conditions in global supply chains. A recent independent assessment of the ETI showed improvements in health and safety, working hours, wages and child labour in the supply chains of companies taking part. DFID also works at the country level, on labour rights and terms and conditions. For instance, in Bangladesh and Lesotho DFID has supported the work of the Multi-Fibre Arrangement Forum, which supports responsible business practices while improving productivity and competitiveness. DFID is also providing up to £20 million in support to the International Labour Organisation to implement decent work country programmes.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions his Department has had with UK high street fashion stores on (a) the wages paid to the workers of their suppliers in developing countries and (b) ensuring good working conditions and rights for such workers; and if he will make a statement. [157963]

Mr. Thomas: DFID helped set up—and funds—the Ethical Trading Initiative. We have provided over £2 million to support the ETI, which is an alliance of companies, trades unions and non-governmental organisations committed to improving working conditions in global supply chains. A recent independent assessment of the ETI showed improvements in health and safety, working hours, wages and child labour in the supply chains of companies taking part. DFID also works at the country level, on labour rights and terms and conditions.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Audio Equipment: Health Hazards

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 11 June 2007, Official Report, column 764W, on audio equipment: health hazards, what the evidential basis was for his statement that it is already widely understood that playing personal audio equipment too loud can damage people's hearing. [157167]

Mr. Thomas: Research conducted in 2005 by the Royal National Institute for Deaf People (RNID) showed that 42 per cent. of people between the ages of 18 to 24 years who played their personal music players for at least an hour every day believed that they had the volume too high. There are no published figures to indicate the percentage of people in the sample who were both aware of the risks and believed they used safe volume levels.

The RNID has been running the 'Don't Lose the Music' campaign to further raise awareness of the dangers of playing personal audio equipment too loud.

Consumers: Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of the Supply of Extended Warranties on Domestic Electrical Goods Order 2005 on consumer protection. [157586]

Mr. Thomas: Responsibility for the Supply of Extended Warranties on Domestic Electrical Goods Order 2005 rests with the Office of Fair Trading. The OFT monitors and enforces this order to ensure as far as possible that it is complied with. In addition, the OFT is commissioning a project to examine the impact that the Supply of Extended Warranties on Domestic Electrical Goods Order 2005 has had on the extended warranties market. The OFT will publish the findings from this project in summer 2008.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the likely change in (a) export sales and (b) research and development spending as a result of moving the Defence Export Services Organisation from the Ministry of Defence to UK Trade and Investment. [156169]

Mr. Thomas: It is not Government practice to make estimates of future levels of defence exports. This Machinery of Government change is not expected to affect the amount spent by Government on research and development.

Departmental Responsibilities

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on what date the Transfer of Function Order detailing the changes in his Department was laid before Parliament for approval. [157723]

Mr. Thomas: It is anticipated that the Transfer of Functions Order will go before the November Privy Council meeting and should therefore come into force on 13 December.

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what guidance his Department follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158603]

Mr. Thomas: All correspondence from hon. Members and Peers is handled in accordance with the principles set out in 'Handling Correspondence from Members of Parliament, Members of the House of Lords, MEPs and Members of Devolved Assemblies:

Guidance for Departments'. The same principles apply when handling correspondence from members of the public.

The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members 'Peers' correspondence. The report for 2006 was published on 28 March 2007, Official Report, columns 101-04WS.

Departments: Publicity

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his Department's projected spending is on advertising and promotional campaigns for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, broken down by cost relating to (i) television, (ii) radio and (iii) print media. [155889]

Mr. Thomas: Currently, projected spending through the Central Office of Information on these advertising media is estimated as follows:

(a) 2007-08 financial year

Nuclear Energy Consultation (July to September 2007) press advertising: £166,634

National Minimum Wage campaign (October 2007 to March 2008), as part of which we currently anticipate spending approximately £400,000 on radio advertising and £200,000 on poster advertising.

(b) No advertising or promotional campaigns have yet been planned through COI for 2008-09.

Figures are exclusive of VAT.

Electricity Generation

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the amount of electricity that could be generated through the capture and use of gas produced from landfill; and what proportion of the UK's total electricity supply this would represent. [156040]

Malcolm Wicks: This Department does not estimate the amount of electricity that will be available from individual renewable energy technologies. The renewables obligation is designed to bring forward the most cost effective means of generating electricity from such sources. However, in modelling likely future scenarios, there are conditions where future generation from landfill gas could be 10 per cent. higher than the 4.4 TWh achieved in 2006. Under the RO generation from landfill gas in the UK has increased by 65 per cent. over the last four years and in 2006 represented 24 per cent. of all generation from renewables in the UK or 1.1 per cent of total UK electricity generation.

Electronic Commerce: Fraud

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what estimate his Department has made of the amount of money lost to online identity theft and fraud in the UK in each year since 1997; [157061]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the number of cases of online identity theft in the UK in each year since 1997. [157062]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 11 October 2007]: I have been asked to reply.

The published estimates for the cost of identity theft to the UK economy do not include a specific breakdown of thefts committed online. In addition the Government do not have information on the number of cases on online identity theft recorded centrally.

To help people protect themselves from online fraud, the website www.getsafeonline.org was developed by the Government, police and industry. The website gives advice on how to stay safe online when shopping, banking or doing business over the internet, and how to protect computers and the personal information they contain.

On 9 October 2007 the Attorney General announced that funding had been approved for the proposals arising from the Government's Fraud Review. This includes the development of a National Fraud Strategic Authority, together with a National Fraud Reporting Centre, the establishment of the City of London Police as the Lead Force on fraud, and proposals for measurement of fraud. These measures will help to tackle fraud and increase our understanding of the nature and extent of the problem.

Energy Supply

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what steps he is taking to assist those households living in fuel poverty that are not connected to the mains gas network; [156368]

(2) what steps he is taking to assist households off the mains gas network to take full advantage of a competitive energy market; [156369]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to assist households and communities not connected to the mains gas network; [156370]

(4) what discussions he has had with Ministers at the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the energy needs of households not connected to gas mains. [156372]

Malcolm Wicks: We recognise, and are addressing, the need to help fuel poor households both off and on the gas network. The Office of Gas and Electricity Markets (Ofgem) is responsible for gas regulation, including transportation and distribution. As part of the post-2008 Gas Distribution Price Control, Ofgem is currently consulting on measures that would encourage gas distribution network companies to provide connections to deprived communities currently off the gas network. Such communities are likely to contain a higher than average proportion of fuel poor households.

The Design and Demonstration Unit within my Department has successfully developed a model for the provision of gas connections to deprived communities by independent gas transporters. A number of connections have been made using this model. The unit has also developed models to provide lower-cost household energy from renewable and other new technologies for those deprived communities where gas connections are not economically viable. We expect demonstration projects in North-East England and Yorkshire and Humberside that use these models to begin shortly. Assistance for fuel poor and vulnerable households within such communities is also available under other Government programmes, including DEFRA's Warm Front programme.

Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Ministers frequently discuss the energy needs of vulnerable households both off and on the gas network with Ministers at the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Energy: Billing

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of Ofgem's conclusion in its factsheet number 67, Prepayment Meters and Fuel Poverty, that a premium of £106 per year for pre-payment meter customers is more desirable than a premium of £14 for all energy customers. [157404]

Malcolm Wicks: Government believe that independently regulated competitive markets are the most cost-effective and efficient way to deliver our energy policy goals. It is for energy suppliers to determine their pricing structure, taking into account the different cost to serve for different customers.

Prepayment meter rates are often higher because of the higher costs of the meters and the payment infrastructure that supports them. Some companies have equalised their prepayment and standard credit tariffs, but others have not. It is true that the differences between the rates paid by direct debit customers and those paid by others (both standard credit and prepayment meter customers) have widened. I am concerned about these increases, and am working with Ofgem to consider ways to encourage further protection of the most vulnerable consumers from the large differences in bills because of the payment method they use and to spread best practice across suppliers.

Hearing Aid Council

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform by what date he expects the registration of private sector audiologists to transfer from the Hearing Aid Council to the Health Professions Council. [158639]

Mr. Thomas: My officials continue to work towards the deadline of April 2009, which the Government committed to in response to the Hampton Report.

We intend to repeal the Hearing Aid Council Act 1968 as part of the transfer process and officials are considering whether the new Legislative Reform Orders (LROs) are sufficient for this purpose. If it is determined that wholesale repeal of the Act is beyond the scope of LRO then we will pursue the matter using primary legislation, which would of course be subject to pressure on the parliamentary timetable.

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what arrangements will be made for consumer protection for people purchasing private hearing aids following the abolition of the Hearing Aid Council. [158698]

Mr. Thomas: My officials have worked with the Hearing Aid Council (HAC) executive to ensure that repealing the Hearing Aid Council Act 1968 and regulating private audiology under the Health Professions Council (HPC) will not reduce consumer protection.

This exercise has concluded that typical issues raised by complainants to the HAC would be covered adequately by existing and upcoming consumer protection legislation. Indeed, consumer protection is likely to be increased upon transposition of the EU Unfair Commercial Practices Directive next year.

For instance, sales visits in the home, high pressure sales practices, misleading advice or sales information would be covered by the doorstep selling regulations and the forthcoming Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations, which implement the EU Unfair Commercial Practices Directive.

The new regulations will strengthen consumer protection by introducing a general prohibition on unfair commercial (mainly marketing and selling) practices. The regulations, which will come into force in April 2008, are intended to ensure that consumers have the information necessary to make free and informed choices, and are not treated aggressively, including by means of high pressure selling techniques. They include rules prohibiting conduct which misleads the average consumer by what is said or omitted to be said, and thereby causes or is likely to cause him to take a decision he would not have taken otherwise. The regulations also prohibit aggressive practice which impairs the average consumer's freedom of choice with regard to the product and thereby causes, or is likely to cause him to take a different decision.

My officials believe that these measures will be more than sufficient to protect consumers from dubious practices following the abolition of the Hearing Aid Council.

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will list his Department's and its predecessors' (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156627]

Mr. Thomas: All the information requested is set out in section 3.3 of the Department's annual report and accounts for 2006-07 (pages 125 to 130). This includes all the changes from 2005-06. The report can be accessed on the BERR website at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file40578.pdf and in the House of Commons Library.

Changes since the 2006-07 annual report are as follows:

The creation of the Technology Strategy Board (on 1 July 2007), an executive NDPB.

On 28 June 2007, with the creation of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and of the Department for Innovation, Universities, and Skills, the transfer of the following bodies was announced:

Local Better Regulation Office (an NDPB, and a company limited by guarantee) and the Better Regulatory Commission, (and advisory NDPB) to transfer from Cabinet Office to BERR.

From DTI to DIUS:

Executive Agencies

National Weights and Measures Laboratory

UK Intellectual Property Office.

Executive NDPBs

British Hallmarking Council

Design Council

Arts and Humanities Research Council

Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council

Council for Central Laboratory Research Council (CCLRC) and Particle Physics and Astronomy Research Council (PPARC): merged into the Science and Technology Facilities Council on 1 April 2007.

Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council

Economic and Social Research Council

Natural Environment Research Council

Medical Research Council

Technology Strategy Board.

Advisory NDPBs

Council for Science and Technology.

Tribunal

Copyright Tribunal

Insolvency Practitioners Tribunal.

Oil: Exploration

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to make an announcement on the 24th round of oil and gas licensing in Cardigan Bay and the Moray Firth. [157740]

Malcolm Wicks: My officials are carrying out an appropriate assessment of the potential impacts of licensing in Cardigan Bay. When that assessment has been concluded I will be in a position to take a decision on whether or not to license the blocks. I have no firm date for the conclusion of the appropriate assessment.

Regional Development Agencies

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the budgets were for each regional development agency in each year of their operation. [156652]

Mr. Timms: The RDAs' spend in the period 1999-2000 to 2006-07 and their budgets for 2007-08 are set out in the following table.

Seals: Animal Products

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2259W, on seals: animal products, what assessment he made of the action by other EU states before providing his reply. [157927]

Mr. Thomas: The Government take note of the actions of other member states on this issue. The UK position remains that it is seeking an EU-wide ban on the import of harp and hooded sealskins and sealskin products.

Severn Barrage

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether a feasibility study of a proposed Severn Barrage will include a cost benefit analysis of similar levels of public investment in energy efficiency and other renewable options. [157809]

Malcolm Wicks: The feasibility study, for which the detailed remit and budget are now being scoped, will consider all key aspects of a tidal barrage in the Severn estuary, including environmental, social and economic issues.

A barrage is a unique proposal and the study will look at the opportunity cost of taking it forward as compared to other investment to reduce CO_2 emissions from energy.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Opium

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government supports recent US proposals to increase the spraying of opium fields in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [157385]

David Miliband: Counter narcotics policy and implementation, including opium poppy elimination, is the responsibility of the Afghan Government. We work very closely with the US to support the Afghan Government on implementing their National Drug Control Strategy. The Afghan Government oppose the use of aerial and ground based spraying to eradicate opium poppy.

The US Government advocate spraying as one method of implementing non-negotiated forced eradication. But in their counter narcotics strategy for Afghanistan, published in August, they recognise that

"no herbicidal spray program would be implemented without the consent of the Government of Afghanistan".

The UK continues to support the piloting of ground-based spraying, subject to the agreement of the Afghan Government, to test its efficacy and impact. It should be well explained to local populations and targeted in areas of Afghanistan where the security situation permits and there is good access to legal livelihoods for farmers. At present, we judge that the disadvantages of aerial spraying outweigh the benefits. We have made our position clear to both the Afghan Government and the US.

Burma: Arms Control

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made at the United Nations for a comprehensive and mandatory arms embargo on Burma. [157831]

Dr. Howells: The UN Security Council is fully focussed on the events in Burma. UN Special Envoy Ibrahim Gambari has briefed the Security Council on the situation in the country and the UK supports his efforts to mediate a dialogue between the political actors.

An EU arms embargo is already in place. We judge that at present there is insufficient support on the Security Council for a UN-wide ban.

Chechnya: Politics and Government

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent of support for rebel groups in Chechnya from UK (a) assets, (b) groups and (c) individuals; and if he will make a statement. [157572]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We regularly monitor the activities of Chechen separatist groups and any possible involvement of parties based in the UK, and any implications, which this might have for the UK.

Chevening Scholarships Programme

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Chevening scholarships were granted in each of the last three years, broken down by country of origin of recipient. [156937]

Mr. Jim Murphy [Holding answer 15 October 2007]: Details for the two academic years 2004-05 and 2005-06 are given in the Chevening Programme annual report for each year. The reports are available at: http://www.chevening.com/about/reports/. They will also be placed in the Library of the House. The annual report for 2006-07 is not yet available and so the details for that academic year are provided in the following table. The report will also be placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the expenditure on Chevening Scholarships was in each year since 1997. [157556]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Details for the eight academic years from 1998-99 to 2005-06 are given in the Chevening Programme Annual Report for each year. The reports are available at: http://www.chevening.com/about/reports/. They will also be placed in the Library of the House. There was no annual report for 1997-98 and we do not have accurate financial statistics for that year, but the cost was about £29 million. In academic year 2006-07 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office spent £29.7 million on Chevening Scholarships and a further £3.6 million on Chevening Fellowships. The figure for Scholarships includes £3.5 million spent on Central Jointly Funded Scholarships.

Cyprus

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when an official from the British High Commission in Cyprus last visited the closed area of Famagusta; and what reports of that visit he received. [157333]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Officials from our high commission in Nicosia last visited the closed area of Varosha in 2006 in connection with properties within Varosha owned by British citizens. They reported accordingly thereafter.

David Manning: Gifts

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to the public purse was of the function organised by UK ambassador to the US Sir David Manning to mark the 50th birthday of Condoleezza Rice; and what the cost of the dress presented to her on that occasion was. [157825]

Dr. Howells: The dinner in question was held in honour of US Secretary of State Rice and attended by the President, First Lady and other senior figures. There were 111 guests and the cost was US$9,512.05.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156630]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Details of these bodies are available in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Annual Reports for the relevant years, the FCO's non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) website (www.fco.gov.uk/ndpbs), the List of Ministerial Responsibilities (which is published by Cabinet Office on a regular basis and lists all executive agencies) and Public Bodies 2006 (which lists all NDPBs for 2005-06). However, for ease of reference the FCO bodies are listed as follows:

The FCO had only one executive agency, Wilton Park, in 2005-06. From 1 April 2006 the FCO's list of executive agencies increased to include both Wilton Park and FCO Services.

Since 2005-06 the FCO had the following executive NDPBs:

British Association for Central and Eastern Europe;

The British Council;

Great Britain China Centre;

Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission;

Westminster Foundation for Democracy.

Since 2005-06 the FCO had the following advisory NDPBs:

Diplomatic Service Appeal Board;

Government Hospitality Advisory Committee for the Purchase of Wine;

Wilton Park Academic Council.

Since 2005-06 the FCO had the following tribunal NDPB:

Foreign Compensation Commission.

The FCO does not currently have any Trading Funds.

Since 2005-06 the FCO has had only one public corporation, the BBC World Service, although the British Council is also classified as a public corporation by HM Treasury for budgeting purposes only.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will break down in (a) near cash and (b) non-cash terms columns 1 to 8 of the subhead detail tables for his Department contained in the (i) main estimate, (ii) winter supplementary estimate and (iii) spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08. [155999]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information in the Part II: Subhead detail table of our Supply Estimates is not broken down by near-cash/non-cash. There are no other published documents that provide a near-cash/non-cash breakdown of this data, though the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses (PESA) publication (copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House) provides a useful near-cash/non-cash Departmental Expenditure Limit split (DEL) (see Tables 1.6, 1.7 and 2.1 of PESA 2007 for data for years 2001-02 to 2007-08). However, we have been able to provide a near-cash/non-cash split against the columns in the Part II: Subhead detail table in our estimate by showing the non-cash items for each estimate against the relevant column. All other columns are near-cash.

Columns 1 to 8 of the subhead detail tables for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) contained in the main estimate, winter supplementary estimate and spring supplementary estimate for financial years 2001-02 to 2007-08 are all near-cash except where shown in the following table:

Of which non-cash	156,719	—	—
Other current column	824,868	—	—
Of which non-cash	50,000	—	—

[1] No estimate taken.

The aforementioned data is HM Treasury re-classifications and so will be on a different basis year on year. Detailed notes on reclassifications have been provided in the FCO Annual Reports for the years in question.

Data taken from Supply Estimates or resource accounts are not necessarily readily compatible with a near-cash/non-cash split, which is used only within the DEL budgetary controls applied by HM Treasury. The ability of Departments to provide such a split will depend partly on the extent of reconciliations between voted provision and budgetary limits.

Egypt: Prisoners

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Egyptian counterpart on the recent jailing and fining of independent journalists and editors-in-chief in Egypt. [157328]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed this issue with his Egyptian counterpart. Our ambassador in Cairo, however, has raised our concerns with Ministers and officials in the Egyptian Government. There have been positive developments in freedom of expression in Egypt in recent years, but we are concerned by recent events. We will continue to raise this issue with the Egyptian Government when appropriate.

EU Countries: Cross Border Cooperation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to implement the European Grouping for Territorial Co-operation. [158184]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The legislation required for the European Grouping for Territorial Co-operation (EGTC) Regulation to take proper effect in the UK, Statutory Instrument 2007/1949, came into force on the 1 August 2007. Guidance on forming an EGTC is available on the Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform website at:

http://www.dti.gov.uk/regional/european-structural-funds/european-grouping-of-territorial-cooperation/page40444.html.

Currently there are no UK organisations participating in EGTCs or UK EGTCs registered in the UK.

Iraq: Resettlement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, how many Iraqis are eligible to receive a package of financial payment for resettlement. [157121]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28WS. Around 260 of locally engaged staff in Iraq have worked for us for 12 months or more and would therefore be able to apply now for financial assistance, or the other options set out in the statement, should they be made redundant or be forced to resign their jobs in what we judge to be extraordinary circumstances. We expect that most if not all of our currently employed locally engaged staff in Iraq will become eligible in due course. Officials are currently looking at the numbers of serving staff who have worked for us for 12 months or more that would be eligible for assistance. We will provide further details at the end of the month.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Iraqis worked for the British Government in each year since 2003 but do not qualify for a package of financial payment for resettlement. [157123]

Dr. Howells: We estimate that about 20,000 Iraqis have been employed since 2003. The large majority were for very short periods, especially in 2003 and 2004, and do not qualify for assistance.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he expects the packages of financial payment for resettlement to begin to be made to Iraqi staff. [157124]

Dr. Howells: It is important to ensure that robust mechanisms are in place to administer the scheme fairly and effectively. I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28WS, which promised a further announcement on the implementation of the scheme before the end of the month.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps were taken to ensure (a) the safety of and (b) recognition of the contribution made by local Iraqi staff prior to 2005. [157125]

Dr. Howells: Locally engaged Iraqi staff working for our armed forces and civilian missions in Iraq have made an invaluable contribution to the UK's efforts to support security, stability and development in the new Iraq.

At all times since 2003, we have recognised a duty of care to our serving Iraqi staff and have taken a range of measures to fulfil that.

In 2003-04, the environment in which our locally employed work force served was not the same as from 2005. The policy announced by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 8 October in the House is about recognising our particular debt of gratitude to those who have had a sustained association with us in uniquely difficult circumstances.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who the approving authority is in determining which Iraqi staff qualify for a package of financial payment to aid resettlement. [157126]

Dr. Howells: The scheme will be administered by employing Government Departments, working with the Home Office and other interested Departments. We will announce further details of the administration of the scheme by the end of October.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, (1) which occupations qualify as professional staff. [157127]

(2) what the difference is between staff and professional staff with regard to local Iraqi staff. [157128]

Dr. Howells: Professional staff include interpreters, translators and other Iraqi staff serving in similarly skilled roles necessitating the regular use of written or spoken English.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what coordination he has had with his counterparts in the local region on the resettlement of local Iraqi staff. [157129]

Dr. Howells: Officials have discussed this issue informally with a number of Governments within the region.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, which countries are included in his definition of local region. [157130]

Dr. Howells: In this case the term local region covers Arabic-speaking states in the Middle East.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his estimate is of the cost of a single financial payment to aid resettlement for an Iraqi in (a) Iraq and (b) elsewhere in the region. [157131]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28WS, which promised a further announcement on this issue before the end of the month. The size of the payments is likely to be linked to salary and would therefore vary according to the individual's job, and his/her employing Department.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs from where the aid resettlement package for local Iraqi staff will be funded. [157132]

Dr. Howells: The costs of the total package, including resettlement or admission to the UK and financial assistance, will be shared between employing departments and the Home Office.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the agreed circumstances are in which local Iraqi staff may receive admission to the United Kingdom. [157137]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-28WS.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the Russian government's intention to veto any UN Security Council resolution that would give Kosovo supervised independence; and if he will make a statement. [158024]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Russia has made clear its opposition to the comprehensive proposal for a Kosovo status settlement submitted to the UN Special Envoy for Kosovo on 26 March 2007. This position has so far prevented passage of a Security Council Resolution that would allow for implementation of that proposal.

Within the Contact Group, we continue to work closely with Russia on the issue of Kosovo's future status. Negotiations between Belgrade and Pristina are ongoing, facilitated by a Troika of EU/Russian/US officials. At their last meeting in New York on 27 September, Contact Group Ministers agreed that an early resolution of Kosovo's status is crucial to the stability and security of the Western Balkans. They expressed full support for the Troika process.

Mordecai Vanunu

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Israeli Government on the continuing imprisonment of Mordechai Vanunu in that country. [157318]

Dr. Howells: Mordechai Vanunu was re-convicted on 30 April 2007 of breaching an order barring him from contacts with the foreign press. Officials from our embassy in Tel Aviv raised our concerns about Mr. Vanunu's re-conviction on 3 July. We will continue to follow developments on this case.

Palestinians: Entry Clearances

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will review the visa applications of the Palestine under-19 football squad. [157312]

Dr. Howells: On 12 September, as the Minister responsible for entry clearance I requested UKvisas to review the refusal of the visa applications submitted by the Palestine National Youth Football Team. I have considered the outcome of this review and am satisfied that the decision was correct and entirely in accordance with the Immigration Rules.

Rendition

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Government's policy on the provision of support and information to the US Administration in relation to the investigation of terrorism and the questioning of suspects. [157344]

Dr. Howells: The Government work closely with the US Government on issues relating to the investigation of terrorism. Many of the terrorist threats to the UK have international connections, which can only be dealt with effectively in co-operation with the intelligence and security agencies of other states. When working with the US Administration, or any other foreign government, we ensure that we act in accordance with our human rights obligations.

Russia: Human Rights

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions have taken place between his Department and the Russian Government on human rights in Russia; what progress was made during these discussions; and if he will make a statement. [158098]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have a mature and frank relationship with Russia on a wide range of human rights and democracy issues. We don't shy away from making our concerns known and Russia in turn have issues they raise with us.

We most recently raised our concerns through the EU/Russia Human Rights Consultations on 3 October. The EU raised a number of specific concerns about the human rights situation in Russia, particularly regarding freedom of expression and assembly, specifically in regard to the run-up to the parliamentary and presidential elections. Other concerns raised related to freedom of the press, the position of Russian non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and civil society following the entry into force of the law on NGO activities and the counter-extremism law, as well as respect for the rule of law and the situation in the Northern Caucasus. The two sides also discussed the issues of minorities, combating torture and maltreatment as well as the issue of women rights, including trafficking.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on human rights violations in Russia; what assessment he has made of those reports; and if he will make a statement. [158154]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office closely monitors the human rights situation in Russia and remains concerned about the ongoing reports of human rights violations, which we receive from our embassy in Moscow, non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and Russia media sources.

Our main concern is that these reports indicate a further shrinking of the democratic space in Russia, primarily through the recent NGO and anti-extremist laws and the restrictions imposed on opposition parties. There are concerns that this shrinking could worsen in the lead up to the parliamentary elections in December and the 2008 presidential elections. Other human rights concerns include: the restrictions on media freedom and increased risk to journalists safety; the rise in attacks on ethnic, racial and religious minorities; the increasing use of forced psychiatric treatment and detention; and the ongoing reports of extra-judicial killings, torture, abduction and arbitrary detention in Chechnya and elsewhere in the North Caucasus.

Russia: Non-Governmental Organisations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions have taken place between his Department and the Russian government on the position of non-governmental organisations in Russia; and if he will make a statement. [158026]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have a mature and frank relationship with Russia on a wide range of human rights and democracy issues, both through specific bilateral and EU human rights consultations. We make our concerns known and they in turn have issues they raise with us.

We have consistently voiced our concerns about restrictions upon the legitimate work of non-governmental organisations (NGOs) in Russia. We most recently raised our concerns through the EU/Russia Human Rights Consultations on 3 October.

Some NGOs have expressed concern that the requirements imposed by the new NGO law, including registration, have limited their activities. Some individual NGOs have also found their operating environment further constrained by legislation and harassment. Many of these organisations had received funding from international institutions or from foreign governments.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to support the position of non-governmental organisations in Russia; and if he will make a statement. [158027]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Along with EU partners, we are actively monitoring implementation of the non-governmental organisations (NGO) law. We repeatedly call on the Russian authorities to implement the NGO law in line with their international commitments. Our concerns over the NGO law were raised during the EU/Russia Human Rights Consultations on 3 October.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) funds NGOs working in Russia as part of its global programme of project work to develop civil society. This includes funding of NGOs working on sustainable development, human rights and economic governance issues. Many of these projects are run in full co-operation with the Russian authorities. For example, the Russian Federal Prison Service has co-operated extensively on a number of projects and has on more than one occasion expressed its gratitude for the active support of the UK on Russian prison reform.

In October 2006, the FCO held a seminar on the NGO law. It gave UK NGOs the opportunity to put questions to a senior official of the Federation Registration Service, which is responsible for registering foreign NGOs under the amended law.

Sudan: Peace Keeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Sudan to bring to justice the perpetrators of the attack on African Union troops at Haskanita, South Darfur. [157369]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement on 30 September utterly condemning the recent murder of African Union Peacekeepers in Haskanita, Darfur in an attack which he went on to describe as a callous and destructive act. He also called on all sides in the conflict to commit to an immediate cessation of hostilities and to join the political process as the only route to lasting peace in Darfur. We have made clear to all sides in the conflict there can be no impunity for crimes committed in Darfur. This attack appears to have been initiated by rebel groups, which poses particular challenges in bringing the perpetrators to justice.

USA: Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) advice and (b) guidance his Department has issued to UK citizens with past drugs offences who wish to travel to the US; and if he will make a statement. [158447]

Dr. Howells: Foreign and Commonwealth Office travel advice advises that all UK citizens with criminal convictions should consult the US embassy regarding the need to obtain a visa prior to travel, as they may not qualify for travel under the US Visa Waiver Programme.

We provide similar advice to any direct requests we receive regarding planned travel to the US for those with convictions, whether drug related or otherwise.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he intends to publish the fourth report by PricewaterhouseCoopers into the academies programme. [156437]

Jim Knight: The fourth PricewaterhouseCoopers report into the academies programme was published on the Department's website on the 19 July this year and is available in the House Library.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether it is his policy that local authorities may be providers and sponsors of academies; and if he will make a statement. [158566]

Jim Knight: Local authorities can be co-sponsors of academies. Under a co-sponsorship arrangement the lead sponsor retains majority control over the academy trust, and can appoint two local authority appointed governors to the governing body. Where the local authority is not a co-sponsor, the governing body would have only one local authority appointed governor.

Academies: Facilities

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many academies have begun sharing their facilities with (a) other schools and (b) the local community following the changes to VAT announced in the 2007 Budget. [156436]

Jim Knight [holding answer 8 October 2007]: The Department does not hold this information centrally. However, the Department's expectation is for all academies to collaborate with other schools and to be extended schools, providing access to their facilities to local communities.

Academies: Investment

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many academies have charitable investment funds established by their sponsors following changes to the programme announced in March 2006; and what information his Department collects on the use to which such funds are put. [156255]

Jim Knight [holding answer 8 October 2007]: Sponsorship for the first Academies was provided in the form of a contribution to the capital costs of new buildings. In July 2006, the endowment model of sponsorship was introduced whereby Academy Trusts set up an endowment fund, the proceeds of which are to be used to combat the impact of deprivation on education in the local community. As at 4 October 2007, 13 Academies have had charitable investment funds established by their sponsors.

To date, the Department has not collected information from these Academies on their endowment funds. However, the model Deed of Gift requires the Academy Trust to supply the Secretary of State and the Academy Sponsor with an annual statement showing how the fund has been used. The Department will collect information from Academy Trusts on the amounts received from this form of sponsorship on a six monthly basis, in the same way as it does for traditional sponsorship, and the published Annual Accounts for each Academy will record how much has been received and how much has been spent, identifying the Endowment Fund separately from other funds.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Greater London

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects (a) Leyton and Leytonstone schools and (b) Wanstead and Snaresbrook schools to be included in the Building Schools for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [157832]

Jim Knight: The London borough of Waltham Forest has been prioritised as wave one and five of the Building Schools for the Future programme. Waltham Forest reached financial close on their BSF wave one project on 31 August 2007. Construction has commenced and the first schools are due to be open by September 2008. Wave five includes Leyton, Leytonstone and Chingford, and will be eligible for funding from 2009-10.

Conversations and preparatory work are currently ongoing between the local authority and DCSF officials, regarding Waltham Forest's strategy for secondary education, and the requirement that strategy places upon the physical school estate. Formal engagement will commence on wave five once the LA has demonstrated their readiness to deliver.

Redbridge (including Wanstead and Snaresbrook) is currently programmed as wave 13 to 15.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Sports

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding from the Building Schools for the Future initiative has been spent on modern sports facilities. [155760]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect information on the amount of funding spent on specific facilities within school buildings.

The total capital investment in schools will rise to over £8 billion a year by 2010-11 and the envelope of funding provided for Building Schools for the Future will support substantial investment in sports facilities where this is the local priority.

Departments: Reviews

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what independent reviews have been commissioned by his Department and its predecessors since 1 May 1997. [149933]

Jim Knight: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the policy objectives of the educational maintenance allowance were; what evaluation has been undertaken of its performance in meeting those objectives; what the criteria are for receiving the allowance; and if he will make a statement. [158608]

Jim Knight: EMA is designed to address the issue that the UK has one of the lowest rates of participation in education among 16-year-olds in Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries. Its aim is to encourage more young people from lower income backgrounds to enter academic or vocational post-compulsory education.

EMA was subject to one of the most comprehensive evaluations of any educational initiative. The results indicated an increase in participation by 16-year-olds of 3.8 per cent. points nationally and 4.1 per cent. points nationally for 17-year-olds.

A young person will be entitled to receive EMA in England in the 2007/08 academic year if they are:

Age 16,17 or 18 and live in a household with an annual income of £30,810 or less;

Meet the terms of their learning agreement by participating in learning which will never be less than 12 hours of guided learning hours and in most cases will be significantly more.

Their course/programme is level 1-3 with a minimum duration of 10 weeks. Full time education includes Further Education Colleges, School 6th Form and Providers who offer Entry To Employment (E2E) and Programme led Apprentices.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was allocated to the provision of educational maintenance allowance (EMA) in each financial year since inception including piloting; how many young people received EMA in each year since its inception including piloting; what the impact of compulsory education until 18-years-old is expected to be on the EMA; what plans he has for alternative provision in the light of that policy; and what estimate he has made of the total (a) establishment and (b) annual costs of compulsory schooling to 18 years. [158609]

Jim Knight: The numbers of young people receiving EMA in each academic year since inception is shown in the table as follows:

	Numbers accessing EMA
1999/2000	14,135
2000/01	73,230
2001/02	114,254
2002/03	124,351
2003/04	126,871
2004/05	297,567
2005/06	430,327
2006/07	528,403

Expenditure on education maintenance allowance since its inception in 1999 is shown in the table as follows:

Expenditure	£ million
1999-2000	11
2000-01	52
2001-02	109
2002-03	120
2003-04	142
2004-05	260
2005-06	406.6
2006-07	502.9

Financial support for learning will be restructured when the compulsory participation age is raised to 18, and we are looking at a variety of methods to ensure that this is done in the most effective way to ensure young people are enabled to participate. In doing this we will build on the reforms from the Government's review of financial support for young people, and the views we gathered in the public consultation on "supporting young people to achieve".

We will ensure that there is appropriate, engaging and worthwhile provision available to all young people to enable them to participate successfully.

The estimated costs of raising the participation age are set out in the Regulatory Impact Assessment published alongside the Green Paper on 22 March. This can be accessed at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/consultations/downloadableDocs/RIA%20[FINAL]%20word%20version.pdf

I have placed a copy in the Library of the House. We estimate that there will be one-off costs of around £200 million, made up of £80 million for new buildings and facilities, and £120 million for the training of new staff. We estimate that there will be annual costs of around £740 million on top of costs already factored into achieving our existing aspiration of 90 per cent. participation of 17-year-olds by 2015. This is made up of £590 million in additional participation costs, £50 million in additional funding for local authorities (to run the registration system, to provide additional support and guidance, and to enforce the duty), £10 million in enforcement costs and £90 million in additional costs to support those with Special Educational Needs (SEN).

Education: Assessments

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of 15 year olds were (a) on school rolls, (b) entered for one or more Key Stage 4 qualification and (c) awarded passes for one or more such qualifications in (i) England, (ii) Wirral and (iii) Birkenhead in each year since 1997. [158214]

Jim Knight: The information that is readily available is given as follows:

Education: Warrington

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he plans to take to increase the percentage of young people between 16 and 18 years old in Warrington education. [158717]

Jim Knight: Engagement in learning, and educational attainment, are critical if young people are to achieve good outcomes, and fulfil their potential. My Department has a number of initiatives already in place to ensure that 16 to 19-year-olds have access to education and employment with training. Our 14-19 reforms, that include an entitlement for every young person to access a Diploma programme from 2013, will ensure that all young people have the opportunity to choose a learning pathway which suits them and which can be the basis for progression to further learning, higher education and employment.

Government-funded apprenticeships offer the opportunity for young people to earn as they learn. There over 200 apprenticeships, designed by employers, available to 16 to 19-year-olds in 80 different sectors with 130,000 employers taking part. These apprenticeships give employees the opportunity to learn on the job and also through off the job training.

16 and 17-year-olds who are in employment, and who have not yet attained NVQ level 2 or equivalent, are entitled to reasonable paid time off during normal working hours to study or train for a qualification which will improve their future employment prospects. The Department is also piloting Learning Agreements to help 16 and 17-year-olds in employment get back into education and training. Young people will agree personal contracts to return to education or vocational training in return for financial support.

However, we are not complacent and know that there is a lot more to do. Numbers of 16 and 17-year-olds in full-time education have increased in Warrington from 63 per cent. in 1998 to 68 per cent. in 2005, but we need to do more to increase the number of work-based learning opportunities for young people. By 2013 we will introduce an entitlement to an apprenticeship place for all school-leavers who meet the entry criteria. It will mean that every young person leaving school who wants to continue their learning in a work-based environment can do so.

Once the Diploma and apprenticeship entitlements are in place, all young people will be required to continue in education or training post-16. The bill will include provisions to raise to 18 the minimum age at which young people can leave education or training.

European Schools Programme

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the evolution of the European Schools programme, with particular reference to its activities in England. [156946]

Jim Knight: The EU institution, European Schools, was established by an intergovernmental agreement in 1957. Its purpose is to provide an education based on mother tongue teaching for the children of officials of the EU institutions and its agencies. There are 14 schools in various countries across Europe. The Government are committed to the future of the European Schools and fulfils their obligations under the 1994 Convention Defining the Statute of the European Schools through its membership of the governing body. The United Kingdom has one school in Culham in Oxfordshire. It was established in the late 1970s to support the employees of the EFDA-JET project based at Culham Laboratories.

At its meeting in April 2007 in Lisbon, the European Schools' Board of Governors took a decision to allow Culham School to leave the European Schools system because it no longer has enough pupils entitled to an education under the provisions of the intergovernmental agreement. The decision allows Culham to stay in the system until at least 2010, but its transition into either the state or private sector must be completed by 2017. The EFDA decision to phase out its project at Culham and move the remaining work to its other base in France has contributed to this decision.

It is too early to say exactly what the future holds for Culham School, but my officials are working in support of the parents and management of the school to ensure a smooth transition.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils in Suffolk passed five GCSEs including English and mathematics at A* to C grade in each of the last five years. [156768]

Primary Education: Teaching Methods

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the criteria are for the one-to-one tuition of 300,000 primary school pupils recently announced by the Prime Minister; and whether this will be available to primary schools in Darwen, Lancashire. [158442]

Jim Knight: The Prime Minister announced that the Government would be offering one-to-one tuition for over 300,000 under-attaining pupils a year in English by 2010-11, and over 300,000 pupils a year in Maths. We are currently planning how this should be delivered and will use lessons learned from the tuition element of the "Making Good Progress" pilot, and other existing individual intervention programmes, to inform this.

Schools: Cadets

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many combined cadet force units there were in mainstream schools in each local education authority in each of the last 10 years. [151214]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

The MOD does not hold a record of the local authority of each school with a Combined Cadet Force (CCF) contingent. Our records are based on the Army's regional Brigade areas.

The total number of CCF contingents in the last 10 years is:

	Number
1997	242
1998	241
1999	239
2000	237
2001	241
2002	244
2003	248

2007	260

Schools: Extracurricular Activities

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of schools that offer after school activities until 6 pm in England, broken down by (a) region and (b) constituency. [157728]

Beverley Hughes: We do not collect information centrally on the number of schools providing after school activities. We do, however, have information on the number and percentages of schools providing access to the full core offer of extended services in England. For primary schools this includes providing access to child care and a varied menu of activities. For secondary schools it includes providing access to a varied menu of activities. The lists which have been placed in the Library show the number and percentage of schools in each region and constituency that are providing access to full core offer of extended services.

There are many other schools which are already providing parts of the core offer, including a varied menu of activities, and developing access to other services which are not yet included in these figures.

We want all schools to offer access to extended services by 2010, including providing access to a range of activities, with at least half of all primary and a third of secondary schools doing so by September 2008. Primary schools are expected to provide, as part of the core offer, access to affordable child care at or through their school from 8 am to 6 pm all year round, which is linked to a varied menu of activities. Secondary schools are not expected to offer formal child care but they are expected to provide access to a varied menu of activities in a safe place to be, before and after school from 8 am to 6 pm and during the school holidays in response to demand. Activities may include study support activities such as sports clubs, music tuition, dance, drama and art clubs.

We are providing over £1.1 billion for extended schools in England for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what his latest estimate is of the total cash balances held by all schools in each year between 1990-91 and 2007-08; and if he will make a statement; [156967]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on deducting money from schools' balances; and if he will make a statement; [156968]

(3) what his most recent estimate is of the amount of schools' surplus balances which will be clawed back and redistributed in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; and if he will make a statement; [157577]

(4) if he will publish all guidance issued to local authorities since 1 January 2007 on cash balances held by schools; and if he will make a statement; [157589]

(5) what powers he has to claw back excess cash balances held by (a) academies, (b) trust schools and (c) foundation schools; and if he will make a statement; [157590]

(6) what his most recent estimate is of the excess cash balances held by each school in England; [157591]

(7) what assessment he has made of the legality of clawing back unspent allocations of Standards Fund monies from schools; and if he will make a statement; [157592]

(8) how many schools had an excess cash balance in each reporting period from 1997-98 to 2007-08; and if he will make a statement; [157594]

(9) what his latest estimate is of the proportion of cash surpluses held by schools in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08 which represents committed expenditure on future projects; and if he will make a statement; [157595]

(10) what plans he has to fine schools for holding excessive balances; and if he will make a statement; [157596]

(11) whether he plans to take steps to stop schools from being required to give up a proportion of cash surpluses held by them in 2006-07 which has subsequently been spent; and if he will make a statement; [157597]

(12) what his most recent estimate is of the total surplus cash balances held by schools in each local authority area; and if he will make a statement; [157598]

(13) when he plans to make a statement on the redistribution of a proportion of surplus cash balances held by schools on 31 March; [157599]

Jim Knight: Total net closing revenue balances for local authority maintained schools for the financial years for which data are available are set out in the following table.

Financial year	Total revenue balance[1,2]
1999-00[3]	740,691,354
2000-01	1,085,602,004
2001-02	1,256,776,093
2062-03[4]	1,192,864,397
2003-04	1,323,989,041
2004-05	1,532,855,786
2005-06	1,570,348,360

[1] A school's total revenue balance is calculated from the combination of any unspent allocations (including unspent Standards Fund grants) and the cumulative balance of income less expenditure from revenue funding sources during the financial year and any balances carried forward from previous years. This is drawn by adding together the unspent allocations and balance carried forward columns from local authorities Section 52 Outturn Statements 1999-2000 to 2001-02 (Table 2) and Consistent Financial Reporting categories B01 and B02 from local authorities Section 52 Outturn Statements (Table B) from 2002-03 onwards.

[2] Included are all local authority maintained schools correctly reported by the local authority on their Section 52 Outturn Statement. Local authority maintained nursery schools with delegated budgets have only been collected on Section 52 from 2003-04 onwards.

[3] School level revenue balances are not available prior to the inception of Section 52 for the 1999-2000 financial year.

[4] In 2002-03 the Section 52 outturn categories were aligned with the Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) framework following the introduction of CFR to schools. The change in sources is shown by the blank row. Some inconsistencies with the balance figures reported by local authorities' in 2002-03 were identified and consequently caution should be exercised when using the balance figures for that year.

The Department is currently collecting and validating local authorities' outturn data for the financial year 2006-07 and we will publish this later in the autumn. But early indications are that the total of balances has increased again.

It is right that schools should be able to accrue revenue balances from one year to the next in support of strategic, long term, financial planning. However, I am clear that it is not acceptable for Government to allow balances to continue to accumulate. At the end of 2005-06, total net revenue balances were 5.3 per cent. of schools' total income. For schools with a positive balance, the figure is 6.7 per cent. of total income. Moreover, around 17 per cent. of schools had held an excess surplus for each of the last five years. This is taxpayers' money voted by Parliament for the education of the pupils in schools in the year in question and it should not be steadily accumulating in schools' bank accounts.

We are therefore taking action on two fronts to bring the total down. We have introduced a requirement that, from 2007-08, all local authorities must, where they do not already, operate a balance control mechanism enabling them to claw back excess surplus balances. These are defined in the guidance as uncommitted revenue balances above 8 per cent. of total income for primary and special schools and 5 per cent. for secondary schools. The guidance is available in the Library of the House and can be viewed at:

www.teachernet.gov.uk/schemesforfinancingschools/

To be effective, claw-back requires local authorities to scrutinise schools' plans for using their excess surplus balances and reach a judgement on whether the balance is genuinely committed to be spent for a specific purpose within a specified timescale. Claw-back is only as effective, therefore, as the local authority's scrutiny is rigorous.

In 2005-06, local authorities reported that £988 million or 62.9 per cent. of balances was committed for specific purposes. However what is defined as a committed revenue balance varies from one local authority to another and the split of total revenue balances into committed and uncommitted balances is not reliable. For example, in 2005-06, 37 local authorities reported less than 25 per cent. of their total revenue balances as committed whereas 62 LAs reported more than 75 per cent. of their total revenue balance as committed.

The Government expect claw-back to have some impact but we believe it is right to take further action on all balances to ensure that their overall level reduces so that some of this money is used to support the education of today's pupils. We proposed in the consultation on the school, early years and 14 to 16 funding arrangements in spring this year to require all local authorities to redistribute locally 5 per cent. of all positive revenue balances from 2008-09. Local authorities will decide with their Schools Forum how the money is to be redistributed locally to support local needs and priorities.

I announced in my statement of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 2WS, our decision to proceed with this proposal, and in September my Department published an Explanatory Note for local authorities and Schools Forums on the school funding arrangements for the next three years, including further detail on how the balance redistribution would work in practice. The Explanatory Note is available in the Library and on TeacherNet at:

www.teachernet.gov.uk/schoolfunding2008to11.

The Department is now consulting on the draft school finance regulations for 2008 which would bring the balance redistribution into effect. The proposition is that local authorities should calculate 5 per cent. of the most recent positive revenue balance for all schools, and add this sum to the total Schools Budget for the coming year. For 2008-09, it is proposed that this should be final balances at the end of 2006-07 since final balances for 2007-08 will not be known before authorities notify schools of their budgets by the end of March. Consultation closes on 26 October and I will announce our final decisions on the redistribution in the light of the comments received. Details of the consultation can be viewed at:

www.teachernet.gov.uk/schoolfundingframework/

and copies are available in the Library.

It is clear from early responses that schools are particularly concerned about the use of 2006-07 balances. We will want to look very carefully at this aspect of the proposals in particular in reaching final decisions in the light of the consultation.

Local authority claw-back mechanisms and the proposed balance redistribution apply to all local authority maintained schools including foundation and trust schools. Academies and city technology colleges (CTCs) are not subject to the same rules on the carry-forward of balances as maintained schools. Instead, the requirements are set out in their individual funding agreements. The normal provision is that the academy or CTC may carry forward at the end of any year a sum which at maximum is 12 per cent. of the General Annual Grant (GAG) for the year just ended; and within that overall limit only 2 per cent., at most, of the preceding year's GAG can be carried forward for revenue spend; the rest must be for capital purposes. This calculation is not cumulative—that is, the total sum carried forward should never grow larger than 12 per cent. of the preceding year's GAG. Adherence to these limits is monitored by the Department and GAG may be clawed back if they are exceeded, although the Secretary of State is empowered under the funding agreements to approve a higher limit in individual cases. There are no plans to change these provisions.

Standards Fund grants are paid under sections 14-18 of the Education Act 2002. Section 16 allows the Secretary of State to set the terms of those payments, including the circumstances in which grant is to be repaid, and how grant should be distributed to schools.

In my written ministerial statement of 15 March, Official Report, column 18WS I announced the publication by my Department of a summary of the data on school balances for the financial years for which information is available—1999-2000 to 2005-06. This includes data on balances for all local authority maintained schools, together with regional and local authority level summaries. It shows the proportions declared to be committed and uncommitted and the amount of balances meeting the definition of "excess balances". Copies have been placed in the Library and the information is also available on the Department's website at:

Information on closing balances is collected after the end of the financial year so data for 2007-08 onwards are not yet available. As already noted, my Department will publish data for 2006-07 later this autumn.

In 2005-06 positive balances totalled just over £1.7 billion. A redistribution of 5 per cent. of all positive balances in all authorities would deliver in the region of £85 million in 2008-09 to support locally agreed priorities. As total balances reduce over the spending review period it is anticipated that the income generated through the redistribution will be marginally reduced, however it is not currently possible to predict the total surplus balances over this period.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when he plans to publish the results of his Department's consultation on a proposed levy of 5 per cent. on school surplus balances; [158292]

(2) how many submissions to his consultation on a proposed levy of 5 per cent. on school surplus balances have (a) supported, (b) opposed and (c) expressed concerns about the proposed levy. [158293]

Jim Knight: The Department is currently consulting on the draft school finance regulations for 2008 which will give effect to the proposal to require local authorities to redistribute locally 5 per cent. of all surplus revenue school balances. The consultation closes on 26 October and we will consider carefully all the representations received before taking final decisions. A report on the outcome of the consultation, including an analysis of responses, will be published on the TeacherNet website and a copy placed in the Library of the House as soon as possible after the close of consultation.

Schools: Sports

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) competition managers and (b) sports co-ordinators for schools have been appointed. [155759]

Jim Knight: This information is not collected centrally.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many climbing walls there are in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools. [156685]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold information on numbers of schools with climbing walls.

Schools: Vetting

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average amount of time taken was for a Criminal Records Bureau check to be completed on a potential member of school staff in 2006-07. [151168]

Kevin Brennan: The information sought by the hon. Member is not available. The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) is unable to provide information on Disclosure applications based on employment sector.

Data concerning the average waiting time taken to complete a Disclosure are not a performance target and are not collated by the CRB. The CRB operates to a set of published service standards (PSS) which include to issue 90 per cent. of Standard Disclosures within 10 days and 90 per cent. of Enhanced Disclosures within 28 days. During 2007 the CRB has consistently exceeded the PSS and in August 2007, the CRB issued 100 per cent. of Standard Disclosures and 96 per cent. of Enhanced Disclosures within PSS.

Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of pupils who attained level 5 or below in the 2007 Key Stage 3 tests in (a) English, (b) mathematics and (c) science in each year since 1997 had previously attained level 5 or above at Key Stage 2; [155901]

(2) how many and what proportion of pupils who took the Key Stage 3 tests in (a) English, (b) mathematics and (c) science in each year since 1997 attained the same level or below the level they attained at Key Stage 2 (i) in total and (ii) for pupils who attained (A) level 3, (B) level 4 and (C) level 5 at Key Stage 2. [156041]

Jim Knight: The information available has been placed in the House Library.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

National Affordable Housing Programme

23. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which housing organisations received funding from the National Affordable Housing Programme; and how much each has been awarded. [158173]

Mr. Iain Wright: Around 339 registered social landlords and other bodies received public funding as part of the 2006-08 Affordable Housing Programme via the Housing Corporation. These organisations may have bid as part of a partnership or as an individual specialist provider.

As part of their grant allocation process for the AHP 2006-08, the Housing Corporation published regional allocation statements. These list lead partners and individual specialist providers and grant allocations that they have received for that programme.

Northumberland Unitary Authority

24. Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects elections to take place for a Northumberland unitary authority. [158174]

John Healey: In our Discussion Paper 'Councils' Proposals for Unitary Local Government: An Approach to Implementation' published on 22 August we invited the views of those councils potentially affected by restructuring on when elections for any new unitary authorities should be held. That paper indicated that the options for elections in May 2008 or May 2009 are finely balanced and we are now considering the views we have received.

Planning White Paper

25. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the Planning White Paper. [158175]

Hazel Blears: 30,000 responses were received to the consultation on the Planning White Paper. The Government will produce a summary of responses, including next steps, shortly. However, Ministers continue to receive a range of letters and other representations on the issues raised in the Planning White Paper.

Migration: Housing Plans

26. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will hold discussions with the Home Secretary on the potential impact of migration on the Government's plans for housing. [158176]

Hazel Blears: Household growth in England is being driven by a combination of factors, including increasing longevity, growing numbers of people living alone and migration. The most recent household projections indicate that 223,000 new households will form each year up to 2026, of which 155,000 or 70 per cent., will be single person households.

Ministers from the Home Office and Communities and Local Government discuss the impact of migration on a range of services throughout the United Kingdom, including housing, at meetings of the Migration Impacts Forum.

The Forum, which has a remit to focus on the transitional impacts and social benefits of migration experienced by local areas, is co-chaired by Ministers from the Home Office and Communities and Local Government, and is made up of representatives from both within and outside of Government. The next meeting of the Forum will take place on 17 October.

Local Government Settlements: Broxtowe

27. Dr. Palmer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will review the impact of floors and ceilings in the local government settlements on Broxtowe local authority. [158177]

John Healey: Floor damping ensures that the year-on-year change for all authorities is limited i.e. that no authority receives a large year-on-year decrease. Although Broxtowe has been a net contributor to the floor over the past five years, it has received year-on-year increases in formula grant well above inflation throughout this period.

Planning Appeal: Longford

28. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to be able to determine the planning appeal by Hitchens in Longford. [158178]

Mr. Iain Wright: The dates for the inquiry into this planning appeal have yet to be agreed with the parties. In line with the provisions of Schedule 2 to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, we will set a statutory target for deciding this case following the close of the inquiry, and I will arrange for you to be notified both at that time and when the decision is issued.

Local Government Structures

29. Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for further reform of local government structures; and if she will make a statement. [158179]

Hazel Blears: There are no plans for a future rolling programme of restructuring. However, we recognise that there may be specific areas where in future there is some appetite for change and where it would be right to issue a focussed and targeted invitation to the councils concerned.

Building Control Documents: Data Protection

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which public authorities, including Executive agencies and Government Departments, will have access to the data from the electronic communications of building control documents. [157647]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current consultation on the "Enabling Electronic Communication of Building Control Documents" will in no way change access rights to building control documents held by local authorities. However, it should be noted that the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOI) applies to all information (electronic or otherwise) held by local authorities, including building control documents. FOI requests can be made by public authorities, including Executive agencies and Government Departments.

Buildings: Data Protection

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her proposals for enabling electronic communication of building control documents will include data on specific domestic properties which undertake building control work. [157668]

Mr. Iain Wright: The "Enabling Electronic Communication of Building Control Documents" Regulations proposal, currently out for public consultation, would, subject to the outcome of the consultation and approval of regulations, allow discretionary transmission of all building control documents by electronic means, e.g. applications, notices and certificates. These documents would also include those relating to domestic properties.

Caravan Sites

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons her Department has declined to give local authorities greater powers to use temporary stop notices to tackle unauthorised development in relation to caravans on unauthorised sites. [157649]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's policy is to increase the provision of sites for Gypsy and Travellers, linked to firm but fair use of enforcement powers. In March 2007 Communities and Local Government consulted on an amendment to the temporary stop notice regulations, which would give further powers to local authorities to prohibit the stationing of a caravan already on an unauthorised site, if there was an alternative, authorised site for the residents to move onto. Consultees from various sectors stated use of the proposed new powers would be extremely limited while the need for authorised site provision is so high. We are prepared to revisit the proposed amendment at an appropriate time when authorised provision has been increased to an extent that the powers may be of practical benefit to local authorities.

Community Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Government plan to issue a formal response to the Quirk review of Community Management and Ownership of Assets. [157651]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government published "Opening the Transfer Window: The Government's Response to the Quirk Review of Community Management and Ownership of Assets" on 22 May 2007, in which they made a commitment to implement the Quirk Review's proposals in full.

Community Development: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether the £50 million for community cohesion announced in her Department's press release of 6 October is (a) new additional funding, (b) part of an existing funding stream and (c) replacing an existing funding stream; and over what period the funding will be made available; [157491]

(2) by what criteria allocations will be made to local authorities from the £50 million for community cohesion announced in her Department's press release of 6 October; and whether the funding will be ring-fenced. [157492]

Mr. Dhanda: Support for local authorities for community cohesion will rise from £2 million per annum to approximately £50 million over the CSR 2007 period from April 2008 to March 2011.

£20.5 million is new additional funding; £6 million is part of existing funding streams; and £23 million replaces existing funding streams that were due to cease.

The criteria upon which community cohesion related allocations are to be made have yet to be decided upon. Further allocation details will be announced as part of local government settlement in December.

Money will not be ring-fenced and performance will be monitored through the new streamlined Local Government Performance Framework.

Council Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will set a target for clearing the backlog of council house repairs. [157358]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 1997 the Government set a target to clear the £19 billion backlog of repairs to council housing. In 2001 this target was incorporated into the new "Decent Homes" target to bring all social housing into a decent condition.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what change there has been in the council housing repair backlog since 2001; how many houses were awaiting repair in 2001; and how many are awaiting repair. [157360]

Mr. Iain Wright: Latest local authority annual Business Plans estimated that 1 million local authority dwellings were awaiting improvement work as at 1 April 2007, compared with 2.2 million at the same point in 2001.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her most recent estimate is of the number of (a) housing association properties, (b) directly managed properties and (c) arms length management properties which will not meet the decent homes standard by 2010. [157395]

Mr. Iain Wright: We expect 95 per cent. of social sector homes to be decent by 2010, this will leave around 200,000 social homes below the decent homes standard. This breaks down to around 40,000 non-decent homes owned by registered social landlords and 160,000 owned by local authorities. We do not yet have detailed information which will allow us to break down the local authority data between those homes managed by ALMOs and those directly managed by the council.

Departments: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on (a) champagne and wine and (b) alcohol in the last year for which audited figures are available. [157619]

Mr. Dhanda: This information requested is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Aviation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on staff members flying (a) first class, (b) business class and (c) economy class. [157684]

Mr. Iain Wright: The current policy of the Department for Communities and Local Government is that staff are required to travel economy class unless there are exceptional circumstances agreed beforehand by a senior manager.

Departments: Billing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reason her Department failed to meet its service delivery agreement target for paying undisputed bills on time in 2006-07. [157673]

Mr. Dhanda: During 2006-07, the Department implemented changes to the way the financial support role was delivered. Non-compliance to the procurement processes resulted in a down-turn in prompt payment performance. Further changes are planned to streamline the invoice processing function, which may lead to an initial minor deterioration in performance. However, medium to long-term performance is expected to improve.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of invoices for undisputed bills for her Department were paid within 30 days of receipt of the invoice, or within the contractual term if less, in 2006-07; and what the target was for prompt payment of invoices. [157691]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities paid 74,004 undisputed invoices within 30 days of receipt of the invoice, or within the contractual term if less, in 2006-07. This is 95.37 per cent. of total invoices paid. The target for prompt payment of invoices is 98 per cent.

Departments: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham, of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1139W, on Departments: carbon emissions, how many individual flights were offset; and what proportion were outside the European Union. [157847]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government offset carbon dioxide equivalent emissions from 1,460 individual flights undertaken during 2006-07. Of these, 9 per cent. were outside the European Union.

Departments: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date the resource accounts for her Department for 2006-07 were published. [157693]

Mr. Iain Wright: The accounts were laid in the House of Commons on 12 July 2007, and published by the Stationary Office on that date (HC 836). They were published on the Communities website on 16 August 2007.

Departments: Official Cars

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many ministerial cars are allocated to her Department by the Government Car and Despatch Agency. [157687]

Mr. Dhanda: Six.

Departments: Official Engagements

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what engagements have been undertaken by her and her departmental Ministers in the last three months. [156424]

Hazel Blears: A table showing the meetings which the ministerial team has had with external organisation and individuals in the period between 1 July and 1 October has been placed in the Library of the House.

Details of the internal meetings are not placed in the public domain as to do so would inhibit the frank exchange between Ministers and officials which is necessary to policy development.

Departments: Pay

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's expenditure was on honoraria payments in the last year for which figures are available. [155701]

Mr. Dhanda: There are no records of any honoraria payments by Central Department for Communities and Local Government. This does not include the Government Offices or the Department's agencies for whom information is not collected centrally.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will provide a breakdown of the central Government public expenditure by her Department listed as development of English regions on page 36 of her Department's resource accounts for 2006-07 (HC 836). [157487]

Mr. Dhanda: Of the total £1,306.9 million 'RFR1 E: Development of English Regions' spend 'Central Government Spending', £1,280.5 million was expenditure on the Department's contribution to the funding of the Regional Development Agencies (which was channelled via the former DTI).

The other expenditure of £26.4 million is the total of the following expenditure: £19.3 million on the 'Northern Way Growth Fund'; £6.6 million on 'Regional Chambers'; and £0.5 million on 'Mersey Basin Business Foundation'.

Departments: Religious Sects

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations her Department has received on cultish behaviour in the (a) Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, (b) New Kadampa Tradition and (c) Soka Gakkai International. [157747]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 667W.

Departments: Road Traffic offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of her Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157859]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government (CLG) operates a general policy whereby the payment of any fixed penalty tickets incurred by civil servants, either during the hire period of a vehicle or while a private car is being used on official business, is the responsibility of the individual undertaking the travel and not the Department. However, payment of fixed penalty tickets relating to allocated ministerial cars, incurred while carrying out official duties, is deemed to be the responsibility of the department. During the 2006-07 financial year, the Department paid fixed penalty fines to the sum of £200.00.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff are seconded to her Department from outside government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157860]

Mr. Dhanda: There were 108 individuals seconded to the centre of the Department for Communities and Local Government as at 31 August 2007. Information on secondments to the Government offices or the Department's agencies is not collected centrally.

These are broken down by (a) the type of body from which the secondment is drawn and (b) by the length of the secondment as at 31 August in the two tables as follows.

(a) Type of body from which secondment is drawn

	Number of secondments
Local Government Sector	61
Other Public sector	5
Academia	2
Private Sector	1
Not-for-profit Sector	1
Information not held centrally	38
Grand total	108

(b) Length of secondment as at 31 August 2007

	Total
Less than 1 year	44
Between 1 and 2 years	23
Between 2 and 3 years	13
Between 3 and 4 years	11
4 years or more	17
Grand total	108

Departments: Speeches

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance civil servants who are not special advisers provided to her and her Department's Ministers in preparing speeches at the Labour Party Conference in September. [157493]

Mr. Dhanda: In accordance with the Ministerial Code, civil servants who were not special advisers provided no direct assistance to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, or to her Department's Ministers, in the preparation of speeches for the 2007 Labour Party Conference.

Departments: Training

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1650W, on departments: training, what the titles were of the conferences that (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in her Department attended from 1 July 2006 to 30 July 2007. [157504]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Documents: English Language

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what guidance her Department provides to local authorities on the provision of public documents in English; and if she will make a statement; [156950]

(2) whether it is a statutory requirement for local councils to provide public documents in languages other than English; [156951]

(3) what (a) statutory and (b) non-statutory guidance is provided to local authorities on the provision of public documents in languages other than English. [156976]

Mr. Dhanda: In England, there is no statutory requirement for local councils to provide public documents in languages other than English. Communities and Local Government has not issued any statutory or non statutory guidance to local authorities on the provision of public documents in languages other than English. The independent Commission on Integration and Cohesion recommended that there should be guidance and set out what this might look like as part of its final report. As recently announced, based on the Commission's advice, we will be publishing new non-statutory guidance on translation for local authorities and public bodies in the coming weeks.

However, we do believe knowledge of English is a vital part of integration into British society, as well as a personal advancement.

Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 75W, on the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund, what investigations took place into the allegations made against the Friends of the Western Buddhist Order, the New Kadampa Tradition and Soka Gakkai International before her Department took the final decision to grant funds to the three organisations from the Faith Communities Capacity Building Fund. [157746]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer to the earlier answer given on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 555W.

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fire control staff are planned in (a) each regional fire control centre and (b) each region following the implementation of FireControl. [158048]

Mr. Dhanda: The following table gives the estimated number of fire control staff for each Regional Control Centre (RCC) following the implementation of FiReControl. These numbers were published in the Full Business Case in June 2007 and include control room operators, managers and other support staff. The actual number of staff employed will be for each RCC company to determine.

	Estimated RCC numbers
East Midlands	81
East of England	85
London	114
North West	103
North East	76
South East	93
South West	85
West Midlands	91
Yorkshire and Humberside	86
Total	814

All numbers are in terms of full-time equivalents.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many fire control room staff there are in (a) each fire authority and (b) England. [158049]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 561-62.

Fire Services: Terrorism

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the risk of (a) co-ordinated terror attacks and (b) collective systems failure at the proposed new nine regional fire control rooms; and if she will make a statement. [157479]

Mr. Dhanda: FiReControl will form part of the UK's Critical National Infrastructure (CNI). The Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure (CPNI) has been consulted regarding general threats to the UK's Critical National Infrastructure, and specific threats to the fire and rescue services.

Full threat and risk assessments, to HMG security standards, have been conducted (and are continually revised and updated) to examine all threats to the FiReControl system; physical and electronic attacks, both deliberate and accidental. These include threats relating to terrorist activity.

The threats have been considered; together with an assessment of their likelihood and the impact they could have on the business functions of FiReControl, to determine the appropriate countermeasures for the system. These countermeasures consist of a combination of physical, procedural and technical measures.

The FiReControl systems are being designed to ensure they are resistant to collective systems failures across the network. These requirements have been included in the contract for provision of the technology. Risk assessments of system failures were conducted prior to selecting the preferred supplier. These assessments addressed the reliability of the technology itself, and the possibility of external events which could cause system failure.

To provide a further level of resilience, CLG is developing business continuity plans in conjunction with experts from the fire and rescue service to ensure that the control service can continue if there is a system failure.

First Time Buyers: Income

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the ratio between the mean average price of a house for first time buyers and mean average household income was in (a) England and (b) each Government Office Region in England in (i) 1997 or the earliest time after that for which figures are available and (ii) the most recent period for which figures are available. [157627]

Mr. Iain Wright: Mix-adjusted house prices for first-time buyers are calculated by Communities and Local Government using the Regulated Mortgage Survey with data being available by calendar year. Data on gross income of main householder plus spouse are available from the CLG Survey of English Housing and are available by financial year. The ratio between the two is given in the tables as follows.

	Mix-adjusted house price, FTBs, 1997 (£)	Gross income of main householder plus spouse, 1997-98 (£)	Ratio of FTB house price to income
North East	42,904	15,254	2.8
North West	—	16,814	—
Yorkshire and the Humber	45,173	16,705	2.7
East Midlands	46,304	18,113	2.6
West Midlands	49,842	17,455	2.9
East	61,270	21,425	2.9
London	79,403	23,418	3.4
South East	69,984	23,655	3.0
South West	57,883	19,122	3.0

First Time Buyers: Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of first time buyers took out mortgages of 100 per cent. or more of the purchase price of the property in the most recent period for which figures are available. [157489]

Mr. Iain Wright: For 2006, based on figures from the Regulated Mortgage Survey, Communities and Local Government estimate that 8.3 per cent. of UK mortgages to first time buyers (excluding sitting tenants) were for 100 per cent. or more of the purchase price of the property.

Figures quoted by the CML give the number of first time buyers in the UK as 410,800 in 2006.

Using these two figures it is estimated that 34,140 of the first time buyers in 2006 used mortgages that were 100 per cent. or more of the purchase price of their property.

First Time Buyers

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of first-time buyers making purchases in the housing market in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [157639]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of mortgages to First Time Buyers (FTBs) in the UK is available on the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/filegrab/2ML2.xls?ref=4624

For 2006 there were 410,800 FTBs in the UK who used a mortgage to purchase their property.

The CML estimate that around one in five of reported first time buyers were in fact returning to owner-occupation after renting for a period.

Greenbelt: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications decided by the First Secretary of State involving development on the Green Belt have been (a) approved and (b) rejected since the creation of the Department for Communities and Local Government; and if she will list the location and type of each development. [157663]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have today placed in the Libraries of the House a table listing all planning applications, involving development in the green belt, decided by the Secretary of State since the creation of the Department for Communities and Local Government on 5 May 2006. Of 42 such applications, 16 were allowed and 26 were refused. The table sets out the development type and location.

Hostels: Employment

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to encourage employers to give equal consideration to job applicants with a hostel address. [157410]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our £90 million Hostels Capital Improvement Programme (HCIP) is making hostels places of change. The key outcome will be to increase the number of people who move on positively from a hostel to a job or training and a settled home. The HCIP offers opportunities to access training, education and job opportunities, which will help counter the negative views often held about hostels.

In addition, we are providing £1.6 million funding to the voluntary sector to develop training and employment services for the homeless, which will help those in hostels move into employment and on to independent living.

Hostels: Females

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of residents in hostels are women. [157412]

Mr. Iain Wright: Comprehensive and robust data on the gender of hostel residents are not held centrally.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of hostel places is reserved for women only; and how many (a) women-only hostels and (b) places in women-only hostels there are. [157413]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not collected centrally. The Homeless UK project, run by the Resource Information Service, provides information on hostels and supported accommodation for homeless people in England. Their information shows there are 26 direct hostels for women in England (10.5 per cent. of direct access hostels), including three hostels that have some women only accommodation as part of their provision. These hostels provide a total of around 740 bedspaces. In addition there are 90 projects for single women which are second stage, non-emergency supported accommodation with a total of 2,603 bedspaces.

Housing Associations: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether public requests to order disposal apply to empty properties owned by housing associations. [157461]

Mr. Iain Wright: No. Housing associations are not public bodies for the purposes of part 10 of the Local Government Planning and Land Act 1980, under which public requests to order disposal can be made.

Housing Associations: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many housing associations in England receive public funding. [157457]

Mr. Iain Wright: 339 registered social landlords and other bodies received public funding as part of the 2006-08 Affordable Housing Programme via the Housing Corporation. These organisations may have bid as part of partnership or as an individual specialist provider.

As part of their grant allocation process for the Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08, the Housing Corporation published regional allocation statements. These list lead partners and individual specialist providers and grant allocations that they have received for that programme.

The regional allocation statements for the 2006-08 Affordable Housing Programme are available on the Housing Corporation website:

www.housingcorp.gov.uk.

Housing Associations: Property Transfer

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued on (a) mergers and (b) property exchanges between housing associations; and what recent (i) representations she has received and (ii) discussions she has had with (A) the Housing Corporation and (B) the Financial Services Authority on negotiations between the Riverside Group and English Churches Housing Group; and if she will make a statement. [157506]

Mr. Iain Wright: My Department has not issued guidance on either of these subjects. The Housing Corporation's key document for mergers and group structures is "Making Groups Work—Good Practice Note 11 November 2006". This guidance explains the Corporation's basic requirements for existing and new group structures. In addition:

"Registration with the Housing Corporation April 2004" sets out the Corporation's Registration Criteria listing specific registration requirements linked to the criteria and provides guidance to organisations seeking to become RSLs; and

"Regulatory Code and guidance August 2005". The "Regulatory Code and guidance" sets out the fundamental obligations of housing associations within the Corporation's regulatory system.

The Housing Corporation's key document for property exchanges between housing associations is "Disposing of Land April 2003" and sets out the criteria for all disposals of land under Section 9 of the Housing Act 1996.

The Secretary of State has received no recent representations on the negotiations between the Riverside Group and English Churches Housing Group nor has she had discussions with the Financial Services Authority or the Housing Corporation.

In the run-up to the merger, the Housing Corporation held four meetings with the Riverside Group and English Churches Housing Group. Since the merger there have been two further meetings between the Corporation and both associations. No meetings were held between the Housing Corporation and the Financial Services Authority.

Housing Data Domain Group

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many times her Department's Neighbourhood Statistics: Housing Data Domain Group has met in the last 12 months. [157346]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Neighbourhood Statistics: Housing Data Domain Group last met on 2 October 2006.

Housing Market

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the market for sales of domestic properties was made up of (a) one bedroom, (b) two bedroom, (c) three bedroom and (d) four bedroom and above dwellings at the latest date for which figures are available. [157622]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not collected by the Department. However for England we have made the following estimates based on data from the Regulated Mortgage Survey and HM Land Registry.

Estimated number and proportion of homes sold in 2006 by number of bedrooms

Number of bedrooms	Proportion sold	Properties of all sales (Percentage)
One	91,187	7.5
Two	367,804	30.1
Three	535,599	43.8
Four or more	228,370	18.7
Total	1,222,960	100.0

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many tonnes of carbon are emitted each year by an average home built in accordance with (a) current building regulations and (b) the level three energy/carbon standard of the Code for Sustainable Homes. [157403]

Mr. Iain Wright: If an average home is assumed to be a semi-detached house with a gas-fired boiler and a floor area of 88.8 metres squared, then the carbon emissions associated with space and hot water heating, ventilation and fixed lighting (not appliances) is estimated to be:

(a) 0.553 tonnes of carbon per annum for a home build to Part L of the current Building Regulations (2006);

(b) 0.415 tonnes of carbon per annum for a Code level 3 home.

The energy/carbon standards set for Code level 3 homes represents a 25 per cent. improvement on current building regulations and will become the minimum regulatory standard for new homes when Part L of the Building Regulations are revised in 2010.

Housing: Construction

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the location is of each of the 550 sites owned by central Government being examined for housing development. [153714]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about all non-operational public sector sites declared surplus to requirements is available via the Register for Surplus Public Sector Land.

The Register is managed by English Partnerships, the national regeneration agency. Government Accounting rules require all Government Departments and their sponsored bodies to place sites declared surplus to requirements on the Register for a minimum of 40 working days, to test whether there is interest from other public sector bodies before disposal and release of information into the public domain and to the private market. However, Departments or their sponsored bodies may remove sites from the Register if they change their assessment and decide that the asset is no longer surplus.

Every three months English Partnerships publishes details from the Register of Surplus Public Sector Land of all sites that have been registered for 40 days or more. This latest list is available from their website at:

http://www.englishpartnerships.co.uk/rspsl.htm

The 550 surplus public sector land sites referred to in the Housing Green Paper are spread across England: 37 per cent. of the sites are in London and the South, 36 per cent. in the Midlands and 27 per cent. in the North. Since the publication of the Green Paper a further 200 sites have been identified that are potentially surplus and which may be suitable for housing. The spread is now 40 per cent. in London and the South, 34 per cent. in the Midlands and East of England and 26 per cent. in the North.

English Partnerships are actively working with the Government Departments concerned to assess the potential for all these sites for housing development. In due course details of specific sites that are surplus will appear on the Register in the normal way, but for reasons of commercial or operational sensitivity site details are not being released in advance.

Housing: Elderly

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment she has made of the effect of the Supporting People regime on the choices open to older residents who wish to retain their residential wardens; [157742]

(2) what consultation has been conducted with older sheltered housing residents on the replacement of residential scheme managers with floating support services; [157744]

(3) what mechanisms there are for older people living in sheltered housing to challenge or complain about support services commissioned under Supporting People; [157745]

(4) how many older residents who moved into sheltered housing on the basis of having access to a residential warden are having this service removed as a result of Supporting People; [157752]

(5) what assessment she has made of the effect of the replacement of residential scheme managers with floating support on the level of security and communal support offered to older residents. [157743]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Supporting People programme is administered at the local level by the relevant administering authority. It is for the authority to decide which services to fund in order to deliver good quality, value for money housing support services for vulnerable people in their area. The authority should make these decisions informed by the local needs and priorities identified in their five-year Supporting People strategies.

Moving from accommodation-based or warden models of support to floating support is a decision that can only be taken locally. It is therefore also at that local level that any assessment of their relative value should be made. No central assessment has been made.

In "Independence and Opportunity", the national Supporting People strategy published earlier this year, the Government set out their expectation that both local authorities and Supporting People service providers should "Ensure that there is effective communication with service users and to explain changes properly to service users."

Any challenges about a consultation process or complaint about services should be made via the relevant authority's complaints procedure or that of the service provider.

It is for commissioners of services locally to understand the factors that influence an older person's decision to take up a specific type of accommodation. This is not measured centrally by the Government.

Housing: Empty Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) interim and (b) full empty dwelling management orders have been issued; and which local authorities have issued them. [157470]

Mr. Iain Wright: Six interim empty dwelling management orders have been approved by residential property tribunals since the relevant provisions of the Housing Act 2004 were fully implemented in July 2006. The following table provides a monthly breakdown of relevant decisions made by residential property tribunals.

Month of decision	Type of case	Decision	Local authority
February 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	South Oxfordshire District Council
February 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Not authorised	Watford Borough Council
March 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	Norwich City Council
May 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	Peterborough City Council
July 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	London Borough of Hounslow
August 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	Wychavon District Council
September 2007	Application for Interim EDMO	Authorised	London Borough of Lewisham

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with the third sector on provision of social housing in (a) the West Midlands and (b) Coventry. [158150]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government, through the Government office West Midlands, has had no direct discussions with the third sector related to provision of affordable housing either in respect of the West Midlands or Coventry.

Direct contact with the third sector is undertaken by the strategic housing authorities as they work in partnership with both the housing corporation and registered social landlords (RSLs) to develop affordable housing for priority groups.

In 2007 the West Midlands Regional Assembly published its second West Midlands Housing Strategy, which was developed through a comprehensive consultation process across the region with a wide variety of stakeholders, including representatives of the third sector.

Coventry city council operates a strategic housing regeneration fund which provides complementary funding to RSLs as they address the needs of vulnerable people to support independent living.

As such schemes are developed appropriate representation from the third sector voluntary and community groups is a fundamental principle.

Examples of the kind of schemes that Coventry, with the third sector, is currently supporting and developing through the Strategic Housing Regeneration Fund are a housing scheme for lone teenage parents, and supported housing for people with learning disabilities.

Housing: Renewable Energy

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many times she has attended meetings with representatives of (a) the Home Builders' Federation and (b) the Renewable Energy Association in the last 12 months. [157354]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has not held any meetings with representatives of either the Home Builders' Federation or the Renewable Energy Association in the last 12 months.

Housing: Solar Power

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's estimate is of the marginal cost per household to the developer of installing an average sized domestic solar hot water system in new build housing developments. [157350]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The marginal cost per household to the developer will vary greatly depending on factors including the size of development and the size and type of housing in which the system is being installed. While BERR does not maintain data on average figures, evidence from recent projects and other work suggests that the current cost is likely to be between £2,500 and £4,000 per household.

Housing: Standards

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make the stock condition survey assessment model used by her Department accessible to local authorities in the same manner as the HM Treasury model; and if she will make a statement. [157263]

Mr. Iain Wright: The question, asked by the hon. Gentleman is unclear in terms of what model is being referred to. No econometric model of housing stock conditions along the lines of the Treasury model is held by the Department.

The single transfer model (STM) and building cost model (BCM) are accessible to local authorities and used by them to model their assumptions about the value of the stock based on estimates of expenditure on repairs and improvements that need to be carried out over a 30 year period. Local authorities submit these models to the Department as part of either a large scale voluntary transfer or arms length management organisation application respectively.

If the hon. Gentleman is referring to a model of housing stock conditions held by the Department, the condition of the housing stock is monitored through the English House Condition Survey and from social landlords' own estimates provided through their statistical returns. The English House Condition Survey data collection methods, along with the information on how it is compiled to report results, are published along with the data itself on an annual basis.

Housing: Temporary Accommodation

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to help those living in hostels who are ready to move on to more permanent settled accommodation. [157407]

Mr. Iain Wright: My Department is involved in a range of initiatives to help people move on from hostels. Homeless Link's Move On Plans Protocol (MOPP) will provide local authorities with a better understanding of move on need and allow them to overcome a range of barriers through formal partnerships with the voluntary sector. Broadway's Real Letting project aims to promote improved access to the private rented sector for hostel residents. The Transitional Spaces Project will tackle low turnaround of single people in hostels by providing a 'work first' model to improve access to employment and private rented sector housing.

The key outcome of our £90 million Hostels Capital Improvement Programme will be to increase the number of people who move on positively from a hostel to a job or training and a settled home.

Local Authorities: Non-Profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of her Department's initiatives to encourage local authorities to support social enterprise; and if she will make a statement. [156939]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government recognise the current and potential role of social enterprises and the wider third sector. One of the key strands in the National Procurement Strategy for Local Government (October 2003) was to encourage councils to work with the third sector. A final report setting out the achievements of local government against the strategy is due to be published later this year.

Local Enterprise Growth Initiative bids in both rounds one and two featured proposals around social enterprise. A feasibility study into a possible evaluation is currently under way.

The comprehensive spending review announced our future public service agreements (PSAs). Through PSA "Delivery Agreement 21: Build more cohesive, empowered and active communities", the subset of six indicators includes measurement of a thriving third sector of which social enterprise is part. Through this indicator we will measure an index of regular formal volunteering and the number of full-time equivalent staff the third sector employs.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will reply to the letter of 16 July 2007 from the hon. Member for Fareham on the strategic gap between Portchester and Fareham. [158714]

Mr. Iain Wright: A reply was to the hon. Member on 10 August 2007.

Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's most recent estimate is of the number and proportion of outstanding mortgages which are sub-prime. [157348]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has not made an estimate of the number and proportion of outstanding mortgages which are sub-prime mortgages.

Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) which planning applications the Minister for Planning in her Department has (a) called in, (b) resolved not to call in, (c) approved and (d) refused (i) between 15 May 2006 and 27 June 2007 and (ii) since 27 June; [157448]

(2) if she will list the planning applications that she has personally (a) called in, (b) resolved not to call in, (c) approved and (d) refused since 27 June. [157473]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have today placed in the Libraries of the House the following tables:

Table (A)—a list of all planning applications that were called in for decision by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government between 15 May 2006 and 27 June 2007.

Table (B)—a list of all planning applications that were considered by the relevant Government office but were decided not to be called in for decision by the Secretary of State between 15 May 2006 and 27 June 2007

Table (C)—a list of all planning applications that were called in for decision by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government since 27 June 2007.

Table (D)—a list of all planning applications that were considered by the relevant Government office but were decided not to be called in for decision by the Secretary of State since 27 June 2007

Table (E)—a list of all planning applications decided by the Secretary of State between 15 May 2006 and 27 June 2007, showing whether the application was approved or refused.

Table (F)—a list of all planning applications decided by the Secretary of State since 27 June 2007, showing whether the application was approved or refused.

Regardless of whether the Secretary of State herself or a planning Minister on her behalf makes a particular decision, all decisions related to calling in and determination of planning applications are made in the name of the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government.

Planning: Public Participation

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase local involvement in the planning process; and if she will make a statement. [156948]

Mr. Iain Wright: In the White Paper Planning for a Sustainable Future (CM 7120) and associated documents, we set out a number of proposals for improving the responsiveness and efficiency of the planning system while maintaining or enhancing the delivery of other objectives, including the involvement of communities in planning decisions.

For example, the proposals for nationally significant infrastructure projects would involve the public at every stage: on the development of national policy; on project proposals as they are being developed; and at the inquiry stage.

Our proposed changes to the Local Development Framework system aim to ensure both a more streamlined and tailored process and a more meaningful, engaged level of community involvement.

Community involvement will also be an important component of Planning Performance Agreements—a new way to manage large scale major planning applications.

The Government are also providing a grant of £1.7 million in 2007-08 to Planning Aid. This is for the provision of free and independent professional advice to groups and individuals who need to engage in the planning system but who cannot afford to pay for such advice.

Polytunnels: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has given to local planning authorities on planning permission for polytunnels; and if she will make a statement. [157637]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Chief Planner in Communities and Local Government wrote to all local planning authorities on the issue of polytunnels on 25 July 2007. The letter was prompted by concern among several local planning authorities about the planning status of polytunnels following a High Court judgment in December 2006. The purpose of the letter was to clarify the Government's understanding of the situation, to remind local planning authorities of their existing powers on enforcement and of existing planning policy contained in "Planning Policy Statement 7: Sustainable Development in Rural Areas"

Prisons: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether planning permission is required for the docking and location of a prison ship. [157660]

Mr. Iain Wright: Whether planning permission is required will depend on whether the proposed activity or new use of land would amount to "development". Development is defined in section 55(1) of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 as

"the carrying out of building, engineering, mining or other operations in, on, over or under land, or the making of any material change of use of buildings or other land."

Planning permission is required for any of these forms of development, unless the section specifically exempts it.

It may be that locating a prison ship where there wasn't one previously would amount to development on the grounds either that it would be a material change of use of the land where it is docked or that it might involve operational development. However, it would be for the local planning authority to determine this based on the particular circumstances of a proposal.

Rough Sleepers

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what methodology is used to distinguish migrant rough sleepers from A2 and A8 countries from tourists for the purposes of rough sleeping counts. [157562]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department's methodology for local authority rough sleeper street counts, "Guidance on evaluating the extent of rough sleeping (2007 Revision)" has a definition of rough sleeping for the purposes of inclusion on local authority street counts. This is

"People sleeping, or bedded down, in the open air (such as on streets, or in doorways, parks or bus shelters); people in buildings or other places not designed for habitation (such as barns, sheds, car parks, cars, derelict boats, stations, or 'bashes')."

Only people fitting this definition are included in rough sleeper counts and this would include migrant rough sleepers from A2 and A8 countries. If there is doubt about whether to include an individual, then the local authority will make a decision based on an assessment of the circumstances. This might cover, for example, people sleeping away from campsites who might be homeless but who could be tourists, or people sleeping in transport stations without bedding.

Temporary Accommodation: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been provided by her Department on charging for entry to homeless shelters. [157688]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has not issued any guidance on charging for entry to homeless shelters. Charging is a matter for those voluntary organisations which run shelters and hostels for the homeless.

Vehicles: Fires

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many deliberate road vehicle fires there were in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [157653]

Mr. Dhanda: There were 40,335 deliberate road vehicle fires in England in 2005 (the latest calendar year for which detailed fire statistics have been published) reported by the fire and rescue service. These incidents included 33,090 deliberate car fires and 7,245 deliberate fires involving other road vehicles.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women who attended a British Pregnancy Advisory Service (BPAS) consultation centre were refused an abortion against the criteria in the Abortion Act 1967 in the last 12 months; what guidance his Department has provided to BPAS on the interpretation of section 1 of that Act; and if he will make a statement. [158307]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not collected centrally. The Department has not issued any guidance to the British Pregnancy Advisory Service on the interpretation of section 1 of the Abortion Act 1967. It is a matter for two doctors to agree, in good faith, whether there are grounds for an abortion under the Act.

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the research referred to on page 3 of his Department's document Reforming Emergency Care: First steps to a new approach, published on 25 October 2001. [156796]

Mr. Bradshaw: The research on page 3 of "Reforming Emergency Care" refers to bed occupancy. Our understanding is that there were two particular pieces of work on bed occupancy, which helped to inform policy development at that time.

Firstly, research into the relationship between bed occupancy and the management of elective and emergency pressures was set out in a report of the Emergency Services Action Team in 1997 "Report to the Chief Executive on winter pressures". The report was published under the cover of an Executive Letter (MISC 97/62), which followed the guidance on Access to Secondary Care Services set out in Executive Letter (EL 97/42). A copy of the report has been placed in the Library and both executive letters have also been placed in the Library.

Secondly, work was commissioned on bed occupancy modelling. The work by Bagust, A et al "Dynamics of bed use in accommodating emergency admissions: stochastic simulation model" (1999) refers to similar bed occupancy rates as those cited in "Reforming Emergency Care". A copy has been placed in the Library.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many under 14 year olds were treated for alcohol-related health problems in each county in the East of England region in the last 12 months. [156988]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is in the following table.

All diagnoses count of finished consultant episodes for under 14-year-olds with alcohol specific conditions in the eastern region of England, by strategic health authority (SHA) national health service hospitals, 2005-06

	SHA of treatment	Finished consultant episodes (FCE)
Q1	Norfolk, Suffolk and Cambridgeshire SHA	31
Q2	Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire SHA	19
Q3	Essex SHA	30
	Total	80

Notes: All diagnoses count of episodes. These figures represent a count of all FCE where the diagnosis was mentioned in any of the 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in a HES record. F10 Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol K70 Alcoholic liver disease T51 Toxic effect of alcohol. FCE An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year. Ungrossed Data Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed). Source: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES).

Alcoholic Drinks: Rehabilitation

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on treatment and rehabilitation of people outside the criminal justice system who were dependent on alcohol in each of the last 10 years. [157233]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Alcohol Needs Assessment Research Project published in November 2005, found that in 2003-04, a total of £217 million was being invested by the national health service and local authorities in specialist alcohol treatment and 63,000 people received treatment in that year for alcohol-related disorders.

Broomfield Hospital: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which individuals and organisations other than civil servants and NHS bodies have (a) made written representations to and (b) had meetings with Ministers about the Broomfield Hospital private finance initiative scheme in the last four years. [157548]

Mr. Bradshaw: There have been six representations from members of the public about the Mid Essex Hospitals Private Finance Initiative (PFI) according to the Department's correspondence database, in addition to two letters from the hon. Member about the Trust's PFI scheme. However, prior to the current database going live in 2005 the previous databases have been archived, therefore the costs of searching these old database would be disproportionate.

The hon. Member has also tabled eight parliamentary questions on the Mid Essex Hospital PFI scheme.

Chorley and South Ribble Hospital

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make a statement on progress on the development of the new clinical assessment treatment and support centre at Chorley and South Ribble Hospital. [158659]

Mr. Bradshaw: In terms of the development of Clinical Assessment, Treatment and Support (CATS) services in Chorley as part of the phase 2 independent sector procurement in the North West, the Department is currently working with the national health service to review the specifications of the remaining schemes in phase 2 of the central procurement process. This will ensure that future schemes best meet the needs of the local NHS, and are responsive to the needs of the communities in which they will operate. This exercise is ongoing, and expected to be completed in October. Once this process is complete, and all parties involved in negotiations have been informed of the outcomes, further information will be made available.

Following Central Lancashire primary care trust's (PCT) receipt of Lancashire Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust's (LTH) CATS written proposal for South Ribble, LTH and the PCT met on 10 October so that LTH could formally present their proposal to the PCT. A detailed review of this proposal is now being undertaken by the PCT with the outcome expected in mid-November. Formal confirmation to LTH will then follow. What the PCT has seen to date has been very encouraging.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Research

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans his Department has for further medical and scientific research into the cause or causes of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis; [157527]

(2) what medical research his Department has funded into the cause or causes of chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis since 1997. [157528]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Sunderland, North (Bill Etherington) on 3 July 2007, Official Report, column 1009W.

Dental Health: Children

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the health of the teeth of schoolchildren since Gateway Approval (ref 769800) was issued and the practice of negative permission was discontinued; and if he will make a statement. [156699]

Ann Keen: We are in no doubt that positive consent is required for school dental inspections. The first epidemiology programme since the issue of our guidance on discontinuing negative positive consent will be the five-year-old children's dental health survey to be conducted in England in 2007-08. The North West Dental Public Health Observatory is managing the survey on behalf of the other regional observatories and will assess the impact use of positive consent has on the results. In addition, the oral health unit within the National Primary Care Research and Development Centre at Manchester university, funded by the Department, is undertaking a randomised controlled trial to identify the most effective way of improving consent for national health service epidemiological surveys.

Dental Services: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists doing NHS work were practising in East Lancashire in (a) 1997, (b) 2001 and (c) at the latest date for which figures are available. [157580]

Ann Keen: Numbers of national health service dentists are available for Hyndburn and Ribble Valley Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale PCT as at 31 March 1997 to 2006 in Annex E of the NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006. These PCTs merged to form East Lancashire PCT on 1 October 2006.

The information in this report is based on the old contractual arrangements. This report is available in the Library and is available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006

Numbers of NHS dentists at strategic health authority (SHA) and PCT level in England as at 31 March 2007 are available in Table E1 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2006-07 report. This is the most recent period for which figures are available. Information is available for East Lancashire PCT.

This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. This report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0607

The inclusion of dentists on trust led contracts in the data collection following the 2006 reforms means that data collected since April 2006 cannot be directly compared with data collected under the previous system.

In both reports, no account is taken of the level of service, if any, that each dentist provides. Both reports have been published by The Information Centre for health and social care.

Dental Services: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists were employed under (a) general dental service contracts and (b) personal dental service contracts in each year since 1997; and how many general dental services and personal dental services dentists there were per 10,000 population (i) for England and (ii) in each strategic health authority area in the most recent period for which figures are available. [156418]

Ann Keen: Numbers of national health service dentists in England as at 31 March 1997 to 2006 are available in the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". Table 4 of this report includes information by contract type, including those on general dental services (GDS), personal dental services (PDS) contracts and those who have both a GDS and PDS contract.

This report has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006.

Numbers of NHS dentists per 10,000 of population are not published. Statistical convention is to publish NHS dental workforce figures per 100,000 of population and these numbers are available for England at primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) level as at 31 March 2007 in table E1 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2006-07" report. This is the most recent period for which figures are available.

This report has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0607.

The inclusion of dentists on trust led contracts in the data collection following the 2006 reforms means that data collected since April 2006 cannot be directly compared with data collected under the previous system.

Dental Services: Pupils

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will reverse his decision on consent for dental screening epidemiological surveys for school children to enable the scheme to operate on a parental opt-out basis; and if he will make a statement. [157254]

Ann Keen: No, the legal advice we have received is that parents/carers should give positive consent where children are not judged competent to give consent to a dental examination. We are optimistic that statistically significant results can be obtained when surveys are conducted on this basis.

Dental Services: Standards

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists in (a) England and (b) each primary care trust area have been required to pay back money to their primary care trust because they could not complete the number of units of dental activity required by their NHS contracts. [157994]

Ann Keen: Providers of national health service dental services have contracts with primary care trusts (PCTs) that set out the agreed annual contract sum and the corresponding level of services to be provided over the course of the year. These annual service levels are expressed mainly in terms of units of dental activity, which measure courses of treatment according to their relative complexity. Dental providers who under-deliver by up to 4 per cent. may carry this forward and make up the activity in the following year. Where a provider has delivered less than 96 per cent. of the agreed annual service level, it is at the PCT's discretion whether the undelivered activity is carried forward to the following year or an appropriate proportion of the annual contract sum is refunded to the PCT. This is a matter for PCTs to decide locally in the light of individual circumstances, and their decisions are not collected or held centrally.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists in (a) England and (b) each primary care trust area have completed (i) 96 per cent. and (ii) 100 per cent. of the number of units of dental activity in their NHS contracts. [158007]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the form requested.

Information on the total units of dental activity delivered in 2006-07 at England, strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT) level is contained in "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". This report is available in the Library.

The Dental Services Division (DSD) of the NHS Business Services Authority holds data on dental activity provided under national health service dental contracts, together with information provided by PCTs on the levels of activity commissioned for each contract. However, the DSD does not routinely publish these data. Following a freedom of information request, the DSD expect to make a comparison of the two data items for 2006-07 available by the end of this month. This will provide information by contract broken down by SHA area. This information will be placed in the Library once available.

Dental Services: Waiting Lists

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time in England for orthodontic appointments was for the (a) first consultation and (b) start of treatment in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what the national target times are in each case. [158482]

Ann Keen: Information is not collected centrally on waiting times for national health service orthodontic treatment provided in primary care.

Information is available on average hospital waiting times from referral to first out-patient appointment, and from decision to admit to hospital admission, both day case and in-patient. The latest period for which data is available is June 2007. The average waiting time for a first out-patient appointment in this period was 3.6 weeks, and 6.7 weeks for admission.

The NHS operating standard of no more than 13 weeks to first out-patient consultation, and 26 weeks to admission applies to orthodontics delivered in secondary care.

By the end of 2008, the maximum wait for any medical or surgical consultant led treatment, including orthodontic treatment, will be just 18 weeks from initial referral to start of treatment for all patients who want it and for whom it is clinically appropriate.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what stakeholders regularly consulted by his Department are known to take a (a) pro-life and (b) pro-choice position on abortion-related issues; and if he will make a statement. [158380]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not collected by the Department.

Drugs: Counterfeit Manufacturing

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the problem of counterfeit drugs in the NHS supply chain; and if he will make a statement. [157205]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) is concerned about the increase in the number of counterfeit medicines discovered in the United Kingdom regulated supply chain. Since August 2004, counterfeit medicines have been discovered in the UK regulated supply chain and recalled on nine occasions. In addition, counterfeit medicines have been discovered at wholesale-dealer level on five separate occasions.

Although this represents a very small percentage of medicines supplied nationally, MHRA is developing a strategy which will address the risks to patient safety posed by counterfeit medicines and introduce measures to minimise the risk of counterfeit products reaching patients through both the regulated and unregulated supply chains. The strategy will be published later this year.

Avastin

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether it is his policy that Avastin eye injections should be available on the NHS free of charge to (a) all patients and (b) pensioners who require them; and if he will make a statement. [158724]

Ann Keen: Avastin has not been licensed for use in macular degeneration. However, the law allows the use of either unlicensed medicines or the prescribing of a licensed medicinal product "off-label"—that is outside the terms of its marketing authorisation in order to meet special clinical needs. Such prescriptions are subject to the individual clinician's judgment and are on the personal responsibility of the prescriber, and subject to funding by the primary care trust.

Food: Labelling

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many proposed claims have been submitted to the Food Standards Agency for consideration for authorisation for use on products under the provisions of Article 13 of the Nutrition and Health Claims Made on Food Regulations; if he will give a breakdown of that total by the major categories of the substance to which those claims refer, including (a) macronutrients, (b) vitamins and minerals, (c) botanical ingredients and (d) other substances. [157228]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency is currently processing submissions under the Article 13 process and estimates that between 1,500-2,000 claims have been submitted. The exact number, and breakdown by category and substance will only be known when all the submissions have been assessed, and any duplications taken into account.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to ensure that the Food Standards Agency assists manufacturers submitting applications for authorisation of claims under the Nutrition and Health Claims Made on Food Regulations to support those applications through the authorisation process; and what steps the agency intends to take to support small and medium sized businesses involved in this process. [157229]

Dawn Primarolo: Health claims must be substantiated by scientific evidence, and be well understood by the average consumer. The substantiating science is to be assessed by the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA). Authorisation of the claims will then be by joint decision of the Commission and member states in the appropriate regulatory committee. The Food Standards Agency will support claims that comply with the necessary criteria and will push to ensure that the requirement in the regulation that the Commission and EFSA make available technical guidance and tools to assist small and medium sized businesses in the preparation and presentation of an application is fulfilled.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when officials of the Food Standards Agency last met representatives of (a) manufacturers of specialist herbal food supplements and (b) specialist health food retailers to discuss the submission of claims under the nutrition and health claims made on food regulations. [157230]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency last met with representatives of manufacturers of specialist herbal food supplements and specialist health food retailers on 15 August 2007.

General Medical Council: Disciplinary Proceedings

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines his Department has issued to ensure that complete independence and objectivity apply to all General Medical Council disciplinary hearings; and if he will make a statement. [157773]

Mr. Bradshaw: No guidelines have been issued by the Department in relation to the independence and objectivity of General Medical Council (GMC) fitness to practise hearings.

In 2004, the GMC introduced a package of reforms to its fitness to practise procedures that included changes to the adjudication process.

Key aspects of the changes included:

the separation of functions between investigation and adjudication;

GMC Council members no longer have any role in fitness to practise casework and decision-making; and fitness to practise panels are populated by a pool of medical and lay panellists. All panellists are appointed against competencies and the recruitment and appointment process is overseen by independent assessors from the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

All panellists must receive training on the GMC's fitness to practice procedures before they are eligible to sit on a panel. The GMC introduced Indicative Sanctions Guidance in 2001. This provides guidance to panellists on the factors that they should consider in determining the appropriate sanction in each case. The medical and lay panellists appointed to sit on the panels exercise their own judgments in making decisions, but must take into consideration the standards of good practice the GMC has established which have been drawn up after wide consultation and which reflect what society expects of doctors.

General Practitioners: Rents

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 285W, on general practitioners: rents, who is responsible for monitoring compliance with Direction 48. [158738]

Mr. Bradshaw: Primary care trusts have responsibility for the administration and monitoring of the national health service (General Medical Services—Premises Costs) (England) Directions 2004, including Direction 48.

Health Professions: Manpower

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) doctors and (b) nurses were employed in each London borough in each year since 1997. [157634]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information requested is not held in the format requested. Data are not collected at borough or primary care trust (PCT) level, as doctors and nurses work in both national health service trusts and PCTs, and some NHS trusts serve across borders.

However, the following table shows the amount of doctors and nurses employed in London since 1997 at strategic health authority (SHA) level.

NHS doctors and qualified nurses in the London strategic health authority area, 1997 to 2006

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

NHS doctors and qualified nurses in the London strategic health authority area, 1997 to 2006

	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Practice nurses	2,564	2,832	2,780	2,827	2,741	2,891	2,821	2,906	2,862	2,898

[1] More accurate validation in 2006 has resulted in 9,858 duplicate records being identified and removed from the non medical census. Although this represents less than 1 per cent. of total records, it should be taken into consideration when making historical comparisons.
[2] Excludes medical Hospital Practitioners and medical Clinical Assistants, most of whom are GPs working part-time in hospitals.
[3] GP retainers were first collected in 1999 and have been omitted for comparability purposes.

Health Services: Ethnic Groups

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has undertaken into the sufficiency of link worker services connecting health provision and ethnic minority communities in those areas with high ethnic minority populations; and if he will make a statement. [156085]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Primary care trusts are receiving £16 million per annum within their baseline funding for the recruitment nationally of 500 community development workers (CDWs) for black and minority ethnic (BME) mental health. CDWs are a vital component of our "Delivering Race Equality in Mental Health Care" action plan, published in January 2005. A CDW's role is to help build links between local mental health services and their BME communities, so that they can collaborate more closely in the planning and provision of care. The effectiveness of the CDW workforce in meeting its objectives will be evaluated in due course. We do not hold information centrally about the numbers or sufficiency of other local link workers.

Health Services: Pregnancy

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the case for full implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guideline of the assessment and treatment of people with fertility problems if there is a move towards introducing single embryo transfer for selected patients. [157094]

Dawn Primarolo: The clinical guideline published in 2004 by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) recommended up to three cycles of in vitro fertilisation (IVF) where appropriate. The then Secretary of State made it clear that he expected primary care trusts (PCTs) to move over time to three cycles as recommended. We are aware that most PCTs are providing at least one cycle of IVF and we are working with the patient support organisation Infertility Network UK to help PCTs share best practice in the provision of fertility services and move to the NICE recommendations. The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority is considering the outcome of its public consultation on multiple births after IVF.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) number of beds and (b) bed category rate was in the NHS (i) in total and (ii) broken down by bed occupancy in (A) England and (B) each strategic health authority area in each year from 1997-98 to 2006-07. [156801]

Mr. Bradshaw: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

Hospital Beds: Paediatrics

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average bed occupancy rate was for paediatric units at district general hospitals in England in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158208]

Ann Keen: The data are provided in the following table.

Average occupancy rate (occupied/available beds x 100 per cent.) of neonate and paediatric beds for England during 2006-07 for intensive care beds, general and acute beds, and for intensive care and general and acute beds combined

	Occupancy rates (Percentage)
Neonate and paediatrics
Intensive care beds	74.18
General and acute beds	62.35
Intensive care and general and acute beds combined	64.60

Hospitals: Admissions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average age for hospital admissions was in England for the last year for which figures are available. [157011]

Mr. Bradshaw: The average mean age of patients on admission in national health service hospitals in England for 2005-06 was 47.3 years.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for the policy of deep cleaning NHS wards, as stated in his Department's press release of 25 September 2007, entitled Johnson crackdown on cleanliness and infections; what methodology was used to estimate the cost of deep cleaning at £50 million; which organisations will undertake the evaluation of the first programme of deep cleaning, and at what cost to the public purse; whether the deep cleaning of NHS wards will be mandatory for all NHS organisations which operate wards; when he expects the deep cleaning of NHS wards to happen; and if he will make a statement. [156805]

Ann Keen: The Government consider that high standards of cleanliness should be provided by the national health service.

A higher score on the annual Patient Environment Action Team assessments is significantly correlated with lower rates of Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) and Clostridium difficile, although this is unlikely to be a direct relationship. Links between infection and cleanliness vary according to the specific micro-organism involved, and high standards of hygiene are likely to have a greater effect on Clostridium difficile rates, for instance, than on MRSA.

Even for those micro-organisms where the environment has less impact, it is still important that hospitals are kept clean. Patients consistently rate cleanliness as one of their highest priorities for the NHS.

The figure of £50 million is an indicative amount. The final amount will depend on the needs of each hospital, which will inevitably vary. Strategic health authorities (SHAs) will work with their primary care trusts to commission deep cleaning at a locally-agreed cost, and to monitor total spend in their areas. Performance management and evaluation will also be carried out locally.

The deep cleaning programme is an important part of our work in relation to health care associated infections, and will therefore be targeted towards acute trusts. However, all hospitals should be clean, and SHAs have the discretion to include other hospitals, including mental health and learning disability units.

Deep cleaning is time consuming and can be disruptive. Dependent on the approach taken, it may be necessary to close wards or bays. For most trusts, this will take months, rather than weeks. We expect that the majority of activity will be complete by year-end.

Hospitals: Manpower

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has undertaken in the last two years on the (a) minimum size and (b) staffing needs of (i) an accident and emergency unit and (ii) a maternity unit in order to meet the August 2009 requirements of the European Working Time Directive; what cost to the public purse he expects to arise from meeting those requirements; and if he will make a statement. [157005]

Mr. Bradshaw: Local national health service trusts are responsible for implementing the European Working Time Directive (WTD) as part of their health and safety obligations. Strategic health authorities and the Department offer support with WTD planning. The Department is sponsoring NHS National Workforce Projects (NWPs) to support local implementation of WTD 2009. NHS NWPs has commissioned a range of pilots including cooperative solutions, team working, handover and escalation and 24:7 working (which include accident and emergency and maternity units). The pilots take in a wide variety of organisations to look at solutions which are transferable across the NHS. There is ongoing evaluation of the pilots to share lessons learned as early as possible.

Hospitals: Personnel

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assistance there is for NHS staff to relocate to work in alternative healthcare facilities in the event of the closure or downgrading of district hospitals. [157020]

Ann Keen: Proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders.

Assistance with expenses incurred as a result of any relocation arising from a reconfiguration proposal are determined locally in consultation with staff representatives.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccinations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether his Department is taking steps to ensure that young women who left school in summer 2007 before the human papilloma virus vaccination programme was introduced have access to this vaccination on the NHS; [157998]

(2) what decision has been made by his Department regarding a catch-up campaign for the human papilloma virus vaccine for females aged between 12 to 26 years. [158008]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has agreed, in principle, to accept Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) advice that human papilloma virus vaccines should be introduced routinely for girls aged around 12 to 13 years, subject to independent peer review of the cost-benefit analysis.

A detailed analysis is being carried out by the JCVI regarding the cost-benefit analysis, and this work is being externally peer reviewed to ensure its robustness. The Department will consider the issue when the advice from JCVI is available.

Infant Foods

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Department has taken to restrict the promotion of breast milk substitutes. [157223]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is working with the Food Standards Agency (FSA) to look at ways of further restricting the promotion of breast milk substitutes within the United Kingdom regulations stemming from the European Union directive on infant and follow-on formula. The draft regulations issued for public consultation on 2 July ended on 28 September. Comments received from the stakeholders are being collated and evaluated by the FSA. Stakeholders' comments will then be published together with the FSA's responses. The FSA also intends to consult in the near future on the accompanying draft guidance notes. The directive requires that regulations come into force on 1 January 2008.

Internet: Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of the NHS Choices website has been since its establishment. [158749]

Mr. Bradshaw: To date, £7.9 million has been spent on the design, development and operation of the website.

Maternity Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many roadside births have taken place (a) in England and (b) in each primary care trust area in each year since 1997. [157396]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Medical Treatments: Arthritis

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is taking to ensure that the full range of biologics is available to patients with rheumatoid arthritis. [158145]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 October 2007]: All primary care trusts in England and Wales are obliged to fund, from general allocations, drug therapies for those patients with rheumatoid arthritis who meet the clinical guidelines issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence.

MRSA: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of MRSA were reported in (a) each London hospital and (b) each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157375]

Ann Keen: The information is not available as requested. The mandatory surveillance of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA) in England applies to national health service acute trusts only. Data on primary care trusts are not compiled.

Since April 2001, trusts in England have reported all cases of MRSA bacteraemias (bloodstream infections), to the Health Protection Agency (HPA). Data covering the period April 2002 to March 2007 were published on 25 July 2007. The data for those trusts in London are summarised in the following table.

MRSA bacteraemias: London (that is within London strategic health authority: April 2002 to March 2007)

April to March each year.	Number of bacteraemias
2002-03	1,707
2003-04	1,682
2004-05	1,392
2005-06	1,320
2006-07	1,205

NHS: Ancillary Staff

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) caretakers, (b) hospital porters and (c) cleaners were employed by each London Primary Care Trust in each year since 1997. [157633]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held in the format requested. However, the following table shows the amount of non-medical staff employed in London since 1997 at strategic health authority (SHA) level.

NHS hospital and community health services: maintenance and works staff and support workers in the hotel, property and estates area of work in the London strategic health authority area as at 30 September each specified year

	Headcount
1997	6,266
1998	5,494
1999	5,468
2000	5,064
2001	5,124
2002	5,189
2003	5,318
2004	5,631
2005	5,768
2006	4,827

Notes:
1. These figures are for staff directly employed by the NHS only. The Non-Medical Workforce Census does not cover contracted services staff. Maintenance and works and support staff in hotel, property and estates include caretakers/handypersons, gardeners and grounds, maintenance staff, catering staff and cleaning staff. There is no way to separately identify any of these occupations from the census data.
2. More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total work force figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures. This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends overtime.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the gateway reviews of the NHS IT programme. [155866]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no current plans to do so. The Gateway review reports are intended to help and inform the management of the programme and the Department's own decisions. They are not intended for publication.

More generally, the Government believe that the prospect of disclosure of any Gateway review would restrain the frankness and candour with which participants engage in the Gateway process, and that this in turn would undermine its effectiveness and the quality of recommendations arising. Gateway reviews perform an important role in ensuring that public authorities are using their resources in an efficient and effective way and there is therefore a strong and vital public interest in maintaining their efficacy.

NHS: Leave

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rules or guidelines his Department has in place governing the length of time that NHS employees are allowed to take paid leave on (a) compassionate and (b) other grounds; what the overall maximum period is for which paid leave will be given; and if he will make a statement. [157737]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The position on paid leave is outlined in the terms and conditions for particular staff groups and depends on time served and individual circumstances.

For medical staff the "National Health Service Hospital Medical and Dental Staff and Doctors in Public Health Medicine and the Community Health Service (England and Wales)", and the "Terms and Conditions of Service for Consultants (England) 2003" have been placed in the Library and are also available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-348.cfm

For non-medical staff the "Agenda for Change NHS Terms and Conditions of Service Handbook", has been placed in the Library and also available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-198.cfm

NHS: Reorganisation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make it his policy that all consultations on NHS service reconfiguration will contain as one option the retention of services in their existing configuration; [157006]

(2) what research his Department has conducted into the impact of relocation or closure of hospital services on patient access to healthcare facilities in areas with disproportionately high numbers of elderly residents; [157015]

(3) whether his Department has undertaken an assessment of the impact on local economies of closing district general hospitals. [157021]

Ann Keen: The Department of Health has not undertaken specific research into the relocation of local health care services.

Proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders.

The recently published interim report on the NHS Next Stage Review makes it clear that no major service change should happen except on the basis of need and sound clinical evidence.

NHS: Temporary Employment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of staffing costs were spent on agency staff in each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157376]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested can be found in the following table.

Paramedical Staff: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) paramedics and (b) paramedics in training there are in Lancashire; and how many there were in each year since 2000. [157584]

Ann Keen: Information on the numbers of paramedics in training is not collected centrally. Numbers of paramedics in the North West Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust and predecessor organisations is set out in the following table.

	Number
2000	945
2001	966
2002	902
2003	1,037
2004	1,037
2005	1,181
2006	1,175

Note:
In July 2006, Mersey Ambulance Service, Cumbria Ambulance Service, Greater Manchester Ambulance Service and Lancashire Ambulance Service NHS Trusts merged to form North West Ambulance Service NHS Trust.

Radiotherapy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many linear accelerators he expects to be available to the NHS in each year of the next 10 years. [156782]

Ann Keen: The Department does not routinely collect these data, the acquisition of resources is a matter for local determination based on local needs. However when final deliveries are completed, as part of the recent central procurement, there will be approximately 250 linear accelerators (linacs) installed in national health service trusts in England.

The National Radiotherapy Advisory Group report published in May 2007 has recommended that more linacs will be needed over the next 10 years. The recommendations in this report are being considered as part of the development of the cancer reform strategy.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether all radiotherapy centres have plans in place to deliver the 4-tier skills mix model. [156783]

Ann Keen: All trusts with radiotherapy centres are being encouraged to review their skill mix following the recommendations made by the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group (NRAG) produced in May 2007, however radiotherapy staffing profiles need to be based on local needs and priorities.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many radiotherapy departments have more than eight linear accelerators. [156784]

Ann Keen: Three[1] radiotherapy departments in England have more than eight linear accelerators on site. These are Christie Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, Clatterbridge Centre for Oncology NHS Foundation Trust and Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust. However, we do not hold information on whether all these machines are in routine clinical use. Some of these machines may be used for clinical research, training purposes or used as back up when another machine requires maintenance.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average number of fractions per linear accelerator was in the most recent period for which figures are available, broken down by radiotherapy facility. [156785]

Ann Keen: In 2005, a radiotherapy equipment survey was carried out by the National Cancer Services Analysis Team. Results from this survey were included in the report of the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group that was published in May 2007.

As set out in this report 39 out of 48 Trusts with radiotherapy facilities in England responded to the survey. The median radiotherapy centre gave 7,400 fractions per linac and 16 out of the 39 centres delivered more than 8,000 fractions per linac on average. A chart showing the range of productivity across the 39 radiotherapy facilities in England that responded to the survey has been placed in Library.

The radiotherapy equipment survey has recently been repeated and the updated information is currently being validated. A more up-to-date position should therefore be available by the end of October 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many linear accelerators were available to the NHS in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what average number of fractions per annum was delivered by each. [156786]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect data in the format requested, however, the following information might be helpful.

The National Radiotherapy Advisory Group Report published in May 2007 indicated that there were 215 linear accelerators (linacs) in England in August 2006 and that the median radiotherapy centre gave 7,400 fractions per linac averaged across the centre.

From the 39 centres out of 48 that responded to a radiotherapy equipment survey in 2004-05 undertaken by the National Cancer Services Analysis team, the annual average fractions per linear accelerator was 7,522. This included all linacs which were recorded as having been in routine clinical use for the whole year and excluded Cobalt units, machines used for backup, and two machines with very low activity levels less than 100 courses.

The radiotherapy equipment survey has been repeated and results should be available shortly.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to increase the number of hybrid virtual environments on radiotherapy training sites. [156787]

Ann Keen: In May 2007 we announced £5 million of capital funding to support the introduction of virtual skills training facilities to national health service trusts and universities where therapeutic radiography training is undertaken. The National Cancer Director wrote to trusts and universities supporting radiotherapy training on 6 October 2007 inviting them to apply for funding to allow them to procure the facilities.

Waiting Lists: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting times were for (a) general surgery, (b) ear, nose and throat surgery, (c) neurosurgery, (d) geriatric medicine and (e) general medicine in each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157390]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Cancer: North East Region

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from (i) cancer and (ii) breast cancer in (A) Jarrow constituency, (B) South Tyneside and (C) the North East in each year since 1997. [156763]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 15 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people have (a) been diagnosed with and (b) died from (i) cancer and (ii) breast cancer in (A) Jarrow constituency, (B) South Tyneside and (C) the North East in each year since 1997. (156763)

The latest available figures for (a) newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2004 (England and Wales). Numbers of cases of (i) all cancers and (ii) breast cancer, for the years 1997 to 2004 for (A) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (B) South Tyneside County District and (C) North East Government Office Region are given in Table 1.

The latest available figures for (b) deaths are for the year 2006. Numbers of deaths from (i) all cancers and (ii) breast cancer, for the years 1997 to 2006 for (A) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (B) South Tyneside County District and (C) North East Government Office Region are given in Table 2.

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will list all accounts directions issued by his Department between 2001-02 and 2005-06; [156004]

(2) what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial year (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156675]

Andy Burnham: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 and the Government Trading Fund Act 1973, the Treasury issues accounts directions to Departments, pensions schemes, agencies and trading funds. It also issues directions to a number of other bodies that prepare accounts under different legislation.

Details of the directions issued by the Treasury under these Acts are detailed in a Dear Accounting Officer (DAO) letter sent to all bodies, the latest such version of which is available on the Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk

Details of the Departments, pensions schemes, agencies and trading funds issued an accounts direction by the Treasury for the years 2001-02 through to 2006-07 have been deposited in the Library of the House.

Also included are details of those bodies that prepare accounts under legislation other than the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 or the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 that hold an extant direction issued by the Treasury. This list also details a few bodies that prepare their accounts under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 that were omitted from the latest DAO.

Departments: Rents

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what income (a) his Department and (b) the Government receive from rental property; and if he will make a statement. [156916]

Angela Eagle: Central Government received income from rental property of £261 million in 2006-07. The Treasury received no income from rental property.

Minimum Wage: Civil Servants

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees employed by the Government and Government agencies are in receipt of no more than the minimum wage; and if he will list the titles of their posts. [158158]

Andy Burnham: This information is not held centrally but it is estimated that for staff in the civil service and non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) the total number, as at September 2007, on the minimum wage is less than 1,000.

Revenue and Customs: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) individuals and (b) members of the armed services or their families visited the Enquiry Centre at Regent House, Darlington in each year since 2003-04; and how many of these visits were in connection with tax credits. [157444]

Jane Kennedy: The total number of callers visiting the Darlington Enquiry Centre from 2003-04 to 2006-07 including those with tax credit enquiries were:

	Callers	Tax Credit Enquiry
2003-04	14,120	4,927
2004-05	9,371	2,523
2005-06	10,116	2,261
2006-07	10,920	2,062

HMRC does not have the information to identify how many of those callers were members of the armed forces.

Second Homes: Highlands of Scotland

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he took into account the likely effect on demand for second homes in the Highlands in formulating his proposals to reduce the rate of capital gains tax; [158616]

(2) whether his Department has made an assessment of the factors affecting demand for second homes in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [158617]

Jane Kennedy: The Government take a range of factors into consideration when formulating tax policy, and keeps all aspects of policy under review.

VAT: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. member for North-East Bedfordshire of 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2243W, on VAT: Home Information Packs, what estimate his Department has made of the total gross revenue from VAT on (a) home information packs and (b) energy performance certificates in the first full year of operation if they are introduced across the whole housing market. [157326]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimates have been made.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the written statement of the Financial Secretary of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 62WS, on tax credit administration, what estimate he has made of the amount of overpaid tax credits which will be written off as a consequence of the procedural error described in the written statement. [157088]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 11 October 2007]: An estimate for the amount written off in the accounts as a result of the procedural error is not yet available. It will be included in HMRC's 2007-08 accounts which will be published next year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Aggregates Levy: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which beneficiaries of the Aggregates Levy Sustainable Fund were based in Stroud constituency in each year since the inception of the levy. [158549]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund database captures information at county-level and has details of beneficiaries from April 2004 onwards. Beneficiaries that have run projects in Gloucestershire, since April 2004, are shown in the following list.

Gloucestershire—April 2004 onwards

Bowmoor Sailing Club
British Waterways
Bristol Regional Environmental Records Centre
Cotswold Canal Trust
Cotswold Water Park Society
Cotswold AONB Partnership
Drybrook Parish council
Fairford Playing Field Ltd
Fairford Town council
Gloucester city council
Gloucestershire county council
Gloucestershire Geoconservation Trust
Gloucestershire Wildlife Trust
Huntsmans Quarries Ltd
Kemerton Conservation Trust
MCTI Partnership
Oxford Archaeology
Pool Keynes Village Hall Committee
RSPB
Staunton Parish council
Staunton Meend Common
Stroud Valleys Project
South Gloucestershire council
Somerford Keynes Parish council
South Cerney Playgroup
The National Trust
The Jurassic Hill Geopark
University of Gloucester

Alcoholic Drinks: EU Action

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action he is taking to ensure the term cider brandy is retained and not renamed cider spirit in the draft EU regulations to replace the present EU Regulation 1576/89; and if he will make a statement. [158721]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: DEFRA is aware that the term "cider brandy" is absent from the draft of the European Union regulation on spirit drinks. We are pressing the European Commission to find a pragmatic solution to this issue.

Animal Welfare: Shipping

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many ships departing from UK ports since 1 January 2007 carrying live animals have been subject to inspection for animal welfare purposes; and what percentage of sailings this constitutes. [157789]

Jonathan Shaw: Since January 2007, two specialist livestock vessels have operated out of Dover. These vessels have also had a limited number of sailings from Sheerness and Ipswich port. Animal Health carry out welfare inspections on a percentage of all the animal transport vehicles travelling on these vessels.

Combined figures for the vessels show that, of 104 sailings, 97 included physical and documentary checks on a number of the vehicles onboard. This means that over 93 per cent. of the sailings had welfare checks carried out on their vehicles.

Cattle: Transport

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle passport applications he expects to be received late due to the postal strike; and how many cattle he estimates this will render valueless. [157275]

Jonathan Shaw: BCMS receives around 49,000 applications each week for cattle passports. Passports are produced provided there is reasonable evidence to show that farmers submitted applications in good time or were prevented from doing so by factors outside their control. These factors include known postal strikes.

If applications were not submitted in reasonable time then a passport would be refused and farmers would be unable to move the animal from their holding. 0.35 per cent. of all applications received are normally refused, subject to appeal because they are late. The figures from the last postal strike show that 0.45 per cent. of applications were initially refused. Three quarters of these appealed against the decision and were successful because of the postal strike delays. This compares with 55 per cent. of such appeals during a similar period the previous year.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156622]

Jonathan Shaw: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issues accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 Department has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies;

2005-06

British Potato Council
British Waterways Board
Consumer Council For Water
Covent Garden Market Authority
English Nature
Environment Agency
Food From Britain
Gangmasters Licensing Authority
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Royal Botanical Gardens Kew

2006-07

British Potato Council
British Waterways Board
Countryside Agency
Commission For Rural Communities
Covent Garden Market Authority
English Nature
Food From Britain
Gangmasters Licensing Authority
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Natural England
Royal Botanical Gardens Kew

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to implement the recommendations of the review, Flooding Lessons Learned, chaired by Sir Michael Pitt. [158753]

Mr. Woolas: The Government await the findings of the Flooding Lessons Learned review and will respond as positively as possible to the recommendations.

Food: Procurement

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he intends to assess the effectiveness of the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative in respect of small and local meat producers. [157329]

Jonathan Shaw: Earlier this year, DEFRA commissioned Ipsos MORI to gauge awareness of the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI) in schools and local authorities. The survey included questions on the proportion of tenders from small and local producers, including meat producers. The results were positive with:

three in five schools (59 per cent.) and four in five local authorities stating that they encourage tenders from small and local producers;

almost seven in 10 local authorities (69 per cent.) stating that at least half the food supplied to schools in their area is from small and local producers;

half of the schools (53 per cent.) stating that at least half of their food is supplied by small and local producers while one in ten schools (9 per cent.) say that all their food is supplied from these producers.

The report also found that in 52 per cent. of the local authorities and 44 per cent. of schools the proportion of food supplied by small and local producers during the last two to three years had increased.

A copy of the Ipsos MORI survey is on the PSFPI website at http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/school-food.htm. It was conducted during the period March to July 2007 and covered 81 local authorities and 255 schools.

Recent research by the Meat and Livestock Commission, based on estimates provided by 126 English local authorities, suggests that 39 per cent. of their meat by volume was locally sourced. The figure may exaggerate the amount of locally farmed meat supplied as not all local authorities seek provenance.

In addition to the research mentioned above, DEFRA is currently collating data from across central Government to determine the proportion of publicly procured food that is British. We aim to publish the information before the end of this month.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Compensation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what compensation will be made available to (a) auction marts which suffered closure owing to foot and mouth measures and (b) farmers who were unable to enter their stock for sale in such auction marts. [R] [157080]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no plans to compensate auction markets who suffered closure owing to foot and mouth measures, or farmers who were unable to enter their stock for sale in such auction markets.

Under the Animal Health Act 1981, compensation is paid for animals that are compulsorily slaughtered to prevent the spread of disease. For foot and mouth disease (FMD), the Act requires that compensation is paid at the full market value before the animal became infected. This is determined by an approved valuer at the time of slaughter. Compensation is also paid for other items, such as farm equipment and feed, where these are seized because they are considered to be contaminated; this includes such things as milk. However, it is a long established principle that the Government do not meet the costs of consequential losses, which must be borne by the industry. Government seek to minimise the risk of market impacts, particularly by encouraging public understanding of the issues.

We are taking a risk-based and staged approach to easing movement restrictions when the evidence indicates that it is appropriate to do so. This is the best way to facilitate the return to normal working for the industry. We are working in partnership with the industry, but eradication of foot and mouth disease remains our priority.

National Fallen Stock Collection and Disposal Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make support for the increased costs of collection available to those farmers with fallen stock in low risk areas which are now dependent upon using the National Fallen Stock Company for collection. [158161]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) announced on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 39, that DEFRA would provide £1 million to raise the level of subsidy for the National Fallen Stock scheme for farmers in the foot and mouth (FMD) risk area from 10 per cent. to 100 per cent. This is targeted to help the livestock farmers that have been worst affected financially from restrictions imposed as a result of FMD and this will be available to all livestock keepers in the FMD risk area.

The National Fallen Stock scheme will continue as normal in the rest of the UK and for non-susceptible livestock in the risk area, subject to FMD licensing controls. There are no plans for any extra support to be introduced.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff were employed by the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157110]

Barbara Follett: No staff were made redundant from any of the legacy commissions. However the three commissions ran voluntary severance schemes and the following numbers left the commissions: CRE had 78 leavers, DRC had 68 leavers and EOC had 39 leavers.

SCOTLAND

Youth Citizenship Commission

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the Government expect to launch the Youth Citizenship Commission, as announced in the Green Paper: The Governance of Britain; and what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on the involvement of young people from Scotland in the initiative. [156388]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The Youth Citizenship Commission will report to the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and the Secretary of State for Justice. It will be launched this autumn. There have been discussions at official level between the Secretariat for the Commission and the Scottish Executive.

WALES

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what guidance his Department follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158582]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office complies with Cabinet Office guidelines for the maximum time for responding to correspondence.

The Wales Office publishes correspondence statistics in its annual report and to the Cabinet Office for their annual report to Parliament.

The latest figures for April 2006 to March 2007 were 93 per cent. of correspondence answered within 15 days of receipt.

Departments: Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people were employed by his Department on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [158326]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office publishes staffing figures within the Departmental Annual Report. The 2007 Report (CM7110) provides data on staff including staff numbers, permanent and temporary staff. A copy of the report can be obtained from the Library of the House or it can be viewed on our website:

http://www.walesoffice.gov.uk/2007/AnnualReport2007.pdf.

The Wales Office has not employed any contractors in the last five years.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent by his Department on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158906]

Mr. Hain: Wales Office records are kept in financial year.

£12,265 was spent on hospitality in financial year 2006-07.

Departments: Policy

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what policy changes his Department has implemented since 27 June 2007. [159285]

Mr. Hain: I was delighted to be re-appointed Secretary of State for Wales. I have pressed forward the same policies of deepening devolution in Wales, particularly under the framework set by the Government of Wales Act 2006, and championing Welsh interests.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156994]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W, by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband).

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157881]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office operates 15 websites. On 1 January 2005 the Department operated 11 websites. The estimated annual cost of running the Department's websites in each of the last five years is detailed in the following table.

	Estimated cost (£)
2002-03	28,355
2003-04	34,331
2004-05	30,374
2005-06	56,103
2006-07	39,837

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157882]

Paul Goggins: The most popular website run by the Northern Ireland Office is www.nio.gov.uk; it received 8,767,572 hits between 1 January 2007 and 31 August 2007.

The website used least was www.howsecureismyhome.com; it received 5,909 hits over this same period.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157880]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office currently has no staff seconded from outside Government.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker' Committee on the Electoral Commission if he will make a statement on steps being taken by the Electoral Commission to investigate the permissibility of the donation by Mr. Michael Brown to the Liberal Democrats. [158697]

Peter Viggers: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 748W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

BBC: EU Grants and Loans

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the BBC received in the form of (a) loans, (b) direct payments and (c) indirect payments from EU institutions in each of the last five years. [158605]

James Purnell: This is a matter for the BBC. The BBC Group finance director will consider the question raised by the hon. Member and write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157890]

Margaret Hodge: The information requested is as follows:

Visitor statistics 1 January to 31 August 2007

The following statistics refer to 'unique visitors' rather than 'hits' which is accepted as a more useful indicator of the popularity of sites.

Digital Broadcasting: Whitehaven

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of those eligible have applied for assistance with digital switchover in Whitehaven. [158568]

James Purnell: As of 15 October 2007, 33 per cent. of those identified as being eligible for assistance from the digital switchover help scheme in the Whitehaven area had contacted the help scheme administrator. 25 per cent. of those eligible for assistance opted to receive help; 8 per cent. of those eligible for assistance chose to opt-out of the scheme.

Internet: Copyright

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the Secretaries of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills and Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on the implementation of recommendation 39 of the Gowers Review, on internet service providers' responsibility for copyright theft. [158203]

Margaret Hodge: As Minister with responsibility for the creative industries, I have had discussions with my hon. Friend the Minister for Intellectual Property and Quality at the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, and my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Competitiveness at the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in relation to progress on the implementation of a range of recommendations from the Gowers review, including recommendation 39.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will reply to the letters from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean dated 20 April and 18 July regarding the Waterways Museum in Gloucester. [158040]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 15 October 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member's letters on 16 October. I apologise for the completely unacceptable delay in responding to this correspondence. I am taking steps to ensure that officials respond efficiently to correspondence we receive.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many television licences have been issued to addresses in (a) Argyll and Bute constituency, (b) the STV Central region and (c) the STV North region. [158718]

James Purnell [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The BBC has responsibility for the administration of the television licensing system and the maintenance of television licence records. I understand from the BBC, however, that they are not able to provide a breakdown by constituency or TV region of the number of TV licences issued, as there is no operational need for the BBC to hold the information in this way. The information is recorded at individual address level and aggregated to national level for reporting purposes.

Visit Scotland

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the locations are of the overseas offices of (a) VisitScotland and (b) VisitWales. [157303]

Margaret Hodge: Neither VisitScotland nor VisitWales operates overseas offices.

However, under an agreement made between DCMS and the Scottish Executive in March 2005, VisitScotland carries out overseas marketing through VisitBritain's offices in Germany, France, the Netherlands and Eire.

VisitWales has two members of staff working in VisitBritain's New York office. These are the only representatives from VisitWales located overseas.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department provided to (a) VisitScotland and (b) VisitWales in each of the last five years. [157304]

Margaret Hodge: VisitScotland and VisitWales are fully funded by the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly respectively. Neither receives any funding from DCMS.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of families who have access to affordable childcare places in England, broken down by (a) region and (b) constituency. [157729]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available in the form requested.

Ofsted have produced figures on the numbers of registered child care providers and places on a quarterly basis from March 2003. Their latest figures were published in their report "Registered Childcare Providers and Places, June 2007", which is available on their website, www.Ofsted.gov.uk/

Children: Poverty

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which Secretary of State has the lead role in delivering the 2010 child poverty target; and if he will make a statement. [157600]

Beverley Hughes: As stated in 'PSA Delivery Agreement 9: Halve the number of children in poverty by 2010-11, on the way to eradicating child poverty by 2020',

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, and the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions will be responsible for child poverty, and in addition the Chancellor of the Exchequer is the lead Minister for this PSA."

I refer the hon. Member to the reply of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 92W.

Foster Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will introduce a compulsory registration scheme for private fostering. [158256]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Government have agreed that at a suitable point we will publish a report on the impact of the enhanced notification scheme introduced by the Children Act 2004, and it is on that basis that we will announce whether or not we are minded to move towards a registration scheme.

Parents: Disadvantaged

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support his Department provides to parents in areas with high levels of gang and gun-related crime to help ensure that children do not become involved in criminal activity. [154095]

Beverley Hughes: We are providing extra funding this year to areas where gun, knife and gang crime is most prevalent to accelerate the roll-out of extended schools. Parenting support is an important part of the extended schools core offer of services. There are currently over 7,000 schools providing access to the core offer of services and by 2010 all schools will be offering these services.

In addition, DCSF is leading a number of wider activities that will provide parents with support to help them steer their children away from trouble. These include launching the £34 million Parent Know How programme; establishing the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners; investing £4 million to employ Respect parenting practitioners, targeted at helping parents whose children are most at risk of engaging in antisocial behaviour; we have established a national network of 53 Family Intervention Projects supporting families facing the most problems; and we have set up, in 18 local authorities, Parenting Early Intervention Pathfinders for parents of younger children who are at risk of negative outcomes.

Play: Facilities

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of publicly run play areas for children available in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007. [154787]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally. We recognise fully the benefits of play for children and we continue to take steps to support and promote the provision of opportunities for play. For example, between 2008-09 and 2010-11, we are providing over £1.1 billion for schools so that every school will be offering access to extended services by 2010. Through this, children and families will be able to access breakfast and after-school clubs, a range of activities and community services, with areas for play an important element of the provision.

In addition, the Government are supporting improvements to the quality of parks and green spaces in all our towns and cities, especially the most deprived areas, so that everyone has access to good quality spaces close to where they live. The quality of parks and green spaces is being driven up by the Government-supported Green Flag Award Scheme; knowledge, capacity and skills within local authorities have been enhanced through the How To programme and the work of the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment, and many communities have improved their local spaces through support Groundwork, the Living Spaces programme and the Liveability Fund.

Video Games: Violence

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what process is to be followed by the online review into the effect of violent video games; [158561]

(2) which groups and organisations have been approached to take part in the review into the effect of violent video games; [158562]

(3) when he expects the review into the effect of violent video games will be complete; and when the results will be published; [158563]

(4) whether there are any other data collection methods the review into violent video games will use other than the online questionnaire. [158564]

Beverley Hughes: The review being carried out by Dr. Tanya Byron will consider the evidence on the risks to children and young people from inappropriate or harmful content in video games and the internet and assess the effectiveness and adequacy of existing measures to protect them and support parents.

An open call for evidence was published by Dr. Byron on 9 October 2007, running until 30 November 2007. It asks respondents to respond online via the Department's website or to email or post responses to the questions posed in the call for evidence document.

A children and young people's call for evidence is due out in week commencing 22 October 2007 and will be promoted through a wide range of media platforms (including social networking sites and online debates).

In addition to considering responses to these two open calls for evidence, the Byron Review will draw upon a wide range of existing evidence, including published commentary and research literature, and will undertake some further research in areas where gaps in the literature have been identified.

Since the review was announced on 8 September 2007, the review has met with groups, organisations and individuals representing parents; children and young people; those involved in the welfare, education and safety of children; the academic and research community; the video gaming industry; gamers; the internet industry (including producers, content aggregators, web hosts, internet service providers, search and navigation providers, consumer device manufacturers and retailers); advertising and retail bodies; government agencies; other statutory and non-statutory public bodies and third sector organisations. Dr. Byron and her team will continue to meet with key stakeholders throughout the period of the review, and they welcome input from any interested person or organisation.

The final report (due to be published in March 2008) will make recommendations to the Secretaries of State for Children's Schools and Families and Culture Media and Sport. This will include a list of individuals and groups that have contributed to the Review.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Alisher Usmanov

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish reports received from British embassies relating to Alisher Usmanov. [158765]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Such information would constitute personal data. A request for personal information brings into play the relevant legislative provisions on data release by the Government and would require the consent of the individual concerned.

Defence Systems and Equipment International Exhibition

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Ministers from his Department attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition in September. [158779]

Dr. Howells: I can confirm to my hon. Friend that no Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Ministers attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International (DSEi) event in September to which he refers.

However, the FCO did jointly sponsor a seminar at the DSEi event with the Defence Manufacturers Association. The seminar aimed to raise awareness and build support for an International Arms Trade Treaty (ATT) among the defence and military equipment industry. John Duncan, UK ambassador for Multilateral and Disarmament Affairs in Geneva, gave a speech about the UK's approach to an ATT and responded to questions on the subject.

Departments: Recruitment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Department paid in fees to recruitment agencies for (a) temporary and (b) permanent staff in each year since 1997. [151664]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The recorded expenditure for agency staff for each financial year since 1997 is as follows:

1997-98	451,207
1998-99	799,523
1999-2000	971,657
2000-01	1,584,850
2001-02	2,434,202
2002-03	3,230,264
2003-04	2,357,123
2004-05	1,110,154
2005-06	2,298,906
2006-07	3,344,461

Expenditure in respect of temporary and permanent agency staff is not recorded separately. The increase in expenditure in 2006-07 arose from the need to recruit temporary staff to assist Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Services to move to Trading Fund status, and to enable the FCO's account to be signed off earlier than in previous years.

Gaza: Travel Restrictions

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Israeli authorities in the case of Khaled Mudallel on his return from Gaza to his business studies course at Bradford university. [158826]

Dr. Howells: We raised this issue with the Israeli embassy in London on 15 October. The embassy told us that Mr. Mudallel has been advised that he can leave Gaza via the Nitzana Border Terminal.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estim[illegible] he has made of the number of British residency permit holders unable to leave Gaza due to official action. [158827]

Dr. Howells: We have made no formal estimate. However, we are currently discussing the problem with our EU colleagues. We continue to raise concerns about movement and access with the Government for Israel.

Indian Sub-Continent: Entry Clearances

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa offices are operated by his Department in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan; and how many staff are employed in each of those offices to process visa applications. [158287]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas has one Visa Section in Bangladesh, located at our high commission in Dhaka. There are four Visa Sections in India, located at our high commission in New Delhi and our deputy high commissions in Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata. There are two Visa Sections in Pakistan, located at our high commission in Islamabad and our deputy high commission in Karachi.

The following table displays the total number of staff employed at each of these Visa Sections to process visa applications. The figures include entry clearance managers, officers, assistants, local support staff and those on short-term contracts.

Staff employed at UK Visa Sections in India, Bangladesh and Pakistan

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa applications were processed by his Department in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan in each (i) year and (ii) month since 2001. [158288]

Dr. Howells: The following table displays the total number of UK visa applications processed by our visa sections in Bangladesh, India and Pakistan in each year and month since April 2001.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what targets are set for the processing of visa applications by consular staff in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan. [158290]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas does not set targets for its staff to process visa applications. Instead, UKvisas measures performance at all of its missions abroad against the following public service agreement (PSA) standards.

PSA 1: 90 per cent. of straightforward non-settlement applications to be processed within 24-hours.

PSA 2: 90 per cent. of non-settlement applications requiring further enquiries or interview to be processed within 15 days.

PSA 3: 90 per cent of settlement applications to be processed within 12 weeks.

Iran: Religious Freedom

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Iran on the persecution of the Baha'i community, with particular reference to young Baha'i people being allowed to attend university; and if he will make a statement. [158551]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned about the treatment of religious minorities in Iran. The Baha'i faith is not formally recognised under the Iranian Constitution and as a result Baha'is routinely face persecution and discrimination. In recent years Baha'is have been subject to arbitrary arrests, confiscation of property and restrictions on employment. Denial of access to higher education has been a long-term problem for Baha'i students.

After the religious identifier was removed from the national university entrance examination in 2006, a number of Baha'i students sat the exam for last academic year (2006-07). Over 250 Baha'i students were admitted to campuses across Iran, but 120 were expelled throughout the year as the universities discovered their religion. This year, students applying to study at technical and vocational institutes were required to complete a form stating their religion. The options did not include the Baha'i religion, so Baha'i students were once again effectively excluded from applying to these institutions. We do not yet know the situation facing Baha'i university students this academic year, but we remain concerned that more Baha'is may be prevented from applying to university or expelled in the future.

We continue to monitor the situation and raise concerns about the treatment of the Baha'is with the Iranian authorities, bilaterally and through the EU.

The EU presidency raised specific concerns about the issue of Baha'i access to higher education in meetings with the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 1 September and 10 October.

Iraq: Overseas Workers

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many UK citizens were employed by non-UK-based private contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters in each of the last five years; [158257]

(2) how many UK citizens were employed by non UK-based private security contractors in Iraq in each of the last five years; [158258]

(3) how many UK citizens were employed by UK-based private contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters in each of the last five years. [158261]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested by the hon. Member.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many UK citizens working for UK-based private security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158259]

(2) how many UK citizens working for non UK-based private security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158260]

(3) how many people employed by UK-based security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158264]

(4) how many people employed by UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158265]

(5) how many UK citizens working for non UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158266]

(6) how many UK citizens working for UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years. [158267]

Dr. Howells: Our consular records show that at least 72 British civilians have died in Iraq since March 2003.

2003—6
2004—23
2005—12
2006—22
2007—9

This number includes deaths from natural causes but is not a definitive figure as records include only those cases where consular assistance has been sought. The figure does not include British dual nationals or unrepresented foreign nationals.

We also have records of 78 British civilians who have been injured in Iraq over the same period.

2003—7
2004—30
2005—15
2006—1
2007—15

We do not collect data in a form which would enable us to distinguish between private security companies or other contractors nor the country of origin of those employers. Consular officials do not have accurate figures on non-British nationals in the above categories.

Iraq: Resettlement

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-8WS, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff, what his estimate is of the number of Iraqi nationals who (a) work and (b) have worked in Iraq as (i) direct employees of the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence, (ii) on letters of appointment from HM embassy Baghdad or the British embassy offices in Basra and the Kurdistan region and (iii) as direct employees of the Department for International Development or the British Council. [157993]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 15 October 2007]: About 500 locally engaged staff currently work in Iraq as direct employees of the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence and a further 43 work on letters of appointment from our embassy in Baghdad and our embassy Offices in Basra or Erbil, the Department for International Development (DFID) and the British Council.

About 20,000 have worked for the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence and a further 140 have worked on letters of appointment from our embassy in Baghdad, our embassy Offices in Basra or Erbil, DFID and the British Council.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made towards a peace settlement in the Middle East. [158658]

Dr. Howells: In the run up to the November international meeting I believe that a window of opportunity now exists with: a continuing Israeli Prime Minister Olmert/Palestinian President Abbas dialogue; the right hon. Tony Blair's engagement; and a rejuvenated Arab Peace Initiative. We will continue to work with international partners to develop these proposals and move us closer to a two-state solution.

We would like to see at the US-hosted November meeting, an agreement that puts the Israelis and Palestinians on a path to real negotiations in 2008 leading to a final settlement of two states living side by side in peace and security.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the signing of human rights agreements by Saudi Arabia on the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia; and if he will make a statement. [158029]

Dr. Howells: Saudi Arabia is party to the following international instruments:

Convention on the Rights of the Child;

Convention on the Elimination of all forms of racial discrimination;

Convention against torture; and

International convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women.

Saudi Arabia's human rights record is poor but improving. Complete implementation of these instruments continues to be a challenge. It is the role of the UN treaty monitoring bodies to assess how well a country is fulfilling its obligations under a treaty. The Government continue to work both bilaterally and with EU partners to encourage Saudi Arabia to fulfil its obligations and report on time.

From April 2008 the UN Human Rights Council will be implementing periodic reviews on all the human rights records of all Member States.

Ukraine: Work Permits

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average price was of a UK work visa from Ukraine in each year since 2003. [157957]

Dr. Howells: The current fee for a Work Permit Holder visa application at our Visa Section in Kiev is £200. From 1 July 2005 to 31 March 2007, the fee for a Work Permit Holder visa was £85. Prior to this, Work Permit Holders paid the long-term non-settlement fee of £75.

TRANSPORT

A358

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1109W, on the A358, what discussions she has had with the (a) Highways Agency and (b) Regional Fire Control Centre at Blackbrook on the proposed scheme to link the A358 and M5 at Blackbrook in Taunton constituency; and what the outcome of those discussions was. [158625]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Highways Agency had a constructive meeting with the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) and their consultants on 31 August 2007 to discuss the impact of the A303/A358 South Petherton to M5 Taunton Improvement scheme on the Fire Control Centre at Blackbrook.

It was agreed that both parties should work together to resolve any issues. The Highways Agency have sent further information to DCLG to allow their consultants to update the risk assessment of the site.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1109W, on the A358, if she will take steps to make the Highways Agency report into alternative schemes to link the A358 and M5 at Blackbrook in Taunton constituency available to local residents; if she will undertake a further public consultation on the alternative schemes; and if she will place a copy of the report in the Library. [158626]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In response to public feedback received during consultation, the Highways Agency is currently considering two alternative options to connect the M5 northbound and the A358 eastbound (Blackbrook loop). The outcome of this additional work will be included in an addendum to the public consultation report, which would be published in due course.

Should it be considered necessary to amend the proposed scheme as a result of this further work then it is likely that further limited consultation would be undertaken.

When the report is published it will be posted on the Highways Agency's website and be deposited in the local area for the public to view.

Airports: Passengers

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers passed through (a) Heathrow and (b) Gatwick airports between April and September 2007; and if she will make a statement. [159355]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table shows the number of terminal passengers at Heathrow and Gatwick airport in each month between April and September 2007.

Terminal passengers at Heathrow and Gatwick, April-September 2007

Thousand

	Heathrow	Gatwick
April	5,667	2,722
May	5,611	3,012
June	6,014	3,359
July	6,419	3,787
August[1]	6,378	3,969
September[1]	6,022	3,550
Total	36,111	20,400

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much has been allocated to Chorley borough council to fund the free local concessionary bus travel scheme in 2007-08; [158729]

(2) what increase in the rate support grant Chorley borough council will receive to fund free national off-peak travel for pensioners and disabled people for 2008-09. [158730]

Ms Rosie Winterton: From April 2006, older and disabled people have been guaranteed free off-peak local bus travel within their local authority area. The existing funding for statutory concessionary fares is supported through Formula Grant, which comprises Revenue Support Grant, Redistributed Business Rates and Principal Formula Police Grant.

Formula Grant is an unhypothecated block grant i.e. authorities are free to spend the money on any service. Because of this and the method of calculation, particularly floor damping (which guarantees local authorities at least a minimum percentage increase by scaling back increases for other authorities), it is not possible to say how much of the total Formula Grant funding is for any particular service.

Local authorities have the discretion to offer (and fund from their own resources) enhancements to the statutory minimum, such as peak bus travel and/or concessions on other modes.

The £212 million of extra funding to English authorities for the national bus concession from April 2008 will be distributed by a non-ringfenced special grant via a formula. The Department has recently published a consultation paper on the formula basis for distribution of the special grant. This new consultation supersedes the Department for Communities and Local Government's consultation on the formula grant options for concessionary fares. Local authorities have been asked to respond to the special grant consultation by 23 November.

In addition, we have announced that we will be providing local authorities with approximately £30 million for the issuing of the national pass; it is likely that Chorley borough council will receive around £69,000 of this additional funding.

Cars: Hire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) accidents and (b) traffic offences occurred involving hire cars in Peterborough constituency in each of the last five years. [158962]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Crossrail Line

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a financing agreement is in place for the Crossrail project. [158495]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 16 October 2007]: I refer the right hon. Member to the White Paper for the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review presented to Parliament by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 9 October 2007.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will place a copy in the Library of the financial agreement on Crossrail. [158492]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Subject to commercial confidentiality, the Secretary of State expects to place relevant agreements in the Library in due course.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what contingency preparations her Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [156993]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Cabinet Office and the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Motorcycles: Accidents

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents there have been involving (a) motorcyclists, (b) bicycles and (c) only motorcyclists and bicyclists in each year since 1997. [158672]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least (a) one motorcyclist, (b) one pedal cyclist and (c) no other vehicles or pedestrians but at least one motorcyclist and at least one pedal cyclist, in each year since 1997 is shown in the table—note that (c) is included in both (a) and (b).

	Number of accidents involving at least one:
	Motorcycle	Pedal cycle	Motorcycle and pedal cycle only
1997	24,928	24,705	5,850
1998	23,188	24,969	5,649
1999	23,221	26,537	5,945
2000	20,866	28,635	6,051
2001	19,316	29,398	6,067
2002	17,373	28,825	5,691
2003	17,300	28,721	5,931
2004	16,922	26,151	5,526
2005	16,856	25,204	4,799
2006	16,440	23,730	4,734

Railways: Rolling Stock

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the extra rail carriages announced by her Department in the five-year plan published on 24 July have been introduced; and on which lines. [156923]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The extra rail carriages are to be introduced in stages between 2009 and 2014.

Roads: Accidents

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents in each of the last five years involved children; and if she will make a statement. [159262]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one child casualty (aged 0 to 15) for each of the last five years is:

	Number
2002	30,430
2003	28,264
2004	27,253
2005	24,837
2006	22,676

In 2000, the Government set a PSA target to achieve a 50 per cent. reduction in the number of children aged 0 to 15 killed or seriously injured by 2010, compared with the average for 1994-98. 3,294 children were killed or seriously injured in Great Britain in 2006, which is 52 per cent. below the 1994-98 average of 6,860. In February 2007 we issued a new child road safety strategy, which sets out further measures to improve child road safety.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many liability orders the Child Support Agency has applied for in each month since January 2003; how many of these were inaccurate in any particular; and how many were (a) withdrawn and (b) dismissed. [146178]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions regarding the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many liability orders the Child Support Agency has applied for in each month since January 2003; how many of these were inaccurate in any particular; and how many were (a) withdrawn and (b) dismissed. (146178)

Such information as is available is set out in the attached table. The Agency holds information on; the number of liability orders it has applied for, the numbers subsequently granted as well as information on the numbers of applications withdrawn by the Agency pre and post hearing and the numbers of cases dismissed by the Courts. This information is recorded and validated on a yearly basis only. The Agency currently does not hold management information on the accuracy of individual elements of child maintenance cases such as the liability order process.

Information on a range of enforcement actions is routinely published in the Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). A copy of this is available in the House of Commons Library and is also available on the Internet via the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_jun07.asp

The Agency seeks liability orders in cases where the non-resident parent is failing to meet their responsibilities to maintain their children. In many cases, as the non-resident parent may not have co-operated fully in the assessment and calculation of their maintenance liability, the Agency will proceed on the basis of the information available. As the Agency will continue to correspond with the non-resident parent throughout the time taken for a liability order to be granted, the non-resident parent can at any time supply information which may lead to a review of the maintenance assessment, or indeed make payments to comply with the maintenance liability. In addition, in some cases the parent with care can request that any maintenance owed directly to them not be recovered, the Agency will then consider withdrawing the liability order application prior to the court hearing.

Once a liability order is being actively considered by the Court, the non-resident parent can make representations for the Court to dismiss the liability order. The Courts currently dismiss less than one per cent of applications. The Agency believes that this is a good indication of the robustness of the checking regime currently in place. Finally, once a liability order has been awarded, the non-resident parent can again bring forward additional information, or indeed settle their arrears and the Agency may again consider whether it is appropriate to proceed with the application.

It should therefore be noted that there are many reasons that the Agency may withdraw a liability order application, however the Agency currently does not record individual reasons an application may be withdrawn. The most relevant measure of the accuracy of the Agency's process is therefore the low numbers of cases dismissed by the Courts, following representations from the non-resident parent.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

	Applied for	Withdrawn pre-hearing	Dismissed	Granted	Withdrawn post-hearing

2006-07	15,309	1,212	50	*13,335	232

Notes:

1. A liability order is a document obtained from the court showing that they legally recognise the debt. This is the same in both England and Wales, and Scotland and is required before the Agency can use litigation powers (Diligence in Scotland).
2. The figures marked with an asterix* are sourced from the Agency's Quarterly Summary of Statistics. All other figures have been clerically collated and are actual figures, not subject to rounding.
3. Figures sourced from the Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics are rounded to the nearest five.
4. Robust information on the numbers of liability order withdrawn post-hearing is unavailable prior to April 2004.
5. Due to differences in the Scottish legal system, cases classified by the Agency as withdrawn pre-hearing are classified by the courts as dismissed.
6. It should be noted that for any period, the number of liability orders applied for will not directly relate to the number of applications granted as the process can take many weeks to complete. Liability orders applied for in one period may not be granted until the following period.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total value is of the contracts the Child Support Agency (CSA) has with external debt collectors; how much has been paid to date under such contracts; with which debt collectors the CSA has contracts; how many cases they are handling; what the average debt outstanding on transfer to the external debt collectors is; how many cases they have successfully recovered outstanding debt from (a) in full and (b) in part; and what average sum has been recovered. [155937]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the total value is of the contracts the Child Support Agency (CSA) has with external debt collectors; how much has been paid to date under such contracts; with which debt collectors the CSA has contracts; how many cases they are handling; what the average debt outstanding on transfer to the external debt collectors is; how many cases they have successfully recovered outstanding debt from (a) in full and (b) in part; and what average sum has been recovered. [155937]

The Agency has a current contract with two debt collection agencies, Eversheds LLP and iQor. The contract with both of these debt collection agencies has been let on a commission basis and the final value of the contract will be dependent on the amount of debt collected by them. Up to 31 August 2007, the Agency has paid over £360,000 to the debt collection agencies under this contract.

As at 31 August 2007, the Agency has referred over 59,000 cases to the debt collection agencies with an average debt value of £5,250. Of these, the agencies have collected debt in over 12,000 cases, from which 2,003 non-resident parents have paid their child support maintenance debt in full, with the average collection being £444.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Child Support Agency: Manpower

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely impact of proposed reductions in staffing of the Child Support Agency (CSA) on the effectiveness of the CSA and its successor the Child Maintenance and Support Commission. [155614]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Agency is committed to meeting both the departmentally agreed headcount target of 9,547 by March 2008 and the Secretary of State performance targets for the coming year. Computer system improvements as part of the Agency's Operational Improvement Plan will ensure client service in both CSA, and later C-MEC, will not be affected by this reduction in headcount.

Child Support Agency: Standards

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the Belfast unit of the Child Support Agency over the last (a) six months and (b) year in handling claims involving children from Northamptonshire. [154969]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what recent assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the Belfast unit of the Child Support Agency over the last (a) six months and (b) year in handling claims involving children from Northamptonshire. [154969]

Such information as is available for Northamptonshire cases is set out in tables S1a to S4b of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). Unfortunately, these tables have recently been added and only give information back to December 2006. These tables show that at end of June 2007 the compliance rate for the Nottinghamshire area is 67%, slightly above that of the national average of 66%. The Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics is available in the House of Commons Library or on the Internet via the following link: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_jun07.asp.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of HM Revenue and Customs gross income data which will be (a) less than one year out of date, (b) more than one year out of date and (c) more than two years out of date when calculating child maintenance under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [154619]

Mr. Plaskitt: Under the proposed scheme, non-resident parents' maintenance liabilities will be based on their gross income for the latest tax year available from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs at the time that a case is opened or is subject to an annual review.

With the increased focus on parents agreeing to voluntary arrangements and the ending of the requirement that parents with care on benefit be treated as applying for child maintenance, not all of the current Child Support Agency case load will choose to use the statutory maintenance service. Since we do not know the precise composition of the resulting case load, no estimates have been made on the proportion of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs gross income data which will be (a) less than one year out of date, (b) more than one year out of date and (c) more than two years out of date when calculating child maintenance under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Department is taking to enable the recovery of historical debt of non-resident parents by the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [156491]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: We want to take firm action at the earliest opportunity against non-resident parents who do not fulfil their responsibility to pay maintenance.

The Child Support Agency has already begun to improve the recovery of debt as part of the Operational Improvement Plan and is committed to recovering over £200 million historic debt by 2009.

The Commission will build on the current Child Support Agency debt strategy and the success of the Operational Improvement Plan. Through the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill we intend to strengthen the range of enforcement and debt management powers that will be at the disposal of the Commission. The Bill proposes new and streamlined enforcement provisions such as administrative liability orders, disqualification from holding or obtaining a travel authorisation, collection of maintenance directly from accounts held by financial institutions, enforcing the surrender of a non-resident parent's passport and imposing a curfew.

New debt management powers, such as the ability to accept part payment of arrears in full and final settlement, will, where appropriate, take account of the wishes of the parent with care. These powers will help the Commission manage debt, including interim maintenance assessment debt. The new debt management and enforcement measures will be used both to encourage ongoing compliance to prevent the new debt building up, and to enable more of the accumulated debt to be recovered.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children he estimates will be taken out of poverty when the new £40 disregard for child maintenance is introduced. [158797]

Caroline Flint: We estimate that around 50,000 children will be lifted out of poverty by increasing the child maintenance disregard to £40 a week from April 2010.

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Manpower

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on staffing levels at the Commission for Equality and Human Rights; and if he will make a statement. [157817]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Equality and Human Rights Commission currently plans to employ approximately 500 staff. There is no intention to make a statement.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155875]

Mrs. McGuire: The details of consultancy engagements and related costs by all projects across the Department for Work and Pensions and all its agencies over the last three years are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. A particular exercise to obtain this information for the 12 projects with the largest engagement with consultancy firms over the last three years has been conducted and the results are shown in the following table.

Departments: Dismissal

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many departmental staff have been dismissed for gross misconduct in each of the last five years. [157175]

Mrs. McGuire: The information on the number of people dismissed for gross misconduct for the period July 2003 to March 2007 is shown in the following table.

No information is available for the period before July 2003.

Information for the period from April 2007 to March 2008 is not available.

Jobcentre Plus: Doctors

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints were received about doctors contracted to Jobcentre Plus to carry out incapacity benefit assessments, in each of the last five years, broken down by local benefits agency; and if he will make a statement. [154866]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 10 September 2007]: Medical services are provided to DWP under contract by Atos Healthcare. Doctors carrying out incapacity benefit (IB) assessments are engaged by Atos Healthcare not Jobcentre Plus.

Atos Healthcare only began keeping records of complaints received by local benefits office in 2004 and by Jobcentre Plus region in 2005. Information about the number of complaints received per Medical Services Centre, relating to IB is in the following table.

National Insurance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the surplus is in the National Insurance Fund; what surplus he expects to be in that fund for each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [157342]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is shown in paragraph 4 and Appendix 9 of the Report by the Government Actuary on the drafts of the Social Security Benefits Up-rating Order 2007 and the Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating and National insurance Funds Payments) Order 2007.

National Insurance: Bexleyheath

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were issued to residents of Bexleyheath and Crayford in 2006-07. [153897]

Mr. Plaskitt: 2,731 national insurance numbers were issued to residents of Bexleyheath and Crayford between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 2007.

National Insurance: Foreigners

Mr. Howard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many foreign nationals in the Shepway district were issued with national insurance numbers in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the preceding four years. [156611]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available on how many national insurance numbers were issued. The available information on the numbers of registrations for national insurance numbers is in the following table.

Notes:
1. The figure for each year is its cash value.
2. There are no singles or couples rates as such. The basic state pension is an individual benefit; although the Category A rate is commonly referred to as the singles rate, and the combination of the Category A and Category B rate is commonly referred to as the couples rate.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at how many of the establishments in the UK with a certificate of designation under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 there is at least one member of the animal care staff or licensee constantly on site. [158152]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The information requested is not held by the Home Office.

Primary responsibility for animals used in regulated procedures rests with the personal licensee concerned. Under personal licence standard conditions 12 and 15 set out in Appendix E to the published Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321) the personal licensee must ensure that animals are properly monitored and cared for and that suitable arrangements exist for the care and welfare of any animals during any period when the personal licensee is not in attendance.

In addition, certificate of designation standard conditions 4 and 9 set out in Appendix B to the guidance require that establishments must be appropriately staffed at all times to ensure the well-being of the protected animals and that they must be provided with adequate care and accommodation appropriate to their type or species. Further requirements are set out in certificate of designation standard conditions 10 and 12.

In practice, professional judgment is exercised on a case-by-case basis by the personal licensee, named veterinary surgeon and named animal care and welfare officer to decide the level of care to be provided, which could involve 24-hour monitoring.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been sentenced to custody for breach of an antisocial behaviour order. [156304]

Jacqui Smith: The latest data available on sentencing for breach of an ASBO relate to 2000 to 2003. These show that of the 793 people found guilty of breach of ASBO 134 were sentenced to custody for breach of ASBO alone—in all other cases, they were convicted for other offences at the same time.

Asylum

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) principal applicants and (b) dependants have been admitted to the United Kingdom under the Gateway Refugee Resettlement Programme in each year since the scheme commenced. [157967]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Gateway Protection Programme became operational in the financial year 2004-05 when 64 principal applicants and 86 dependants were admitted to the UK. In 2005-06 56 principal applicants and 192 dependants were admitted and in 2006-07 139 principal applicants and 368 dependants were admitted to the UK under the Gateway resettlement programme.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what quota the Government set for the maximum number of admissions under the Gateway Refugee Resettlement Programme in each year since the scheme commenced; and what quotas have been set for future years. [157968]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Since the Gateway Protection Programme commenced in 2004 the Government have set the quota at 500 refugees per financial year. The Government have not yet set the quota for future years.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to the Borders and Immigration Agency on how to handle applications for exceptional leave to remain in Britain from Iraqi nationals who have worked in Iraq for the UK armed forces or the British Government in one or more of the categories set out in the written statement by the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-8WS, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff. [157969]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Foreign Secretary announced on 8 October 2007 the criteria under which current locally engaged staff who had worked for HMG in Iraq would be eligible for referral for exceptional leave to enter the UK. Officials are currently working up the guidance to be issued to the Border and Immigration Agency staff dealing with the cases.

Asylum: Parents

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases remain to be determined under the initiative announced on 24 October 2003 on the right to remain of asylum seekers with children. [158197]

Mr. Byrne: The number of cases identified for consideration up to 31 March 2007 (the last quarter for which information is available) was 61,485 of which 61,135 were determined leaving 350 cases outstanding.

BAE Systems: USA

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason her Department has not yet complied with the request for mutual legal assistance from the United States in relation to its investigation into BAE Systems; and when she expects her Department to comply with this request. [158357]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The request is receiving careful consideration. It is not appropriate to speculate on a time scale for a decision on its execution.

Border and Immigration Agency: Information Officers

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) national and (b) regional press officers were employed by the Border and Immigration Agency and its predecessor, the Immigration and Nationality Directorate, in each of the last 10 years. [158700]

Mr. Byrne: Between 2000 and 2004, one Chief Immigration Officer was usually attached to the Home Office press office as part of a rolling secondment programme.

In 2004, the secondment programme was discontinued and instead IND funded until January 2007 the salary of an additional permanent Government information officer based in the Home Office press office to work on immigration issues.

Since February 2007, IND/BIA has funded the salaries of three Government information officers based in the Home Office press office.

BIA has since April 2007 funded the recruitment and appointment of five new information officers and one senior information officer to work to each of the regional directors.

Consultants: Costs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which private consultancy firms (a) her Department and (b) agencies which report to her Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155899]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Department engages consultancy firms to support and augment civil servants in the delivery of a specific range of work, including large IT development programmes and where more cost-effective, longer term service delivery programmes.

The Department's expenditure on these services is allocated across a very wide range of firms, ranging from small, specialist companies with niche expertise and few employees, to global multinational organisations offering a broad spectrum and substantial depth of consultancy expertise.

The Department awards contracts in competition according to the EU procurement regulations based on best value for money. The Department uses OGC framework agreements where appropriate. The use of external consultants in the Home Office provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skills, capacity and technical expertise that would not otherwise be available to it. Some of the expenditure is on consultants to whom we have outsourced services, such as IT.

The information held by the Home Department on its spend on consultancy and professional legal services is as follows:

2004-05: centrally held data are not available on a like-for-like basis, owing to a change in financial recording systems in that period.

2005-06: consultancy: £137 million; legal; £21 million: total: £158 million.

2006-07: consultancy: £148 million; legal: £28 million; total: £176 million.

2007-08: during the current financial year, the Home Department is refining and improving its approach to the management of consultancy spend including a more rigorous demand management and approval process. Year to date figures indicate a reduction in spend which we are forecasting to be maintained throughout the current financial year.

The breakdown across agencies and the Department are as follows.

A breakdown of expenditure by engagement by company is not held centrally and to attempt to assemble it would incur disproportionate cost. The top 10 companies by total expenditure across the Home Office in the last three years are as follows. The companies are listed in alphabetical order; the amount spent with each company is not shown on grounds of commercial confidentiality.

Detention Centres: Hunger Strikes

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many detainees in immigration detention centres went on hunger strike in each of the last five years; [154572]

(2) what guidance has been issued to immigration detention centres on how to deal with those on hunger strike. [154573]

Jacqui Smith: We only record detainees who have refused to eat the meals provided. The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

It is normal procedure to place a detainee on a missed meals log if they have missed four consecutive meals, not including breakfast, as this allows staff to monitor their health and welfare to ensure they receive appropriate treatment where necessary.

Detention Services Order 07-2004 was issued to immigration removal centres on how to deal with those on hunger strike. A copy has been placed in the House Library.

European Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the timetable for the UK's ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Trafficking of Human Beings. [158533]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are determined to ratify the Convention as soon as we can but are determined to get the arrangements right before doing so. We need to be compliant with the Convention before formal ratification. Some of the other signatories to the Convention have legal systems that allow or require ratification before implementation—ours does not. The UK is already largely compliant with the Convention but some amendments to primary/secondary legislation will be required, as will the development of guidance and the institution of new processes. A dedicated project team within the Border and Immigration Agency is leading delivery of the changes needed to comply with the Convention and is reporting regularly to a cross-government official project board and Ministerial Group. Action against trafficking is continuing and is not on hold pending ratification. During the ongoing, police-led anti-trafficking operation, Pentameter 2 we are piloting an identification process and a 30-day reflection period, as required by Article 10 and 13 of the Convention.

Forensic Science Service

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to re-organise the Government's Forensic Service. [157533]

Meg Hillier: The Forensic Science Service was an Executive agency of the Home Office until December 2005 when it was vested as a Government-owned limited company (GovCo). In accordance with commitments given to Parliament in March 2006, I am currently considering whether there should be a further change of status, and if so, what that status should be. I hope to be in a position to make an in principle decision by the end of the year.

Immigration Officers: Airports

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has plans to increase the number of staff on duty at immigration counters at UK airports. [158536]

Mr. Byrne: We are currently recruiting 118 additional immigration officers at UK airports.

We deploy staff based on published flight schedules and anticipated passenger loads as this is the most effective way to ensure prudent spending of public money. We do not allocate resources based on the number of desks a port operator makes available as this would lead to staff being completely unoccupied for significant periods of their working day. We take a number of measures at peak times to ensure that maximum numbers of staff are available.

This year these measures include:

The re-deployment of mobile search teams to the front-line;

The re-deployment of staff from support functions such as passenger caseworking

Legislation

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criminal offences have been created by each Act sponsored by her Department since May 1997. [156309]

Jacqui Smith: In the period since 1997, the Home Office has had responsibility for a wide range of subjects, including electoral law, data protection, licensing, police, prisons, criminal law and criminal justice, as well as immigration, serious crime and terrorism, and brought forward legislation on these issues as appropriate. In some cases, the legislation created new offences; in other cases, it re-enacted, or gave statutory form to, existing offences, sometimes with modifications to their extent or scope.

A list of all criminal offences created in all Acts sponsored by the Home Office since 1997 is not held centrally, and could be produced only at disproportionate cost in time and resources.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 9 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Larry Allen. [156904]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 11 October 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 6 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. M. Sultan. [156905]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 4 September 2007.

Police: South West Region

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Government funding provision was (a) in total and (b) per capita for police services in (i) Devon and Cornwall and (ii) England and Wales in each year since 1979. [156359]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested where available is set out in the following table.

Information from before 1995-96 is unreliable due to the changed structures of police authorities.

We do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of socio-demographic data to reflect the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative resources of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping changes to limit year-on-year variations. Devon and Cornwall actually receives £1.9 million more than it would on a strict application of the funding formula.

Work Permits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 October 2007, to question 149263, on work permits, if she will give a breakdown of the 20 non-EU nationalities receiving the most work permits for (i) doctors and (ii) nurses in each of the last 10 years. [158339]

Mr. Byrne: The tables show the number of approved work permit applications that were issued to the top 20 non-EU nationality recipients of work permits (and others) for (i) doctors (table 1) and (ii) nurses (table 2) during the period 1999 to 2006. Data for 1997 and 1998 are not available. There have been no approvals for auxiliary nurses during this period.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Leader of the House what contingency preparations her Office made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156995]

Helen Goodman: The guidance covering the conduct of official business during a general election was last issued in May 2005. This guidance, and other relevant procedures and processes, are kept under constant review by the Cabinet Office and other relevant departments so that they are ready to be put in place when a general election is called.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces are entitled to the council tax exemption on his Department's homes. [158109]

Derek Twigg: Based on current deployment numbers, it is estimated that some 3,000 Service personnel with Service Families Accommodation will initially be eligible for the council tax relief payment, increasing to some 5,000 next year when the relief will cover those on operational deployments beyond Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces will be entitled to the new council tax discount on homes not owned by his Department for troops serving abroad. [158110]

Derek Twigg: Based on current deployment numbers, it is estimated that some 5,000 Service personnel with private accommodation will initially be eligible for the council tax relief payment, increasing to some 7,500 next year when the relief will cover those on operational deployments beyond Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to increase the level of the discount for members of the armed forces serving abroad on operational duty each year in line with council tax inflation. [158111]

Derek Twigg: The level of payment will be updated annually based on the average council tax per dwelling in England.

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the council tax rebate for serving personnel in the armed forces will come into effect. [158615]

Derek Twigg: Payments will be made from 1 April 2008 and will cover deployments from 1 October 2007.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what units down to company level formed the Spearhead Land Element in 2005. [158394]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Spearhead Land Element was rostered, during 2005, as follows:

Unit	Dates
1st Battalion The Royal Gurkha Rifles	1 January to 5 March
1st Battalion The Royal Green Jackets (now 2nd Battalion The Rifles)	5 March to 7 July
1st Battalion The Green Howards (now 2nd Battalion The Yorkshire Regiment)	7 July to 1 December
2nd Battalion The Light Infantry (now part of The Rifles)	1 December to 31 December

The Spearhead Land Element is a battalion size commitment. It is up to each battalion to manage this commitment between its available companies or sub units.

Armed Forces: Housing

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has had from former service personnel groups regarding the supply of affordable housing; and if he will make a statement. [155833]

Derek Twigg: The Department for Communities and Local Government and the devolved Administrations lead on social housing matters but the Ministry of Defence is in regular contact with them on veterans' housing issues. As Minister for Veterans, I have frequent contact with ex-service organisations. Various initiatives to reduce the risk of homelessness among service leavers and veterans have been discussed but neither my officials nor I recall the specific subject of the supply of affordable housing being raised. The Joint Services Housing Advice Office provides practical advice on access to affordable housing to current armed forces personnel and those who are soon to leave the services.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of members of the armed forces who served on the front line in each of the last five years received bonus payments in each of those years; what the (a) amount of bonuses paid and (b) largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [157426]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Members of the armed forces do not receive bonus payments as part of their basic pay package. However all personnel who meet the eligibility criteria are paid the tax free Operational Allowance. The tax free Operational Allowance was effective from 1 April 2006 and came into payment in November 2006.

The amount of the largest single payment is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For financial year 2006-07 35,983 armed forces personnel received payment of the Operational Allowance, totalling £44.77 million. As a proportion of the strength of the armed forces at 1 April 2006 this represents about 18 per cent.

For financial year 2007-08 to 30 September 2007,28,114 armed forces personnel received payment of the Operational Allowance, totalling £14.13 million. As a proportion of the provisional strength of the armed forces at 1 April 2007 this represents about 15 per cent. The marked difference in value between financial year 2006-07 and financial year 2007-08 to date is due to a smaller entitled population and a number of payments being made in advance at the end of financial year 2006-07, prior to closedown of the system for army implementation of JPA.

Army: Officers

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers in the Army are surplus to requirement; and what plans there are to reduce this number. [158372]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Officer strength is measured against the April 2008 Regular Army Liability (RAL), and on 1 March 2007, a surplus of 628 was recorded. However, the RAL only accounts for permanent posts, and there are currently more than 1,000 temporary posts for officers in addition to the RAL total for other requirements including support to operations. Therefore, even taking account of the RAL surplus, the total officer requirement is not being met and, as a result, there are currently no plans to reduce officer numbers.

Ballistic Missile Defence: USA

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what discussions his Department has had with the US Administration on plans to develop missile silos and x-band radar on land or sea bases in the UK; [158620]

(2) what discussions he and officials from his Department have had with the US Administration on plans to site interceptor missiles or related equipment in the UK. [158621]

Des Browne [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The Ministry of Defence continues to discuss ballistic missile defence issues with the US Administration. It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations. As I set out in my statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report column 72WS, we have no plans to site missile interceptors in the UK.

Defence

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his French counterpart on (a) European Security and Defence Policy and (b) NATO. [154253]

Des Browne: I attended the Bastille Day celebrations in Paris on 14 July, where I met the French Defence Minister for bilateral discussions. I also had the opportunity to meet him at the end of September in the course of the EU Defence Ministers' informal meeting in Portugal.

On both occasions we discussed a range of issues, including the European Security and Defence Policy and NATO.

Defence Systems and Equipment International Exhibition

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Ministers from his Department attended the defence systems and equipment international exhibition in September. [158778]

Des Browne: The Minister for the armed forces and the Minister for defence equipment and support each visited the 2007 defence systems and equipment international exhibition in London in September.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason the 1 July DASA figures under TSP04 published on 25 August did not include the Army. [157161]

Derek Twigg: Army personnel figures at 1 July 2007 were not published on 23 August due to ongoing data validation from the new Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system. This is necessary to ensure the statistics are of the quality required of a National Statistics output.

Figures for the total strength of the Army at 1 July 2007 will be published in Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 1: Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces, on 19 October 2007. Detailed statistics relating to Army personnel at 1 July 2007 and 1 October 2007 will be published in TSP 4: Quarterly Press Release, on 22 November 2007.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157863]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally.

Diego Garcia: USA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 604W, on Diego Garcia: USA, if he will list the occasions in each year from 1979 to date when the US has sought approval for operations they wished to undertake from the island. [155373]

Des Browne [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The 1966 UK/US Exchange of Notes requires the US to seek prior approval at the highest political level for any offensive action by the US from their base at Diego Garcia. It is a matter of record that the UK approved US offensive action from Diego Garcia in support of operations in Afghanistan in 2001 and Iraq in 2003. However, I am withholding a full list of the occasions when the US has sought such approval as the release of such information would, or would be likely to, prejudice our international relations.

Ex-servicemen: Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on requiring local authorities to accept applications from members of HM armed forces for social housing on leaving the services; and if he will make a statement. [157785]

Derek Twigg: The Secretaries of State of both Departments met on 14 May 2007 to discuss the issue of 'local connection' in the allocation of social housing.

My hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and I announced through a written statement on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 108WS that the Government will be amending the housing legislation at the earliest opportunity to ensure that service personnel are put on an equal footing with others applying for an allocation of social housing. MOD and CLG officials continue to work closely on the issue.

Helicopters: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total budget was for all helicopter procurement projects in each year since 2001. [157046]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The in-year budgets for all helicopter procurement projects for each completed year from financial year 2001-02 to 2006-07 are:

FY	£ million
2001-02	842
2002-03	524
2003-04	318
2004-05	257
2005-06	260
2006-07	209

These figures exclude funding for emergent urgent requirements and some commodity items bought in support of these projects.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of British service personnel in Iraq are accommodated in tents. [154439]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Approximately two-thirds of UK service personnel in Iraq are currently accommodated in tents. The tents are protected against direct and indirect attack, with either HESCO bastion or breeze block walls, and are air conditioned, heated and equipped with full sanitation facilities.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army have been killed in operations in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan since 2003. [158377]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As of 30 September 2007, four members of the Territorial Army and one Regular Reservist have been killed on operations in Iraq since 2003. Over the same period, two members of the Territorial Army have been killed on operations in Afghanistan.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the (a) 1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles, (b) 1st Battalion the Royal Green Jackets and (c) 2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment were deployed on operations in Iraq or Afghanistan in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005, (iii) 2006 and (iv) 2007. [158393]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The battalions in question operationally deployed, between 2004 and 2007, are as follows:

Unit	Deployment	Date
1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles	Operation Herrick 7 (Afghanistan)	From October 2007
1st Battalion the Royal Green Jackets (now 2nd Battalion the Rifles)	Operation Telic 9 (Iraq)	November 2006 to March 2007
2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment	Operation Telic 7	November 2005 to May 2006

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what coalition policy is on seeking agreements with militias in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [158446]

Des Browne: It is coalition policy to engage with any group that is interested in joining Iraq's democratic process and reducing violence.

Meteorological Office: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the Meteorological Office. [154344]

Derek Twigg: The Meteorological Office currently employs four full-time and one part-time press officers.

All may deal with other communications issues, including internal communication or marketing tasks.

Military Exercises

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military exercises were cancelled in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; and what the reasons were for cancelling each exercise. [158362]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: During financial year 2004-05, a total of 379 training events were scheduled in the Defence exercise programme (DXP) of which 79 (20 per cent.) were cancelled. While specific reasons for cancellation are not available in many cases, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost, the programme was affected by competing operational priorities. Since that time, improved data capture has enabled a more detailed review of the DXP.

During financial year 2005-06, a total of 533 training events were scheduled in the DXP of which 58 (10.8 per cent.) were cancelled. 30 exercises were cancelled due to operational commitments, 13 were removed as savings measures and 10 were cancelled by other nations. The remaining five events were cancelled in response to changing priorities or rescheduling.

In financial year 2006-07, a total of 699 training events were scheduled in the DXP of which 69 (9.8 per cent.) were cancelled. 35 exercises were cancelled due to operational commitments, five were removed as savings measures and 14 were cancelled by other nations. The remaining 15 events were cancelled in response to changing priorities or rescheduling.

Details of the military exercises cancelled between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2007 are set out in the following table.

NATO Rapid Reaction Corps

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which military units form the UK's current commitment to the NATO Response Force. [158395]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The NATO Response Force is a high-readiness reaction force which comprises four elements (maritime, land, air and special forces) to which allies contribute forces on a six-month rotating basis. The UK is providing the Maritime Component Command for the current rotation of the NATO Response Force (July 2007 to January 2008). The UK forces supporting the Maritime Component Command are drawn, as required, from the Joint Rapid Reaction Force and comprise a carrier group with associated air and surface assets, amphibious forces, naval mine counter measures units, and auxiliary support vessels. In addition, the UK is making some air-to-air refuelling and in-theatre lift assets available to the Air Component Command.

Nuclear Weapons: Transport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether in-house provision of the service for the road transport of nuclear weapons by HM Naval Base Clyde is still under consideration. [157795]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We are not proposing to pursue that option. The operation will remain with AWE plc for the foreseeable future.

Reserve Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many volunteer reservists in each service are deployed on operations. [157044]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 31 August 2007 (the latest figures available), the number of volunteer reservists deployed on operations was:

	Royal Navy Reserve	Royal Marines Reserve	Territorial Army	Royal Auxiliary Air Force
Telic (Iraq)	26	9	169	66
Herrick (Afghanistan)	6	0	397	45
Oculus (Balkans)	1	0	15	0

	Royal Navy Reserve	Royal Marines Reserve	Territorial Army	Royal Auxiliary Air Force
Sierra Leone and Democratic Republic of Congo	0	0	0	0
Global Counter Terrorism	0	0	6	0
Total	33	9	587	111

In addition, there were 627 reservists mobilised on pre-deployment training, receiving medical treatment, or on post-operational leave.

Territorial Army: Training

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of training days per year was for members of the Territorial Army in each year since 2003. [158378]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Historically, TA pay has been sufficient to meet the demand for trained TA manpower to support current operations; and for all TA officers and soldiers to train to a level that allows them to be 'certified efficient' and qualify for Bounty. Current levels of Territorial Army (TA) pay permit approximately 41 training days per person per year.

War Pensions

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former members of the Merchant Marine have been awarded a war pension. [158439]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not available, but figures are available for the number of former members of the merchant marine in receipt of pensions under the War Pensions Mercantile Marine scheme over the past five years. This information is set out in the following table.

War Pensions in payment under the Mercantile Marine scheme[1]

	Disablement pensioners
30 June 2003	1,360
30 June 2004	1,205
30 June 2005	1,090
30 June 2006	980
30 June 2007	855

[1] All numbers have been rounded to the nearest five.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Doha Trade Talks

8. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the Doha development round of international trade talks. [158524]

Mr. Thomas: Negotiations on all aspects of the Doha Development Agenda continue to take place at the WTO in Geneva. The UK Government remain fully committed to working with the EU Trade Commissioner, other EU member states and other WTO members to secure an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha round.

Women's Education and Economic Performance

9. Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the links between education on sexual health for women in developing countries and the economic performance of the country concerned. [158525]

Mr. Malik: Little research has been commissioned or evaluated on the link between education on sexual health for women and overall economic performance.

It is known and accepted that there is a strong link between education for women and overall economic performance in a country. It is also generally assumed that education on sexual health for women leads to better health outcomes. We are funding an evaluation of an adolescent sexual health intervention in Tanzania which will provide important new knowledge on how best to deliver education on sexual health to achieve better health.

Zimbabwe

10. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. [158526]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe is deteriorating. An estimated 4.1 million people will need food aid by year end. Malnutrition has reached emergency levels in places. Urban water and sanitation collapse is causing disease outbreaks. HIV/AIDS remains rife.

DFID is providing life-saving humanitarian assistance until the policy environment improves. We contributed an additional £8 million to the World Food Programme recently which will feed two million people for two months.

12. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. [158528]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-West Cambridgeshire (Mr. Vara) and the hon. Member for Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Evennett) today (UIN 158522 and 158523).

Climate Change

11. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to help the poorest countries address the adverse impacts of climate change. [158527]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is adapting its development programmes in countries to take account of the adverse impacts of climate change and is assisting Multilateral Development Banks and UNDP to also do so.

Burma

13. Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Burma. [158529]

Mr. Malik: A third of Burma's population lives below the poverty line. Severe economic mismanagement has deprived Burma of the economic growth enjoyed by its south-east Asian neighbours, and investment in public services has been minimal. The brutal suppression of recent demonstrations against economic hardship has exacerbated humanitarian conditions. DFID is providing £1 million to meet urgent humanitarian needs in Burma, in addition to £8 million already planned for this year.

Ethiopia

14. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia. [158530]

Mr. Malik: A United Nations team made an assessment of the situation at the beginning of September, and concluded that there was no major humanitarian crisis in the Somali (Ogaden) region although humanitarian conditions within conflict areas were deteriorating, and there was an urgent need for food and medical supplies, and help with water and sanitation.

DFID and the other donors are working with the Ethiopian government and the United Nations to ensure that humanitarian assistance will be delivered to those who need it.

Corruption

15. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the Government's policies for combating corruption in aid recipient countries. [158531]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Corruption is a serious threat to development. DFID's policy is to build effective states that promote development and invest significantly in efforts to address corruption and improve governance.

DFID regards anti-corruption as a priority and discusses this with partner Governments when agreeing and reviewing its Country Assistance Plans. These plans are informed by a comprehensive governance analysis and assessment of local priorities.

Developing Countries: Health Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to increase accessibility of health care in developing countries. [158296]

Mr. Malik: DFID's strategy "Working Together for Better Health", published in June 2007 sets out our approach to support developing countries to improve the health of their people and reaching the Millennium Development Goals. This is to deliver more resources for health; to expand access to basic health services; to improve the effectiveness of international funding for health; and to demonstrate results and build the evidence base of what works.

Our spending on health has doubled since 2002-03. About 15 per cent. of our aid goes to health, a total of £800 million in 2006-07. Overall, the UK is the second largest donor to health. Most of this help is directed through our country programmes. For example, in Bangladesh, DFID is the largest supporter of the health sector donor pooled fund. Immunisation coverage has reached 80 per cent. for the five vaccine-preventable diseases and infant mortality is down from 116 to 88 (1994-2004).

The International Health Partnership, launched by the Prime Minister on 5 September, will help ensure that increasing resources are used more effectively to strengthen health systems and deliver better care and services. In bringing together international agencies, major donors and partner countries, it will work to make sure health services better meet individual country needs.

Developing Countries: Natural Disasters

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to minimise the impact of natural disasters in developing countries. [158295]

Mr. Malik: DFID's policy on Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR)[1] is to support measures to prevent and mitigate the impact of natural disasters at the global, country and community level. At the global level, DFID is supporting DRR programmes through the Geneva-based UN International Strategy for DRR, the World Bank, the ProVention Consortium of Non-Governmental Organisations (NGOs) and the International Federation of Red Cross Societies. DFID is also supporting the community-level DRR work of five NGOs.

DFID's support for DRR through its regional programmes includes the Chars Livelihoods Programme in Bangladesh, which has helped raise 32,700 households on plinths above the flood level; the Caribbean Catastrophic Risk Insurance Facility, to enable Governments to jump-start recovery efforts after disasters; and an NGO Consortium for DRR in Niger, which aims to strengthen vulnerable communities. Following the Government's commitment to allocate up to 10 per cent. of each emergency response to a natural disaster to DRR, where appropriate, DFID is supporting DRR in Indonesia; the Indian Ocean Early Warning System; UN capacity-building in climate adaptation; and the World Health Organisation Disease Early Warning System and institutional capacity-building in Pakistan.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid and assistance has been provided by his Department for development in Palestine. [158631]

Mr. Malik: DFID has provided over £380 million in assistance to Palestinians since the Oslo peace accords were signed in 1994. For 2007-08, we have made £31.6 million available. Of this, we have provided £1 million to the Red Cross for humanitarian work; £3 million to the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) and £15.6 million to the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA). On 17 July, the Secretary of State for International Development announced a £3 million contribution to help the Palestinian Authority pay off its debts to the private sector.

DFID provides technical assistance to Palestinian institutions, including the Office of the President, the Negotiations Affairs Department and the Ministry of Finance. We are launching a £3 million initiative to help Palestinian businesses compete in new markets and increase their exports. Together with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence, we work to reduce conflict through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool.

United Nations Population Fund

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions (a) Ministers in his Department and (b) officials have had with the United States Administration on its decision to suspend the US contribution to the United Nations Population Fund; and if he will make a statement. [158367]

Mr. Thomas: There have been no discussions between DFID Ministers or officials and the United States Administration on the suspension of the US contribution to UNFPA.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who the British representative is on the Executive Board of the United Nations Population Fund; and what relevant (a) specialist and (b) general qualifications and experience he or she has. [158370]

Mr. Thomas: The British representative on the Executive Board of UNFPA is a representative of the UK mission in New York, who acts on behalf of the UK ambassador to the UN. The representatives have specialist skills and qualifications in the areas of health and development as well as general qualifications in economics and international enterprise. The representatives' experience in government ranges from five to 25 years.

There is a strong partnership between colleagues in the UK mission and DFID. The former liaise with DFID on all health and development issues.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Office of Information: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in the Central Office of Information Media Monitoring Unit monitor internet blogs; and what the estimated cost of such monitoring is for 2007-08. [158688]

Gillian Merron: At present, the Media Monitoring Unit has no staff monitoring internet blogs and there is, therefore, no cost in 2007-08.

Charity Commission

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment has been made of the impact of the Charities Act on (a) the workload and (b) the adequacy of funding of the Charity Commission. [155627]

Phil Hope: The Government have considered issues around the work load and resources of the Charity Commission, including obligations arising from the Charities Act 2006. The Chief Secretary to the Treasury announced the details of the Charity Commission's financial settlement for the financial years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 as part of the comprehensive spending review.

	£ million
Resource funding baseline for 2007-08 (pre-CSR announcement)	30.2
New resource funding baseline for 2007-08	31.7
Resource funding for 2008-09	30.9
Resource funding for 2009-10	30.2
Resource funding for 2010-11	29.4

The Commission will receive £0.5 million in recognition of their responsibilities in the Charities Act. This sum has been added to their pre-CSR announcement baseline which also includes the previously announced funding of £1 million to support the implementation of their counter-terrorism strategy.

We are currently in positive discussions with the Commission to discuss ways to fund the new licensing regime for public charitable collections.

Delegation and Coherence

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made in implementation of the policy statement Delegation and Coherence issued by the Cabinet Office in September 2006. [156830]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 10 October 2007]: Cabinet Office officials continue to work with Departments and the civil service unions to implement the key areas identified in the statement to improve operation of the delegated pay arrangements. Discussions have taken place with Heads of Professions and Departments on greater pay coherence for similar workforce groups; a set of reward principles has been published to inform departmental reward strategies; the Treasury's annual Pay Remit Guidance has been strengthened to help narrow unjustified pay gaps between Departments; and we are currently considering the scope for improving the delegation process and identifying areas that can be managed more corporately.

Departments: Flowers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on flowers in the last 12 months. [153287]

Gillian Merron: On rare occasions, officials may purchase flowers for specific purposes e.g. events, functions but there are strict guidelines in place determining such transactions. Details of expenditure can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many websites the Cabinet Office operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running the Office's websites in the last five years. [157885]

Gillian Merron: There are currently 14 Cabinet Office websites. There were 38 Cabinet Office websites as at 1 January 2005.

As part of the Government's Website Rationalisation strategy (part of the Transformational Government agenda), the Cabinet Office is focusing its internet presence on two websites—the Civil Service site (www.civilservice.gov.uk). and the Cabinet Office site (www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk). All other Cabinet Office websites will be closed by March 2012.

Annual website costs (including VAT) are as follows:

Financial year	Cabinet Office cost (£)
2006-07	690,000
2005-06	975,000
2004-05	670,000

Website expenditure within the Cabinet Office before 2004-05 is not available. Before this time, budgets for communication activity (including website development and maintenance) were devolved to Cabinet Office business units, and there was no central monitoring of web expenditure.

The Cabinet Office was responsible for the Directgov website until April 2006, when it transferred to the Central Office of Information. Excluding one-off marketing and infrastructure renewal costs, expenditure for Directgov was £5.4 million in 2005-06 and £5.4 million in 2004-05. Prior to 2004-05, Directgov was funded from within the UKOnline budget which was the responsibility of the former Office of the e-Envoy and it has not been possible to obtain financial information for this period.

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by the Cabinet Office has received since 1 January 2007. [157886]

Gillian Merron: Based on statistics, the website with the most hits was the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway (www.careers.civil-service.gov.uk) which from 1 January to the end of August received:

23,612,818 hits

7,940,377 page views

948,502 visits

Based on statistics, the website with the least hits was the HM Government website (www.hmg.gov.uk) which since it was set up on 9 April received:

30,682 hits

7,055 page views

3,598 visits

"Hits" can be a misleading statistic as, depending on how a website is designed and managed, an individual looking at a single page can generate a widely varying number of "hits". Statistics of "Page Views" and "Visits" are generally accepted as a more accurate representation of website usage.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people have been appointed to his Department outside of civil service grades in the last 30 days. [153292]

Gillian Merron: The only appointments that fall outside civil service grades in the Cabinet Office are those made using fee-paid contracts. The number of fee-paid appointments made during the period 27 June 2007 to 26 July 2007 is six.

In addition, my Department publishes information annually on appointments to the public bodies for which it is responsible. Data for 2006-07 are in the process of being collated, and will be published shortly on the Cabinet Office website:

Copies will also be placed in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members.

Departments: Publications

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1393W, on Departments: publications, if he will place in the Library a copy of the July 2007 edition of the Central Office of Information's White Book. [153889]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the July 2007 edition of the Central Office of Information's White Book. [158188]

Gillian Merron: The publication of the White Book is being prepared to reflect the changes in departmental boundaries and responsibilities.

The new edition will be published and placed in the Library next month.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) what estimate she has made of the cost of construction of the facilities required to stage the Olympic shooting events at the Royal Artillery Barracks; and if she will make a statement; [154847]

(2) what estimate she has made of the cost of staging the shooting events for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games at the National Shooting Centre at Bisley. [154848]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 10 September 2007]: Outline assessments during the bid phase were conducted on the basis of providing the overlay required to stage shooting events at the National Shooting Centre at Bisley. However, during the bidding phase, the International Olympic Committee commented on the distance between Bisley and the Olympic Park. On the basis of this feedback, and following consultation with the International Shooting Federation, the Royal Artillery Barracks was selected as the shooting venue, due to its iconic location and its close proximity to the Olympic Park and Village. These factors will improve the athlete and spectator experience by limiting travel and making it easier to attend other Games events on the same day in the Olympic Park.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will provide a full breakdown of the £2.7 million Olympic contingency fund; and whether any of that contingency has been drawn down. [157734]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: On 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, I announced a funding provision for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games of £9.325 billion. This included provision for £2.747 billion programme contingency, comprising:

£2,509 million contingency to reflect the risk of additional costs arising from factors such as unforeseen ground conditions, inflation beyond existing provision and changes in legislation; and

£238 million for any potential increases in the costs of policing and wider security.

The use of the programme contingency is subject to approval by the ministerial funders group. As set out in recent NAO report "The Budget for the London 2012, Olympic and Paralympic games," in June 2007, the group agreed to release £360 million of programme contingency to the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA). This will be drawn down from April 2008.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library a copy of the cash flow forecast for the Olympic Delivery Authority. [157735]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Details of the Olympic Delivery Authority's cash flows for 2007-08 are included in the ODA's 2007-08 business plan summary, published on its website. A copy of which is in the Libraries of both Houses.

Chapter 20 of the CSR White Paper published on 9 October sets out the Government's contribution for the next three years (2008-09 to 2010-11). The balance of the funding requirement will be met, as planned in March 2007, from contributions from the Mayor of London (GLA and LDA); from funding already coming in from Olympic lottery games; from funds from the Sports Lottery Distributor; and from the funds to be transferred from the National Lottery Distribution Fund, subject to affirmative resolution in both Houses.

Further details of cash flows will be set out in future business plan summaries.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how the issue of financing costs is being addressed in the Olympics Delivery Authority budget. [157736]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The CSR announced grant in aid from Government of £1,559/£1,104/£1,050 million in 2008-09 to 2010-11. Provision for 2011-12 to 2013-14 will be confirmed in the next CSR.

The balance of the funding requirement will be met, as planned in March 2007, from contributions from the Mayor of London (GLA and IDA); from funding already coming in from Olympic lottery games; from funds from the Sports lottery distributor; and from the funds to be transferred from the national lottery distribution fund, subject to affirmative resolution in both Houses.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much it will cost to rent all facilities not located on the Olympic park necessary to stage the London 2012 Olympics, broken down by venue. [158728]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The London Organising Committee for the Olympic games (LOCOG) have informed me that they have set aside an allowance of circa £30 million for arrangements for non-Olympic park sporting venues.

LOCOG are not currently in a position to disclose further information, by venue, as they are still negotiating terms with some of the venue owners and to do so would prejudice their commercial interests.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her latest estimate is of the likely cost of the London 2012 Olympic games that will be paid via the council tax in London; and if she will make a statement. [158837]

Tessa Jowell: The estimated contribution from the London council tax, as announced in 2003, remains at £625 million.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years; [157913]

(2) how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157914]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor (Tony Blair) to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 196W.

Information on the number of visits to the site can be found on the No. 10. website (http://www.pm.gov.uk/output/Page13384.asp). A copy of this webpage has been placed in the Library of the House.

The running costs for the No. 10 website the financial year 1 April 2006-1 April 2007 were £189,689. The costs reflect the creation of new channels with which to engage with the public, including e-petitions and the YouTube channel, both of which are major innovations in online Government communication.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158901]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Cleethorpes (Shona McIsaac) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1108W. Figures for the financial year 2007-08 will be published in the usual way after the end of the financial year.

Ministers: Grace and Favour Housing

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the grace and favour properties available to members of the Government; and who the current occupants of those properties are. [157812]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Prime Minister which Ministers occupy each of the official ministerial residences; and which of them (a) pay and (b) do not pay council tax on their official residences. [158074]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The flats above numbers 10 and 11 Downing Street have traditionally been the residences of the Prime Minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer. I currently reside in Number 11 Downing Street and my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer resides in Number 10 Downing Street. One of the flats in Admiralty House is currently occupied by my right hon. Friend, Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Lord Malloch-Brown). Council tax is paid personally on these official residences by me and both my right hon. Friends. The remaining official residences are currently unoccupied. The ministerial residence in South Eaton Place, Pimlico, is no longer required and it will be sold, with the proceeds going to the Exchequer.

In addition, I have the use of Chequers and my right hon. Friends the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Foreign Secretary, have the use of Dorneywood and Chevening respectively. Council tax in respect of Chequers, Dorneywood and Chevening is a matter for the trustees. Ministers in the Northern Ireland Office have the use of accommodation in Hillsborough Castle and Stormont.

Prime Minister's Questions

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Prime Minister how many hours are spent each week in preparation for Prime Minister's Questions by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers (i) in Downing Street and (ii) on average in other Departments; and if he will make a statement. [158828]

The Prime Minister: I am briefed in exactly the same way as my predecessors were.

Royal Household: Finance

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what contributions to the cost of the Royal Household are met by countries other than the United Kingdom where Her Majesty the Queen is Head of State; and if he will make a statement. [156845]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

None.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to tax aircraft emissions rather than impose air passenger duty; and if he will make a statement. [157260]

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues about potential alternatives to air passenger duty; and what plans he has to change the current system. [157317]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Members to the Chancellor's statement in the House on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 167W, and to the pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 'Meeting the aspirations of the British people' (Cm.7227) paragraphs 7.54 to 7.56.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England developed breast cancer in each of the last three years; [157519]

(2) what proportion of people in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England developed breast cancer in each of the last three years. [157520]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated, 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions asking how many people developed breast cancer (a) in Hertfordshire and (b) nationally in each of the last three years [157519], and what proportion of people developed breast cancer (a) in Hertfordshire and (b) nationally in each of the last three years [157520].

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases (incidence) of malignant neoplasm of breast are for 2004. Numbers and rates per 100,000 for 2002-2004 for England and the county of Hertfordshire are given in Table 1 below.

It is not possible to produce breast cancer rates for males in Hertfordshire due to the small numbers involved.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases and rates[1] per 100,000 of malignant neoplasm of breast[2]: England and the county of Hertfordshire[3], by sex, 2002-04

		Registrations			Rates
		2002	2003	2004	2002	2003	2004
England	Male	254	289	272	0.9	1.0	0.9
	Female	35,149	37,283	36,939	117	123	121
Hertfordshire	Male	8	7	7	—	—	—
	Female	621	711	667	103	114	104

[1] Rates are directly age-standardised to control for differences in the age structure of populations between geographical areas over time.
[2] Breast cancer is defined as code C50 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10).
[3] Rates were not calculated for males in Hertfordshire as the numbers of registrations were too low.

Childcare: Finance

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what funds are available to local authorities for provision under the forthcoming childcare duty. [157750]

Beverley Hughes: I have bean asked to reply.

We are determined that local authorities should have the resources they need to fulfil the statutory duty to secure from April 2008, so far as is reasonably practicable, sufficient childcare to meet the needs of working parents. From that month the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant to local authorities in England will include revenue and capital funding as shown in the table to fund Sure Start Children's Centres; support outcomes, quality and diversity; and support child care sufficiency and access. This funding is not ring-fenced and it remains up to individual local authorities to determine how their funds will be spent.

£ million

	Revenue funding	Capital funding
2008-09	1,239	379
2009-10	1,340	472
2010-11	1,508	361

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157908]

Angela Eagle: Information relating to staff currently seconded to the Treasury can be found on the HMT Website at:

http://www.hm-treasury_gov.uk/about/about_secondee.cfm

Disability Aids: Finance

Lorely Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will allocate additional funding to improve wheelchair and mobility equipment available to disabled children and young people as set out in the report Aiming High for Disabled Children by his Department and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. [156953]

Andy Burnham: The Department of Health (DH) 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) settlement of £110 billion by 2010-11 included additional resource to support improved outcomes for disabled children (as committed in the HM Treasury/ Department for Education and Skills (DCSF) report "Aiming high for disabled children: better support for families".

Improving outcomes for disabled children and their families will also be reflected in the new PSA and indicator set, with a joint DCSF/DH national disabled children's indicator as part of the new CSR performance management framework setting out Government priorities and driving improved provision and delivery of services.

Employment: Mentally Ill People

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to publish his Department's Review of Mental Health and Employment; if he will give priority to extending access to proven psychological therapies in order to increase employment opportunities and reduce the risk of unemployment among people with mental health problems; and if he will make a statement. [157846]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the statement my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health made on 10 October 2007.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residential dwellings in England are recorded by the Valuation Office Agency with the dwelling house coding of having (a) one bedroom, (b) two bedrooms, (c) three bedrooms and (d) four or more bedrooms. [158058]

Jane Kennedy: As at 4 October 2007, the relevant number of dwellings in England were 2,545,082 with one bedroom, 6,247,291 with two bedrooms, 10,045,887 with three bedrooms and 3,139,945 with four or more bedrooms.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the likely change in revenue from reducing the (a) basic rate of income tax and (b) higher rate of income tax by one per cent. in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09. [158076]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested will be published in the next edition of HM Treasury's tax ready reckoner—'2007 tax ready reckoner and tax reliefs'—which will be published later this year.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Financial Services Authority is taking to assess the effectiveness of the contingency plans of the UK's financial institutions for a potential influenza pandemic. [158470]

Kitty Ussher: In October/November 2006, the Financial Services Authority, on behalf of the Tripartite Authorities (HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the Financial Services Authority (FSA)), led a six week market wide exercise on pandemic flu. Around 70 market participants took part and a report on lessons learned is available on the Tripartite Financial Sector Continuity website (www.fsc.gov.uk).

The Tripartite Authorities have held a series of follow up events to discuss key issues arising from the exercise and the FSA continues to work with retail banks, insurance firms, recovery site providers and telecommunications firms to produce statements about how they would respond in a pandemic.

In addition, the FSA has conducted benchmarking to establish the preparedness of firms to deal with a range of threats or hazards, including pandemic influenza.

Long Term Public Finance Report 2007

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason the Long Term Public Finance Report 2007 was not published with the Pre-Budget Report; and when he plans to publish it. [158850]

Andy Burnham: As set out in paragraph 2.45 of the 2007 pre-Budget report, the Government publish the "Long-term public finance report" to provide a comprehensive analysis of long-term socio-economic and demographic developments, and their likely impact on the public finances, based on the most up-to-date information available.

The population projections provided by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) are central to this analysis. Given that ONS will not publish the new population projections until the 23 October 2007, the next long-term public finance report will now be published at a later date.

Mortgages

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the maximum fixed term mortgage available is in the UK; and what estimate he has made of how many borrowers have signed up to such a facility; [157807]

(2) what estimate he has made of how many mortgage holders in the UK have fixed term mortgages. [157811]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Service Authority (FSA) publishes comparative tables of products offered by lenders that report that the maximum fixed term for a mortgage in the UK is 25 years. These tables are available at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/tables

The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) publishes the number of fixed term mortgages issued each year in the UK. These statistics are available at http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

Pay

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees have income in excess of £50,000 per year; and what percentage of the total employed workforce that figure represents. [157392]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many employees have income in excess of £50,000 per year; and what percentage of total employed workforce that figure represents. (157392)

The information requested is not available in respect of income, but the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) can be used to provide a partial answer for UK earnings. ASHE is earned out in April each year and is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent. sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes.

ASHE is not used to provide estimates of the numbers of employees whose earnings is greater than a specific amount, but is used to provide estimates of proportions of the workforce in that category. I attach a table showing an estimate of the percentage of the UK workforce which earned greater than £50,000 per year, from the 2006 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings.

Proportion of UK employees paid in excess of £50,000 per year[1]

UK 2006	Percentage
Full-time	8.3
Part-time	0.5
All jobs	6.3

[1] Employees on adult rates whose pay for the survey pay-period was not affected by absence.

Public Sector: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether delivery agreements will accompany the new public service agreements; and if he will make a statement. [158398]

Andy Burnham: A delivery agreement was published for each public service agreement (PSA) alongside the pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review. They are available on HM Treasury's website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/pbr_csr/pbr_csr07_index.cfm

Stamp Duties: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was collected from stamp duty in each financial year since 1997 in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) the Peterborough City Council area; and if he will make a statement. [157948]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the stamp duty land tax yield at local authority/unitary authority level are not available for years prior to 2005-06. Figures for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are provided in the tables from the following HMRC website:

2005-06: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table154-0506.pdf

2006-07: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table154-0607.pdf

Estimates of stamp duty land tax yield at parliamentary constituency level are under review. The HMRC website will announce an update on the publication timetable in October.

Suicide: Children

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suicides there were amongst children between the ages of 10 and 18 years in each of the last 10 years, broken down by year group. [157790]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many suicides there were amongst children between the ages of 10 and 18 years in each of the last 10 years, broken down by year groups. (157790)

The table below contains numbers of suicides for those aged under 19 by single year of age in England and Wales from 1996 to 2005, the latest available year.

The definition of suicide used by ONS assumes that most deaths from "injury or poisoning of undetermined intent" at ages 15 and over are cases where the harm was self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves. For this reason, ONS includes these in its suicide statistics for those aged 15 and over, along with deaths from intentional self-harm. The same cannot be assumed in deaths at ages under 15. There were no deaths in children aged under 13 with a suicide verdict for the period requested.

Number of deaths from suicide and injury/poisoning of undetermined intent, ages 13 to 18, England and Wales, 1996 to 2005[1]

	Suicide[2]		Suicide and injury/poisoning of undetermined intent[3]
	13 years	14 years	15 years	16 years	17 years	18 years
1996	1	2	9	24	25	61
1997	1	4	6	27	28	42

[1] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

[2] The came of death for suicide was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84for 200J onwards.

[3] The cause of death for injury/poisoning of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E980-E989 excluding E9 88.8 for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes YW-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending for 2001 onwards.

Tax Allowances: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of tax relief on pensions (a) in total and (b) for higher rate contributions in 2007-08. [158144]

Kitty Ussher: As set out in the 2007 pre-Budget report, the annual cost of tax relief on approved pension schemes for 2007-08 is estimated to be £17.5 billion.

Detailed estimates covering the period 1998-99 to 2006-07 are available in table 7.9 on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/menu.htm

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne) on 24 October 2005, Official Report, column 52W.

Taxation: International Civil Servant Status

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in the UK have international civil servant status for tax purposes; what such status means in terms of allowances and exemptions; and if he will make a statement. [158423]

Jane Kennedy: Under UK tax law there is no such person as an "international civil servant". However, officials of the United Nations are sometimes referred to as international civil servants. There is no requirement for visiting officials to notify HM Revenue and Customs of their presence in the UK. Those who are present in the UK for a sufficient length of time to become resident in the UK will be dealt with locally. Information is not collated centrally.

The UK tax position of employees of the United Nations is set out in the United Nations and International Court of Justice (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1974. This provides immunities and privileges that are normal for international organisations. It includes among other things that officials of the UN shall be exempt from income tax on remuneration received by them from the UN. UN Officials are however subject to a form of internal tax operated by the UN, which is referred to as the Staff Assessment.

Teenage Pregnancy

Chris Bryant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many teenagers gave birth in each constituency in 2006. [157349]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many teenagers gave birth in each constituency in 2006. (157349).

The attached table provides the number of live births to mothers aged less than 20 in each parliamentary constituency in England and Wales, in 2006. Since these figures are for births rather than maternities, a small number of teenage mothers who had multiple births will have been counted more than once. A copy has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Unemployment: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the 18 to 24-year-old population of the Peterborough constituency was not been in education, training or employment in each quarter since the second quarter of 2001; and if he will make a statement. [158648]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 17 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what proportion of the 18 to 24 year old population of the Peterborough constituency has not been in education, training or employment in each quarter since the second quarter of 2001. (158648)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. Quarterly data are not available for parliamentary constituencies.

The table attached shows the numbers of 18 to 24 year olds not in full-time education, employment or training, resident in Peterborough for the 12 month periods ending in February for 2002 to 2004 from the local area LFS and for the 12 month periods ending in March for 2005 to 2007, from the APS. The table also shows these numbers as the percentage of all 18 to 24 year olds in the area for each year.

Estimates for a subset of the population in a small geographical area are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

Persons aged 18 to 24 who are not in full-time education, employment or training resident in the Peterborough constituency

12 months ending	Number (Thousand)	Percentage of all 18-24 year olds
February 2002	2	25
February 2003	2	18
February 2004	2	21
March 2005	2	27
March 2006	2	26
March 2007	2	25

Note:
Estimates are subject to sampling variability.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 4757W, on 18 to 24-year-olds, how many 18 to 24-year-olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 years. [158340]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many 18 to 24 year olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 years. (158340)

Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) purpose and (b) function is of the Valuation Office Agency's World Class Programme. [158065]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1640W, and also refer to the agency's Forward Plan 2007-10 published on 18 June 2007.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1018W to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt) on the Valuation Office Agency, what the destination was of each of the 412 flights. [158286]

Jane Kennedy: Details of the destinations of these 412 flights could be obtained only at disproportionate cost and time.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's communications toolkit. [158400]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 217-18W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond). The VGA's communications toolkit has been laid in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) last met. [158402]

Jane Kennedy: This programme board last met on 22 November 2005.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's Rating Cost Guide in CD-Rom format. [158414]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency's Rating Cost Guide provides indicative costs of buildings and machinery for use in valuations for non-domestic rating purposes. Since 2004 it has been made available to the general public for purchase at a charge of £750.00 (in CD-Rom format).

Valuation Office: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on (a) champagne and wine and (b) alcohol in the last year for which audited figures are available. [158066]

Jane Kennedy: Costs attributable to (a) and (b) are minimal because the Valuation Office Agency's policy is that alcohol should not normally be provided for internal conferences or for external events. They are not recorded separately and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost and time.

Valuation Office: Digital Versatile Disks

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1019W to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt), on the Valuation Office Agency: digital versatile disks, how many videos, including VHS formats and electronic digital formats, have been produced by the Agency in the last 36 months. [158284]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency has produced no videos in VHS format over the last 36 months. Since October 2004, 25 internal 'videos' to staff have been produced in a digital format available to view via the Agency's wide area network.

Valuation Office: Visits Abroad

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North East Bedfordshire of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1020W, on the Valuation Office Agency: visits abroad, to which bodies the agency's staff have been seconded in Australia; how many staff have been seconded; and what divisions of the agency they come from. [158283]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency has sponsored three reciprocal, six-month, secondments from the Valuation Office to the Australian Valuation Office.

1. Secondee from Tunbridge Wells Valuation Office to Australian Valuation Office for the period 30 January 2006 to 30 July 2006.

2. Secondee from DV Services Central (Shrewsbury) to Australian Valuation Office for the period 2 October 2006 to 30 March 2006.

3. Secondee from Harrogate Valuation Office to Australian Valuation Office for the period 2 April 2007 to 28 September 2007.

VAT: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether VAT will be levied (a) on the local authority search elements and (b) drainage and water search elements of home information packs. [158405]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2243W, to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt). Drainage and water searches remain VAT standard-rated when supplied by a VAT registered business.

VAT: Swimming

Janet Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on reducing the level of VAT payable on swimming lessons for children; and if he will make a statement. [158441]

Jane Kennedy: Representations are regularly made to Treasury Ministers and officials on a wide range issues.

VAT is not chargeable on swimming lessons provided by non-profit making bodies, local authorities, schools, and private tutors, otherwise they are VAT standard-rated. The VAT agreements with our European partners that allow us to keep our existing zero rates, and which govern the scope of our VAT exemptions and reduced rates, do not allow us to reduce the rate of VAT currently payable on children's swimming lessons.

Venture Capital

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what arrangements are in place for directors and elite shareholders of businesses (a) in the process of being and (b) after having been taken over by (i) private equity businesses and (ii) non-private equity businesses to disclose all deals, promises and transactions of personal benefit to themselves, both prior to and subsequent to the takeover; what duties such directors and elite shareholders have to other shareholders and employees of the business being taken over; what proposals he has to change the existing arrangements; and if he will bring forward urgent proposals to legislate to make such disclosure necessary. [152607]

Kitty Ussher: Takeovers are supervised and regulated by the Panel on Takeovers and Mergers in accordance with the rules set out in the Takeover Code. This provides an orderly framework within which takeovers are conducted, contributing to the integrity of financial markets, and ensuring that all shareholders are treated fairly and are not denied an opportunity to decide on the merits of a takeover.

The Code requires:

that all shareholders of the same class be treated equally (general principle 1)

the disclosure of share dealings during the offer period (rule 8)

that an offeror covers its intentions for the future of the business, including likely repercussions on employment (rule 24.1)

the disclosure of details of directors' interests and dealings in securities of the offeror company (rule 25.3)

the disclosure of details of directors' remuneration or service contracts (rule 25.4)

In addition, the FSA's Listing Rules require listed companies to disclose directors' service contracts, to notify relevant interests in securities by directors and persons connected with them, and also restrict dealings in the company's securities by directors and persons connected with them. Further obligations in relation to the disclosure of relevant information and of particular transactions in substantial portions of shares in a company whose shares are traded on regulated markets are contained in the FSA's Disclosure and Transparency Rules.

The Companies Act 2006 imposes statutory duties on directors of all companies, whether before or after a takeover, whether listed on a public market or privately held. These include the duties in chapter 2 of part 10 among other things to promote the success of the company for the benefit of its shareholders as a whole, having regard—among other matters—to the interests of the company's employees, to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence, and to avoid conflicts of interest. The Act imposes specific requirements for prior shareholder authorisation in areas likely to give rise to conflicts of interest, such as loans by the company to a director or long-term service contracts for directors. Chapters 4 and 6 of part 15 of the Act also impose disclosure requirements in respect of directors' remuneration, directors' service contracts, and advances, credit and guarantees to directors.

The Takeover Panel and FSA are respectively responsible under statute for setting takeover rules and listing and disclosure rules. BERR is responsible for the general corporate disclosure regime. Current rules are kept under review and regularly updated in line with market developments.

Written Questions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer Question 120846, on domestic taxation and house prices in Northern Ireland, tabled by the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar on 6 February. [158075]

Jane Kennedy: The hon. Member's question was transferred from the Treasury to the Northern Ireland Office. I understand that the former Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), said in his reply of 19 February that the matter is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Executive.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were recorded in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available. [158120]

Mr. McFadden: The table shows the number of bankruptcies and individual voluntary arrangements in England and Wales for financial years 1996-97 and 2006-07.

	Bankruptcy orders	Individual voluntary arrangements
1996-97	21,058	4,441
2006-07	64,610	47,975

Notes:
Figures are not seasonally adjusted.

Bankruptcy: Elderly

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people in (a) England and (b) Suffolk aged 60 years or over declared themselves bankrupt in each year since 1997. [156767]

Mr. McFadden: Bankruptcy statistics broken down by age as well as by region are currently only readily available on the basis of the locations of official receivers offices (each of which cover a group of county courts where the cases are heard and the courts having jurisdiction over these), and for the years 2000 through to 2006.

The table provides estimates of numbers of individuals aged 60 years and over declared bankrupt in the regions considered to be closest to those requested, but they should not be treated as completely accurate statistics because date of birth is not recorded for all bankruptcy cases over the period covered and also because regional statistics based around the jurisdictions of official receivers are not consistent with county or country level geographies.

Estimated numbers of bankruptcy orders, individuals aged 60 and over 2000 to 2006

	Bankrupts aged 60 years and above by geographical area
	England and Wales	England	Anglia	Ipswich
2000	973	924	137	22
2001	1,068	1,027	143	18
2002	1,289	1,249	182	23
2003	1,637	1,566	233	23
2004	2,149	2,059	296	25
2005	3,126	3,042	471	38
2006	4,796	4,622	720	72

Notes:
1. Anglia region covers the following OR offices: Cambridge, Ipswich, Northampton, Norwich, St. Albans, Southend-on-Sea.
2. Ipswich's OR office covers the following county courts: Sudbury, St. Osyth, Ipswich, Colchester and Clacton, Braintree.

Conditions of Employment

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what provisions of the Warwick Agreement, which have not been implemented, he plans to implement. [158679]

Mr. McFadden: The Government remain committed to fulfilling their manifesto over the course of this Parliament. The Government's employment relations strategy, "Success at Work", was published in March last year and sets out our plans for delivering these commitments within the wider context of the labour market and Better Regulation agenda.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [156996]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster gave on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 822W.

The guidance covering the conduct of official business during a general election was last issued in May 2005. This guidance, and other relevant procedures and processes, are kept under constant review by Departments so that they are ready to be put in place when a general election is called.

Departments: Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people were employed by his Department and its predecessor on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [158317]

Mr. Thomas: The average number of people employed by the predecessor to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, in each of the last five years, is as follows:

	Civil servants permanent	Others
2002-03	4130	29
2003-04	3750	456
2004-05	3846.5	419
2005-06	3302.4	211.4
2006-07	3085.5	134

Derelict Land: South East Region

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many hectares of brownfield land were (a) reclaimed and (b) redeveloped by the South East England Development Agency in the last year for which figures were available; and what the annual target range was for that indicator. [158116]

Mr. Timms: SEEDA is on target to remediate over 200 hectares of brownfield land over our three year corporate plan period 2005-08, which is within our target range for this output. A shortfall in 2006-07 was caused by delays with delivery of some large projects, which will create a surplus against the target range in 2007-08. SEEDA does not hold a specific record of when brownfield land is developed.

Brownfield land remediated in the South East by SEEDA

	Target range	Hectare Actual
2005-06	72-120	101
2006-07	75-125	13
2007-08	34.5-57.5	—
Total	181.5-302.5	—

Energy: Meters

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform by what date domestic consumers will be entitled to request a free visual display meter from their energy companies; and if he will make a statement. [158577]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government propose to require companies to provide display devices at the request of electricity customers for a two-year period from 2008. It is currently consulting on this and other proposals, and will take final decisions following that consultation.

Microgeneration

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will estimate the value of the Merton rule to the UK's microgeneration industry in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [159364]

Malcolm Wicks: In line with the Department for Communities and Local Government's Planning Policy Statement 22 on Renewable Energy, some 120 local planning authorities have set targets for the use of on-site renewable energy in new developments. As recognised by our Microgeneration Strategy, such policies play an important role in stimulating the renewables industry and create a market for microgeneration technologies. The first authority to formalise the policy was the London borough of Merton. While we have not estimated the monetary value of Merton style policies, I know that the microgeneration business regard them as an important driver for their market.

Post Offices: Temporary Employment

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the use of agency staff by the Post Office is in line with regulations relating to the Employment Act 2003. [157808]

Mr. McFadden: To date the Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate has not received any information to suggest that the regulations governing employment agencies, the Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Businesses Regulations 2003, are not being complied with by Royal Mail.

Royal Mail has given assurances that it fully complies with the requirements of the legislation regarding employment agencies.

Postal Services: Competition

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the impact of the manner in which Postcomm has imposed the universal service obligation on the profitability of (a) Royal Mail and (b) Royal Mail's competitors; and what comparison he has made with the process of liberalisation in other EU countries. [158756]

Mr. McFadden: Assuring the provision of a universal service and liberalising the postal market are matters for Postcomm, the Postal Services Commission. The Regulator regularly reviews universal service provision and market conditions in both the UK and other EU member states. Its reports are made publicly available on its website at:

http:// www.psc.gov.uk.

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations the Energy Minister has received from the renewable energy industry on the future of the Merton rule. [159365]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has had representations at all levels from the renewable energy industry around proposed changes to the planning system, and the future of Merton style policies. We work closely with business to ensure that relevant issues are understood and taken into consideration in the development of new policy.

Renewable Energy: Housing

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions the Energy Minister has held with the Housing Minister on the future of the Merton rule; and if he will make a statement. [159366]

Malcolm Wicks: We are working closely with colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government developing policies in this area. Discussions on the final detail of proposed changes to planning policy are ongoing.

Severn Barrage

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) whether the report he commissioned on a Severn Barrage will consider the potential economic impact of the Barrage on the city of Bristol; [158649]

(2) how many locations are being considered as being potentially suitable for the Severn Barrage; [158650]

(3) whether the report he has commissioned into a potential Severn Barrage will consider all major options for renewable energy generation facilities in the River Severn including the benefits and disadvantages of the status quo; and when the report will be concluded. [158651]

Malcolm Wicks: The feasibility study, for which the detailed remit and budget are now being scoped, will consider all key aspects of a tidal barrage in the Severn Estuary, including environmental, social and economic issues. The Government are committed to taking forward the feasibility study in an open and transparent way, which will include engaging with business, environmental and community groups.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what business, environmental and community groups will be consulted with regard to the report he has commissioned on the Severn Barrage; and how such groups are being made aware of the report; [158703]

(2) what budget he has allocated for the report on the Severn Barrage. [158704]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The feasibility study, for which the detailed remit and budget are now being scoped, will consider all key aspects of a tidal barrage in the Severn Estuary, including environmental, social and economic issues. The Government are committed to taking forward the feasibility study in an open and transparent way, which will include engaging with business, environmental and community groups.

JUSTICE

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were of retailers for selling alcohol to persons under 18 years old for consumption off the premises in each of the last 10 years. [156197]

Maria Eagle: The information requested on prosecutions and convictions of retailers for selling alcohol to persons under 18 years in each of the last 10 years is provided in the following table. It is not possible to identify from the data whether these sales were on or off licensed premises.

In addition to court proceedings, the offence of sale of alcohol to a person under 18 can attract a penalty notice for disorder (PND). The offence was added to the PND scheme on the 1 November 2004, and there were 113 penalty notices issued for the offence in November and December of that year. Additionally, another 2,058 penalty notices were issued in 2005. Data for 2006 will be available in November 2007.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for selling alcohol to under-age customers, England and Wales, 1995 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
1995	198	108
1996	251	119
1997	215	126
1998	311	158
1999	205	115
2000	132	56
2001	158	53
2002	170	105

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for selling alcohol to under-age customers, England and Wales, 1995 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
2003	616	419
2004	841	593
2005	1,084	772

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Covers the offences: selling etc. intoxicating liquor to person under 18 for consumption on the premises under the Licensing Act 1964 S.169 A and B,as added by Licensing (Young Persons) Act 2000 S.1, wholesaler selling intoxicating liquor to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 1964 S.181 A(1) as added by Licensing Act 1988 S.17, sale of alcohol to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 2003 S.146 and allowing sale of alcohol to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 2003 S.147. Sections 146 and 147 of the 2003 Licensing Act only came into effect from 24 November 2005, so data prior to 2005 is not available. The first two offences cannot separately identify on and off premises consumption although both are covered by the statutes.

Approved Premises: Reoffenders

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the reoffending rates are of those released from approved premises in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [158202]

Maria Eagle: No information on re-offending rates from those released from approved premises (bail or probation hostels) is available centrally.

This information could only be collated by manual checking of individual case details, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will list his Department and its predecessors (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156643]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice was launched on 9 May 2007 from the merger of Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA), National Offender Management service (NOMS), and Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR). NOMS and OCJR were part of the Home Office prior to 9 May 2007 and details of their related public bodies for 2005-06 and 2006-07 will be covered by the Home Office.

The list of Executive agencies related to DCA for 2005-06 were: HM Courts Service, HM Land Registry, the National Archives, and the Public Guardianship Office. The list of NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations for 2005-06 are included in the Public Bodies Directory 2006, published on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/agencies/publications/pdf/public-bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf

The list of Executive agencies related to DCA for 2006-07 were: HM Courts Service, HM Land Registry, the National Archives, Public Guardianship Office, and the Tribunals Service. The list of NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations for 2006-07 are included within the DCA Public Bodies Directory 2007, a copy of which will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

The current list of agencies, NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations listed under Ministry of Justice, are published on the MOJ website at:

Departments: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make a statement on the Government's plans to increase data-sharing across Government; and whether the Government plans to amend (a) the Data Protection Act 1998 and (b) other legislation to facilitate this. [158190]

Mr. Wills: As part of the Government's Service Transformation Agreement the Ministry of Justice will lead a cross-government programme to deliver a package of measures over the next three to five years to tackle crime and terrorism, improve personalised public services, increase public safety and tackle social exclusion through information-sharing while maintaining openness and respect for citizens' privacy and access rights. No legislative changes are being considered at this stage.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance his Department and its predecessor have issued on time limits on the right to request an internal review of a response to a request made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [158198]

Mr. Wills: Guidance on the discharge of public authorities' functions is provided in a code of practice under section 45 of the Act, which is laid before Parliament by the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor. This guidance sets the procedure for dealing with complaints, referred to as internal reviews. Any request for an internal review must be dealt with in accordance with the code of practice. It contains no specific guidance on time limits for requesters to ask for internal reviews. In response to FOI requests received by the Ministry of Justice, the requester is informed via a letter that they may ask for an internal review within two calendar months from the date of that letter. This is consistent with the time limit set out in the Environmental Information Regulations under Regulation 11(2) of 40 days to issue a complaint. Public authorities are free to decide, on a case by case basis, whether they will carry out an internal review requested after this period has elapsed.

Elections: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has (a) to hold further remote electronic voting pilots, (b) to hold further electronic counting pilots and (c) to extend the use of electronic voting to mainstream elections. [158200]

Mr. Wills: In the Governance of Britain Green Paper the Government set out a long-term aim to investigate the potential benefits of remote electronic voting and to take advantage of emerging communication technologies to provide increased flexibility and choice in the way people vote.

The outcomes of the May 2007 electoral pilot schemes and the subsequent recommendations of the Electoral Commission are currently being considered. I expect to be able to set out our thinking on future piloting involving remote electronic voting and electronic counting pilots in the near future.

The Government currently have no plans to extend the use of e-voting. The Government believe that piloting innovations in e-voting and e-counting have been important in order to test the potential benefits, and establish the evidential basis for future decisions to be taken on whether or not electronic voting could be used more widely in elections.

Electronic Conveyancing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the expected timetable is for the full implementation of electronic conveyancing by the Land Registry. [158199]

Mr. Wills: The latest revision of Land Registry's business case for the electronic conveyancing programme estimates that the programme of work will be fully implemented in 2014-15. The programme's implementation plan is constantly reviewed and updated to ensure that each new service and product is fully tested and that customer feedback is taken on board.

Fraud: Mortgages

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of fraudulent registration in the Land Registry of ownership of another person's property and associated mortgage fraud occurred in each of the last three years. [158304]

Mr. Wills: It is not known how many applications have been made to Land Registry in each of the last three years that have resulted in a fraudulent registration, whether in respect of the ownership of land or of a mortgage on land. This is because, firstly, there may be cases that have not come to light, and, secondly, Land Registry does not presently keep a central record of all frauds that affect the register of title. Land Registry does keep a central record of all cases where it pays statutory compensation, including those which result from fraud. It is also in the process of developing a more comprehensive method of recording fraud, whether or not it results in the payment of compensation.

Any owner of land who suffers loss as a result of the registration of a forged transfer or mortgage through no fault of their own is entitled to be compensated for that loss by Land Registry.

Land Registry paid statutory compensation as a result of fraud on a total of 15 claims in 2004-05, 31 claims in 2005-06 and 24 claims in 2006-07. To put this into context, there are currently more than 21 million registered titles and, in each of the last three years, Land Registry received around 4 million applications to register transfers for value and mortgages.

General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157052]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Housing: Prices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average price was for a (a) residential property, (b) detached house, (c) semi-detached house, (d) terraced house and (e) maisonette/flat in each year in England since 1991 according to Land Registry data. [158140]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry began collating this data in 1995. Information prior to this is not available. The following table provides the requested data from 1995 to present.

England average prices and volumes of sales 1995 to Q2 2007

Land Registry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average price derived from Land Registry data was in each local authority area in England and Wales for (a) all homes, (b) flats/maisonettes, (c) detached homes and (d) semi-detached homes in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158270]

Mr. Wills: The latest available figures from Land Registry cover the period from April to June 2007 and can be found in the Libraries of the House.

Land Registry: Internet

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many properties are recorded by the Land Registry but not accessible on Land Registry Online. [158201]

Mr. Wills: All registered titles in England and Wales are publicly accessible via 'Land Register Online'.

Land Registry: Revenue and Customs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what access (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) the Valuation Office Agency have to the Land Registry land database for valuation or taxation purposes. [158193]

Mr. Wills: HM Revenue and Customs and the Valuation Office Agency have no automatic access to Land Registry's land database other than that which is available to business users of the electronic service 'Land Registry Direct'.

Land: Registration

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment the Land Registry has made of the number of properties or items of land which are not recorded by the Land Registry. [158139]

Mr. Wills: At the end of September 2007, 61.7 per cent. of the freehold land area of England and Wales was registered with Land Registry representing just over 21 million registered titles. Land Registry estimates that the remaining 38.3 per cent. of the land area will generate around 4.5 million freehold first registrations.

Legal Aid

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment his Department has made of the impact of fixed legal aid fees upon not-for-profit legal aid providers; [158221]

(2) what research his Department has undertaken into the effects of the Government's legal aid reform plans upon different regions and areas of the country; if he will publish such research; and if he will make a statement; [158222]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects of the Government's legal aid reform plans upon (a) clients with severe mental health problems, (b) black and minority ethnic clients, (c) disabled clients, (d) clients with housing problems and (e) clients involved in complex children and family cases who use legal aid. [158225]

Maria Eagle: Each new fee scheme published by the Legal Services Commission (LSC) has been accompanied by an impact assessment. These are available on the LSC's website, and copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Within the next few weeks, the LSC also intends to publish a combined cumulative impact assessment of the legal aid reform programme to date, including those changes due for implementation in January.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what further plans he has to meet representatives of the legal profession and other organisations with an interest or involvement in the delivery of legal aid to discuss the future direction of the Government's legal aid reform plans. [158269]

Maria Eagle: My noble Friend the Lord Hunt of Kings Heath, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, has met a wide range of representatives from the legal profession and others with an interest in legal aid since he became the responsible Minister. He will continue to do so over the coming months to discuss the future direction of legal aid following completion of the introduction of the new fee schemes.

Legal Aid: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received from individuals and organisations from Blackpool on the Government's legal aid reform plans. [158224]

Maria Eagle: In the past year the Ministry of Justice and its predecessor have received two such representations from the hon. Gentleman on behalf of constituents and one from the hon. Member for Blackpool, North and Fleetwood (Mrs. Humble).

Legal Aid: Fees and Charges

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has to re-introduce a graduated fee system for legal aid rates in replacement of the fixed rate fee system. [158223]

Maria Eagle: The fixed fee schemes being introduced for civil, family, immigration and criminal legally aided work set fees for particular tasks or groups of tasks. Thus the fees are graduated according to the requirements of work. This move from remuneration for each hour worked to payment for each job done is an essential part of our strategy for reform of legal aid.

Mental Capacity Act 2005

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what amendments have been made and what recent representations he has received about the operation of the Mental Capacity Act 2005; and if he will make a statement; [158333]

(2) what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars and (c) other documents he (i) has issued and (ii) plans to issue in the next 12 months consequential to the provisions of the Mental Capacity Act 2005; and if he will make a statement. [158334]

Bridget Prentice: Since the Mental Capacity Act 2005 received Royal Assent we have held a series of public consultations seeking views as we have developed the code of practice and secondary legislation to support the implementation of the Act. In addition to the formal responses to consultation we have on occasion received representations on the Act from members of the public via their Members of Parliament. Since April 2007 we have received 43 such communications asking questions or commenting on the Act's provisions.

There have been two minor changes to the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to date, both of which were introduced by the Mental Health Act 2007. The first made a minor amendment to section 20(11)(a) of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to correct a drafting error by replacing the word "or" with "and". The second amended section 49 of the Act to clarify the occasions when it is not necessary to appoint an Independent Mental Capacity Advocate.

In addition the Mental Health Act 2007 contains provisions that will amend the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to introduce new safeguards to address the issues raised in the European Court of Human Rights judgment on 5 October 2004 in the case of HL v. the United Kingdom.

A number of pieces of secondary legislation that prescribe the detail of how the Act will operate have been laid before Parliament and have come into force as of 1 October 2007. In addition the Office of the Public Guardian has produced a wide range of forms, guidance and other information related to the operation of the Act. The Department's Mental Capacity Implementation Programme and the Office of the Public Guardian have also regularly informed stakeholders and customers of progress implementing the Act via update newsletters.

I have laid a table in the House Library today providing a list of the main secondary legislation, forms and guidance and newsletters produced by the Department to support the implementation of the Act. Further information may be produced in the next 12 months as required.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many spaces in prisons in England and Wales are expected to be withdrawn in each of the next five years. [158348]

Mr. Hanson: There is a planned rolling programme of refurbishment of accommodation across the prison estate. This allows the critical maintenance of the estate to be undertaken while having no significant net change on the number of places in use. Annually this means that between 1,500 and 2,000 places are out of use at any one time for essential work. We are not currently planning to withdraw any further accommodation in addition to these places.

Prisoners: Age

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in prison of each ethnic group are (a) 18, (b) 19, (c) 20, (d) 21, (e) 22, (f) 23, (g) 24, (h) 25, (i) 26, (j) 27, (k) 28, (l) 29, (m) 30, (n) 31, (o) 32, (p) 33, (q) 34 and (r) 35 years old. [158643]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the population in prison establishments in England and Wales aged 18-35 by ethnic group as at 31 August 2007:

	White	Mixed	Asian or Asian British	Black or Black British	Chinese or Other	Not stated, Unrecorded and 1991 census codes	All
Age
18	1,645	129	121	358	21	7	2,280

35	1,536	57	143	309	23	19	2,088

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1227-8W, on accident and emergency departments, whether the advice on catchment population size applies to West Sussex. [157445]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not issued guidance stating that accident and emergency departments should cover a given catchment population.

It is a matter for the local national health service to ensure that there is appropriate provision of urgent and emergency services that are responsive to people's needs.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Age

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average age was for patients admitted to accident and emergency units in hospitals in the West Sussex primary care trust geographical area in the latest period for which figures are available. [157013]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held by the Department in the format requested. However, the following table shows the count of finished admission episodes and the mean (average) age for patients admitted via accident and emergency with a primary care trust (PCT) of responsibility of West Sussex PCT. The PCT of responsibility is the PCT with whom the patient is registered and has commissioning responsibility for the patient.

Count of finished admission episodes and mean age of patients admitted via accident and emergency with a primary care trust (PCT) of responsibility of West Sussex PCT for 2005-06: National health service hospitals—England

Finished admission episodes	15,492
Mean age (years)	54.5

Notes:
Admission methods:
21—Emergency: via accident and emergency (A and E) services, including the casualty department of the provider
28—Emergency: other means, including patients who arrive via the A and E department of another healthcare provider
Finished admission episodes:
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Ungrossed data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
Data quality:
Hospital episode statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. Whilst this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Accident and Emergency Departments: West Sussex Primary Care Trust

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact on travel times to emergency facilities in West Sussex Primary Care Trust in the event of the relocation of accident and emergency facilities away from Worthing Hospital. [157019]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) in conjunction with other local stakeholders and their strategic health authorities (SHAs) to make assessments of current and future health needs and to commission services accordingly. South East Coast SHA has advised officials that in this case West Sussex PCT has carried out the assessment.

The hon. Member may wish to approach the PCT directly on this matter.

Ambulance Services: South East Coast Strategic Health Authority

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what evidential basis the South East Coast strategic health authority describes as a myth the proposition that patients' lives will be at risk if it takes longer for the ambulance to transport them to accident and emergency as described on its website http://www.southeastcoastfff.nhs.uk. [157010]

Dawn Primarolo: This is a matter for the local national health service. South East Coast strategic health authority has advised officials that the evidence obtained comes from several academic sources and has been a theme in a number of national publications.

We would encourage the hon. Member to contact the chief executive of the lead NHS organisation in this matter which is West Sussex primary care trust.

Ambulance Services: West Sussex

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average (a) response time for emergency ambulance call-outs and (b) time before admission to hospital following emergency call out was in West Sussex primary care trust in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [157440]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on average response time and time before admission to hospital is not available. The closest equivalent measures of average response time are percentage of response times within eight minutes and 19 minutes.

Information on percentage of response times within eight minutes and within 19 minutes is available in tables 6 and 7 of the "Ambulance Services for England 2006-07" report.

This information is available for 2002-03 to 2006-07 for each Ambulance Service Provider in England. Data for 2006-07 are not directly comparable to data for earlier years due to the re-organisation of Ambulance Service Providers in 2006.

Data for West Sussex are not available; however, Sussex on a whole is shown. Complete Sussex data are available until 2005-06 and only for quarter one in 2006-07 due to the re-organisation.

The "Ambulance Services for England 2006-07" report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/audits-and-performance/ambulance/ambulance-services-england-2006-07

Data are not available on time before admission to hospital as timing stops when an emergency vehicle arrives at the scene of the incident.

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to encourage primary care trusts to ensure that pharmacies offer chlamydia testing kits as part of the chlamydia screening programme. [156791]

Dawn Primarolo: Chlamydia screening programme areas are encouraged to engage a range of screening venues to participate in the National Chlamydia Screening Programme, including pharmacies.

In addition to this, the Department contracted Boots to pilot the potential of community pharmacies as locations for chlamydia screening. Screening started on 14 November 2005. To date, nearly 43,000 screens have been undertaken with a positively rate of around 8 per cent. This pilot is being independently evaluated by TNS Healthcare.

In support of commissioners, the Department is working with the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee and the national health service to develop a national template for a chlamydia screening local enhanced service through the NHS Community Pharmacy Contractual Framework.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many 16 to 24-year-old (a) males and (b) females were tested for chlamydia infection as part of the National Chlamydia Screening Programme broken down by primary care trust in each year since 2003-04; and what proportion of 16 to 24-year-olds this represented in each year; [156793]

(2) how many tests for chlamydia infection have been undertaken in the 16 to 24-year-old age group in the year 2007-08 to date (a) in England and (b) broken down by primary care trust; and what percentage of 16 to 24-year-olds this represents in each case. [156794]

Dawn Primarolo: For the National Chlamydia Screening Programme, as at March 2007, there were 220,147 females and 49,993 males between the ages of 16 to 24 who provided a primary care trust (PCT) postcode of residence, who were tested for chlamydia in England. PCT data for 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 have been placed in the Library.

Information is not currently available by PCT or by the number of tests undertaken within genito-urinary clinics. The number of diagnoses of uncomplicated chlamydia infection in 16 to 24-year-olds in genito-urinary clinics in England by strategic health authority and sex for 2006, is given in the following table.

Strategic health authority	Gender	Number of diagnoses
East Midlands	Male	2,473
East Midlands	Female	3,454
East of England	Male	2,184
East of England	Female	3,304
London	Male	4,468
London	Female	6,619
North East	Male	1,774
North East	Female	2,196
North West	Male	4,723
North West	Female	6,121
South Central	Male	1,771
South Central	Female	2,681
South East Coast	Male	1,515
South East Coast	Female	2,041
South West	Male	2,563
South West	Female	3,084
West Midlands	Male	2,476
West Midlands	Female	3,265
Yorkshire and the Humber	Male	3,304
Yorkshire and the Humber	Female	4,434
England	Male	27,251
England	Female	37,199

Notes:
1. Data are only available up to the calendar year 2006.
2. Data are not available at the PCT level.
3. Data on the number of test for chlamydia infection are not available.
4. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
5. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed. For example, individuals may be diagnosed with several co-infections and each diagnosis will be counted separately.
6. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.

Chlamydia: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his latest estimate is of the average cost of delivering and processing an individual chlamydia screening test. [158477]

Dawn Primarolo: "Modelling the Healthcare costs of an opportunistic chlamydia screening" programme research published in 2004 using data from a pilot study undertaken between 1999-2000 in Portsmouth and Wirral within the National Chlamydia Screening programme, estimated the costs per screening offer, testing episode and positive result. This information is given in tables 1 and 2.

A more recent article "The health care and patient costs of an proactive chlamydia screening programme: the Chlamydia Screening Studies (ClaSS)", published in 2007, identifies costs for register-based screening (rather than opportunistic screening which is used currently within the NCSP) but comes up with very similar average costs to the 2004 article.

Table 1: Estimated average costs of a chlamydia screen—excluding partner management costs

Item	Estimated average cost (£)
Screening offer	14.18
Testing episode	20.57
Positive episode	27

Table 2: Estimated average costs of a chlamydia screen—including partner management costs

Item	Estimated average cost (£)
Screening offer	14.88
Testing episode	21.83
Positive episode	38.36

Copies of the research have been placed in the Library.

Contraceptives: Prescriptions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by his Department on (i) the effectiveness and (ii) the safety of the Mirena contraceptive device; whether he has any plans to make this contraceptive device available on NHS prescription; and if he will make a statement. [158309]

Dawn Primarolo: Mirena is an intrauterine device (IUD) that releases a medicine, levonorgestrel, directly into the uterus. It is authorised for contraception, reduction of heavy menstrual bleeding (menorrhagia) and protection from endometrial hyperplasia during oestrogen replacement therapy. Since Mirena first became available in the United Kingdom women have been able to obtain it through the national health service.

The Medicines and Healthcare product Regulatory Agency (MHRA), together with independent expert advice for the Commission on Human Medicines is responsible for ensuring that medicines, including Mirena, have met appropriate standards of efficacy, safety and quality before they are granted a marketing authorisation and for ensuring that the benefits of treatment continue to outweigh the risks post authorisation, as further evidence emerges.

In addition to efficacy studies conducted by the marketing authorisation holder, Schering Health, prior to grant of a marketing authorisation, the Department has funded a number of studies to evaluate the effectiveness of Mirena (mainly in the indication of menstrual bleeding). These include the ongoing ECLIPSE randomised controlled trial in 1,200 women with menorrhagia.

The MHRA monitors the safety of all medicines, including Mirena, by evaluating data including adverse reaction reports received through the Yellow Card Scheme, published data, company studies and safety reviews, and information from other regulatory authorities. The benefits associated with Mirena are currently considered to outweigh the risks in its licensed indications.

The safety of Mirena was recently subject to European review and this has lead to a recommendation to clarify advice about the recognised risks of ectopic pregnancy and uterine perforation. As a precautionary measure, Mirena will be contraindicated in women with progesterone-dependent cancers. The product information for health professionals is being updated to reflect this advice.

The marketing authorisation holder is planning two studies: one to compare the risk of breast cancer in Mirena users with the risk in copper IUD users and users of other hormonal contraceptives and the other to compare the risk of uterine perforation in Mirena users with that in copper IUD users.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157000]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 823W.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156736]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not hold detailed records of laptops, mobile telephones and personal digital assistant (PDA) devices provided specifically to Ministers since 1997. However, the policy is to provide Ministers with one laptop, one mobile telephone, and one PDA each, where they have declared a requirement for such equipment. This equipment is usually new but may be re-allocated equipment depending on age and condition of the device. When a Minister leaves the Department the equipment is returned for re-allocation.

Following this year's Cabinet reshuffle, the six current Ministers have been allocated a total of five laptops, one mobile phone and four Blackberry devices which have dual mobile phone and PDA functionality. The team of Ministers before the reshuffle were allocated four laptops, five mobile phones and four Blackberry devices.

Departments: Marie Stopes International Conference

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the Ministers from his Department who will be (a) attending and (b) speaking at the Marie Stopes International Conference being held at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre on 23-24 October; whether his Department will be contributing (i) direct funding, (ii) informal support and (iii) personnel; whether there are restrictions on the use of these contributions; whether officials from his Department will (A) attend and (B) participate; if he will place in the Library any material produced for the conference by his Department; what discussions his Department has had with the Department for International Development on this conference; and if he will make a statement. [158310]

Dawn Primarolo: No Ministers from the Department of Health are attending or speaking at the Marie Stopes International Conference being held at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre on 23-24 October 2007.

The Department has contributed no funding, informal support or personnel to the event.

Three officials from the Department will be attending the event and will participate in breakout sessions along with other conference delegates.

No materials have been produced for the conference by the Department.

Ministers from both the Department and the Department for International Development were invited to speak at the conference. There was correspondence between the Departments about attendance but due to business and travel pressures neither Minister was able to attend.

Drugs: Licensing

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to allow the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to undertake appraisals of medicines prior to the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency granting them a product licence. [158461]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) Single Technology Appraisal process, NICE can already start to conduct an appraisal of a medicine when its marketing authorisation is imminent. However, NICE is unable to publish its final guidance until the medicine has received its marketing authorisation.

Health Services

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the potential impact on health outcomes of instructions to consultants by primary care trusts to reduce by 40 per cent. follow-up appointments. [158155]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: We are not aware of any blanket instructions by primary care trusts (PCTs) to consultants to reduce follow-up by 40 per cent. As good practice we would expect PCTs to be working with primary and secondary care clinicians to identify areas where redesign of the patient pathway can eliminate clinically unnecessary appointments, thereby speeding up and improving the patient experience. But this must be taken forward on the basis of clinical appropriateness.

Health Services: Education

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he has issued to NHS bodies on contributing to health awareness weeks; and if he will make a statement. [158425]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not issue formal guidance to national health service bodies on contributing to health awareness weeks. Participation by individual NHS organisations in such events is arranged at local level.

Where the Department is directly involved in organising awareness weeks, for example National Breastfeeding Awareness Week, it will promote the event to health care professionals and make resources available for use in local activities. For National Breastfeeding Awareness Week, the Department has provided resources such as posters and leaflets.

Where the Department supports awareness weeks organised by third parties it will work with major stakeholders to promote the event to health care professionals through newsletters and other existing channels.

Healthcare Purchasing Consortium: Finance

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the Healthcare Purchasing Consortium spent in 2006-07; and what it is forecast to spend in 2007-08; [158675]

(2) what estimate he has made of the savings achieved within the NHS by the Healthcare Purchasing Consortium in 2006-07; and what estimate he has made of the expected equivalent figure for 2007-08. [158676]

Mr. Bradshaw: The spend by the NHS Healthcare Purchasing Consortium on strategic sourcing activity for 2006-07 and expected forecast for 2007-08 is as follows:

	Expenditure (£)
2006-07	5,163,000
2007-08	5,913,500

The savings achieved by the NHS Healthcare Purchasing Consortium for member trusts during 2006-07 and expected forecast for 2007-08 is as follows:

	Savings (£)
2006-07	19,100,000
2007-08	26,900,000

Herbal Medicine: EC Law

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the numbers of herbal products currently on sale in the United Kingdom which will require registration under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive if they are to remain on the market; by what date applications for registrations must be made to ensure continuity of supply; and by what date the products will become illegal if not successfully registered; [157225]

(2) how many applications for registration have been received by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency; and how many positive decisions the Agency has taken to register herbal products under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; [157226]

(3) what assessment he has made of the number of herbal products which are likely to become unavailable to specialist retailers as a result of the inability or reluctance of manufacturers to submit applications for registration of such products under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; and if he will make a statement; [157227]

(4) what steps are being taken by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency to maximise the opportunities afforded under the Traditional Herbal Medicines Products Directive and other legislation to allow the continued availability of long-established herbal products whilst maintaining appropriate safety standards. [157231]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has so far received applications for traditional herbal registration in relation to 29 products from a total of nine different companies. Five registrations have been granted and the other 24 applications are under assessment. In the light of discussions with individual companies, the MHRA expects steady growth in the number of applications received and registrations granted. The rate of build up of the scheme is reflective of the extent to which many companies needed to acquire expertise, for example in the manufacture of herbal medicines to systematic quality standards, before they could be in a position to submit applications.

Under provisions in Directive 2004/24 /EC, unlicensed herbal medicines legally on the United Kingdom market at 30 April 2004 under section 12(2) of the Medicines Act 1968 received transitional protection until 30 April 2011. Following discussions with industry and the former Better Regulation Task Force the MHRA decided not to require companies to notify the agency of products for which transitional protection was claimed. Accordingly, there is no estimate of the number of products on the UK market being sold legally under section 12(2) but which cannot legally be placed on the market after 30 April 2011.

We do not believe it is realistic to specify a date by which applications need to be made in order to secure continuity of supply. Time taken by the MHRA to assess applications depends on a number of factors including the quality of the application and how quickly the applicant responds to queries raised by the MHRA. The MHRA is giving extensive help to the industry through individual company meetings. Guidance to industry has stressed the importance of companies progressing their applications now if they wish to ensure continuity of supply.

Hospitals: Petitions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he was (a) informed and (b) given sight of the recent petition from Surrey residents on the future of hospital services in the county; and if he will make a statement. [156913]

Dawn Primarolo: I responded to the petition on behalf of the Secretary of State, on 17 July 2007.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which industries he has deemed essential in the event of an influenza pandemic; and what support will be provided to them by the Government. [156771]

Dawn Primarolo: Whether it would be necessary to consider particular industries as essential in the event of an influenza pandemic is kept under review. As part of that process we will consider the results of the public engagement programme, designed to increase the Government's understanding of public attitudes to pandemic preparedness, that is planned for autumn 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what total expenditure was on research into pharmaceutical interventions for use in the event of an influenza pandemic from (a) his Department's research and development budget, (b) the Medical Research Council and (c) other sources of public funding in each year since 1997-98. [156773]

Dawn Primarolo: Many pharmaceutical interventions that would be used in an influenza pandemic (such as antiviral drugs and antibiotics) are also used for other purposes, and research conducted for such purposes would inform our response in an influenza pandemic. Research on seasonal influenza vaccines is also relevant to the development and use of vaccines for use in pandemic influenza.

Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual NHS supported research projects including a number concerned with influenza are available on the national research register at:

www.nrr.nhs.uk.

The Department has also provided support from its research and development budget to a number of projects relevant to pharmaceutical interventions in an influenza pandemic.

Over the next five years, the Department of Health has committed, through the National Institute for Health Research, £2.59 million to projects related to vaccines and immunity in the context of influenza. In December 2005, the Medical Research Council announced a £13.5 million initiative for research relevant to pandemic influenza. A number of other publicly funded bodies also support research relevant to pandemic influenza.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Home Department on the 25 per cent. clinical attack rate assumed for planning purposes in the Home Office's consultation document Planning for a possible influenza pandemic—a framework to manage deaths—consultation, published on 30 August 2007; what his latest estimate is of the most likely clinical attack rate in the event of an influenza pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [156775]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department meets regularly with Home Office officials to discuss planning for pandemic influenza. The United Kingdom's plans are based on a range of attack rates from 25 per cent. up to a reasonable worst case of 50 per cent. This range is reflected in the draft Home Office guidance 'Planning for a possible influenza pandemic—A framework for planners preparing to manage deaths'.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress is being made in developing a clinically-based algorithm for use by call handlers in the event of an influenza pandemic. [156776]

Dawn Primarolo: Development of the clinically-based algorithm for use by call handlers is now being led by NHS Direct; the algorithm is due to be tested in the last quarter of 2007.

Influenza: Vaccinations

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) each strategic health authority, (b) each primary care trust and (c) England will be eligible for the free influenza vaccine this winter; and if he will make a statement. [157235]

Dawn Primarolo: Data are not collected centrally for each strategic health authority or each primary care trust. We estimate that 14.2 million people are eligible for the influenza vaccine in England.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many influenza vaccination doses (a) are available and (b) will be available this winter to those eligible for the free winter influenza vaccine in each (i) strategic health authority, (ii) primary care trust and (iii) England; and if he will make a statement; [157236]

(2) how many doses of influenza vaccination are available in 2007 for (a) strategic health authorities, (b) primary care trusts and (c) doctors surgeries to purchase this winter; and if he will make a statement. [157237]

Dawn Primarolo: The UK Vaccine Industry Group has agreed to make over 15 million doses of seasonal flu vaccine available this winter for the United Kingdom. So far, over 4.4 million doses have been delivered. The information is not available by strategic health authority or primary care trust.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of eligible pensioners who receive influenza vaccinations. [158003]

Dawn Primarolo: We announced our seasonal influenza campaign on 28 September, incorporating a number of strategies aimed at encouraging people aged 65 years and over to receive their flu immunisation. The campaign incorporates:

national TV advertising;

advertising in national and regional newspapers and magazines, including ethnic media;

advertising on pharmacy bags;

work with voluntary organisations and commercial stakeholders such as the Alzheimer's society, AFTAID, Arthritic Association, British Heart Foundation, Lloyds Pharmacy, Tesco, Sainsbury's, Superdrug and Morrison's pharmacists.

The Chief Medical Officer also wrote to all general practitioners with details of this year's flu vaccination programme in his letter of 30 March 2007. This provides surgeries with a number of months to plan their vaccination programme.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to issue guidance to NHS trusts on how they should prioritise their staff for receiving a pandemic-specific vaccine in the event of an influenza pandemic. [158462]

Dawn Primarolo: The pandemic vaccination strategy will be determined by an assessment of the strength of the virus, and its impact on the population. As this assessment can only take place once the virus has emerged, specific advice on the vaccination of any part of the population, including health care workers, can only be issued at that point.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he will issue guidance to employers on the stockpiling of clinical counter-measures for use in an influenza pandemic, with reference to his letter sent to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire, dated 2 October 2007, reference PO00000234688. [158469]

Dawn Primarolo: No central guidance has been issued to employers wishing to stockpile clinical countermeasures. Employers who are considering this as part of their business continuity planning should do so in conjunction with their own occupational health advisers. The National Framework for responding to an influenza pandemic includes information in relation to stockpiling and use of clinical countermeasures. Work is also progressing on testing a clinical algorithm/protocol as part of the process for providing access to antivirals.

Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust: Pay

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was paid to Rose Gibb, the former chief executive of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS trust, upon the termination of her employment. [158719]

Ann Keen [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The employment of staff, clinicians and managers within the national health service is a matter for local NHS Boards. In the case of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells we have asked the NHS trust to withhold any severance payment to the former chief executive prior to the Department considering legal advice on the matter.

Maternity Services: Sussex

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many babies were born while their mothers were in the process of travelling to (a) Brighton hospital and (b) Worthing hospital in the latest period for which figures are available. [157256]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not collected centrally.

Medical Equipment

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1226W, on medical equipment, when he plans to take a decision as to whether to procure and stockpile face masks centrally. [156750]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is progressing work to ensure that the appropriate face masks are made available to health care and social care workers during a pandemic. An announcement will be made in relation to this issue as soon as it is possible to do so.

NHS: Reorganisation

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what briefing Lord Darzi received on the proposals to downgrade Worthing and Chichester hospitals before his recent interview on GMTV. [157255]

Ann Keen: Lord Darzi is aware of the current consultation on the future of health services in West Sussex.

NHS: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of backlog maintenance was in the NHS in each year from 1997-98 to 2006-07 (a) in total and (b) broken down by NHS organisation. [158472]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total backlog maintenance for England is provided in the following table.

	Total backlog maintenance (£ million)
1997-98	2,836
1998-99	3,027
1999-2000	3,108
2000-01	3,242
2001-02	3,378
2002-03	3,517
2003-04	3,193
2004-05	3,142
2005-06	3,684
2006-07	3,740

Information for national health service organisations has been placed in the Library.

The data are as provided by the national health service and have not been amended centrally. Their accuracy and completeness is the responsibility of the provider organisation. Trusts that have not provided data or have provided a zero response have been omitted for brevity.

Investment to reduce backlog maintenance will be prioritised locally based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources. The majority of the backlog maintenance relates to low priority work, which will be undertaken through ongoing maintenance programmes or replacement of facilities. Where higher risks are present, work will be undertaken as a priority.

Obesity: Fertility

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by his Department on links between obesity and infertility; and if he will make a statement. [158308]

Dawn Primarolo: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual NHS supported research projects including a small number concerned with the relationship between obesity and fertility are available on the national research register at www.nrr.nhs.uk.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

The MRC is not currently funding research specifically relating to the causal links between obesity and fertility. As part of a portfolio of more general research relating to the various causes of infertility however, the MRC has recently allocated £300,000 for the following research project on polycystic ovarian syndrome that links the symptoms of obesity and infertility:

Dr. W. C. Duncan, University of Edinburgh—Polycystic Ovarian Syndrome: modelling development, phenotype and progression using a developmental paradigm.

Obesity: Pupils

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the medical testing of school children for obesity is conducted on a parental opt-out basis; and if he will make a statement. [157253]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Child Measurement programme (NCMP) gathers population level surveillance data and informs local planning and service delivery, and allows for the analysis of trends in growth patterns and obesity.

The NCMP is conducted on an opt-out basis. Our guidance states clearly that:

the privacy and dignity of the child is safeguarded at all times and the measurement is done sensitively in a private setting height and weight information should be gathered with minimal physical contact by health professionals (as defined in the Data Protection Act 1998).

parents receive a letter explaining the purpose of the programme, and provide them with the opportunity to withdraw their child from it.

Patients: Smoking

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the percentage of hospital beds occupied by smokers. [156770]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not collected centrally.

According to the latest data available, smoking kills an estimated 87,000 people a year in England, about one-fifth of all deaths, and leads to an extra 560,000 admissions to hospital.

Source:

Information Centre Statistics on Smoking 2006 and relates to 2004-05.

Primary Care Trusts: Elderly

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by primary care trust area the areas in England with the highest proportion of residents over the age of retirement per head of population for the latest year in which figures are available. [157012]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question regarding Primary Care Trust areas in England with the highest proportion of residents over the age of retirement per head of population for the latest year in which figures are available (157012).

The latest population estimates available by primary care trust are for mid-2005. Table 1 shows the percentage of the population over retirement age by Primary Care Organisation. These estimates will be revised shortly.

Estimates for mid-2006 and revised estimates for mid-2002 to mid-2005 will be published on 23 October 2007. These estimates are being revised to include improved international migration estimates. ONS has made improvements this year to the methods used for distributing international migrants to local areas as part of its "Improving Migration and Population Statistics" work programme. Please note therefore that the mid-2005 estimates provided here are not comparable with the revised 2005 mid-year estimates by Local Authority.

Smoking: Fines

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the likely number of fines to be issued for non-compliance with the public smoking ban in the first year of operation in England. [158187]

Dawn Primarolo: From the commencement of smokefree legislation in England on Sunday, 1 July 2007 levels of compliance have been very high.

Levels of compliance are fully in line with the Department's expectations set out in the regulatory impact assessment for the legislation which are based on the experiences of other jurisdictions that have introduced comprehensive smokefree legislation.

Based on data collected from local authorities across England 98.7 per cent. of premises and vehicles required to be smokefree inspected in August were found to be fully compliant with the law. Full information is published at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk/thefacts/national-compliance-data.html

A small number of formal enforcement actions have been taken by local authorities, with 45 fixed penalty notices issued (26 in one area) and three court actions having been taken in the period 1 July to 31 August 2007.

Smokefree legislation is supported by over three-quarters of people in England and the high levels of compliance to date is an clear indication that the objective of the new law—to protect people from secondhand smoke is being met.

West Sussex Primary Care Trust: Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis West Sussex primary care trust is of the view that its share of the NHS budget will increase by 4.5 per cent. a year over the next few years from 2007-08, as stated in its consultation document "Fit for the Future: modernising healthcare in West Sussex"; whether this figure relates to real-terms increases or cash-terms increases; and if he will make a statement. [157007]

Dawn Primarolo: No decision have yet been made about the timing of revenue allocations to primary care trusts for 2008-09 to 2010-11.

The West Sussex primary care trust should be able to provide further information regarding the figures quoted in its consultation document, "Fit for the Future: Modernising Healthcare in West Sussex", if required

Worthing Hospital

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if (a) he, (b) Lord Darzi and (c) the Chief Executive of the NHS will visit Worthing Hospital. [157840]

Dawn Primarolo: The Secretary of State for Health, Lord Darzi and David Nicholson, the NHS chief executive all make regular visits to national health service facilities across the country. Invitations are of course considered on a case by case basis and will depend upon diary pressures and parliamentary business. Therefore, if the hon. Member wishes to, he may send a formal request to Ministers.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the proposal from the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges that facilities at Worthing Hospital in West Sussex Primary Care Trust be downgraded. [157016]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for local primary care trusts in conjunction with other local stakeholders and their strategic health authorities (SHAs) to make assessments of current and future health needs and to commission services accordingly.

South East Coast SHA has advised officials that it has provided a response to the report which can be found at the SHA's website:

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Leader of the House what guidance her Office follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158589]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons' Office aims to respond to hon. Members' correspondence within 15 working days. During August 2007 this was achieved for 91 per cent. of MPs' and Peers' correspondence received. For the year 2006, the target was achieved for 95 per cent. of MPs' correspondence and 97 peers of Peers' correspondence.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many websites her Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running her Department's websites in the last five years. [157905]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons Office operate one website and has done so since June 2003. From April 2006 until March 2007 the annual cost of running the website was £7,050. From April 2007 until October 2007 the cost has been £4,112,50. Following a Machinery of Government change, information prior to 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157906]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons Office website has received a total of 6,894,877 hits since 1 January 2007.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of her Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157903]

Helen Goodman: Following a machinery of government change, detailed information on expenditure incurred in the 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many staff are seconded to her Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157904]

Helen Goodman: There are currently 20 members of staff who are seconded to the Cabinet Office from outside of Government. This figure includes five members of staff from the Houses of Parliament. The Houses of Parliament do not form part of the civil service. The following table lists (a) the outside body from which each has been seconded from and (b) length of each secondment:

Outside body	Number of staff	Length of secondment (Years)
Houses of Parliament	1	2
Arts Council England	1	<1

Departments: Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Leader of the House how many and what percentage of questions tabled for answer on a named day received a substantive answer on the day due in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by answering Department. [158051]

Helen Goodman: Individual Departments are responsible for keeping their own records on the timeliness of answers and providing this information to the House when requested by the Public Administration Committee or through Members' questions. To provide this information centrally could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The last available figures of the Leader of the House of Commons Office relate to the 2005-06 session. These show that 100 per cent. of the 71 named day questions tabled were answered on the date specified.

Members: Pensions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) debates and (b) votes there have been on the subject of hon. Members' pensions since 1997. [157367]

Helen Goodman: The following debates and votes relating to Members' pensions have been identified by the Journal Office as having taken place on the Floor of the House since 1997:

5 July 2001 (implementation of the elements of the 2001 SSRB report relating to MPs' pensions):

Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (divisions on amendments moved by hon. Members for Bournemouth, West (Sir John Butterfill) and for Oxford, West and Abingdon (Dr. Harris)).

3 November 2004 (implementation of the elements of the 2004 SSRB report relating to MPs' pensions):

(1) Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (Contribution Rate);

(2) Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (Survivor Benefits and Early Retirement).

In addition, there was a debate in a delegated legislation Committee on 23 July 2002 on the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Regulations 2002 (S.I., 2002, No 1807) (followed by a division).

Parliamentary Scrutiny: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House if she will bring forward proposals to improve scrutiny of European Union legislation. [157578]

Helen Goodman: I refer the hon. Lady to my answer during oral questions on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 19.

TRANSPORT

A12: Essex

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on upgrading the A12 in Essex to motorway standard; and if she will make a statement. [158421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Secretary of State is not aware of any recent representations for upgrading the A12 to motorway standard. Following the recommendations of the M25 to Ipswich multi-modal study in 2002, the Secretary of State asked the Highways Agency to carry out further appraisal for upgrading the A12 between the M25 and Colchester.

In July 2006 the Secretary of State accepted the advice of the East of England's Regional Assembly on regional transport investment priorities, not to prioritise the A12 for funding in the period up to 2015-16. It will be for the Region to reconsider in the review of the Regional Funding Allocations due in 2008.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will estimate the cost of upgrading the A12 in Essex to motorway standard. [158422]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The A12 all purpose trunk road in Essex is a mixture of dual two and three lane carriageways of varying standard. There are no proposals to upgrade the A12 to motorway standard and consequently no assessment work has been undertaken. Hence no costs for upgrading the A12 to motorway standard are available.

Blue Badge Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what Government research has been undertaken into the independent mobility needs of (a) people with mental health problems, (b) partially sighted people, (c) people with severe learning and/or behavioural difficulties and (d) people with severe autism to determine their eligibility for a Blue Badge; [158032]

(2) whether her Department has issued, on behalf of all four UK Administrations, guidance specifying the criteria for further assessment of applicants for Blue Badge parking permits; [158033]

(3) whether children under two years old whose medical needs require the transport of bulky equipment at all times have been made eligible under the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme; [158034]

(4) what progress her Department has made towards ensuring nationally consistent eligibility criteria for those subject to further assessment under the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme; [158035]

(5) whether assessments of independent mobility for the Blue Badge parking scheme are routinely undertaken by a health professional other than the applicant's GP; [158041]

(6) whether, where entitlement to a Blue Badge is linked to receipt of the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance, the period of issue is linked to that of receipt of the allowance; [158042]

(7) what progress has been made towards establishing a national, centrally funded, database of Blue Badge holders; [158043]

(8) whether Blue Badge applicants automatically entitled by their receipt of the higher rate mobility component of the disability living allowance are required to give explicit consent to the sharing of personal data under the Data Protection Act 1998. [158044]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Research into the mobility needs of certain disability groups who may not be eligible for the Blue Badge under the current eligibility criteria, was completed earlier this year. This included people with severe autism, mental health difficulties, learning and/or behavioural difficulties and people who are partially sighted. The findings were considered as part of the strategic review of the scheme, which reported to me in September and will contribute to the publication of a comprehensive Blue Badge reform strategy by April 2008.

All English authorities will be issued with revised guidance later this year. As responsibility for the scheme is devolved in the UK, the Administrations for Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland are producing their own guidance separately.

Following changes I announced recently, children under the age of two, who are dependent upon bulky medical equipment, have been eligible for a badge under the scheme from 15 October 2007.

The Department for Transport recognises the need to promote greater consistency of assessment. This is a key theme which is being addressed through our strategic review and forthcoming Blue Badge reform strategy. The revised local authority guidance, due for publication later this year, will also help to clarify the assessed eligibility process.

The medical assessment practice varies between different local authorities. We are committed to actively promoting good practice guidance in this area and are engaging with the Department of Health on this issue.

From 15 October 2007, certain badges are now linked to the receipt and issue period of both the higher rate mobility component of the disability living allowance and war pensioners' mobility supplement.

Research into the feasibility of a national database was completed earlier this year. The findings were considered as part of the strategic review of the scheme, which will contribute to the publication of a comprehensive Blue Badge reform strategy by April 2008.

All local authorities have a duty to comply with the Data Protection Act 1988. The revised local authority guidance, due for publication later this year, will provide additional advice on this area and a model data protection statement for Blue Badge applicants to complete.

Car Hire: Regulation

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what legislation covers the regulation of car hire companies; and when the last review of these provisions was undertaken. [154747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport is not aware of any legislation relating specifically to the regulation of car hire companies.

However, the Disability Discrimination (Transport Vehicles) Regulations 2005 [SI 2005/3190], which came into force on 4 December 2006, do cover "hire vehicles" (the definition of which is relevant to vehicles hired out by car hire companies).

The 2005 regulations effectively disapplied certain exemptions contained in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 in respect of particular types of vehicle, including "hire vehicles". As a result, car hire companies (like other vehicle-hire firms covered by the 2005 regulations) can no longer discriminate against disabled persons when providing vehicles.

Departments: Fixed Penalties

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of her Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157919]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport and its agencies maintain the policy that road traffic violations such as parking tickets and speeding fines remain the responsibility of the individual, and are not reimbursed from public resources. Three of the Department's agencies record penalties incurred by their drivers on official business, and these amounted to a total of 17 in financial year 2006-07. No financial cost was incurred by the Department.

The exception to this is the Government Car and Despatch Agency which pays parking fines incurred operationally in circumstances where the overriding security requirements of high profile passengers or secure or sensitive documents necessarily dictate the choice of parking location. 73 such fines were paid in financial year 2006-07, at a total cost of £5,898.02.

Metronet: Insolvency

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the debts left to the public sector following Metronet's failure to fulfil its contract with London Underground; and how she expects those debts to be met. [157848]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for Metronet's Administrators, working with Transport for London and London Underground, to identify the best route out of Administration. In advance of their conclusions, it continues to be inappropriate to speculate on any public sector financial impacts and, therefore, how such impacts would be handled.

Railways: Performance Standards

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the performance of First Capital Connect services between Peterborough and London over the last five years. [158961]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since the commencement of the First Capital Connect (FCC) franchise on 1 April 2006, the Public Performance Measure (PPM) Moving Annual Average for the Great Northern route, which includes services between Peterborough and London, has increased from 89.56 per cent. to 92.35 per cent. in the most recent complete operating period. FCC recently achieved a period PPM of 96.09 per cent. on the GN route, which is the highest achieved since franchising in the 1990s.

Railways: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail passengers travelled on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992; and if she will make a statement. [158971]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the services provided within Wales and across the border by Arriva Trains Wales. Details of the number of passengers who have travelled on railway lines in Wales each year since 1992 are not held by the Department for Transport.

Statistics on numbers of passengers on the railway network are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook editions, which are available in the House Library or from their website: www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway carriages were used on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992; how many seats were provided in those carriages in each of those years; and if she will make a statement. [158972]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the services provided within Wales and across the border by Arriva Trains Wales. Details of the number of carriages that were used on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992 and the number of seats provided in those carriages are not held by the Department.

Road Traffic

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which local authorities have submitted bids for funding from the congestion element of the Transport Innovation Fund in each year since its creation; and which were (a) accepted and (b) rejected; [158106]

(2) which local authorities have applied for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund; which have been (a) accepted and (b) rejected; and what form of congestion charging, road pricing or workplace parking taxes the successful ones are proposing. [158107]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Money from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) will become available from 2008-09. Ten areas have been awarded pump-priming funding to support the development of Transport Innovation Fund packages that address local congestion problems combining demand management, including road pricing, with better public transport. So far one substantive TIF bid for funding has been received. The Association of Greater Manchester Authorities (AGMA) have submitted a business case for Transport Innovation Fund funding for a package to tackle congestion by combining transport investment and road pricing. Details are available on http://www.gmfuturetransport.co.uk/. We are currently assessing the case.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic (a) accidents and (b) fatalities there were on the A14 in Suffolk in each year since 1997; and how many involved drivers under the age of 21 years in each case. [159209]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is given in the following tables.

Number of reported personal injury road accidents and fatalities on the A14 in Suffolk; 1997-2006

	Accidents (a)	Fatalities (b)
1997	128	7
1998	123	2
1999	122	8
2000	138	8
2001	138	10
2002	157	5
2003	128	3
2004	143	5
2005	150	4
2006	119	6

Number of reported personal injury road accidents involving drivers under the age of 21 and resulting fatalities on the A14 in Suffolk:1997-2006

1997	21	1
1998	26	1
1999	21	1
2001	26	1

Taxis

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions control whether hackney carriages outside London may collect customers after being hailed off the street, outside a taxi rank. [158108]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The law allows the drivers of licensed hackney carriages to accept immediate hirings from passengers either when the cabs are standing at a rank or in response to a hailing in the street. The drivers are, however, only permitted to accept such hirings while located in the area for which they are licensed. If a driver drops off a passenger outside his own licensing area he cannot respond to a street hailing (or stand at a rank) until he returns to his own licensing area.

Vehicles: Insurance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the number of uninsured vehicles in the Greater London area. [159008]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our latest estimate for the United Kingdom is that in 2005 there were about 2.1 million licensed vehicles being driven uninsured (about 6.5 per cent. of the UK vehicle fleet). Information is not held by area.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Aggregates Levy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which beneficiaries of the Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund received more than £50,000 in any one year in each year since the inception of the levy. [158548]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund database contains details of overall amounts paid out to projects from April 2004 onwards, but we do not have annual payments recorded centrally. I have arranged for a list of beneficiaries that have received over £50,000 from the Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund, since April 2004, to be placed in the Library of the House.

Agriculture: Floods

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration he has given to applying for EU emergency funds under Articles 87 and 88 of the EC Treaty to compensate farmers for flood damage to crops and livestock. [154039]

Mr. Woolas: Articles 87 and 88 of the European Community Treaty do not provide access to European Union (EU) emergency funds. The categories (which also include the guidelines and regulations that have since been formulated on this issue) relate to aid, funded by individual member states rather than the EU, that we are allowed to pay in certain circumstances (state aid).

The UK has submitted an application to the EU Solidarity Fund in the wake of this summer's flooding. However, the purpose of the fund is to assist member state Governments with costs that arise from the relief efforts and those of returning infrastructure to the condition it was in before the disaster occurred. It is unlikely that compensation to private business, including farmers, for losses arising from the floods would be eligible. As part of the application process, the Government will agree with the Commission how any support received from the Solidarity Fund will be used.

Battery Hens: EU Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with the European Commission on the release of the report on the progress of the transition towards the ban on battery cages for egg production due to come into effect in 2012; [157719]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the Laying Hens Directive will have on the number of eggs imported into the UK from outside the EU; and if he will make a statement; [157720]

(3) what assessment he has made of the state of readiness of the British egg industry to implement the Laying Hens Directive, with particular reference to the banning of battery cages for egg production from 2012. [157718]

Jonathan Shaw: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) recently met with Commissioner Kyprianou and stressed the urgency of publishing the Commission's report. The report will consider the various systems for keeping laying hens, their health and environmental impact, socio-economic implications and effects on the Community's economic partners.

A regulatory impact assessment was produced in 2002 when Council Directive 99/74/EC was transposed into domestic legislation. This will be updated in the light of the Commission's report and will consider such aspects as the impact of the 2012 conventional cage ban on the industry and trading patterns. Currently, over half of UK egg production is from caged birds although, during the last few years, there has been a shift in production methods in the UK from conventional cages to enriched cages and alternative systems.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the report Badgers and Cattle TB: Final Report of the Independent Scientific Group was peer reviewed; who peer reviewed it; what feedback was received from the peer review; and if he will make a statement. [157271]

Jonathan Shaw: The Independent Scientific Group's (ISG) Final Report as whole has not been peer-reviewed. However, most of the work has been published in leading, independently peer-reviewed scientific journals. Appendix J of the Report (available on the DEFRA website and in the Libraries of the House) summarises their published scientific papers and other important published material.

Formal independent audits of core aspects of the trial were undertaken at appropriate intervals. These included the field procedures of surveying, social group delineation and badger removal, welfare aspects of the way trapped badgers were dispatched, post-mortem protocols and bacteriological culture procedures, as well as procedures for data collection, handling and statistical analysis. Appendix E of the Report lists the programme of audits undertaken throughout the trial.

The ISG webpage, which lists their publications, can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/tb/isg/isgpublications.htm

and reports of the independent audits that have been carried out can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/tb/culling/p5aud.htm.

Carbon Emissions: Personal Income

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has commissioned research on the carbon footprint of those on low incomes compared to those on high incomes. [158538]

Mr. Woolas: As part of its pre-feasibility study into personal carbon trading, the Government will be looking at, among other things, carbon footprints of different groups to assess the equity impact of personal carbon trading.

This will follow initial work conducted by the Centre for Sustainable Energy (CSE) in November 2006, entitled "A Rough Guide to Individual Carbon Trading". One of the findings of this report was that, in general, those on lower incomes tend to emit less carbon dioxide than average, while those on higher incomes tend to emit more carbon dioxide than average. A personal carbon trading system might have the potential to achieve emissions savings in a fairer way than a carbon tax.

A recent piece of work by the CSE, commissioned by DEFRA to help inform development of the post-2011 supplier obligation, further illustrates the correlation between income level and carbon emissions. This study also draws out important variations within income bands, showing that some low-income households have very high consumption levels and some high-income households have very low consumption levels.

Carbon Emissions: Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy that (a) any carbon budget he sets out for 2008 to 2012 will require a lower level of emissions in that period than in the preceding five years and (b) that every future budget period will be set at a level lower than its predecessor. [158343]

Mr. Woolas: As set out in the draft Climate Change Bill, the independent Committee on Climate Change will advise the Government on the emissions reduction pathway to achieve the 2020 and 2050 targets. The Committee will advise specifically on the level of carbon budgets, taking into account where carbon savings can be achieved across the economy and the optimum balance between domestic action and international trading in carbon allowances.

Its first task will be to advise the Government on the first three five-year carbon budgets by 1 September 2008.

Carbon Sequestration: Peat

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the merits of natural peatlands as net absorbers of carbon dioxide; and what measures are in place to protect peatlands to combat greenhouse gas emissions. [157979]

Mr. Woolas: Peatlands are a significant store of carbon in the UK and require protection. A substantial proportion of these are found in Scotland. However, in terms of absorbing carbon dioxide, the potential is limited, due to their slow growth.

DEFRA is currently seeking to develop its understanding of the risks to this carbon store and to investigate the best means of protecting peatlands and the biodiversity they support. The Department is in the process of setting up a cross-governmental project that is intended to form part of DEFRA's new soil strategy for England. This will ensure that DEFRA and its agencies co-ordinate their activity on peat soils and liaise effectively with the devolved Administrations as well as identifying best practice for protecting peatlands and putting in place the appropriate measures.

However, to a large extent, land managers are already protecting peatlands for their biodiversity value under agri-environment schemes and Sites of Special Scientific Interest. Around 230,000 hectares of peatlands are currently managed under agri-environment agreements in England.

Cattle: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on progress towards a cattle vaccine for (a) foot and mouth disease, (b) blue tongue and (c) bovine TB. [157365]

Jonathan Shaw: A large number of foot and mouth vaccines for a range of different strains are already held in the UK vaccine bank at the Merial production facility in Pirbright This is the only facility licensed to produce foot and mouth disease vaccines in the UK. As soon as we identified the precise strain of the circulating virus we ordered 300,000 doses to be made ready for use. This vaccine is licensed for use in cattle and other species and the production was cleared by the Health and Safety Executive and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate.

However, DEFRA has decided not to vaccinate at this time as the epidemiological evidence concludes that the risk of the infection spreading out of Surrey is very low. Therefore, the slaughter of animals on infected premises and dangerous contacts remains the most effective way of eradicating the disease.

There is currently no suitable vaccine for the bluetongue serotype 8 available; as this serotype only emerged in Europe last year. However, we are aware of several companies who are developing such a vaccine for use in cattle and sheep and we are in urgent discussions with them to do what we can to encourage this work. We are also developing a plan with the industry as to how a vaccination campaign would work once a vaccine becomes available, is licensed, safe and effective for use; we hope this will be next year.

While progress is being made on the development of a TB vaccine for cattle, vaccination as a practical TB control measure is still some way off. DEFRA-funded research has successfully identified lead candidate vaccines and we are now starting to look at delivery protocols. Research is also continuing on tests to differentiate infected from vaccinated animals (DIVA tests). It is important to note that development of a successful TB vaccine cannot be guaranteed, and that if a vaccine can be developed it will only form one part of a balanced package of measures to control the disease.

Departments: Foot and Mouth Disease

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with Ministry of Defence Ministers or officials on restrictions on civilian leisure activities on Ministry of Defence land as a result of foot and mouth disease. [157071]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is in regular contact with the Ministry of Defence (MoD) and, during the recent foot and mouth outbreaks, we have had a range of discussions. During the initial outbreaks, DEFRA was in daily contact with the MoD to clarify public access arrangements and countryside activities in high risk areas.

During the initial outbreaks in August, at the request of DEFRA, officials from Defence Estates, the relevant MoD organisation, assisted Surrey county council in closing MoD public land within the protection zone.

In line with DEFRA guidelines, MoD has not imposed any public access or leisure restrictions on their land in low risk areas during the recent outbreaks.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157002]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 15 October 2007, Official Report column 823W.

Domestic Wastes: Microprocessors

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has produced or commissioned on the use of radio frequency identification chips in rubbish bins. [158220]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2097W.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the level of public satisfaction with local authority waste collection services in areas with (a) alternate weekly collections and (b) weekly collections. [155700]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA does not carry out its own monitoring of satisfaction with waste services. It is the responsibility of local authorities to do this at. At present, they are required under the local government performance framework to carry out a survey every three years as part of the best value performance indicators. Further information about these indicators is available from the local government performance website at:

www.bvpi.gov.uk

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on the size of wheelie bins for household rubbish collection; [158096]

(2) what advice (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on the sizes of wheelie bins for household rubbish collection. [158113]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has not given any guidance on this issue.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) issued guidance on alternate weekly collection ("Alternate Weekly Collections: Guidance for Local Authorities") which has a short section on the size of wheelie bins. WRAP has issued no other guidance on this issue.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 156-7W on domestic wastes: waste disposal, to my hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), what estimate has been made of the proportion of household rubbish collected for recycling that is not recycled in local authorities which do not have material recycling facilities. [158138]

Joan Ruddock: No specific assessment has been made by my Department on the proportion of household rubbish collected for recycling not recycled in local authorities which do not have material recycling facilities.

The challenging recycling and composting targets set for all local authorities in England mean that it is in the authority's interest to recycle or compost as much of the viable material collected. Local authorities without local facilities may either use facilities in other areas, or send recyclables for reprocessing outside the UK.

When reporting data to WasteDataFlow, local authorities should specify the amount of waste collected for recycling that is subsequently rejected at the point of collection, at a Materials Recycling Facility (MRF), or at the gate of the reprocessor. The data reported to WasteDataFlow are used by the Environment Agency and DEFRA to monitor the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research, advice or guidance the consultancy Eunomia has produced at public expense on levying charges on households for providing containers which will hold domestic rubbish. [158247]

Joan Ruddock: Eunomia Research and Consulting Ltd. have conducted research for DEFRA through the project "Modelling the Impact of Household Charging for Waste in England". This report contains a literature review and modelling work, which includes sack-based schemes and bin volume schemes. Both of these involve charging households for containers which will hold domestic rubbish.

They have not provided any policy advice or guidance.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice or guidance (a) the Waste and Resources Action Programme and (b) his Department has provided to councils on levying charges on households for providing containers which will hold domestic rubbish. [158248]

Joan Ruddock: No advice or guidance have been provided by the Waste and Resources Action Programme or DEFRA on these issues.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether, under his Department's proposals to allow local authorities to charge for the collection of household waste, waste collection authorities will remain under an obligation to collect rubbish from households which did not pay the charges. [158403]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA is considering responses to a recent consultation on the issue of whether local authorities should be given a new legal power to introduce non income-raising ('revenue neutral') incentive schemes for minimising waste. This would be a power not a duty, and the aim of any such scheme would be to incentivise behavioural change. This would not be a charging scheme for the collection of waste, as any payments required would be aimed at influencing behaviour change and not on the cost of the collection service.

The duty of waste collection authorities, under the Environmental Protection Act 1990, to collect household waste (subject to certain exemptions) would not be altered by the Department's proposals.

Floods: Insurance

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the insurance industry on the provision of (a) adequate flood defences by the Government and (b) insurance cover in areas vulnerable to flooding; and if he will make a statement. [159097]

Mr. Woolas: Ministerial colleagues, officials and I are in regular contact with the insurance industry and the Association of British Insurers. We are working together with the mutual aim of ensuring continued widespread availability of flood insurance cover through the Association's Statement of Principles. This sets out commitments by insurers on the availability of flood insurance, associated with commitments by the Government on effective management of flood risk.

Floods: Risk Assessment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Environment Agency's definition is of the probability of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high flood risk in terms of the frequency in years at which an area is likely to flood. [158411]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency uses three categories for defining the probability of a flood. They are low, moderate and significant.

Low—the chance of flooding each year is 0.5 per cent. (1 in 200) or less.

Moderate—the chance of flooding in any year is 1.3 per cent. (1 in 75) or less but greater than 0.5 per cent. (1 in 200).

Significant—the chance of flooding in any year is greater than 1.3 per cent. (1 in 75).

Food: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on food waste collection, including which types of food can and cannot be placed in food waste buckets. [158216]

Joan Ruddock: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) offers advice to local authorities on arrangements for food waste collection. This advice has been developed on the basis of published literature, a number of projects commissioned by WRAP and current local authority experience of providing food waste collection services. The general advice is that if local authorities are considering collecting food waste they should consider collecting it separately and on a weekly basis. Where food waste is collected separately, WRAP advises that local authorities provide appropriate containers to householders (typically a kitchen caddy and a rigid external container) to make the separation of food waste easier for residents and to encourage them to take part in the service.

The types of food waste suitable for collection will depend on the treatment facilities available to a local authority. All food waste collected separately must be treated at enclosed facilities (for example, in-vessel composting or anaerobic digestion plants) that meet the requirements of the Animal By-Products Regulations and are approved by the State Veterinary Service. Typically this will include cooked and uncooked food, dairy products, meat, fish and fruit/vegetables.

Foot and Mouth Disease

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what time period elapsed between the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease and cessation of work on dangerous viruses at the Pirbright laboratories. [157521]

Jonathan Shaw: Foot and mouth disease was first confirmed on a premises in Surrey on 3 August. As soon as the circulating virus strain was identified as the same strain as the one held at the Pirbright site on 4 August, DEFRA and Merial agreed that, because of the large quantities involved, the use of live virus would be voluntarily suspended by Merial. The case for a similar suspension at the Institute for Animal Health (IAH) was also considered on 4 August and has been kept under active review since then. Drawing on advice from the Health and Safety Executive, some modification has been made to the agreed arrangements where IAH can work with live virus. However, our judgment to date has been that, because of the small volumes of live virus handled by IAH and the additional measures the Institute has put in place, complete suspension is not justified.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals have been culled (a) on infected premises, (b) on the basis of slaughter on suspicion and (c) as a result of dangerous contact following the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease. [158644]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: A total of 2,160 animals have been compulsorily culled as a result of the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease. A breakdown of the statistics is shown as follows:

Current premises status	Number of premises	Number culled and disposed[1]
Infected premises[2]	8	1,578
Dangerous contacts	7	195
Slaughter on suspicion[3]	2	387

Current premises status	Number of premises	Number culled and disposed[2]
Totals	17	2,160

[1] Figures as of 12 October 2007 and may be subject to change.
[2] Includes slaughter on suspicion and dangerous contact premises subsequently confirmed as infected premises.
[3] Excludes those cases which were subsequently confirmed as infected premises.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Disease Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many infected premises livestock has been slaughtered in relation to the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease; and how many individual holdings make up the number of infected premises. [157931]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Livestock has been culled on eight infected premises during the current outbreak of foot and mouth disease. These eight infected premises comprised a total of 24 individual locations where susceptible livestock was culled.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on which premises livestock was culled during the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease on the basis of (a) being on infected premises, (b) the policy of slaughter on suspicion, (c) dangerous contact and (d) being on contiguous premises. [157932]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: DEFRA policy is not to name individual affected premises. In addition to the eight infected premises there have been two premises on which animals were culled as part of the policy of slaughter on suspicion, and a further seven premises where animals were culled as dangerous contacts. There are no premises where animals have been culled solely on the basis that they were contiguous to an infected premises.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) infected premises, (b) slaughter on suspicion premises, (c) dangerous contacts and (d) contiguous premises were tested during the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease for signs of the disease; and how many in each category returned positive tests. [157933]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Animals have been tested at all premises where culling has taken place for disease control reasons. At least one animal tested positive for foot and mouth disease at all eight of the infected premises. No animals at the two remaining slaughter on suspicion and seven dangerous contact premises tested positive for foot and mouth disease.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Exports

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals have been slaughtered as a consequence of the ban on exports because of foot and mouth disease. [157700]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: DEFRA holds figures only for animals culled for disease control purposes. It is estimated that the number of animals (cattle, sheep and pigs) slaughtered for consumption in England during August and September this year is 14 per cent. below the same period in 2006 (equivalent to around 455,152 animals). This figure includes animals slaughtered in England but originating in Scotland and Wales.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) for what reasons trail and drag hunting is prohibited in foot and mouth disease low risk areas; [157068]

(2) whether there are biosecurity hazards associated with trail and drag hunting; [157069]

(3) when he will allow trail and drag hunting on foot and mouth disease (a) low risk and (b) risk areas. [157070]

Jonathan Shaw: The current ban on trail and drag hunting across the whole of Great Britain is a legal requirement under the Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) (England) Order 2006 and was also required by previous legislation dating back to 1983.

Epidemiological evidence from the current outbreak suggests that the disease could have been transmitted by fomites on vehicles or other bodies and could have been carried from areas containing infected animals to previously 'clean' areas.

The risk of horses, in particular, transporting the virus in this way is increased. This is because they are often kept on the same premises as susceptible animals, transported in vehicles used for moving susceptible animals, have contact with susceptible animals on neighbouring farms, or are handled by persons who also have contact with susceptible animals.

There are, therefore, tight controls on the types of activities such as trail and drag hunting involving horses.

Our many licensing priorities in both the FMD risk and low risk areas are constantly under review with consideration from the farming industry and experts. Any decision to allow trail and drag hunting under licence will be based on an assessment of the disease risk. We will continue to keep restrictions under review with the aim of lifting them as quickly as possible consistent with our overriding objective of eradicating FMD.

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will review regulations that forbid trail and drag hunting and stalking in low risk foot and mouth areas such as Northumberland, Cumbria and Yorkshire. [157549]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The current ban on trail and drag hunting and stalking across the whole of Great Britain is a legal requirement under the Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) (England) Order 2006 and was also required by previous legislation dating back to 1983.

Our licensing priorities are constantly under review with consideration from industry and experts. Any decision to allow trail and drag hunting will be based on assessment of the disease risk. We will continue to keep restrictions under constant review with the aim of lifting them as quickly as possible consistent with our overriding objective of eradicating FMD.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Public Inquiries

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to establish an independent public inquiry into its handling of the foot and mouth outbreaks of 2007. [157420]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Following the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease in August and September 2007, the Prime Minister has asked Dr. Iain Anderson to look at the Government's response to the outbreak. Dr. Anderson chaired the previous independent inquiry into the 2001 outbreak. The terms of reference for the Foot and Mouth Review 2007 are:

To conduct a review of the Government's handling of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease during 2007, in order to:

i. Establish whether relevant points from the Lessons to be Learned Report on the 2001 outbreak were implemented;

ii. Establish whether new lessons might be drawn from the handling of the 2007 outbreak; and

iii. To make recommendations by the end of 2007 to the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the future handling of foot and mouth disease outbreaks.

This is the most effective and efficient way to learn the lessons of this outbreak and respond accordingly. We have no plans to establish a public inquiry.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Scotland

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the National Farmers Union of Scotland on the outbreaks of (i) foot and mouth and (ii) blue tongue disease; [157150]

(2) what meetings (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the Ministers or officials of the Scottish Executive to discuss the outbreak of (i) foot and mouth and (ii) blue tongue disease; and if he will make a statement; [157151]

(3) what representations (a) he and (b) his officials have received from (i) Ministers and (ii) officials of the Scottish Executive on compensation available to farmers in Scotland following the outbreak of (A) foot and mouth and (B) blue tongue disease; and if he will make a statement; [157152]

(4) what representations he has received from the National Farmers Union of Scotland on compensation for losses suffered as a result of the foot and mouth outbreak. [157153]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 11 October 2007]: We are working closely with the Scottish Executive and others to co-ordinate our disease control response throughout the United Kingdom. DEFRA has had a range of discussions with the Scottish Executive throughout the current outbreaks of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue, at both ministerial and official level. The National Farmers Union (NFU) of Scotland have participated in discussions with officials from DEFRA and the Scottish Executive. We have also received a range of representations from the Scottish Executive and the NFU on these issues, including compensation.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Sheep

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimates he has made of the number of fat lambs which remain unsold due to foot and mouth restrictions. [157276]

Jonathan Shaw: It is estimated that the number of fat lambs slaughtered for consumption in England, during August and September this year, is 21 per cent. below the same period in 2006. This equates to around 370,000 animals and it includes lambs slaughtered in England but originating in Scotland and Wales.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will ensure price support is provided for farmers affected by the foot and mouth outbreaks of 2007. [157419]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Under the Animal Health Act 1981, compensation is paid for animals that are compulsorily slaughtered to prevent the spread of disease. For foot and mouth disease (FMD), the Act requires that compensation is paid at the full market value before the animal became infected. This is determined by an approved valuer at the time of slaughter. Compensation is also paid for other items, such as farm equipment and feed, where these are seized because they are considered to be contaminated; this includes such things as milk. However, it is a long established principle that the Government do not meet the costs of consequential losses, which must be borne by the industry. Government seek to minimise the risk of market impacts, particularly by encouraging public understanding of the issues.

We are taking a risk-based and staged approach to easing movement restrictions when the evidence indicates that it is appropriate to do so. This is the best way to facilitate the return to normal working for the industry. We are working in partnership with the industry, but eradication of foot and mouth disease remains our priority.

There is a role for the Government in partially meeting the immediate need to encourage higher consumption at home and to provide an alternative market for products previously exported. On 8 October, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) announced a support package worth £12.5 million to stimulate the market and assist those livestock farmers worst affected by restrictions imposed as a result of FMD, Official Report, column 39. The package includes £8.5 million to provide support for our hill farmers; £1 million to assist farmers in the FMD risk area with the cost of removing fallen stock; £2 million to promote the sales of red meat and pork domestically and in our export markets; and a donation of up to £1 million to the Arthur Rank Centre for disbursement to Farming Help charities.

Hares Preservation Act 1892

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether there are plans to repeal the Hares Preservation Act 1892 in full or in part. [158628]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 17 October 2007]: DEFRA currently has no plans to repeal the Hares Preservation Act 1892 in full or in part.

Hazardous Substances: Waste Disposal

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what enforcement mechanisms exist to ensure that companies which fail to dispose properly of toxic waste are liable for damage caused as a result. [154589]

Joan Ruddock: The illegal disposal of waste is a criminal offence under section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Individuals and companies can be liable for the offence which carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment, an unlimited fine, or both. When deciding on the severity of a sentence to impose on a company that has been found guilty of disposing of waste illegally, the court is able to take into consideration any damage caused as a result, including environmental damage.

In addition, sections 42 and 43 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 amended section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 to give the courts new powers to:

(a) order an offender to pay the enforcing authority's investigation and enforcement costs, and any costs associated with the seizure of vehicles involved in the offence;

(b) require the offender to pay the Environment Agency, a local authority or the occupier or owner of land, any costs incurred in removing waste that has been illegally deposited. Clean-up costs can include removing the waste and/or taking other steps to reduce the consequences of the incident.

The Government are currently in the process of implementing the Environmental Liability Directive which is aimed at the prevention and remedying of environmental damage. This is based on the "polluter pays" principle.

Institute for Animal Health: Pirbright

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what bio-security measures are in force at the Institute for Animal Health Laboratory and the adjoining Merial Animal Health Laboratory at Pirbright to ensure that human and animal health is not affected by work being carried out there; and if he will make a statement. [158629]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 October 2007]: Stringent bio-security conditions have always applied to work carried out on the Pirbright site. Additional measures have now been implemented that go above and beyond those contained in the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and Spratt reports. These measures are set out in the Government's response to those reports, which is available in the Libraries of the House and on the DEFRA website.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which officials in his Department have been responsible for the inspection and licensing of Pirbright laboratories in each year since 2002; and whether those officials remain in post. [157316]

Jonathan Shaw: Inspections were carried out for the Department by senior DEFRA veterinarians with specialist knowledge of laboratory containment, exotic animal diseases and the requirements for licensing laboratories under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998. Some of these officials have since left the Department, for reasons not connected with this work, while others remain in post.

Ivory

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what policy line he took at the 14th Conference of the Parties of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species on the sale of stockpiled ivory. [157775]

Joan Ruddock: The UK policy was, and is, that we only support the one-off sale of stockpiled ivory where the conditions originally agreed by CITES parties in 2002 have been met. At the meeting of the 55th CITES Standing Committee on 2 June 2007, immediately prior to the 14th Conference of the Parties (CoP14), it was agreed that the conditions had been met and the stockpile sale was permitted. The UK was satisfied that the conditions had been met and, therefore, supported this decision at the meeting, with the proviso that funding for the subsequent monitoring of the outcomes of the sale was secured.

At the subsequent CoP14 (3-15 June), agreement was reached by African range states that increased tonnages could be sold, including stockpiles from Zimbabwe. It was also agreed that there will be a nine year "resting" period on consideration of any further sales of ivory after the one-off sale takes place to allow the effects of the stockpile sale to be properly assessed. Some of the proceeds of the sale will be placed in an African Elephant Fund to support conservation measures across their range.

Leading up to the Conference, the UK (and EU) maintained an open position on this issue preferring the African elephant range states to debate the issue among themselves. The UK Government was pleased that agreement over such a contentious issue was finally reached and fully supported the outcome.

Land: Planning

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the research report commissioned by his Department on the effect of best and most versatile land designation on planning decisions (LE0217). [158090]

Jonathan Shaw: I have arranged for a copy of this report to be placed in the Library.

Landfill Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of landfill tax which will be raised from waste arising from recent serious cases of flooding. [158251]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has not specifically assessed the increase in landfill tax receipts following recent serious cases of flooding.

However, we would expect only a relatively small increase in municipal waste arisings as a result of recent flooding, which would be within the normal range of variations in annual waste arisings. This should not have a long-term or significant impact on waste management costs.

Landfill: Methane

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what requirements there are for (a) new and (b) existing landfill sites to collect methane emissions from the site and use them as an energy source. [158089]

Joan Ruddock: The EU Landfill Directive (1999/31/EC) requires landfill gas to be collected from all new and existing landfill sites receiving biodegradable waste; landfill gas must be treated and used; and landfill gas which cannot be used to produce energy must be flared. The collection, treatment and use of landfill gas must be undertaken in a manner which minimises damage to or deterioration of the environment and risk to human health.

In this context, an existing landfill site is one which was operational on or after 16 July 2001.

Recycling: Business

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what incentives his Department provides for local authorities to engage with local businesses to promote recycling. [157936]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The landfill tax escalator gives greater financial incentives to reduce, reuse and recycle waste. This was increased in the 2007 Budget so that the standard rate of tax will increase by £8 per year from 2008 until at least 2010-11. If private waste collectors that collect commercial waste fail to offer alternatives to landfill (such as recycling) they will find that the waste treatment services they offer will no longer be cost effective. This is an incentive for waste contractors to consider developing waste management partnerships with local authorities to provide services to local businesses.

In addition, the Business Resource Efficiency and Waste Programme (BREW) has been developed to give money raised through the landfill tax back to business through funding resource efficiency and waste projects that will benefit business. The BREW Centre for Local Authorities was set up to help local authorities undertake a leadership role in supporting the business community to become more profitable through business resource efficiency and waste reduction.

Recycling: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what additional funding is being provided to local authorities to meet central Government recycling targets. [158115]

Joan Ruddock: The main sources of funding for local authorities' waste management services are revenue support grant (RSG) and national non-domestic rates (NNDR), distributed by central Government, and council tax. It is for local authorities to decide what proportion of this funding to invest in waste management services, including recycling. Other funding made available to authorities in England for waste management since 1997 is shown in the following table:

Funding provided

Scheme	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
						million
Waste Minimisation and Recycling Fund	50	90	90	45	—	—
Waste Performance and Efficiency Grant	—	—	—	40	105	110
Grant to Relieve Spending Pressures on Waste	—	—	20	—	—	—
Household Incentives Pilot Scheme	—	—	—	5	—	—
Private Finance Initiative	70	100	125	130	255	280
Local Communications Fund (WRAP)	—	—	16.2	—	—	—
Behavioural Change Local Fund (WRAP)	—	—	—	—	13

As part of Comprehensive Spending Review 2007, the Government have also announced a further step change in Private Finance Initiative spending on waste, more than doubling from £280 million in 2007-08 to £700 million by 2010-11, totalling £2 billion over the three years of the next spending period.

Waste Management: Welsh Assembly Government

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on the CBI's proposals for UK and Europe-wide standards on waste management. [157336]

Joan Ruddock: On 12 October 2006, the Government, in association with the devolved Administrations, published a consultation paper on the European Commission's proposal to revise the Waste Framework Directive (WFD). The Commission's proposal included a provision to enable the adoption by comitology of EU-wide minimum standards for waste management operations. A summary and analysis of the responses to this consultation is available on the DEFRA website at:

www.defra.gov.uk.

The Confederation of British Industry (CBI) responded to DEFRA's consultation on the revision of the WFD. However, I am advised that DEFRA has no record of the CBI subsequently submitting proposals for UK and EU-wide standards on waste management. It follows that no discussions on such proposals have taken place with the Welsh Assembly Government.

Wood

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of methods to decontaminate surplus wood of toxic preservatives prior to being burned in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants. [157321]

Joan Ruddock: No specific assessment has been made by my Department of the effectiveness of methods to decontaminate surplus wood of toxic preservatives prior to being burned in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants.

However, DEFRA's Waste Infrastructure Delivery Programme (WIDP) has investigated ways of diverting waste wood from landfill. This is in response to recommendation 4 of the Biomass Task Force Report to the Government, published in October 2005. DEFRA's general conclusion is that it is more cost effective to treat contaminated waste wood as a waste and to dispose of it in a Waste Incineration Directive (WID)-compliant facility than to attempt to decontaminate and burn it in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants as a non-waste. Such WID-compliant facilities can recover energy as electricity, or electricity and heat in the form of combined heat and power for industrial purposes.

Wood: Waste Disposal

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislative provisions apply to the safe disposal of timber treated with (a) copper chrome arsenate, (b) ammoniacal copper quaternary, (c) copper azole, (d) boron, (e) creosote and (f) pyrethroid and metal-based light organic solvent preservatives. [157976]

Joan Ruddock: All wastes must be recovered or disposed of without endangering human health and without using processes or methods which could harm the environment.

The Waste Incineration Directive (2000/76/EC) is implemented through the Waste Incineration (England and Wales) Regulations 2002 (SI 2002 No. 2980) and applies to the incineration of waste timber which has been treated with any of the substances mentioned.

The Landfill Directive (1999/31/EC) has been transposed via the Landfill (England and Wales) Regulations 2002 (as amended). One aspect of the Landfill Directive is that landfill sites have to be categorised into one of three types: hazardous, non-hazardous or inert. Hazardous and inert wastes for landfill have to meet the waste acceptance criteria destined for landfill. The criteria are limits of contaminants permitted in waste, together with testing standards and procedures that must be used. Hazardous wastes are also required to be pre-treated before landfill. From 30 October 2007, all non-hazardous and inert wastes going to landfill will also need to meet the pre-treatment requirement.

Where such waste timber, which is classed as hazardous waste under regulation 6 of the Hazardous Waste (England and Wales) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005 No 894), is disposed of by means other than incineration or landfill in a facility with a capacity of more than 10 tonnes per day, the facility is subject to the integrated pollution prevention and control (IPPC) Directive (96/61/EC) which is implemented through the Pollution Prevention and Control(England and Wales) Regulations 2000 (SI 2000 No. 1973).

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Ministerial Responsibilities

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the reasons are for the time taken to produce the list of ministerial responsibilities; and if he will make a statement. [158570]

Edward Miliband: The new "List of Ministerial Responsibilities" has been published today. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House and are also available in the Vote Office for hon. Members.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Electoral Commission plans to appeal against the ruling of the High Court of August 2007 on impermissible donations to the UK Independence Party; and if he will make a statement. [158696]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that, on 7 August 2007, judgment was given on an application by the Commission to Westminster magistrates court under section 58 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 for forfeiture by the UK Independence Party of an amount equal to the value of certain donations the Party had accepted. The court found all of the donations in question to be from impermissible donors, but ordered the forfeiture of an amount equal in value to only some of those donations. On 21 August, the Electoral Commission commenced appeal proceedings. The appeal is for a judicial review by the High Court of the magistrates court's decision not to order forfeiture of an amount equal in value to the remainder of the donations that were the subject of the original application. A date for the hearing has not yet been set.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were screened for breast cancer per head of the population in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [157516]

Ann Keen: The information requested is in the following table for 2005-06, the latest year for which figures are available. The figures are broken down by primary care trust (PCT) in Hertfordshire, along with figures for England. As the figures are for 2005-06, they are based on the previous PCT boundaries.

Primary care trust	Eligible population[1]	Number of women screened	Coverage[2] (Percentage)
Dacorum	10,220	8,104	79.3
Hertsmere	6,342	4,697	74.1
North Hertfordshire and Stevenage	12,671	9,932	78.4
Royston, Buntingford and Bishop's Stortford	5,745	3,494	60.8
South East Hertfordshire	13,212	10,040	76
St. Albans and Harpenden	9,228	6,927	75.1
Watford and Three Rivers	11,488	6,910	60.2
England	3,633,181	2,756,716	75.9

[1] Although the breast screening programme now invites women aged 50 to 70, these figures cover women aged 53 to 64 as coverage of the programme is best assessed using this age range group as women may be first called at any time between their 50th and 53rd birthday depending on the logistics of the local programme. In addition, not all programmes had extended invitations to women aged 70 for the whole of 2005-06, although all had by the end of 2005-06. Eligible population is the number of women in the resident population less those recorded as ineligible.

Contraceptives

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the NHS per patient of (a) long-acting reversible contraceptives and (b) other forms of contraception in the next five years. [157307]

Dawn Primarolo: In October 2005 the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) issued clinical guidance on long-acting reversible contraception (LARC). It shows that all LARC methods are more cost effective than the combined oral contraceptive pill even at one year of use. The following table shows estimated method costs (per 1,000 women) after five years of use. Cost per patient is not estimated centrally.

Method and healthcare service costs

Method	Five year cost
Intrauterine device	534,555
Intrauterine system	603,534
Injectable	760,600
Implant	667,275
Male condom	993,769
Combined pill	899,697

Cosmetics: Health Hazards

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment has been made of the possible effects of skin-lightening products on health; and if he will make a statement; [157826]

(2) what assessment he has made of the compliance with UK regulatory and licensing requirements of skin-lightening products; and if he will make a statement. [158449]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

No such assessments have been made.

Dental Services

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 803W, if his Department will now collect information on dentist practices which have closed their lists to NHS patients since the inception of the new NHS dentist contract. [159034]

Ann Keen: Information on dental practices which have ceased to provide national health service services since the launch of the reforms in April 2006 is not held centrally and there are no plans to make this an additional new central return.

Information is available on the number of dental contracts offered at the start of the new system in April 2006 and the number of those contracts signed and rejected. 8,377 out of 9,428 contracts offered were signed. 2,884 of these were initially signed in dispute. By 30 June 2007, the latest date for which information is available just 223 remained in dispute. Of the disputes resolved over 99 per cent. ended in the contractor staying with the NHS. This information is held by dental contract not by dentist. A contract may cover one dentist or a whole practice.

Dental Services: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what spare capacity, expressed in patient numbers, is available for (a) under 18, (b) over 18 fee-paying and (c) over 18 charge-exempt people to register with each NHS dental practice in Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [158647]

Ann Keen [holding answer 17 October 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Departments: Consultants

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the contracts his Department signed on a consultancy basis with a net value of more than £20,000 in 2006. [159319]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on contracts signed on a consultancy basis with a net value of more than £20,000 in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will be introduced in April 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such information for the Department.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157892]

Dawn Primarolo: As at 1 September 2007, there were 61 people (57.7 full-time equivalent) seconded into the Department. The Department's main human resources information system does not show where a person has been seconded from, or the length of their secondment.

Work carried out to answer a previous Freedom of Information request suggested that virtually all secondees into the Department are from public sector organisations and anecdotally most of these are from national health service trusts or other health-related organisations. Secondments are normally for a period of up to two years.

Health Hazards: Mobile Phones

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what official response the Government (a) has made and (b) plans to make to the report of the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; [157200]

(2) what health advice he plans to provide to the public following the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; [157201]

(3) what discussions he has had with the Health Protection Agency on the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; whether the Health Protection Agency will be updating its advice to the public in the light of the report from the programme; and if he will make a statement; [157202]

(4) what assessment he has made of the appropriateness of current health advice on the use of mobile telephones in the light of the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; and if he will make a statement; [157203]

(5) what recent discussions his Department has had with the devolved Administrations on raising awareness of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme report and its findings. [157204]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is grateful to the Management Committee of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme for producing the "Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research Programme Report 2007—MTHR Programme Management Committee" published on 12 September. The report is available in the Library and at www.mthr.org.uk.

We shall also send a copy to hon. Members, as we believe it will be helpful when responding to enquiries from constituents about mobile phone technology and health.

The Health Protection Agency's (HPA) Radiation Protection Division has the responsibility of advising on radiation risk and health protection matters. In undertaking this role the HPA monitors progress in radiation and electromagnetic field health research, that is undertaken throughout the world, in order to inform its advice. The MTHR results will add to the information available to the HPA in support of that advice.

The Department's advice that is currently available in the form of leaflets and web based information will be updated in the course of the next few months in co-operation with the HPA and Health Department officials in the devolved Administrations.

Kidney Patients: Counselling

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many renal counsellors are employed in England; at which kidney units they are located and what services they provide; whether their services are provided by the NHS; how many and what proportion of kidney patients saw a counsellor in the last 12 months; what the average number of sessions with a counsellor for each patient was in that period; by what means kidney patients may access counsellors and how they are informed of their ability to do so; and whether counsellors are employed solely to aid kidney patients. [158396]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Mentally Ill

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the implications of stigma surrounding mental health in England; and if he will make a statement. [157605]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department recognises that the stigma and discrimination faced by people with mental illness is a major social problem. People with mental health problems are one of the most excluded social groups in society, with fewer than a quarter in employment. They can find themselves excluded from education, health care and community participation. People with mental illness who disclose their condition can find themselves shunned by neighbours and colleagues while some do not disclose their illness to family and friends. For many people with mental illness, a diagnosis of mental illness can have a worse impact upon their lives than their symptoms.

The Department is funding a five-year programme, Shift, through the Care Services Improvement Programme to tackle the stigma and discrimination which surrounds mental illness. Shift is working with various bodies, and its focus this year is on the media and employers. On World Mental Health day on 10 October, Shift launched guidance for employers on improving their recruitment and retention processes for people with mental health problems.

The Department and Shift are working with the mental health charity sector consortium, Moving People, which has recently won £18 million from the Big Lottery and Comic Relief to run a four-year anti-stigma and mental health promotion campaign. The details of how the Government will support this initiative, which involves Mind, Rethink, Mental Health Media and the Institute of Psychiatry, are being formulated.

Midwives: NHS Stockport Primary Care Trust

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were in training in Stockport Primary Care Trust hospitals in each year since 1997. [158000]

Ann Keen: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Myasthenia Gravis

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of services provided by the NHS for people with myasthenia gravis; and if he will make a statement. [157382]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the services provided by the national health service for people with myasthenia gravis.

Out of Area Treatment

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provisions he plans to make for cross-border user representation within local involvement networks to reflect situations where residents from one local authority area routinely use services within another. [159095]

Ann Keen: We recognise the need for local involvement networks (LINks) arrangements to reflect the fact that some people do use health and social care services outside the local authority area where they reside. That is why we have ensured there is appropriate provision within the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, currently before Parliament, to enable LINks activities not only to relate to health and social care services provided within their local authority area, but also health and social care services provided, in any place, for people from the area. We have also included provisions which will enable LINks to work together, regionally and/or nationally, as a means of undertaking their activities.

We intend to published guidance for LINks in the spring and as part of this guidance we will explore in detail how LINks might work together to ensure cross-border representation for patients.

Palliative Care

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines there are for provision of palliative care for patients who wish to die at home; and if he will make a statement. [157995]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Three key tools—the Gold Standards Framework, the Liverpool Care Pathway and the Preferred Priorities for Care—are used as a basis for providing training for generalist staff in the principles of palliative care so that all patients at the end of life have access to high quality care.

Over the last three years we have invested £12 million in an end of life care programme to promote roll-out of these tried and tested tools, and thus promote greater choice for patients about where they are able to be cared for and die.

Latest figures show that one or more of these tools is being used in 69 per cent. of general practitioners practices, 81 per cent. of hospitals, 41 per cent. of community hospitals, 69 per cent. of hospices and 6.4 per cent. of care homes. The Department is currently developing the first ever end of life care strategy for adults, which will deliver increased choice to all adult patients regardless of their condition about where they live and die, and provide them with support to make this possible.

We have deferred publication of the strategy to allow us to take account of the important work being undertaken on end of life care at strategic health authority (SHA) level for the next stage review which will be completed in the new year. We have provided SHAs with information that we hope they will find useful and it is important that we now take account of their work to ensure that the national strategy encompasses local innovation.

Palliative Care: Finance

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amount of funding was allocated in each primary care trust area to palliative care for patients who wish to die at home in each year since 1997. [157996]

Ann Keen: This information is not available centrally. Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning and funding services to meet the needs of their resident population including those for end of life care.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Licensing

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many licences to sell alcohol were (a) suspended and (b) revoked in (i) London and (ii) England in each year since 1997 on grounds of the sale of alcohol to persons under the age of 18 years. [158807]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally.

Past and future statistical bulletins on licences to sell alcohol include the number of licences revoked, but do not give reasons. Licences may be revoked for a number of reasons or a variety of factors, including sales to children. Prior to 24 November 2005, statistical returns did not differentiate between alcohol licences not renewed and licences revoked.

Big Lottery Fund

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 11 October 2007, Official Report, column 693W, on the Big Lottery Fund, whether interest is earned on this sum. [159357]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The overall balance held in the National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) on behalf of the 13 non-Olympic distributing bodies is invested by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt (CRND).

The interest earned on this investment is shared between the 13 distributors in the same fixed percentages as income generated by the national lottery operator, Camelot, and becomes available for distribution to the good causes they support. The Big Lottery Fund receives 50 per cent. of the interest earned on the overall NLDF balance. Its share is not directly related to the size of its individual NLDF balance.

Bookmakers: Licensing

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much revenue was collected from fees for bookmakers' premises licences in the UK in 2006-07; and what percentage of this came from independent bookmakers. [159031]

James Purnell: For 2006-07, and until 1 September 2007 when the Gambling Act 2005 was implemented, bookmakers required both a bookmaker's permit and a betting office licence. These were issued and charged for by local magistrates, under the Gaming Act 1968. Since 1 September local licensing authorities have issued premises licences. Information on revenue from this source raised by local licensing authorities, and previously by magistrates, is not held centrally. Data could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many independent bookmakers there are in the UK; and what the cost to them of (a) licence fees charged, (b) the operating licence charged and (c) the premises licence charged was in 2006-07. [159032]

James Purnell: Bookmakers have been able to apply to the Gambling Commission for operating licences under the Gambling Act 2005 from 1 January 2007. There is no defined category of "independent bookmaker". Total numbers of off-course bookmakers to which the Commission has issued operating licences to date are:

Category	Operators
A—four or fewer premises	605
B—five to 15 premises	52
C—16 to 50 premises	17
D—51 to 199 premises	4
E—200 or more premises	5

Both application fees and annual fees are charged by the Commission, in accordance with the table. In the period to 31 March 2007 it collected £56,318 in application fees from off-course bookmakers. Premises licence fees are a matter for local licensing authorities, and data are not collected centrally.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to review the system of betting licences, operating licences and premise licences issued to British bookmakers. [159033]

James Purnell: The Gambling Act 2005, which came fully into effect on 1 September 2007, places the protection of children and vulnerable people at the heart of the gambling licensing system for the first time. We have no plans to review this new framework.

British Bob Skeleton Association: Legal Costs

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much and what proportion of the cost of the British Bob Skeleton Association's legal action against the British Bobsleigh Association was met from the public purse or National Lottery funds via UK Sport. [158847]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport is not aware of any legal action by the British Bob Skeleton Association (BBSKA) against the British Bobsleigh Association.

UK Sport is aware of legal action taken earlier this year by the BBSKA against the Federation Internationale de Bobsleigh et de Tobogganing (FIBT). This was in the form of an appeal to the Court of Arbitration for Sport against the FIBT's decision to change the rules over race licensing arrangements for skeleton athletes, without prior consultation. BBSKA used £17,000 of funding received from UK Sport to meet the costs of this successful action.

UK Sport agreed to meet this proportion of the costs because of the direct impact the decision was having on the athletes' ability to train and compete, and therefore the BBSKA's ability to deliver its performance programme. UK Sport did, however, make clear to the BBSKA that further costs associated with this legal action would need to be met from other sources of income. UK Sport is not aware of the total cost to the BBSKA of undertaking this legal action.

Casinos

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the written statement of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 2WS, on casinos, what the Government's policy is on the establishment of a supercasino in the UK. [159171]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prime Minister has asked the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to consider, with other Departments, including the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, whether deprived areas can be equally well served by other forms of regeneration than a regional casino.

That work is now well under way, and the Prime Minister has asked the Secretary of State to report to him later in the autumn.

Casinos: Licensing

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to review the rollout of premises licences issued by local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [159099]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We see no necessity to review the way in which premises licences have been introduced under the Gambling Act 2005. Applications by existing businesses could be made from 21 May 2007 and any businesses whose applications had not been determined by 1 September 2007, when the Act came into force are being permitted to operate until their applications are determined. The Department issued guidance to both the industry and licensing authorities for the transitional period. The Gambling Commission have published guidance to licensing authorities on the premises licence regime as a whole.

Gambling: EU Legislation

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he last met his French, Spanish and German counterparts to discuss EU gambling legislation. [159105]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS Ministers have not had any meetings with their French, Spanish and German counterparts specifically to discuss EU gambling legislation over the past year. I am scheduled to meet with them at the next EU Sports Ministers meeting on 25 October.

However, officials from my Department keep in close contact with officials in the European Commission on developments affecting gambling.

Gaming Machines

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to review the number of category B1 machines permitted in adult amusement centres. [159098]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Adult gaming centres are permitted a maximum of four category B3 machines, which have a maximum stake of one and a maximum prize of £500. There are no plans to review the number of category B3 machines that adult gaming centres can make available.

Category B1 machines have a maximum stake of two and a maximum prize of £4,000 and can only be made available in casinos.

National Lottery

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on national lottery ticket sales in (a) Wirral South, (b) Wirral, (c) Merseyside, (d) the North West and (e) England in the last year for which figures are available; and how much was distributed to good causes in those areas in the same period. [158016]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The national lottery operator, Camelot, does not collect ticket sales information on a constituency, district, county or regional basis, nor do they routinely collect ticket sales data based on postcodes. The most up-to-date sales data by postcode area is available in the Libraries of both Houses and provides information up to 2004.

QUEST

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the Quality, Efficiency and Standards Team is still in operation in his Department. [158844]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Quality, Efficiency and Standards Team in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport was disbanded in 2002.

Rugby

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate he has made of the number of people who regularly take part in rugby union games and training, including tag and touch rugby; and if he will make a statement. [159035]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the 2005-06 Sport England 'Active People' survey showed that 267,817 adults (16 years and over) regularly participated in rugby union games and training. 'Active People' regards participating at least once in the last four weeks as regular participation.

Rugby League

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he plans to attend any of the rugby league test matches between Great Britain and New Zealand in an official capacity. [158665]

James Purnell: I will be attending the rugby league test match between Great Britain and New Zealand on 27 October in Huddersfield. I am looking forward to this unique test series which will celebrate the centenary of international rugby league competition.

Sports: Finance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of progress in tackling the inequality of sports funding between men and women; what plans he has to reduce such inequality; and if he will make a statement. [158426]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures from the Taking Part survey show that on average women have lower rates of participation in sport than men. We therefore have a public service agreement to increase participation in sport by 3 per cent. by 2008, with a specific focus on priority groups with lower than average rates of participation—one of which is women.

As part of this focus to increase participation in sport by women, since 2006 the Department for Culture, Media and Sport through Sport England has funded 770 projects where women are one of the target beneficiaries. Sport England also grant aids the Women's Sport Foundation and in 2007-08 it is providing £326,148. The Sport England application process is open to all and does not discriminate by gender or any other group.

UK Sport

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many overseas conferences and events UK Sport has been involved with since 2005; how many it is due to be involved with in the future; and what the cost of such involvement was in 2006-07. [158845]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport has financially supported or helped organise six international conferences between 2005 and 2007. In addition, individual UK Sport employees have attended various overseas conferences and events as delegates or speakers since 2005.

It currently has plans to support two future events in partnership with the British Council: a PE and School Sport seminar in Brazil in February 2008 and a Dreams and Teams Young Leaders event in India in 2010 to coincide with the Commonwealth games in New Delhi.

The cost of UK Sport's involvement in 2006-07 was approximately £35,500.

UK Sport: Grants

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what account UK Sport takes of recognition of national governing bodies of sports by international federations in deciding whether to fund them; and if he will make a statement. [158846]

Mr. Sutcliffe: One of the criteria for recognition of a governing body used by all the sports councils, including UK Sport, is that it is affiliated or is in the process of affiliating to the international governing body for the sport (as appropriate to the sport).

The recognition of a governing body does not necessarily make it eligible or entitled to consideration for funding. The decision on which body to fund is based on various separate considerations, of which recognition is one.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Sudan

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will cease returning Darfuri asylum seekers pending (a) review of the safety of such asylum seekers who have already been returned to Sudan and (b) a ceasefire peace agreement and secure environment being in place in that country. [158803]

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment her Department has made of the (a) safety of Darfuri asylum seekers who have been returned to Khartoum from the UK since 2003 and (b) likely safety of Darfuri asylum seekers who are due to be returned to Khartoum from the UK. [158819]

Mr. Byrne: We take the recent allegations made by the Aegis Trust regarding the treatment of failed asylum seekers who have returned to Sudan very seriously and we are investigating them very thoroughly.

On 4 October, the House of Lords heard an appeal brought by the Home Office on whether it is reasonable to return failed asylum seekers to Khartoum where the Court of Appeal have found no risk of persecution.

There are no enforced returns of failed asylum seekers currently planned before the House of Lords judgment is expected.

Border and Immigration Agency: Correspondence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time was between the receipt of a letter by the Border and Immigration Agency and its predecessor from a hon. Member and the sending of a substantive reply in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [158979]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received before August 2004 are not available.

The figures by year are:

August-December 2004—37.83 working days

January-December 2005—32.80 working days

January-December 2006—23.56 working days

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Border and Immigration Agency in 2006 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158984]

Mr. Byrne: In the period 1 January to 31 December 2006 the Border and Immigration Agency received 41,513 letters from hon. Members.

Of these:

(a) 22,837 (55.0 per cent.) were answered in three weeks or less

(b) 32,436 (78.1 per cent.) were answered in four weeks or less

(c) 34,802 (83.8 per cent.) were answered in six weeks or less

(d) 35,575 (85.7 per cent.) were answered in eight weeks or less

(e) 36,121 (87.0 per cent.) were answered in 10 weeks or less

(f) 5,393 (13.0 per cent.) took more than 10 weeks to answer.

Courts: Administrative Delays

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average length of time taken to bring suspects before a court in cases of (a) assault and (b) other crimes; what steps she is taking to reduce these times; and if she will make a statement. [156214]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The table sets out the average time taken between the recorded date on which a defendant commits an offence to the date on which the defendant's case is first considered by a magistrates court, for the last six years. Figures have also been provided for the average time taken between:

(a) the first listing of a case to completion of that case in the magistrates court

(b) the overall period from offence to completion of a criminal case in the magistrates court.

The figures are from the Time Intervals Survey (TIS) and are based on defendants (adults and youths) in all criminal cases that were proceeded against in the magistrates courts.

The Government established the Criminal Justice Simple Speedy Summary Justice (CJSSS) programme to improve the speed and effectiveness with which cases proceed through the criminal courts. A key part of this programme aims to improve the way cases proceed in the magistrates courts. Following successful tests (with evidence of more offenders pleading guilty at an early stage, fewer hearings and the majority of trials for contested cases being set within 6-10 weeks), national implementation is firmly under way throughout England and Wales. CJSSS is now running in at least one site in each of the 36 local criminal justice areas and fully implemented in all magistrates courts in 11 of those areas. Implementation is expected to be completed in all but a handful of magistrates courts by December 2007. Once fully implemented these changes should deliver a step change in the public's experience of the justice system, improving the speed and effectiveness of magistrates courts.

[1] Includes common assault, assault on a constable, offences against Public Order and Education Act offences.

Notes:

1. Results are based on proceedings in one sample week in March and September. The Time Intervals Survey (TIS) is a sample survey that produces estimates of the average time taken between stages of proceedings for defendants in completed criminal cases in magistrates courts. More information on TIS is available on the Ministry of Justice website.
2. The margin of error is a measure of the precision of a result based on a sample survey. Timeliness in magistrates courts is measured using data from a sample of the total number of defendants. The sample provides one estimate of the average time taken and different samples would produce different average times. The true value is likely to fall within the range of the sample result +/- the margin of error.
3. "First listing" refers to the first listed hearing of the case in the magistrates court.
4. It is not totally clear which "assault" cases are being referred to in the question. Information on broad offence group is collected in TIS although not at a level that would make it possible to provide estimates for defendants proceeded against for assault crimes separately. The offence classifications are as follows: burglary, criminal damage, drunken driving, drug offences, driving without due care, fraud and forgery, failing to stop, indictable motoring offences, other summary motoring offences, robbery, sexual offences, summary non-motoring offences, theft and handling stolen goods, violence against the person, other indictable offences (excluding motoring offences). Information is not available in TIS at individual offence level. Assault offences are classified in several different offence groups. In addition to timeliness of all criminal cases, timeliness figures have been provided for one of the offence groups ('summary non-motoring offences') as it was thought this might be helpful. The 'summary non-motoring offences' group includes the offences common assault, and assault on a constable, which were thought to be the most relevant offences to answer this question. Please note that in addition to the assault offences, the summary non-motoring offence group also includes a wide variety of other offences such as offences against Public Order and Education Act offences. In addition, certain other forms of assault (e.g. sexual assaults and assault with intent to rob) are counted in other offence groups and will not be included in the table.
5. Results have been provided for all years since 2001. It is not possible to provide consistent data for earlier years owing to methodological changes.

Crime: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent change there has been in the level of recorded crimes in (a) Chorley and (b) Lancashire, broken down by type of crime. [158768]

Mr. McNulty: The most recent information for Chorley Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) and Lancashire police force area is given in following the table.

Recorded crime by offence group and percentage change, 2005-06 to 2006-07

	Chorley CDRP			Lancashire police force area

Crimes Against Property: Business

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it a requirement that crime against business is recorded as a separate category in official statistics; and if she will make a statement. [157784]

Mr. McNulty: The current recorded crime offence classification series does differentiate between robbery of personal property and robbery of business property, and also between domestic burglary and that of burglary in a building other than a dwelling. However, these categories will only represent some of the crimes against business which are recorded by the police. Offences of theft by an employee and fraud by company director are also included within the series.

The feasibility of police forces flagging commercial burglary offences is being examined as part of the regular annual data requirement review process by the Home Office and ACPO. These data are to be provided under a pilot scheme using a new crime recording system which is currently being developed in the Home Office. It will enable a richer range of data to be collected from police forces. The feasibility of measuring crime against business will be examined during 2008-09.

Departments: Civil Service Agencies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will list her Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156632]

Mr. Byrne: The 2005-06 list of (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-department public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations can be found in the publication Public Bodies 2006 at:

wwww.civilservice.gov.uk.

The 2006-07 list of (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-department public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporation will be published shortly on the Home Office website.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what contingency preparations her Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156999]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 16 October 2007, Official, Report, column 823W.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) the least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157898]

Mr. Byrne: Of all of the Home Office websites managed by the core Home Office web team, the main Home Office site (www.homeoffice.gov.uk) is the most popular, with 5,025,514 visits since January 2007 and 3,380,390 unique visitors (as at September 2007). The least popular site (by means of visitor numbers) is the website of the Technical Advisory Board (www.technicaladvisory board.org.uk), one of the Home Office advisory bodies. At September 2007, it had received 324 visits and 265 unique visitors since January 2007. This website is currently being migrated into the Home Office corporate website as part of our Transformational Government work.

Fibre Optics: Mitcheldean

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what purpose her Department requires fibre optic cables to be laid in Mitcheldean, Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement. [158036]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 October 2007]: On the basis of the information provided, it has not been possible to ascertain whether the works identified by the hon. Gentleman are connected to the Home Office. If the hon. Gentleman could provide any further information that might be at his disposal, I would be more than willing to review the matter again.

Hampshire Constabulary: Firearms

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times police have been issued firearms in Hampshire in each of the last five years. [158752]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 11 October 2007, Official Report, column 718W.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate: Correspondence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in 2003 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158973]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received in 2003 are not available.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in 2001 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158983]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received in 2001 are not available.

Immigration: Detainees

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of stay of detainees within the immigration detention estate was in each of the last five years. [158699]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics on persons recorded as leaving detention solely under Immigration Act powers during 2005 and between January to September 2006 broken down by length of detention have been published in the "Asylum Statistics: United Kingdom 2005" and "Asylum Statistics: United Kingdom 2006" bulletins respectively. This information was first available for 2005 and is the latest period for which information is currently available.

Snapshot details of people detained solely under Immigration Act powers for each of the last five years are also published in this series of bulletins. Immigration Research and Statistics plans to start publishing statistics on all persons recorded as leaving detention solely under Immigration Act powers again (and full details on length of detention) as soon as the data quality problems associated with the new administrative system have been resolved.

We do not publish an average length of stay in detention since this would be potentially misleading and could easily be skewed by a small number of cases in the upper range.

Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Lancashire Constabulary: Community Support Officers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers are deployed in Lancashire. [158767]

Mr. McNulty: At 31 March 2007, Lancashire Constabulary had 374 PCSOs in post.

Members: Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter of 30 August from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West in relation to his constituent Mr. Nader El-Reah Almutbage. [158770]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 27 September 2007]: A reply was despatched on 27 September 2007.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Parliamentary Business Unit of the Immigration and Nationality Department will reply to the letters of (a) 25 June, (b) 31 July and (c) 11 September from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West on his constituent Mr. Abdul Rashid Abdullah. [158776]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency replied to the hon. Member on 15 October 2007.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter of 29 July from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West on his constituent Mr Denboba Natie. [158777]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 15 October 2007.

Metropolitan Police: Secondment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers have been seconded to the Metropolitan police for counter-terrorism duties from regional police forces; and what the cost has been (a) in total and (b) for each regional police force concerned. [157319]

Mr. McNulty: The requested information is not collected centrally in the police personnel statistics.

The number of officers seconded to individual police forces is collected centrally, but the home force, reason for secondment and associated costs are not.

Office of Surveillance Commissioners: Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the Office of Surveillance Commissioners will amend its inspection priorities to undertake a first inspection of (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) the Valuation and Lands Agency. [158134]

Mr. McNulty: The Valuation Office Agency and the Valuation and Lands Agency do not carry out surveillance of individuals and do not operate covertly. Their officers always identify themselves when carrying out their duties.

Police Stations: CCTV

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of custody offices in police stations are equipped with fully functioning audio and visual CCTV in (a) Lancashire and (b) England and Wales. [158711]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 October 2007]: This is an operational matter for chief constables.

Police: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what account is taken in the manning formula for Bournemouth police of the number of visitors to Bournemouth every weekend. [157308]

Mr. McNulty: The deployment of police officers in Bournemouth at weekends is an operational matter for the chief constable of Dorset police.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of funding for additional policing during the Labour party conference in Bournemouth was provided by the Government. [157309]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office provides special grant to police authorities to pay for the additional costs incurred on policing the two main annual party conferences.

Dorset police submitted a bid of £4.5 million (revenue) plus £80,000 (capital) for the additional costs of policing the 2007 Labour party autumn conference, which was approved in full.

Police: Dogs

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dog handlers were employed by North Wales Police on (a) 31 December 2004, (b) 31 December 2005, (c) 31 December 2006 and (d) the most recent date for which figures are available. [156952]

Mr. McNulty: The information is shown in the following table.

Police officers in North Wales whose primary function[1] is dogs, as at 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2007 (FTE)[2]

	Number
31 March 2004	12
31 March 2005	15
31 March 2006	11
31 March 2007	12

[1] Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their primary role or function. The deployment of police officers is an operational matter for individual chief constables.
[2] Full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. This figure includes those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.

Police: Finance

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to address geographical disparities in police funding. [158720]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The Police Service in England and Wales has benefited from a significant increase in resources over a sustained period.

Government funding for police authorities is chiefly allocated using a funding formula that distributes resources on the basis of relative needs and resources. A damping mechanism is subsequently applied to protect all authorities against financial instability which ensures that all authorities receive an increase in grant at least equal to the "floor" level on a like-for-like basis year-on-year.

The Home Office will announce a Provisional Finance Settlement for the police for the CSR years, 2008-09 to 2010-11, in late November/early December as in previous years which will take account of responses to the recent consultation exercise on local government formula grant distribution.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the outcome was of the meeting at Heathrow on 30 July of police and their oversight bodies from around the UK and representatives of her Department and the Department for Transport to discuss a common approach to police-industry service agreements covering security, resourcing and costs. [157829]

Mr. McNulty: The meeting that took place on 30 July 2007 was arranged by the Metropolitan Police Authority for an invited audience of police authorities and police forces to discuss progress on the implementation of the provisions of the Civil Aviation Act 2006. The Act requires the airport operator and police at designated airports to agree a Police Services Agreement, which must be in place by 7 November 2007. Attendees shared with each other the progress that had been made in their local negotiations with airport operators and what further work may be needed to reach agreement.

Policing: Luton Airport

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to assist Bedfordshire police with the costs of policing London Luton airport following Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary 2006-07 assessments. [158500]

Mr. McNulty: [holding answer 16 October 2007]: Luton airport is not a designated airport and as such the airport operator is not required, by law, to pay for the policing of the airport.

Bedfordshire Police Authority has been receiving substantial financial assistance for the policing of Luton airport for a number of years.

The system of designation and the cost of policing airports was raised in the Independent Review of Airport Policing 2006. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport and I are currently reviewing the process to enable the recovery of associated policing costs from airport operators.

Resettlement: Iraq

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans the Government has to assist Iraqis who wish to enter Great Britain and claim asylum, with particular reference to those who have worked in Iraq for the British Army; [158799]

(2) what measures the Government plans to put in place to help Iraqi interpreters who have worked for the British Army to claim asylum in the UK; [158800]

(3) if the Government will set up a website with instructions on claiming asylum in the UK aimed at Iraqis who have been employed by the British Army. [158801]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 October 2007]: The Foreign Secretary announced in his written ministerial statement of 9 October the assistance that would be made available to help Iraqis employed by the Government in Iraq.

The statement also promised that we will announce further details, including on how eligible staff may apply, before the end of the month.

Surveillance: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance the Office of Surveillance Commissioners has provided to local authorities on surveillance in relation to (a) the public smoking ban and (b) rubbish collection and waste disposal; and how many inspections of local authorities have taken place in relation to each. [158128]

Mr. McNulty: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners has not given specific guidance to local authorities and does not undertake thematic inspections of surveillance relating to specific investigative activity. Inspections conducted on behalf of the Chief Surveillance Commissioner are not designed to provide guidance but to review performance, although specific scenarios may have been addressed during inspections.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the local authorities inspected by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners in 2006-07 used surveillance for (a) enforcement of the public smoking ban, (b) tackling fly-tipping and (c) other issues relating to waste collection and disposal. [158136]

Mr. McNulty: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners does not break down its reports to reflect the specific purposes for which the conduct of surveillance is undertaken.

Terrorism Act 2000

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department where information gathered under Schedule 7 of the Terrorism Act 2000 is stored. [158848]

Mr. McNulty: Any information that may be retained as a result of a Schedule 7 examination is stored by the local constabulary covering the port concerned and may be shared with other police forces and Government agencies.

In terms of numbers of occasions when stops are made under Schedule 7, the relevant codes of practice advise that all Schedule 7 examinations lasting longer than one hour are recorded centrally and that examinations of shorter duration are recorded locally. There is no centrally held information about the number of stops made by police officers lasting less than one hour.

Terrorism Act 2000: Freedom of Information

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the process is by which an individual can apply for access to information gathered about them under Schedule 7 of the Terrorism Act 2000. [158849]

Mr. McNulty: Any individual can apply for access to information gathered about them by contacting the local constabulary for the port concerned. Access details for the constabularies can be found on their websites.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the projected budget is for the new Commission for Equality and Human Rights in its first full year of operation. [157662]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

It is anticipated that the budget for the Equality and Human Rights Commission will be around £70 million which meets ministerial expectations.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget of the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Equal Opportunities Commission and (c) Disability Rights Commission was in the most recent year for which figures are available. [157494]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the resource and capital budgets on an annual basis for the Disability Rights Commission, Equal Opportunities Commission and Commission for Racial Equality.

Organisation	Resource Budget for financial year 2007-08 (expressed as annual figure) (£000)
Disability Rights Commission	20,100
Equal Opportunities Commission	8,020
Commission for Racial Equality	19,392

Organisation	Capital Budget for financial year 2007-08 (expressed as annual figure) (£000)
Commission for Racial Equality	750

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Redundancy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated for redundancy and severance payments to staff members of the (a) Equal Opportunities Commission, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Commission for Racial Equality as part of the creation of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights. [157455]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

No staff were made redundant. However, the cost of the voluntary severance scheme, excluding the ongoing costs of annual compensation payments (ACP) for people over age 50, is expected to be as follows: CRE cost £3,839,617; DRC cost £1,884,707 and the EOC cost £1,780,364.

Departments: Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions she has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [158916]

Mr. Dhanda: Since joining the Department in June 2007, the Secretary of State has visited the following regions: the West Midlands (1), the North-West (6), the North-East (2), the South East (1) and has made numerous visits within London. The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government plans to visit the remaining regions as soon as diary engagements permit her to do so.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Housing: Grants

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) local authorities and (b) arm's length management organisations have been granted approval to bid for Government grants to build new homes; on what dates the respective approvals were made; and what discussions she and the Minister for Housing have had with Welsh Assembly Government Ministers on extension of permissions to local authorities in Wales to bid for new housing grants. [157322]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation announced on 23 July that eight arm's length management organisations (ALMOs) and two local authority special purpose vehicles had pre-qualified as investment partners for the 2008-11 affordable housing programme and moved to the next stage of the bidding process.

The ALMOs named by the Corporation were Ashfield Homes, Brent Housing Partnership, City West Homes, Derby Homes, Hillingdon Homes, Hounslow Homes, Kirklees Neighbourhood Housing, and Sheffield Homes. The two local authorities were Knowsley metropolitan borough council and Norwich city council. Not all of these organisations will necessarily go on to bid or be successful in their bid. In particular, Hillingdon Homes recently failed to achieve 3 star status following its Audit Commission inspection and has been disapplied from bidding this autumn. Hillingdon will however have an opportunity to consider a new bid next year as a 2 star ALMO under the Corporation's revised criteria.

The Housing Corporation is responsible for the funding of development schemes in England. The Welsh Assembly Government is responsible for funding decisions for social housing in Wales.

Housing: Immigration

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to complete her review of the impact of immigration on (a) new house build and (b) previously-occupied housing. [155516]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has no plans to undertake a review of this nature. However, we do publish household growth projections, which form part of the evidence base for decisions on planning for housing, and which take into account data on past and projected migration trends. The latest household projections were published as 'New Projections of Households for England and the Regions to 2029' on 16 March 2007, on the Communities and Local Government website. The Department continues to consider the impacts of migration on a range of services and policies—including housing—through the Migration Impacts Forum.

Waste Management

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the existence of separate collection and disposal authorities within county council areas and the adoption of a strategic approach to waste management across the whole county council area. [157937]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The division of responsibilities between the waste disposal and collection authorities in two-tier areas can make sustainable waste management more challenging. Authorities in such areas have a statutory obligation to draw up joint municipal waste management strategies, subject to certain exemptions. These strategies help to encourage and deliver a strategic approach to waste management in two-tier areas.

A report on "Joint Working in Wastes Management[1]" by the Innovation Forum (a group of high-performing authorities) highlighted the benefits of joint working in two-tier areas, citing possible efficiency savings of around £150 million nationally. The report identified the limited legal basis for joint working arrangements as a key barrier to establishing such arrangements. In response to this, the Government have introduced powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill which will allow the establishment of joint waste authorities.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how fuel is transported into theatre in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [154226]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding details of specific routes of supply as the release of information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution made to greenhouse gas emissions of the deployment of British military forces in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [157324]

Derek Twigg: Based upon the available data for quantities of aviation and ground fuel supplied in the operational theatres, it is estimated that the average carbon dioxide emissions directly attributable to the deployment of British military forces in Afghanistan and Iraq totalled approximately 250,000 tonnes and 200,000 tonnes respectively for any 12-month period during 2005-07. This can be compared to the MOD's total carbon dioxide emissions (from its estate and non-operational activities such as training) of approximately 5.5 million tonnes per annum and the UK's national emissions of approximately 560 million tonnes per annum in the same period. Data on operational emissions of other greenhouse gases are not currently collated.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes are proposed to the numbers of (a) destroyers and (b) frigates in consequence of the ordering of the two future aircraft carriers. [157213]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The defence programme is kept under regular review. No decision has been made to change the number of destroyers or frigates.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what protection is given to British military personnel from indirect fire in their living quarters. [154264]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Indirect fire (IDF) is a serious threat which we seek to counter using a layered approach to force protection. This includes the use of hardened infrastructure, security patrols, intelligence gathering, counter measures and, where appropriate, both reactive and proactive strikes against enemy IDF capabilities. It is, however, impossible entirely to eliminate the risks from IDF attacks.

I am withholding details of force protection arrangements in Iraq and Afghanistan as their release would be likely to prejudice the safety or security of our armed forces.

Defence: Inflation

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the National Statistics Quality Review of Ministry of Defence Finance and Economic Statistics Implementation Plan, what progress his Department has made in creating a defence-specific inflation index; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [156235]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Work on developing a Defence related price index commenced in 2004-05 and has continued since. Unfortunately, despite commitment by both the Office for National Statistics and Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA), work has as yet failed to produce a defence specific inflation index.

Matching the companies, to which MOD has made payments, with Office for National Statistics data has been difficult due to changes in names, ownership, recording of information and ONS data on prices being from a sample survey. Less than 20 per cent. of companies paid more than £1 million by MOD in 2002-03 could be matched to price data, which accounted for less than 30 per cent. of MOD spend. Confining analysis to the subset of Defence problems further decreases this already poor coverage causing any estimates of defence inflation to be unreliable and biased.

Using published indices for MOD purchases of goods and services, and indeed the underlying data for these indices also presents a variety of problems. Price changes collected by ONS represent off the shelf products whereas the large value goods that MOD buys tend to be bespoke systems. Quality adjustment of price indices is appropriate for determining change in value, but not for the replacement costs that MOD faces. It is difficult to incorporate overseas expenditure. Indices used in placing contracts frequently do not reflect the expenditure patterns of the MOD.

Work continues to overcome these challenges.

Departments: Departmental Expenditure Limits

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the request for resources 1 (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) indirect resource DEL and (c) capital DEL forecast control totals are for each of his Department's top level budget holders in each of the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. [158391]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 636W, to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth).

Departments: General Election

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157003]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 823W, by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he was first told that the Prime Minister would be announcing troop withdrawals during his visit to Iraq. [157216]

Des Browne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: In preparing for the Prime Minister's visit, I discussed with him all aspects of our future policy in Iraq including troop withdrawals.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what bases UK forces are stationed in Iraq; and what measures are in place in each such base to prevent death or injury from rocket attack. [158445]

Des Browne: The precise area of deployment of UK forces in Iraq can and does vary according to the operational circumstances. The vast majority of UK forces are based at the Contingency Operating Base at Basra airport. UK forces are also present in much smaller numbers at a number of other locations in Iraq, including in Baghdad and Dhi Qar province.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2072, to the hon. Member for The Wrekin (Mark Pritchard) about force protection.

Navy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what long-term capacity the Royal Navy will retain in respect of (a) minehunters and (b) patrol vessels. [157212]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: While the defence programme is kept under regular review, the July 2004 White Paper "Delivering Security in a Changing World - Future Capabilities" (CM6269) explained that we plan to retain a fleet of 16 mine counter measure vessels. We also intend to maintain a balanced fleet of patrol vessels to fulfil a variety of commitments in home waters and overseas.

Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many individuals (a) captured and (b) killed by British Forces in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan since 2001 have been of Iranian nationality. [157036]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence does not maintain records on the nationality of individuals killed in engagements involving UK forces in Iraq or Afghanistan.

As far as we can determine, no Iranian nationals have been processed at the Divisional Internment Facility or its predecessor, the Divisional Temporary Detention Facility, since the latter was established in December 2003. However, most individuals logged in our records do not have their nationality recorded, primarily because this is not always readily attainable and verifiable. Our records indicate that five Iranian nationals were captured and released by UK forces in Iraq prior to December 2003.

Individuals captured by UK forces in Afghanistan are held only temporarily before being either released or passed to the Afghan authorities. We do not routinely maintain records on nationality in these cases.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of days for Relief in Place operations between each roulement to (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq was in each year since 2001. [157040]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In Afghanistan, large-scale Relief in Place operations were not conducted prior to the start of Herrick IV in 2006. The average number of days for subsequent Relief in Place operations in 2006 was 55 days.

In Iraq, the average number of days for Relief in Place operations after the initial deployment of 2003 was as follows:

	Days
2003	36
2004	46
2005	46
2006	49

Roulements for 2007 are not yet complete, but the proposed timelines suggest that the average will be 47 days and 36 days for Afghanistan and Iraq respectively.

Salisbury Plain: Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether trail and drag hunting is permitted on the Salisbury Plain Training Area. [157074]

Derek Twigg: Hunts and beagle packs that have traditionally hunted over defence land are permitted to trail and drag hunt on the defence estate, including Salisbury Plain, subject to the issue of an appropriate licence. However, trail and drag hunting activities cannot currently take place on Ministry of Defence land due to the foot and mouth outbreak, as part of measures implemented by DEFRA to control the spread of the disease.

Submarines: Procurement

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what timeline he expects for the future submarine programme, including the dates for (a) high level design specification, (b) design matures, (c) long leads, (d) start of construction, (e) nuclear power plant trials and (f) sea trials. [158336]

Des Browne: The Future Submarine Programme is required to deliver a new submarine in around 2024, which is the forecast date for entry into service of the first of the new class. The timetable to achieve this comprises a two-year concept phase, a seven-year design phase, a seven-year build phase and a period of sea trials. Work on the concept phase is now under way and dates for various aspects of the programme are under consideration as part of this work. As stated in my answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1252W, to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Mr. Llwyd), we currently expect to reach the Initial Gate approval point in 2009. This will signify the end of the concept phase.

War Pensions

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which areas of the world members of the merchant marine who qualify for a war pension served. [158440]

Derek Twigg: This information is not available in the form requested. The Mercantile Marine scheme provides for awards to be made to members of the mercantile marine who have sustained injuries whilst serving during conflict and war. The scheme dates from the second world war and in addition to that war the scheme applied in principle to members of the mercantile marine involved in the Korean war, the Suez crisis, the Falklands conflict and the first Gulf conflict.

Wind Power: Planning Permission

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what objections his Department made to wind farm planning applications in each of the last two years. [158424]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence has objected to a total of 21 planning applications since October 2005.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Discrimination Law Review

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government plan to publish their response to the consultation on the Discrimination Law Review Green Paper. [157818]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: We were pleased with the substantial response to the consultation—more than 4,000 replies. I will be considering the Government's response with colleagues and plan to publish it as soon as possible.

Equality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the Government's definition is of equality. [157725]

Barbara Follett: The Government's vision of an equal society is one where there is opportunity for all and responsibility from all, regardless of age, disability, gender, race, religion or belief or sexual orientation. In such a society all people should have the opportunity to fulfil their potential and the talents of each should contribute to the well being of all.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government plan to publish their Single Equality Bill. [157819]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The responses to the consultation on proposals for a new Equality Bill are currently being considered. We remain committed to introducing the Act during this Parliament.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Buildings

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the addresses were of each of the premises occupied by the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157115]

Barbara Follett: The information is as follows.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Finance

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the total budgets were of the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission in the most recent period prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157117]

Barbara Follett: The following tables show the resource and capital budgets on an annual basis for the Disability Rights Commission, Equal Opportunities Commission and Commission for Racial Equality.

Organisation	£000 Resource budget for financial year 2007-8 (expressed as annual figure)
Disability Rights Commission	20,100
Equal Opportunities Commission	8,020
Commission for Racial Equality	19,392

Organisation	£000 Capital budget for financial year 2007-8 (expressed as annual figure)
Commission for Racial Equality	750

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the annual budget of the Equality and Human Rights Commission is expected to be. [157118]

Barbara Follett: As stated in the explanatory notes to the Equality Bill, the estimate of the annual budget for the Equality and Human Rights Commission when it is fully operational is £70 million.

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the total annual cost was of (a) salaries, (b) pension contributions and (c) bonuses of staff employed by the (i) Commission for Racial Equality, (ii) Disability Rights Commission and (iii) Equal Opportunities Commission in the latest period available prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157111]

Barbara Follett: We do not have the information available to give an accurate answer to this question at present. Salary information will be available following completion of the final accounts of the three Commissions.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Redundancy

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much was spent on redundancy packages for staff employed by (a) the Commission for Racial Equality, (b) the Disability Rights Commission and (c) the Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157108]

Barbara Follett: No staff were made redundant. However, the cost of the voluntary severance scheme, excluding the ongoing costs of annual compensation payments (ACP) for people over age 50, is expected to be as follows: CRE cost £3,839,617; DRC cost £1,884,707 and the EOC cost £1,780,364.

Flexible Working

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what plans the Government has to extend the right to request flexible working to all employees. [157755]

Barbara Follett: The right to request flexible work has been a huge success—and in April this year we extended the right to carers of adults—that is another 2.65 million employees.

In the recently published Priorities for the Ministers for Women Command Paper, I made a commitment to support the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in considering whether to extend the right to request flexible work to parents of older children.

Refugees: Forced Prostitution

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities what assessment she has made of the extent and causes of Iraqi women and children who have become refugees being forced into prostitution; what action the UK Government are taking in this regard; and if she will make a statement. [156087]

Barbara Follett: The UK Government are concerned at reports, including from the UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR), that some Iraqi refugee women and young girls have been forced to resort to prostitution and children forced into labour or other forms of exploitation to survive. We will continue to support the efforts of UNHCR, who are working closely with host country Governments to assess and address the needs of all Iraqi refugees.

So far this year the UK Government have committed £15 million to support humanitarian agencies working in Iraq and the region , bringing our total humanitarian assistance for vulnerable Iraqis to over £130 million since 2003. We remain in close contact with our humanitarian partners to ensure they are adequately resourced to respond to needs on the ground.

JUSTICE

Alcoholic Drinks: Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to ensure that court hearings, including appeal hearings, relating to underage sales of alcohol are conducted promptly. [159101]

Maria Eagle: All cases, in both the magistrates court and appeals to the Crown court, are dealt with on their merits and are heard as quickly as possible. The Government's Criminal Justice Simple, Speedy, Summary (CJSSS) programme is under way to improve court processes in the magistrates courts to ensure that cases are dealt with as fairly and as quickly as possible. Early indications are that the programme will have a significant impact on eliminating unnecessary hearings and reducing the time from charge to disposal for adult charged cases. This should also allow summons cases such as underage sale of alcohol to be heard more quickly.

Arms Trade: Israel

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Legal Services Commission is funding a case brought by Mr. Saleh Hassan against the UK Government in relation to Israeli policy in the West Bank. [159040]

Maria Eagle: Saleh Hasan is receiving legal aid to fund a judicial review of the British Government in relation to the granting of export licences for the sale of arms to Israel. Individual funding decisions are made by the Legal Services Commission in accordance with the Access to Justice Act 1999 and other documents laid before Parliament.

Coroners

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the oldest outstanding inquest is in each coroner's jurisdiction; [156048]

(2) what estimate he has made of the average time taken to complete an inquest in England and Wales in each year since 2001, broken down by coroner's jurisdiction; [156049]

(3) how many inquests were pending before coroners in England and Wales at the end of each calendar year since 2001, broken down by coroner's jurisdiction. [156050]

Bridget Prentice: For the oldest outstanding inquest in each district, as at 31 December 2006, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1157-60W, in response to a similar question. More up-to-date information is not held centrally.

The average time in weeks taken to complete an inquest in England and Wales, for each coroner's district, in each year since 2004 (the earliest year for which figures are available) is shown in the following tables.

The number of inquests outstanding within each coroner's district as at 31 December 2006, and at the end of each calendar year since 2001 is shown in the following tables.

Annex A: Estimated average time to conduct an inquest, in weeks, by coroner's district

Name of coroner's district	2004	2005	2006
The Queen's Household	n/a	n/a	n/a

A higher score on the annual Patient Environment Action Team assessments is significantly correlated with lower rates of Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) and Clostridium difficile, although this is unlikely to be a direct relationship. Links between infection and cleanliness vary according to the specific micro-organism involved, and high standards of hygiene are likely to have a greater effect on Clostridium difficile rates, for instance, than on MRSA.

Even for those micro-organisms where the environment has less impact, it is still important that hospitals are kept clean. Patients consistently rate cleanliness as one of their highest priorities for the NHS.

The figure of £50 million is an indicative amount. The final amount will depend on the needs of each hospital, which will inevitably vary. Strategic health authorities (SHAs) will work with their primary care trusts to commission deep cleaning at a locally-agreed cost, and to monitor total spend in their areas. Performance management and evaluation will also be carried out locally.

The deep cleaning programme is an important part of our work in relation to health care associated infections, and will therefore be targeted towards acute trusts. However, all hospitals should be clean, and SHAs have the discretion to include other hospitals, including mental health and learning disability units.

Deep cleaning is time consuming and can be disruptive. Dependent on the approach taken, it may be necessary to close wards or bays. For most trusts, this will take months, rather than weeks. We expect that the majority of activity will be complete by year-end.

Hospitals: Manpower

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has undertaken in the last two years on the (a) minimum size and (b) staffing needs of (i) an accident and emergency unit and (ii) a maternity unit in order to meet the August 2009 requirements of the European Working Time Directive; what cost to the public purse he expects to arise from meeting those requirements; and if he will make a statement. [157005]

Mr. Bradshaw: Local national health service trusts are responsible for implementing the European Working Time Directive (WTD) as part of their health and safety obligations. Strategic health authorities and the Department offer support with WTD planning. The Department is sponsoring NHS National Workforce Projects (NWPs) to support local implementation of WTD 2009. NHS NWPs has commissioned a range of pilots including cooperative solutions, team working, handover and escalation and 24:7 working (which include accident and emergency and maternity units). The pilots take in a wide variety of organisations to look at solutions which are transferable across the NHS. There is ongoing evaluation of the pilots to share lessons learned as early as possible.

Hospitals: Personnel

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assistance there is for NHS staff to relocate to work in alternative healthcare facilities in the event of the closure or downgrading of district hospitals. [157020]

Ann Keen: Proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders.

Assistance with expenses incurred as a result of any relocation arising from a reconfiguration proposal are determined locally in consultation with staff representatives.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccinations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether his Department is taking steps to ensure that young women who left school in summer 2007 before the human papilloma virus vaccination programme was introduced have access to this vaccination on the NHS; [157998]

(2) what decision has been made by his Department regarding a catch-up campaign for the human papilloma virus vaccine for females aged between 12 to 26 years. [158008]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has agreed, in principle, to accept Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) advice that human papilloma virus vaccines should be introduced routinely for girls aged around 12 to 13 years, subject to independent peer review of the cost-benefit analysis.

A detailed analysis is being carried out by the JCVI regarding the cost-benefit analysis, and this work is being externally peer reviewed to ensure its robustness. The Department will consider the issue when the advice from JCVI is available.

Infant Foods

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Department has taken to restrict the promotion of breast milk substitutes. [157223]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is working with the Food Standards Agency (FSA) to look at ways of further restricting the promotion of breast milk substitutes within the United Kingdom regulations stemming from the European Union directive on infant and follow-on formula. The draft regulations issued for public consultation on 2 July ended on 28 September. Comments received from the stakeholders are being collated and evaluated by the FSA. Stakeholders' comments will then be published together with the FSA's responses. The FSA also intends to consult in the near future on the accompanying draft guidance notes. The directive requires that regulations come into force on 1 January 2008.

Internet: Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of the NHS Choices website has been since its establishment. [158749]

Mr. Bradshaw: To date, £7.9 million has been spent on the design, development and operation of the website.

Maternity Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many roadside births have taken place (a) in England and (b) in each primary care trust area in each year since 1997. [157396]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Medical Treatments: Arthritis

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action he is taking to ensure that the full range of biologics is available to patients with rheumatoid arthritis. [158145]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 October 2007]: All primary care trusts in England and Wales are obliged to fund, from general allocations, drug therapies for those patients with rheumatoid arthritis who meet the clinical guidelines issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence.

MRSA: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of MRSA were reported in (a) each London hospital and (b) each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157375]

Ann Keen: The information is not available as requested. The mandatory surveillance of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA) in England applies to national health service acute trusts only. Data on primary care trusts are not compiled.

Since April 2001, trusts in England have reported all cases of MRSA bacteraemias (bloodstream infections), to the Health Protection Agency (HPA). Data covering the period April 2002 to March 2007 were published on 25 July 2007. The data for those trusts in London are summarised in the following table.

MRSA bacteraemias; London (that is within London strategic health authority: April 2002 to March 2007)

April to March each year	Number of bacteraemias
2002-03	1,707
2003-04	1,682
2004-05	1,392
2005-06	1,320
2006-07	1,205

NHS: Ancillary Staff

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) caretakers, (b) hospital porters and (c) cleaners were employed by each London Primary Care Trust in each year since 1997. [157633]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held in the format requested. However, the following table shows the amount of non-medical staff employed in London since 1997 at strategic health authority (SHA) level.

NHS hospital and community health services: maintenance and works staff and support workers in the hotel, property and estates area of work in the London strategic health authority area as at 30 September each specified year

	Headcount
1997	6,266
1998	5,494
1999	5,468
2000	5,064
2001	5,124
2002	5,189
2003	5,318
2004	5,631
2005	5,768
2006	4,827

Notes:
1. These figures are for staff directly employed by the NHS only. The Non-Medical Workforce Census does not cover contracted services staff. Maintenance and works and support staff in hotel, property and estates include caretakers/handypersons, gardeners and grounds, maintenance staff, catering staff and cleaning staff. There is no way to separately identify any of these occupations from the census data.
2. More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9,858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total work force figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures. This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends overtime.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the gateway reviews of the NHS IT programme. [155866]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no current plans to do so. The Gateway review reports are intended to help and inform the management of the programme and the Department's own decisions. They are not intended for publication.

More generally, the Government believe that the prospect of disclosure of any Gateway review would restrain the frankness and candour with which participants engage in the Gateway process, and that this in turn would undermine its effectiveness and the quality of recommendations arising. Gateway reviews perform an important role in ensuring that public authorities are using their resources in an efficient and effective way and there is therefore a strong and vital public interest in maintaining their efficacy.

NHS: Leave

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rules or guidelines his Department has in place governing the length of time that NHS employees are allowed to take paid leave on (a) compassionate and (b) other grounds; what the overall maximum period is for which paid leave will be given; and if he will make a statement. [157737]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The position on paid leave is outlined in the terms and conditions for particular staff groups and depends on time served and individual circumstances.

For medical staff the "National Health Service Hospital Medical and Dental Staff and Doctors in Public Health Medicine and the Community Health Service (England and Wales)", and the "Terms and Conditions of Service for Consultants (England) 2003" have been placed in the Library and are also available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-348.cfm

For non-medical staff the "Agenda for Change NHS Terms and Conditions of Service Handbook", has been placed in the Library and also available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-198.cfm

NHS: Reorganisation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make it his policy that all consultations on NHS service reconfiguration will contain as one option the retention of services in their existing configuration; [157006]

(2) what research his Department has conducted into the impact of relocation or closure of hospital services on patient access to healthcare facilities in areas with disproportionately high numbers of elderly residents; [157015]

(3) whether his Department has undertaken an assessment of the impact on local economies of closing district general hospitals. [157021]

Ann Keen: The Department of Health has not undertaken specific research into the relocation of local health care services.

Proposals for the reconfiguration of services are a matter for the national health service locally, working in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders.

The recently published interim report on the NHS Next Stage Review makes it clear that no major service change should happen except on the basis of need and sound clinical evidence.

NHS: Temporary Employment

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of staffing costs were spent on agency staff in each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157376]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested can be found in the following table.

Trust code	Trust name	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	Percentage 2005-06

Paramedical Staff: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) paramedics and (b) paramedics in training there are in Lancashire; and how many there were in each year since 2000. [157584]

Ann Keen: Information on the numbers of paramedics in training is not collected centrally. Numbers of paramedics in the North West Ambulance Service National Health Service Trust and predecessor organisations is set out in the following table.

	Number
2000	945
2001	966
2002	902
2003	1,037
2004	1,037
2005	1,181
2006	1,175

Note:
In July 2006, Mersey Ambulance Service, Cumbria Ambulance Service, Greater Manchester Ambulance Service and Lancashire Ambulance Service NHS Trusts merged to form North West Ambulance Service NHS Trust.

Radiotherapy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many linear accelerators he expects to be available to the NHS in each year of the next 10 years. [156782]

Ann Keen: The Department does not routinely collect these data, the acquisition of resources is a matter for local determination based on local needs. However when final deliveries are completed, as part of the recent central procurement, there will be approximately 250 linear accelerators (linacs) installed in national health service trusts in England.

The National Radiotherapy Advisory Group report published in May 2007 has recommended that more linacs will be needed over the next 10 years. The recommendations in this report are being considered as part of the development of the cancer reform strategy.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether all radiotherapy centres have plans in place to deliver the 4-tier skills mix model. [156783]

Ann Keen: All trusts with radiotherapy centres are being encouraged to review their skill mix following the recommendations made by the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group (NRAG) produced in May 2007, however radiotherapy staffing profiles need to be based on local needs and priorities.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many radiotherapy departments have more than eight linear accelerators. [156784]

Ann Keen: Three[1] radiotherapy departments in England have more than eight linear accelerators on site. These are Christie Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, Clatterbridge Centre for Oncology NHS Foundation Trust and Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust. However, we do not hold information on whether all these machines are in routine clinical use. Some of these machines may be used for clinical research, training purposes or used as back up when another machine requires maintenance.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average number of fractions per linear accelerator was in the most recent period for which figures are available, broken down by radiotherapy facility. [156785]

Ann Keen: In 2005, a radiotherapy equipment survey was carried out by the National Cancer Services Analysis Team. Results from this survey were included in the report of the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group that was published in May 2007.

As set out in this report 39 out of 48 Trusts with radiotherapy facilities in England responded to the survey. The median radiotherapy centre gave 7,400 fractions per linac and 16 out of the 39 centres delivered more than 8,000 fractions per linac on average. A chart showing the range of productivity across the 39 radiotherapy facilities in England that responded to the survey has been placed in Library.

The radiotherapy equipment survey has recently been repeated and the updated information is currently being validated. A more up-to-date position should therefore be available by the end of October 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many linear accelerators were available to the NHS in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what average number of fractions per annum was delivered by each. [156786]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect data in the format requested, however, the following information might be helpful.

The National Radiotherapy Advisory Group Report published in May 2007 indicated that there were 215 linear accelerators (linacs) in England in August 2006 and that the median radiotherapy centre gave 7,400 fractions per linac averaged across the centre.

From the 39 centres out of 48 that responded to a radiotherapy equipment survey in 2004-05 undertaken by the National Cancer Services Analysis team, the annual average fractions per linear accelerator was 7,522. This included all linacs which were recorded as having been in routine clinical use for the whole year and excluded Cobalt units, machines used for backup, and two machines with very low activity levels less than 100 courses.

The radiotherapy equipment survey has been repeated and results should be available shortly.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to increase the number of hybrid virtual environments on radiotherapy training sites. [156787]

Ann Keen: In May 2007 we announced £5 million of capital funding to support the introduction of virtual skills training facilities to national health service trusts and universities where therapeutic radiography training is undertaken. The National Cancer Director wrote to trusts and universities supporting radiotherapy training on 6 October 2007 inviting them to apply for funding to allow them to procure the facilities.

Waiting Lists: Greater London

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting times were for (a) general surgery, (b) ear, nose and throat surgery, (c) neurosurgery, (d) geriatric medicine and (e) general medicine in each London primary care trust in each of the last five years. [157390]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

TREASURY

Cancer: North East Region

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people (a) were diagnosed with and (b) died from (i) cancer and (ii) breast cancer in (A) Jarrow constituency, (B) South Tyneside and (C) the North East in each year since 1997. [156763]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 15 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people have (a) been diagnosed with and (b) died from (i) cancer and (ii) breast cancer in (A) Jarrow constituency, (B) South Tyneside and (C) the North East in each year since 1997. (156763)

The latest available figures for (a) newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2004 (England and Wales). Numbers of cases of (i) all cancers and (ii) breast cancer, for the years 1997 to 2004 for (A) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (B) South Tyneside County District and (C) North East Government Office Region are given in Table 1.

The latest available figures for (b) deaths are for the year 2006. Numbers of deaths from (i) all cancers and (ii) breast cancer, for the years 1997 to 2006 for (A) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (B) South Tyneside County District and (C) North East Government Office Region are given in Table 2.

Table 1. registrations of newly diagnosed cases of all cancers[1] and breast cancer[2]: Jarrow parliamentary constituency, South Tyneside county district and the north east government office region, 1997-2004

Departments: Accountancy

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will list all accounts directions issued by his Department between 2001-02 and 2005-06; [156004]

(2) what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial year (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156675]

Andy Burnham: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 and the Government Trading Fund Act 1973, the Treasury issues accounts directions to Departments, pensions schemes, agencies and trading funds. It also issues directions to a number of other bodies that prepare accounts under different legislation.

Details of the directions issued by the Treasury under these Acts are detailed in a Dear Accounting Officer (DAO) letter sent to all bodies, the latest such version of which is available on the Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk

Details of the Departments, pensions schemes, agencies and trading funds issued an accounts direction by the Treasury for the years 2001-02 through to 2006-07 have been deposited in the Library of the House.

Also included are details of those bodies that prepare accounts under legislation other than the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 or the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 that hold an extant direction issued by the Treasury. This list also details a few bodies that prepare their accounts under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 that were omitted from the latest DAO.

Departments: Rents

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what income (a) his Department and (b) the Government receive from rental property; and if he will make a statement. [156916]

Angela Eagle: Central Government received income from rental property of £261 million in 2006-07. The Treasury received no income from rental property.

Minimum Wage: Civil Servants

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees employed by the Government and Government agencies are in receipt of no more than the minimum wage; and if he will list the titles of their posts. [158158]

Andy Burnham: This information is not held centrally but it is estimated that for staff in the civil service and non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) the total number, as at September 2007, on the minimum wage is less than 1,000.

Revenue and Customs: Darlington

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) individuals and (b) members of the armed services or their families visited the Enquiry Centre at Regent House, Darlington in each year since 2003-04; and how many of these visits were in connection with tax credits. [157444]

Jane Kennedy: The total number of callers visiting the Darlington Enquiry Centre from 2003-04 to 2006-07 including those with tax credit enquiries were:

	Callers	Tax Credit Enquiry
2003-04	14,120	4,927
2004-05	9,371	2,523
2005-06	10,116	2,261
2006-07	10,920	2,062

HMRC does not have the information to identify how many of those callers were members of the armed forces.

Second Homes: Highlands of Scotland

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he took into account the likely effect on demand for second homes in the Highlands in formulating his proposals to reduce the rate of capital gains tax; [158616]

(2) whether his Department has made an assessment of the factors affecting demand for second homes in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [158617]

Jane Kennedy: The Government take a range of factors into consideration when formulating tax policy, and keeps all aspects of policy under review.

VAT: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. member for North-East Bedfordshire of 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2243W, on VAT: Home Information Packs, what estimate his Department has made of the total gross revenue from VAT on (a) home information packs and (b) energy performance certificates in the first full year of operation if they are introduced across the whole housing market. [157326]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimates have been made.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the written statement of the Financial Secretary of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 62WS, on tax credit administration, what estimate he has made of the amount of overpaid tax credits which will be written off as a consequence of the procedural error described in the written statement. [157088]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 11 October 2007]: An estimate for the amount written off in the accounts as a result of the procedural error is not yet available. It will be included in HMRC's 2007-08 accounts which will be published next year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Aggregates Levy: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which beneficiaries of the Aggregates Levy Sustainable Fund were based in Stroud constituency in each year since the inception of the levy. [158549]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund database captures information at county-level and has details of beneficiaries from April 2004 onwards. Beneficiaries that have run projects in Gloucestershire, since April 2004, are shown in the following list.

Gloucestershire—April 2004 onwards

Bowmoor Sailing Club
British Waterways
Bristol Regional Environmental Records Centre
Cotswold Canal Trust
Cotswold Water Park Society
Cotswold AONB Partnership
Drybrook Parish council
Fairford Playing Field Ltd
Fairford Town council
Gloucester city council
Gloucestershire county council
Gloucestershire Geoconservation Trust
Gloucestershire Wildlife Trust
Huntsmans Quarries Ltd
Kemerton Conservation Trust
MCTI Partnership
Oxford Archaeology
Pool Keynes Village Hall Committee
RSPB
Staunton Parish council
Staunton Meend Common
Stroud Valleys Project
South Gloucestershire council
Somerford Keynes Parish council
South Cerney Playgroup
The National Trust
The Jurassic Hill Geopark
University of Gloucester

Alcoholic Drinks: EU Action

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action he is taking to ensure the term cider brandy is retained and not renamed cider spirit in the draft EU regulations to replace the present EU Regulation 1576/89; and if he will make a statement. [158721]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: DEFRA is aware that the term "cider brandy" is absent from the draft of the European Union regulation on spirit drinks. We are pressing the European Commission to find a pragmatic solution to this issue.

Animal Welfare: Shipping

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many ships departing from UK ports since 1 January 2007 carrying live animals have been subject to inspection for animal welfare purposes; and what percentage of sailings this constitutes. [157789]

Jonathan Shaw: Since January 2007, two specialist livestock vessels have operated out of Dover. These vessels have also had a limited number of sailings from Sheerness and Ipswich port. Animal Health carry out welfare inspections on a percentage of all the animal transport vehicles travelling on these vessels.

Combined figures for the vessels show that, of 104 sailings, 97 included physical and documentary checks on a number of the vehicles onboard. This means that over 93 per cent. of the sailings had welfare checks carried out on their vehicles.

Cattle: Transport

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle passport applications he expects to be received late due to the postal strike; and how many cattle he estimates this will render valueless. [157275]

Jonathan Shaw: BCMS receives around 49,000 applications each week for cattle passports. Passports are produced provided there is reasonable evidence to show that farmers submitted applications in good time or were prevented from doing so by factors outside their control. These factors include known postal strikes.

If applications were not submitted in reasonable time then a passport would be refused and farmers would be unable to move the animal from their holding. 0.35 per cent. of all applications received are normally refused, subject to appeal because they are late. The figures from the last postal strike show that 0.45 per cent. of applications were initially refused. Three quarters of these appealed against the decision and were successful because of the postal strike delays. This compares with 55 per cent. of such appeals during a similar period the previous year.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what accounts directions were issued by his Department in financial years (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [156622]

Jonathan Shaw: Under the Government Resource and Accounts Act 2000 HM Treasury issues accounts directions to Departments, pension schemes and agencies and under the Government Trading Fund Act 1973 to trading funds.

For the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 Department has issued accounts directions for the form and content of resource and other accounts to the following sponsored bodies;

2005-06

British Potato Council
British Waterways Board
Consumer Council For Water
Covent Garden Market Authority
English Nature
Environment Agency
Food From Britain
Gangmasters Licensing Authority
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Royal Botanical Gardens Kew

2006-07

British Potato Council
British Waterways Board
Countryside Agency
Commission For Rural Communities
Covent Garden Market Authority
English Nature
Food From Britain
Gangmasters Licensing Authority
Home Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Meat and Livestock Commission
Milk Development Council
Natural England
Royal Botanical Gardens Kew

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to implement the recommendations of the review, Flooding Lessons Learned, chaired by Sir Michael Pitt. [158753]

Mr. Woolas: The Government await the findings of the Flooding Lessons Learned review and will respond as positively as possible to the recommendations.

Food: Procurement

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he intends to assess the effectiveness of the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative in respect of small and local meat producers. [157329]

Jonathan Shaw: Earlier this year, DEFRA commissioned Ipsos MORI to gauge awareness of the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI) in schools and local authorities. The survey included questions on the proportion of tenders from small and local producers, including meat producers. The results were positive with:

three in five schools (59 per cent.) and four in five local authorities stating that they encourage tenders from small and local producers;

almost seven in 10 local authorities (69 per cent.) stating that at least half the food supplied to schools in their area is from small and local producers;

half of the schools (53 per cent.) stating that at least half of their food is supplied by small and local producers while one in ten schools (9 per cent.) say that all their food is supplied from these producers.

The report also found that in 52 per cent. of the local authorities and 44 per cent. of schools the proportion of food supplied by small and local producers during the last two to three years had increased.

A copy of the Ipsos MORI survey is on the PSFPI website at http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/policy/sustain/procurement/school-food.htm. It was conducted during the period March to July 2007 and covered 81 local authorities and 255 schools.

Recent research by the Meat and Livestock Commission, based on estimates provided by 126 English local authorities, suggests that 39 per cent. of their meat by volume was locally sourced. The figure may exaggerate the amount of locally farmed meat supplied as not all local authorities seek provenance.

In addition to the research mentioned above, DEFRA is currently collating data from across central Government to determine the proportion of publicly procured food that is British. We aim to publish the information before the end of this month.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Compensation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what compensation will be made available to (a) auction marts which suffered closure owing to foot and mouth measures and (b) farmers who were unable to enter their stock for sale in such auction marts. [R] [157080]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no plans to compensate auction markets who suffered closure owing to foot and mouth measures, or farmers who were unable to enter their stock for sale in such auction markets.

Under the Animal Health Act 1981, compensation is paid for animals that are compulsorily slaughtered to prevent the spread of disease. For foot and mouth disease (FMD), the Act requires that compensation is paid at the full market value before the animal became infected. This is determined by an approved valuer at the time of slaughter. Compensation is also paid for other items, such as farm equipment and feed, where these are seized because they are considered to be contaminated; this includes such things as milk. However, it is a long established principle that the Government do not meet the costs of consequential losses, which must be borne by the industry. Government seek to minimise the risk of market impacts, particularly by encouraging public understanding of the issues.

We are taking a risk-based and staged approach to easing movement restrictions when the evidence indicates that it is appropriate to do so. This is the best way to facilitate the return to normal working for the industry. We are working in partnership with the industry, but eradication of foot and mouth disease remains our priority.

National Fallen Stock Collection and Disposal Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make support for the increased costs of collection available to those farmers with fallen stock in low risk areas which are now dependent upon using the National Fallen Stock Company for collection. [158161]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) announced on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 39, that DEFRA would provide £1 million to raise the level of subsidy for the National Fallen Stock scheme for farmers in the foot and mouth (FMD) risk area from 10 per cent. to 100 per cent. This is targeted to help the livestock farmers that have been worst affected financially from restrictions imposed as a result of FMD and this will be available to all livestock keepers in the FMD risk area.

The National Fallen Stock scheme will continue as normal in the rest of the UK and for non-susceptible livestock in the risk area, subject to FMD licensing controls. There are no plans for any extra support to be introduced.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff were employed by the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157110]

Barbara Follett: No staff were made redundant from any of the legacy commissions. However the three commissions ran voluntary severance schemes and the following numbers left the commissions: CRE had 78 leavers, DRC had 68 leavers and EOC had 39 leavers.

SCOTLAND

Youth Citizenship Commission

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the Government expect to launch the Youth Citizenship Commission, as announced in the Green Paper: The Governance of Britain; and what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on the involvement of young people from Scotland in the initiative. [156388]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The Youth Citizenship Commission will report to the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and the Secretary of State for Justice. It will be launched this autumn. There have been discussions at official level between the Secretariat for the Commission and the Scottish Executive.

WALES

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what guidance his Department follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158582]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office complies with Cabinet Office guidelines for the maximum time for responding to correspondence.

The Wales Office publishes correspondence statistics in its annual report and to the Cabinet Office for their annual report to Parliament.

The latest figures for April 2006 to March 2007 were 93 per cent. of correspondence answered within 15 days of receipt.

Departments: Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people were employed by his Department on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [158326]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office publishes staffing figures within the Departmental Annual Report. The 2007 Report (CM7110) provides data on staff including staff numbers, permanent and temporary staff. A copy of the report can be obtained from the Library of the House or it can be viewed on our website:

http://www.walesoffice.gov.uk/2007/AnnualReport2007.pdf.

The Wales Office has not employed any contractors in the last five years.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent by his Department on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158906]

Mr. Hain: Wales Office records are kept in financial year.

£12,265 was spent on hospitality in financial year 2006-07.

Departments: Policy

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what policy changes his Department has implemented since 27 June 2007. [159285]

Mr. Hain: I was delighted to be re-appointed Secretary of State for Wales. I have pressed forward the same policies of deepening devolution in Wales, particularly under the framework set by the Government of Wales Act 2006, and championing Welsh interests.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156994]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W, by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Edward Miliband).

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157881]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office operates 15 websites. On 1 January 2005 the Department operated 11 websites. The estimated annual cost of running the Department's websites in each of the last five years is detailed in the following table.

	Estimated cost (£)
2002-03	28,355
2003-04	34,331
2004-05	30,374
2005-06	56,103
2006-07	39,837

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157882]

Paul Goggins: The most popular website run by the Northern Ireland Office is www.nio.gov.uk; it received 8,767,572 hits between 1 January 2007 and 31 August 2007.

The website used least was www.howsecureismyhome.com; it received 5,909 hits over this same period.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157880]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office currently has no staff seconded from outside Government.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker' Committee on the Electoral Commission if he will make a statement on steps being taken by the Electoral Commission to investigate the permissibility of the donation by Mr. Michael Brown to the Liberal Democrats. [158697]

Peter Viggers: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 16 May 2007, Official Report, column 748W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

BBC: EU Grants and Loans

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the BBC received in the form of (a) loans, (b) direct payments and (c) indirect payments from EU institutions in each of the last five years. [158605]

James Purnell: This is a matter for the BBC. The BBC Group finance director will consider the question raised by the hon. Member and write to him direct. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157890]

Margaret Hodge: The information requested is as follows:

Visitor statistics 1 January to 31 August 2007

The following statistics refer to 'unique visitors' rather than 'hits' which is accepted as a more useful indicator of the popularity of sites.

The most popular site was the main website at:

Digital Broadcasting: Whitehaven

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of those eligible have applied for assistance with digital switchover in Whitehaven. [158568]

James Purnell: As of 15 October 2007, 33 per cent. of those identified as being eligible for assistance from the digital switchover help scheme in the Whitehaven area had contacted the help scheme administrator. 25 per cent. of those eligible for assistance opted to receive help; 8 per cent. of those eligible for assistance chose to opt-out of the scheme.

Internet: Copyright

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with the Secretaries of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills and Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on the implementation of recommendation 39 of the Gowers Review, on internet service providers' responsibility for copyright theft. [158203]

Margaret Hodge: As Minister with responsibility for the creative industries, I have had discussions with my hon. Friend the Minister for Intellectual Property and Quality at the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, and my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Competitiveness at the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in relation to progress on the implementation of a range of recommendations from the Gowers review, including recommendation 39.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will reply to the letters from the hon. Member for Forest of Dean dated 20 April and 18 July regarding the Waterways Museum in Gloucester. [158040]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 15 October 2007]: I replied to the hon. Member's letters on 16 October. I apologise for the completely unacceptable delay in responding to this correspondence. I am taking steps to ensure that officials respond efficiently to correspondence we receive.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many television licences have been issued to addresses in (a) Argyll and Bute constituency, (b) the STV Central region and (c) the STV North region. [158718]

James Purnell [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The BBC has responsibility for the administration of the television licensing system and the maintenance of television licence records. I understand from the BBC, however, that they are not able to provide a breakdown by constituency or TV region of the number of TV licences issued, as there is no operational need for the BBC to hold the information in this way. The information is recorded at individual address level and aggregated to national level for reporting purposes.

Visit Scotland

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the locations are of the overseas offices of (a) VisitScotland and (b) VisitWales. [157303]

Margaret Hodge: Neither VisitScotland nor VisitWales operates overseas offices.

However, under an agreement made between DCMS and the Scottish Executive in March 2005, VisitScotland carries out overseas marketing through VisitBritain's offices in Germany, France, the Netherlands and Eire.

VisitWales has two members of staff working in VisitBritain's New York office. These are the only representatives from VisitWales located overseas.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department provided to (a) VisitScotland and (b) VisitWales in each of the last five years. [157304]

Margaret Hodge: VisitScotland and VisitWales are fully funded by the Scottish Executive and the Welsh Assembly respectively. Neither receives any funding from DCMS.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of families who have access to affordable childcare places in England, broken down by (a) region and (b) constituency. [157729]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available in the form requested.

Ofsted have produced figures on the numbers of registered child care providers and places on a quarterly basis from March 2003. Their latest figures were published in their report "Registered Childcare Providers and Places, June 2007", which is available on their website,

www.Ofsted.gov.uk/

Children: Poverty

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which Secretary of State has the lead role in delivering the 2010 child poverty target; and if he will make a statement. [157600]

Beverley Hughes: As stated in 'PSA Delivery Agreement 9: Halve the number of children in poverty by 2010-11, on the way to eradicating child poverty by 2020',

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, and the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions will be responsible for child poverty, and in addition the Chancellor of the Exchequer is the lead Minister for this PSA."

I refer the hon. Member to the reply of 18 July 2007, Official Report, column 92W.

Foster Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will introduce a compulsory registration scheme for private fostering. [158256]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Government have agreed that at a suitable point we will publish a report on the impact of the enhanced notification scheme introduced by the Children Act 2004, and it is on that basis that we will announce whether or not we are minded to move towards a registration scheme.

Parents: Disadvantaged

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support his Department provides to parents in areas with high levels of gang and gun-related crime to help ensure that children do not become involved in criminal activity. [154095]

Beverley Hughes: We are providing extra funding this year to areas where gun, knife and gang crime is most prevalent to accelerate the roll-out of extended schools. Parenting support is an important part of the extended schools core offer of services. There are currently over 7,000 schools providing access to the core offer of services and by 2010 all schools will be offering these services.

In addition, DCSF is leading a number of wider activities that will provide parents with support to help them steer their children away from trouble. These include launching the £34 million Parent Know How programme; establishing the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners; investing £4 million to employ Respect parenting practitioners, targeted at helping parents whose children are most at risk of engaging in antisocial behaviour; we have established a national network of 53 Family Intervention Projects supporting families facing the most problems; and we have set up, in 18 local authorities, Parenting Early Intervention Pathfinders for parents of younger children who are at risk of negative outcomes.

Play: Facilities

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of publicly run play areas for children available in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007. [154787]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally. We recognise fully the benefits of play for children and we continue to take steps to support and promote the provision of opportunities for play. For example, between 2008-09 and 2010-11, we are providing over £1.1 billion for schools so that every school will be offering access to extended services by 2010. Through this, children and families will be able to access breakfast and after-school clubs, a range of activities and community services, with areas for play an important element of the provision.

In addition, the Government are supporting improvements to the quality of parks and green spaces in all our towns and cities, especially the most deprived areas, so that everyone has access to good quality spaces close to where they live. The quality of parks and green spaces is being driven up by the Government-supported Green Flag Award Scheme; knowledge, capacity and skills within local authorities have been enhanced through the How To programme and the work of the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment, and many communities have improved their local spaces through support Groundwork, the Living Spaces programme and the Liveability Fund.

Video Games: Violence

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what process is to be followed by the online review into the effect of violent video games; [158561]

(2) which groups and organisations have been approached to take part in the review into the effect of violent video games; [158562]

(3) when he expects the review into the effect of violent video games will be complete; and when the results will be published; [158563]

(4) whether there are any other data collection methods the review into violent video games will use other than the online questionnaire. [158564]

Beverley Hughes: The review being carried out by Dr. Tanya Byron will consider the evidence on the risks to children and young people from inappropriate or harmful content in video games and the internet and assess the effectiveness and adequacy of existing measures to protect them and support parents.

An open call for evidence was published by Dr. Byron on 9 October 2007, running until 30 November 2007. It asks respondents to respond online via the Department's website or to email or post responses to the questions posed in the call for evidence document.

A children and young people's call for evidence is due out in week commencing 22 October 2007 and will be promoted through a wide range of media platforms (including social networking sites and online debates).

In addition to considering responses to these two open calls for evidence, the Byron Review will draw upon a wide range of existing evidence, including published commentary and research literature, and will undertake some further research in areas where gaps in the literature have been identified.

Since the review was announced on 8 September 2007, the review has met with groups, organisations and individuals representing parents; children and young people; those involved in the welfare, education and safety of children; the academic and research community; the video gaming industry; gamers; the internet industry (including producers, content aggregators, web hosts, internet service providers, search and navigation providers, consumer device manufacturers and retailers); advertising and retail bodies; government agencies; other statutory and non-statutory public bodies and third sector organisations. Dr. Byron and her team will continue to meet with key stakeholders throughout the period of the review, and they welcome input from any interested person or organisation.

The final report (due to be published in March 2008) will make recommendations to the Secretaries of State for Children's Schools and Families and Culture Media and Sport. This will include a list of individuals and groups that have contributed to the Review.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Alisher Usmanov

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish reports received from British embassies relating to Alisher Usmanov. [158765]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Such information would constitute personal data. A request for personal information brings into play the relevant legislative provisions on data release by the Government and would require the consent of the individual concerned.

Defence Systems and Equipment International Exhibition

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Ministers from his Department attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition in September. [158779]

Dr. Howells: I can confirm to my hon. Friend that no Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Ministers attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International (DSEi) event in September to which he refers.

However, the FCO did jointly sponsor a seminar at the DSEi event with the Defence Manufacturers Association. The seminar aimed to raise awareness and build support for an International Arms Trade Treaty (ATT) among the defence and military equipment industry. John Duncan, UK ambassador for Multilateral and Disarmament Affairs in Geneva, gave a speech about the UK's approach to an ATT and responded to questions on the subject.

Departments: Recruitment

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the Department paid in fees to recruitment agencies for (a) temporary and (b) permanent staff in each year since 1997. [151664]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The recorded expenditure for agency staff for each financial year since 1997 is as follows:

1997-98	451,207
1998-99	799,523
1999-2000	971,657
2000-01	1,584,850
2001-02	2,434,202
2002-03	3,230,264
2003-04	2,357,123
2004-05	1,110,154
2005-06	2,298,906
2006-07	3,344,461

Expenditure in respect of temporary and permanent agency staff is not recorded separately. The increase in expenditure in 2006-07 arose from the need to recruit temporary staff to assist Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Services to move to Trading Fund status, and to enable the FCO's account to be signed off earlier than in previous years.

Gaza: Travel Restrictions

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government have made to the Israeli authorities in the case of Khaled Mudallel on his return from Gaza to his business studies course at Bradford university. [158826]

Dr. Howells: We raised this issue with the Israeli embassy in London on 15 October. The embassy told us that Mr. Mudallel has been advised that he can leave Gaza via the Nitzana Border Terminal.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of British residency permit holders unable to leave Gaza due to official action. [158827]

Dr. Howells: We have made no formal estimate. However, we are currently discussing the problem with our EU colleagues. We continue to raise concerns about movement and access with the Government for Israel.

Indian Sub-Continent: Entry Clearances

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa offices are operated by his Department in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan; and how many staff are employed in each of those offices to process visa applications. [158287]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas has one Visa Section in Bangladesh, located at our high commission in Dhaka. There are four Visa Sections in India, located at our high commission in New Delhi and our deputy high commissions in Mumbai, Chennai and Kolkata. There are two Visa Sections in Pakistan, located at our high commission in Islamabad and our deputy high commission in Karachi.

The following table displays the total number of staff employed at each of these Visa Sections to process visa applications. The figures include entry clearance managers, officers, assistants, local support staff and those on short-term contracts.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many visa applications were processed by his Department in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan in each (i) year and (ii) month since 2001. [158288]

Dr. Howells: The following table displays the total number of UK visa applications processed by our visa sections in Bangladesh, India and Pakistan in each year and month since April 2001.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what targets are set for the processing of visa applications by consular staff in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India and (c) Pakistan. [158290]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas does not set targets for its staff to process visa applications. Instead, UKvisas measures performance at all of its missions abroad against the following public service agreement (PSA) standards.

PSA 1: 90 per cent. of straightforward non-settlement applications to be processed within 24-hours.

PSA 2: 90 per cent. of non-settlement applications requiring further enquiries or interview to be processed within 15 days.

PSA 3: 90 per cent of settlement applications to be processed within 12 weeks.

Iran: Religious Freedom

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Iran on the persecution of the Baha'i community, with particular reference to young Baha'i people being allowed to attend university; and if he will make a statement. [158551]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned about the treatment of religious minorities in Iran. The Baha'i faith is not formally recognised under the Iranian Constitution and as a result Baha'is routinely face persecution and discrimination. In recent years Baha'is have been subject to arbitrary arrests, confiscation of property and restrictions on employment. Denial of access to higher education has been a long-term problem for Baha'i students.

After the religious identifier was removed from the national university entrance examination in 2006, a number of Baha'i students sat the exam for last academic year (2006-07). Over 250 Baha'i students were admitted to campuses across Iran, but 120 were expelled throughout the year as the universities discovered their religion. This year, students applying to study at technical and vocational institutes were required to complete a form stating their religion. The options did not include the Baha'i religion, so Baha'i students were once again effectively excluded from applying to these institutions. We do not yet know the situation facing Baha'i university students this academic year, but we remain concerned that more Baha'is may be prevented from applying to university or expelled in the future.

We continue to monitor the situation and raise concerns about the treatment of the Baha'is with the Iranian authorities, bilaterally and through the EU.

The EU presidency raised specific concerns about the issue of Baha'i access to higher education in meetings with the Iranian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 1 September and 10 October.

Iraq: Overseas Workers

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many UK citizens were employed by non-UK-based private contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters in each of the last five years; [158257]

(2) how many UK citizens were employed by non UK-based private security contractors in Iraq in each of the last five years; [158258]

(3) how many UK citizens were employed by UK-based private contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters in each of the last five years. [158261]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold the information requested by the hon. Member.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how many UK citizens working for UK-based private security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158259]

(2) how many UK citizens working for non UK-based private security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158260]

(3) how many people employed by UK-based security contractors in Iraq were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158264]

(4) how many people employed by UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158265]

(5) how many UK citizens working for non UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years; [158266]

(6) how many UK citizens working for UK-based contractors in Iraq not concerned with security matters were (a) killed and (b) injured in each of the last five years. [158267]

Dr. Howells: Our consular records show that at least 72 British civilians have died in Iraq since March 2003.

2003—6
2004—23
2005—12
2006—22
2007—9

This number includes deaths from natural causes but is not a definitive figure as records include only those cases where consular assistance has been sought. The figure does not include British dual nationals or unrepresented foreign nationals.

We also have records of 78 British civilians who have been injured in Iraq over the same period.

2003—7
2004—30
2005—15
2006—1
2007—15

We do not collect data in a form which would enable us to distinguish between private security companies or other contractors nor the country of origin of those employers. Consular officials do not have accurate figures on non-British nationals in the above categories.

Iraq: Resettlement

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-8WS, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff, what his estimate is of the number of Iraqi nationals who (a) work and (b) have worked in Iraq as (i) direct employees of the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence, (ii) on letters of appointment from HM embassy Baghdad or the British embassy offices in Basra and the Kurdistan region and (iii) as direct employees of the Department for International Development or the British Council. [157993]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 15 October 2007]: About 500 locally engaged staff currently work in Iraq as direct employees of the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence and a further 43 work on letters of appointment from our embassy in Baghdad and our embassy Offices in Basra or Erbil, the Department for International Development (DFID) and the British Council.

About 20,000 have worked for the UK armed forces or the Ministry of Defence and a further 140 have worked on letters of appointment from our embassy in Baghdad, our embassy Offices in Basra or Erbil, DFID and the British Council.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made towards a peace settlement in the Middle East. [158658]

Dr. Howells: In the run up to the November international meeting I believe that a window of opportunity now exists with: a continuing Israeli Prime Minister Olmert/Palestinian President Abbas dialogue; the right hon. Tony Blair's engagement; and a rejuvenated Arab Peace Initiative. We will continue to work with international partners to develop these proposals and move us closer to a two-state solution.

We would like to see at the US-hosted November meeting, an agreement that puts the Israelis and Palestinians on a path to real negotiations in 2008 leading to a final settlement of two states living side by side in peace and security.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the signing of human rights agreements by Saudi Arabia on the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia; and if he will make a statement. [158029]

Dr. Howells: Saudi Arabia is party to the following international instruments:

Convention on the Rights of the Child;

Convention on the Elimination of all forms of racial discrimination;

Convention against torture; and

International convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women.

Saudi Arabia's human rights record is poor but improving. Complete implementation of these instruments continues to be a challenge. It is the role of the UN treaty monitoring bodies to assess how well a country is fulfilling its obligations under a treaty. The Government continue to work both bilaterally and with EU partners to encourage Saudi Arabia to fulfil its obligations and report on time.

From April 2008 the UN Human Rights Council will be implementing periodic reviews on all the human rights records of all Member States.

Ukraine: Work Permits

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the average price was of a UK work visa from Ukraine in each year since 2003. [157937]

Dr. Howells: The current fee for a Work Permit Holder visa application at our Visa Section in Kiev is £200. From 1 July 2005 to 31 March 2007, the fee for a Work Permit Holder visa was £85. Prior to this, Work Permit Holders paid the long-term non-settlement fee of £75.

TRANSPORT

A358

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1109W, on the A358, what discussions she has had with the (a) Highways Agency and (b) Regional Fire Control Centre at Blackbrook on the proposed scheme to link the A358 and M5 at Blackbrook in Taunton constituency; and what the outcome of those discussions was. [158625]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Highways Agency had a constructive meeting with the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) and their consultants on 31 August 2007 to discuss the impact of the A303/A358 South Petherton to M5 Taunton Improvement scheme on the Fire Control Centre at Blackbrook.

It was agreed that both parties should work together to resolve any issues. The Highways Agency have sent further information to DCLG to allow their consultants to update the risk assessment of the site.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2007, Official Report, column 1109W, on the A358, if she will take steps to make the Highways Agency report into alternative schemes to link the A358 and M5 at Blackbrook in Taunton constituency available to local residents; if she will undertake a further public consultation on the alternative schemes; and if she will place a copy of the report in the Library. [158626]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In response to public feedback received during consultation, the Highways Agency is currently considering two alternative options to connect the M5 northbound and the A358 eastbound (Blackbrook loop). The outcome of this additional work will be included in an addendum to the public consultation report, which would be published in due course.

Should it be considered necessary to amend the proposed scheme as a result of this further work then it is likely that further limited consultation would be undertaken.

When the report is published it will be posted on the Highways Agency's website and be deposited in the local area for the public to view.

Airports: Passengers

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers passed through (a) Heathrow and (b) Gatwick airports between April and September 2007; and if she will make a statement. [159355]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table shows the number of terminal passengers at Heathrow and Gatwick airport in each month between April and September 2007.

Terminal passengers at Heathrow and Gatwick, April-September 2007

	Heathrow	Thousand Gatwick
April	5,667	2,722
May	5,611	3,012
June	6,014	3,359
July	6,419	3,787
August[1]	6,378	3,969
September[1]	6,022	3,550
Total	36,111	20,400

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much has been allocated to Chorley borough council to fund the free local concessionary bus travel scheme in 2007-08; [158729]

(2) what increase in the rate support grant Chorley borough council will receive to fund free national off-peak travel for pensioners and disabled people for 2008-09. [158730]

Ms Rosie Winterton: From April 2006, older and disabled people have been guaranteed free off-peak local bus travel within their local authority area. The existing funding for statutory concessionary fares is supported through Formula Grant, which comprises Revenue Support Grant, Redistributed Business Rates and Principal Formula Police Grant.

Formula Grant is an unhypothecated block grant i.e. authorities are free to spend the money on any service. Because of this and the method of calculation, particularly floor damping (which guarantees local authorities at least a minimum percentage increase by scaling back increases for other authorities), it is not possible to say how much of the total Formula Grant funding is for any particular service.

Local authorities have the discretion to offer (and fund from their own resources) enhancements to the statutory minimum, such as peak bus travel and/or concessions on other modes.

The £212 million of extra funding to English authorities for the national bus concession from April 2008 will be distributed by a non-ringfenced special grant via a formula. The Department has recently published a consultation paper on the formula basis for distribution of the special grant. This new consultation supersedes the Department for Communities and Local Government's consultation on the formula grant options for concessionary fares. Local authorities have been asked to respond to the special grant consultation by 23 November.

In addition, we have announced that we will be providing local authorities with approximately £30 million for the issuing of the national pass; it is likely that Chorley borough council will receive around £69,000 of this additional funding.

Cars: Hire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) accidents and (b) traffic offences occurred involving hire cars in Peterborough constituency in each of the last five years. [158962]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Crossrail Line

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a financing agreement is in place for the Crossrail project. [158495]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 16 October 2007]: I refer the right hon. Member to the White Paper for the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review presented to Parliament by the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 9 October 2007.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will place a copy in the Library of the financial agreement on Crossrail. [158492]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Subject to commercial confidentiality, the Secretary of State expects to place relevant agreements in the Library in due course.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what contingency preparations her Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [156993]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for the Cabinet Office and the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Motorcycles: Accidents

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents there have been involving (a) motorcyclists, (b) bicycles and (c) only motorcyclists and bicyclists in each year since 1997. [158672]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least (a) one motorcyclist, (b) one pedal cyclist and (c) no other vehicles or pedestrians but at least one motorcyclist and at least one pedal cyclist, in each year since 1997 is shown in the table—note that (c) is included in both (a) and (b).

	Number of accidents involving at least one:
	Motorcycle	Pedal cycle	Motorcycle and pedal cycle only
1997	24,928	24,705	5,850
1998	23,188	24,969	5,649
1999	23,221	26,537	5,945
2000	20,866	28,635	6,051
2001	19,316	29,398	6,067
2002	17,373	28,825	5,691
2003	17,300	28,721	5,931
2004	16,922	26,151	5,526
2005	16,856	25,204	4,799
2006	16,440	23,730	4,734

Railways: Rolling Stock

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the extra rail carriages announced by her Department in the five-year plan published on 24 July have been introduced; and on which lines. [156923]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The extra rail carriages are to be introduced in stages between 2009 and 2014.

Roads: Accidents

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents in each of the last five years involved children; and if she will make a statement. [159262]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one child casualty (aged 0 to 15) for each of the last five years is:

	Number
2002	30,430
2003	28,264
2004	27,253
2005	24,837
2006	22,676

In 2000, the Government set a PSA target to achieve a 50 per cent. reduction in the number of children aged 0 to 15 killed or seriously injured by 2010, compared with the average for 1994-98. 3,294 children were killed or seriously injured in Great Britain in 2006, which is 52 per cent. below the 1994-98 average of 6,860. In February 2007 we issued a new child road safety strategy, which sets out further measures to improve child road safety.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: Debt Collection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many liability orders the Child Support Agency has applied for in each month since January 2003; how many of these were inaccurate in any particular; and how many were (a) withdrawn and (b) dismissed. [146178]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions regarding the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many liability orders the Child Support Agency has applied for in each month since January 2003; how many of these were inaccurate in any particular; and how many were (a) withdrawn and (b) dismissed. (146178)

Such information as is available is set out in the attached table. The Agency holds information on; the number of liability orders it has applied for, the numbers subsequently granted as well as information on the numbers of applications withdrawn by the Agency pre and post hearing and the numbers of cases dismissed by the Courts. This information is recorded and validated on a yearly basis only. The Agency currently does not hold management information on the accuracy of individual elements of child maintenance cases such as the liability order process.

Information on a range of enforcement actions is routinely published in the Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). A copy of this is available in the House of Commons Library and is also available on the Internet via the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_jun07.asp

The Agency seeks liability orders in cases where the non-resident parent is failing to meet their responsibilities to maintain their children. In many cases, as the non-resident parent may not have co-operated fully in the assessment and calculation of their maintenance liability, the Agency will proceed on the basis of the information available. As the Agency will continue to correspond with the non-resident parent throughout the time taken for a liability order to be granted, the non-resident parent can at any time supply information which may lead to a review of the maintenance assessment, or indeed make payments to comply with the maintenance liability. In addition, in some cases the parent with care can request that any maintenance owed directly to them not be recovered, the Agency will then consider withdrawing the liability order application prior to the court hearing.

Once a liability order is being actively considered by the Court, the non-resident parent can make representations for the Court to dismiss the liability order. The Courts currently dismiss less than one per cent of applications. The Agency believes that this is a good indication of the robustness of the checking regime currently in place. Finally, once a liability order has been awarded, the non-resident parent can again bring forward additional information, or indeed settle their arrears and the Agency may again consider whether it is appropriate to proceed with the application.

It should therefore be noted that there are many reasons that the Agency may withdraw a liability order application, however the Agency currently does not record individual reasons an application may be withdrawn. The most relevant measure of the accuracy of the Agency's process is therefore the low numbers of cases dismissed by the Courts, following representations from the non-resident parent.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

	Applied for	Withdrawn pre-hearing	Dismissed	Granted	Withdrawn post-hearing
2002-03	5,540	202	69	2,383	—
2003-04	6,719	285	71	3,885	—

2006-07	15,309	1,212	50	*13,335	232

Notes:
1. A liability order is a document obtained from the court showing that they legally recognise the debt. This is the same in both England and Wales, and Scotland and is required before the Agency can use litigation powers (Diligence in Scotland).
2. The figures marked with an asterix* are sourced from the Agency's Quarterly Summary of Statistics. All other figures have been clerically collated and are actual figures, not subject to rounding.
3. Figures sourced from the Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics are rounded to the nearest five.
4. Robust information on the numbers of liability order withdrawn post-hearing is unavailable prior to April 2004.
5. Due to differences in the Scottish legal system, cases classified by the Agency as withdrawn pre-hearing are classified by the courts as dismissed.
6. It should be noted that for any period, the number of liability orders applied for will not directly relate to the number of applications granted as the process can take many weeks to complete. Liability orders applied for in one period may not be granted until the following period.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total value is of the contracts the Child Support Agency (CSA) has with external debt collectors; how much has been paid to date under such contracts; with which debt collectors the CSA has contracts; how many cases they are handling; what the average debt outstanding on transfer to the external debt collectors is; how many cases they have successfully recovered outstanding debt from (a) in full and (b) in part; and what average sum has been recovered. [155937]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the total value is of the contracts the Child Support Agency (CSA) has with external debt collectors; how much has been paid to date under such contracts; with which debt collectors the CSA has contracts; how many cases they are handling; what the average debt outstanding on transfer to the external debt collectors is; how many cases they have successfully recovered outstanding debt from (a) in full and (b) in part; and what average sum has been recovered. [155937]

The Agency has a current contract with two debt collection agencies, Eversheds LLP and iQor. The contract with both of these debt collection agencies has been let on a commission basis and the final value of the contract will be dependent on the amount of debt collected by them. Up to 31 August 2007, the Agency has paid over £360,000 to the debt collection agencies under this contract.

As at 31 August 2007, the Agency has referred over 59,000 cases to the debt collection agencies with an average debt value of £5,250. Of these, the agencies have collected debt in over 12,000 cases, from which 2,003 non-resident parents have paid their child support maintenance debt in full, with the average collection being £444.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Child Support Agency: Manpower

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely impact of proposed reductions in staffing of the Child Support Agency (CSA) on the effectiveness of the CSA and its successor the Child Maintenance and Support Commission. [155614]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Agency is committed to meeting both the departmentally agreed headcount target of 9,547 by March 2008 and the Secretary of State performance targets for the coming year. Computer system improvements as part of the Agency's Operational Improvement Plan will ensure client service in both CSA, and later C-MEC, will not be affected by this reduction in headcount.

Child Support Agency: Standards

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the Belfast unit of the Child Support Agency over the last (a) six months and (b) year in handling claims involving children from Northamptonshire. [154969]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 10 September 2007]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty, dated 17 October 2007:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what recent assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the Belfast unit of the Child Support Agency over the last (a) six months and (b) year in handling claims involving children from Northamptonshire. [154969]

Such information as is available for Northamptonshire cases is set out in tables S1a to S4b of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). Unfortunately, these tables have recently been added and only give information back to December 2006. These tables show that at end of June 2007 the compliance rate for the Nottinghamshire area is 67%, slightly above that of the national average of 66%. The Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics is available in the House of Commons Library or on the Internet via the following link: www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_jun07.asp.

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of HM Revenue and Customs gross income data which will be (a) less than one year out of date, (b) more than one year out of date and (c) more than two years out of date when calculating child maintenance under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission; and if he will make a statement. [154619]

Mr. Plaskitt: Under the proposed scheme, non-resident parents' maintenance liabilities will be based on their gross income for the latest tax year available from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs at the time that a case is opened or is subject to an annual review.

With the increased focus on parents agreeing to voluntary arrangements and the ending of the requirement that parents with care on benefit be treated as applying for child maintenance, not all of the current Child Support Agency case load will choose to use the statutory maintenance service. Since we do not know the precise composition of the resulting case load, no estimates have been made on the proportion of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs gross income data which will be (a) less than one year out of date, (b) more than one year out of date and (c) more than two years out of date when calculating child maintenance under the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the Department is taking to enable the recovery of historical debt of non-resident parents by the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [156491]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 8 October 2007]: We want to take firm action at the earliest opportunity against non-resident parents who do not fulfil their responsibility to pay maintenance.

The Child Support Agency has already begun to improve the recovery of debt as part of the Operational Improvement Plan and is committed to recovering over £200 million historic debt by 2009.

The Commission will build on the current Child Support Agency debt strategy and the success of the Operational Improvement Plan. Through the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill we intend to strengthen the range of enforcement and debt management powers that will be at the disposal of the Commission. The Bill proposes new and streamlined enforcement provisions such as administrative liability orders, disqualification from holding or obtaining a travel authorisation, collection of maintenance directly from accounts held by financial institutions, enforcing the surrender of a non-resident parent's passport and imposing a curfew.

New debt management powers, such as the ability to accept part payment of arrears in full and final settlement, will, where appropriate, take account of the wishes of the parent with care. These powers will help the Commission manage debt, including interim maintenance assessment debt. The new debt management and enforcement measures will be used both to encourage ongoing compliance to prevent the new debt building up, and to enable more of the accumulated debt to be recovered.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children he estimates will be taken out of poverty when the new £40 disregard for child maintenance is introduced. [158797]

Caroline Flint: We estimate that around 50,000 children will be lifted out of poverty by increasing the child maintenance disregard to £40 a week from April 2010.

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Manpower

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on staffing levels at the Commission for Equality and Human Rights; and if he will make a statement. [157817]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Equality and Human Rights Commission currently plans to employ approximately 500 staff. There is no intention to make a statement.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which private consultancy firms (a) his Department and (b) agencies which report to his Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155875]

Mrs. McGuire: The details of consultancy engagements and related costs by all projects across the Department for Work and Pensions and all its agencies over the last three years are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. A particular exercise to obtain this information for the 12 projects with the largest engagement with consultancy firms over the last three years has been conducted and the results are shown in the following table.

Departments: Dismissal

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many departmental staff have been dismissed for gross misconduct in each of the last five years. [157175]

Mrs. McGuire: The information on the number of people dismissed for gross misconduct for the period July 2003 to March 2007 is shown in the following table.

No information is available for the period before July 2003.

Information for the period from April 2007 to March 2008 is not available.

Jobcentre Plus: Doctors

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints were received about doctors contracted to Jobcentre Plus to carry out incapacity benefit assessments, in each of the last five years, broken down by local benefits agency; and if he will make a statement. [154866]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 10 September 2007]: Medical services are provided to DWP under contract by Atos Healthcare. Doctors carrying out incapacity benefit (IB) assessments are engaged by Atos Healthcare not Jobcentre Plus.

Atos Healthcare only began keeping records of complaints received by local benefits office in 2004 and by Jobcentre Plus region in 2005. Information about the number of complaints received per Medical Services Centre, relating to IB is in the following table.

National Insurance

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the surplus is in the National Insurance Fund; what surplus he expects to be in that fund for each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [157342]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is shown in paragraph 4 and Appendix 9 of the Report by the Government Actuary on the drafts of the Social Security Benefits Up-rating Order 2007 and the Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating and National insurance Funds Payments) Order 2007.

National Insurance: Bexleyheath

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were issued to residents of Bexleyheath and Crayford in 2006-07. [153897]

Mr. Plaskitt: 2,731 national insurance numbers were issued to residents of Bexleyheath and Crayford between 1 April 2006 and 31 March 2007.

National Insurance: Foreigners

Mr. Howard: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many foreign nationals in the Shepway district were issued with national insurance numbers in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the preceding four years. [156611]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available on how many national insurance numbers were issued. The available information on the numbers of registrations for national insurance numbers is in the following table.

Number of national insurance numbers registered to foreign nationals in Shepway local authority area

Year of registration	Number of registrations
2004-05	410

Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the yearly value in absolute terms was of the standard basic state pension for (a) a pensioner couple and (b) a single pensioner, excluding winter fuel and over-75 payments, in each year since 1997-98. [158142]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is in the following table.

	Pensioner couple	Single pensioner
1997-98	5,189.60	3,247.40
1998-99	5,376.80	3,364.40
1999-2000	5,548.40	3,471.00
2000-01	5,610.80	3,510.00
2001-02	6,026.80	3,770.00

2004-05	6,617.00	4,139.20
2005-06	6,822.40	4,266.60
2006-07	7,007.00	4,381.00
2007-08	7,259.20	4,539.60

Notes:
1. The figure for each year is its cash value.
2. There are no singles or couples rates as such. The basic state pension is an individual benefit; although the Category A rate is commonly referred to as the singles rate, and the combination of the Category A and Category B rate is commonly referred to as the couples rate.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at how many of the establishments in the UK with a certificate of designation under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 there is at least one member of the animal care staff or licensee constantly on site. [158152]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The information requested is not held by the Home Office.

Primary responsibility for animals used in regulated procedures rests with the personal licensee concerned. Under personal licence standard conditions 12 and 15 set out in Appendix E to the published Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321) the personal licensee must ensure that animals are properly monitored and cared for and that suitable arrangements exist for the care and welfare of any animals during any period when the personal licensee is not in attendance.

In addition, certificate of designation standard conditions 4 and 9 set out in Appendix B to the guidance require that establishments must be appropriately staffed at all times to ensure the well-being of the protected animals and that they must be provided with adequate care and accommodation appropriate to their type or species. Further requirements are set out in certificate of designation standard conditions 10 and 12.

In practice, professional judgment is exercised on a case-by-case basis by the personal licensee, named veterinary surgeon and named animal care and welfare officer to decide the level of care to be provided, which could involve 24-hour monitoring.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been sentenced to custody for breach of an antisocial behaviour order. [156304]

Jacqui Smith: The latest data available on sentencing for breach of an ASBO relate to 2000 to 2003. These show that of the 793 people found guilty of breach of ASBO 134 were sentenced to custody for breach of ASBO alone—in all other cases, they were convicted for other offences at the same time.

Asylum

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) principal applicants and (b) dependants have been admitted to the United Kingdom under the Gateway Refugee Resettlement Programme in each year since the scheme commenced. [157967]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Gateway Protection Programme became operational in the financial year 2004-05 when 64 principal applicants and 86 dependants were admitted to the UK. In 2005-06 56 principal applicants and 192 dependants were admitted and in 2006-07 139 principal applicants and 368 dependants were admitted to the UK under the Gateway resettlement programme.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what quota the Government set for the maximum number of admissions under the Gateway Refugee Resettlement Programme in each year since the scheme commenced; and what quotas have been set for future years. [157968]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Since the Gateway Protection Programme commenced in 2004 the Government have set the quota at 500 refugees per financial year. The Government have not yet set the quota for future years.

Asylum: Iraq

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to the Borders and Immigration Agency on how to handle applications for exceptional leave to remain in Britain from Iraqi nationals who have worked in Iraq for the UK armed forces or the British Government in one or more of the categories set out in the written statement by the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs of 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 27-8WS, on Iraq: assistance to locally employed staff. [157969]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Foreign Secretary announced on 8 October 2007 the criteria under which current locally engaged staff who had worked for HMG in Iraq would be eligible for referral for exceptional leave to enter the UK. Officials are currently working up the guidance to be issued to the Border and Immigration Agency staff dealing with the cases.

Asylum: Parents

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases remain to be determined under the initiative announced on 24 October 2003 on the right to remain of asylum seekers with children. [158197]

Mr. Byrne: The number of cases identified for consideration up to 31 March 2007 (the last quarter for which information is available) was 61,485 of which 61,135 were determined leaving 350 cases outstanding.

BAE Systems: USA

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason her Department has not yet complied with the request for mutual legal assistance from the United States in relation to its investigation into BAE Systems; and when she expects her Department to comply with this request. [158357]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The request is receiving careful consideration. It is not appropriate to speculate on a time scale for a decision on its execution.

Border and Immigration Agency: Information Officers

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) national and (b) regional press officers were employed by the Border and Immigration Agency and its predecessor, the Immigration and Nationality Directorate, in each of the last 10 years. [158700]

Mr. Byrne: Between 2000 and 2004, one Chief Immigration Officer was usually attached to the Home Office press office as part of a rolling secondment programme.

In 2004, the secondment programme was discontinued and instead IND funded until January 2007 the salary of an additional permanent Government information officer based in the Home Office press office to work on immigration issues.

Since February 2007, IND/BIA has funded the salaries of three Government information officers based in the Home Office press office.

BIA has since April 2007 funded the recruitment and appointment of five new information officers and one senior information officer to work to each of the regional directors.

Consultants: Costs

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which private consultancy firms (a) her Department and (b) agencies which report to her Department engaged in each of the last three years; which programmes or projects each firm worked on; and what the approximate cost to the Department or agency concerned was of each engagement. [155899]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Department engages consultancy firms to support and augment civil servants in the delivery of a specific range of work, including large IT development programmes and where more cost-effective, longer term service delivery programmes.

The Department's expenditure on these services is allocated across a very wide range of firms, ranging from small, specialist companies with niche expertise and few employees, to global multinational organisations offering a broad spectrum and substantial depth of consultancy expertise.

The Department awards contracts in competition according to the EU procurement regulations based on best value for money. The Department uses OGC framework agreements where appropriate. The use of external consultants in the Home Office provides the Department with specialist knowledge, skills, capacity and technical expertise that would not otherwise be available to it. Some of the expenditure is on consultants to whom we have outsourced services, such as IT.

The information held by the Home Department on its spend on consultancy and professional legal services is as follows:

2004-05: centrally held data are not available on a like-for-like basis, owing to a change in financial recording systems in that period.

2005-06: consultancy: £137 million; legal; £21 million: total: £158 million.

2006-07: consultancy: £148 million; legal: £28 million; total: £176 million.

2007-08: during the current financial year, the Home Department is refining and improving its approach to the management of consultancy spend including a more rigorous demand management and approval process. Year to date figures indicate a reduction in spend which we are forecasting to be maintained throughout the current financial year.

The breakdown across agencies and the Department are as follows.

A breakdown of expenditure by engagement by company is not held centrally and to attempt to assemble it would incur disproportionate cost. The top 10 companies by total expenditure across the Home Office in the last three years are as follows. The companies are listed in alphabetical order; the amount spent with each company is not shown on grounds of commercial confidentiality.

Detention Centres: Hunger Strikes

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many detainees in immigration detention centres went on hunger strike in each of the last five years; [154572]

(2) what guidance has been issued to immigration detention centres on how to deal with those on hunger strike. [154573]

Jacqui Smith: We only record detainees who have refused to eat the meals provided. The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

It is normal procedure to place a detainee on a missed meals log if they have missed four consecutive meals, not including breakfast, as this allows staff to monitor their health and welfare to ensure they receive appropriate treatment where necessary.

Detention Services Order 07-2004 was issued to immigration removal centres on how to deal with those on hunger strike. A copy has been placed in the House Library.

European Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the timetable for the UK's ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Trafficking of Human Beings. [158533]

Mr. Byrne: The Government are determined to ratify the Convention as soon as we can but are determined to get the arrangements right before doing so. We need to be compliant with the Convention before formal ratification. Some of the other signatories to the Convention have legal systems that allow or require ratification before implementation—ours does not. The UK is already largely compliant with the Convention but some amendments to primary/secondary legislation will be required, as will the development of guidance and the institution of new processes. A dedicated project team within the Border and Immigration Agency is leading delivery of the changes needed to comply with the Convention and is reporting regularly to a cross-government official project board and Ministerial Group. Action against trafficking is continuing and is not on hold pending ratification. During the ongoing, police-led anti-trafficking operation, Pentameter 2 we are piloting an identification process and a 30-day reflection period, as required by Article 10 and 13 of the Convention.

Forensic Science Service

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to re-organise the Government's Forensic Service. [157533]

Meg Hillier: The Forensic Science Service was an Executive agency of the Home Office until December 2005 when it was vested as a Government-owned limited company (GovCo). In accordance with commitments given to Parliament in March 2006, I am currently considering whether there should be a further change of status, and if so, what that status should be. I hope to be in a position to make an in principle decision by the end of the year.

Immigration Officers: Airports

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has plans to increase the number of staff on duty at immigration counters at UK airports. [158536]

Mr. Byrne: We are currently recruiting 118 additional immigration officers at UK airports.

We deploy staff based on published flight schedules and anticipated passenger loads as this is the most effective way to ensure prudent spending of public money. We do not allocate resources based on the number of desks a port operator makes available as this would lead to staff being completely unoccupied for significant periods of their working day. We take a number of measures at peak times to ensure that maximum numbers of staff are available.

This year these measures include:

The re-deployment of mobile search teams to the front-line;

The re-deployment of staff from support functions such as passenger caseworking

Legislation

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criminal offences have been created by each Act sponsored by her Department since May 1997. [156309]

Jacqui Smith: In the period since 1997, the Home Office has had responsibility for a wide range of subjects, including electoral law, data protection, licensing, police, prisons, criminal law and criminal justice, as well as immigration, serious crime and terrorism, and brought forward legislation on these issues as appropriate. In some cases, the legislation created new offences; in other cases, it re-enacted, or gave statutory form to, existing offences, sometimes with modifications to their extent or scope.

A list of all criminal offences created in all Acts sponsored by the Home Office since 1997 is not held centrally, and could be produced only at disproportionate cost in time and resources.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 9 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. Larry Allen. [156904]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 11 October 2007.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 6 August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr. M. Sultan. [156905]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 4 September 2007.

Police: South West Region

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Government funding provision was (a) in total and (b) per capita for police services in (i) Devon and Cornwall and (ii) England and Wales in each year since 1979. [156359]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested where available is set out in the following table.

Information from before 1995-96 is unreliable due to the changed structures of police authorities.

We do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of socio-demographic data to reflect the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative resources of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping changes to limit year-on-year variations. Devon and Cornwall actually receives £1.9 million more than it would on a strict application of the funding formula.

Work Permits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 October 2007, to question 149263, on work permits, if she will give a breakdown of the 20 non-EU nationalities receiving the most work permits for (i) doctors and (ii) nurses in each of the last 10 years. [158339]

Mr. Byrne: The tables show the number of approved work permit applications that were issued to the top 20 non-EU nationality recipients of work permits (and others) for (i) doctors (table 1) and (ii) nurses (table 2) during the period 1999 to 2006. Data for 1997 and 1998 are not available. There have been no approvals for auxiliary nurses during this period.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Leader of the House what contingency preparations her Office made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156995]

Helen Goodman: The guidance covering the conduct of official business during a general election was last issued in May 2005. This guidance, and other relevant procedures and processes, are kept under constant review by the Cabinet Office and other relevant departments so that they are ready to be put in place when a general election is called.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces are entitled to the council tax exemption on his Department's homes. [158109]

Derek Twigg: Based on current deployment numbers, it is estimated that some 3,000 Service personnel with Service Families Accommodation will initially be eligible for the council tax relief payment, increasing to some 5,000 next year when the relief will cover those on operational deployments beyond Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the armed forces will be entitled to the new council tax discount on homes not owned by his Department for troops serving abroad. [158110]

Derek Twigg: Based on current deployment numbers, it is estimated that some 5,000 Service personnel with private accommodation will initially be eligible for the council tax relief payment, increasing to some 7,500 next year when the relief will cover those on operational deployments beyond Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to increase the level of the discount for members of the armed forces serving abroad on operational duty each year in line with council tax inflation. [158111]

Derek Twigg: The level of payment will be updated annually based on the average council tax per dwelling in England.

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the council tax rebate for serving personnel in the armed forces will come into effect. [158615]

Derek Twigg: Payments will be made from 1 April 2008 and will cover deployments from 1 October 2007.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what units down to company level formed the Spearhead Land Element in 2005. [158394]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Spearhead Land Element was rostered, during 2005, as follows:

Unit	Dates
1st Battalion The Royal Gurkha Rifles	1 January to 5 March
1st Battalion The Royal Green Jackets (now 2nd Battalion The Rifles)	5 March to 7 July
1st Battalion The Green Howards (now 2nd Battalion The Yorkshire Regiment)	7 July to 1 December
2nd Battalion The Light Infantry (now part of The Rifles)	1 December to 31 December

The Spearhead Land Element is a battalion size commitment. It is up to each battalion to manage this commitment between its available companies or sub units.

Armed Forces: Housing

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has had from former service personnel groups regarding the supply of affordable housing; and if he will make a statement. [155833]

Derek Twigg: The Department for Communities and Local Government and the devolved Administrations lead on social housing matters but the Ministry of Defence is in regular contact with them on veterans' housing issues. As Minister for Veterans, I have frequent contact with ex-service organisations. Various initiatives to reduce the risk of homelessness among service leavers and veterans have been discussed but neither my officials nor I recall the specific subject of the supply of affordable housing being raised. The Joint Services Housing Advice Office provides practical advice on access to affordable housing to current armed forces personnel and those who are soon to leave the services.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of members of the armed forces who served on the front line in each of the last five years received bonus payments in each of those years; what the (a) amount of bonuses paid and (b) largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [157426]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Members of the armed forces do not receive bonus payments as part of their basic pay package. However all personnel who meet the eligibility criteria are paid the tax free Operational Allowance. The tax free Operational Allowance was effective from 1 April 2006 and came into payment in November 2006.

The amount of the largest single payment is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For financial year 2006-07 35,983 armed forces personnel received payment of the Operational Allowance, totalling £44.77 million. As a proportion of the strength of the armed forces at 1 April 2006 this represents about 18 per cent.

For financial year 2007-08 to 30 September 2007,28,114 armed forces personnel received payment of the Operational Allowance, totalling £14.13 million. As a proportion of the provisional strength of the armed forces at 1 April 2007 this represents about 15 per cent. The marked difference in value between financial year 2006-07 and financial year 2007-08 to date is due to a smaller entitled population and a number of payments being made in advance at the end of financial year 2006-07, prior to closedown of the system for army implementation of JPA.

Army: Officers

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers in the Army are surplus to requirement; and what plans there are to reduce this number. [158372]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Officer strength is measured against the April 2008 Regular Army Liability (RAL), and on 1 March 2007, a surplus of 628 was recorded. However, the RAL only accounts for permanent posts, and there are currently more than 1,000 temporary posts for officers in addition to the RAL total for other requirements including support to operations. Therefore, even taking account of the RAL surplus, the total officer requirement is not being met and, as a result, there are currently no plans to reduce officer numbers.

Ballistic Missile Defence: USA

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what discussions his Department has had with the US Administration on plans to develop missile silos and x-band radar on land or sea bases in the UK; [158620]

(2) what discussions he and officials from his Department have had with the US Administration on plans to site interceptor missiles or related equipment in the UK. [158621]

Des Browne [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The Ministry of Defence continues to discuss ballistic missile defence issues with the US Administration. It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations. As I set out in my statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report column 72WS, we have no plans to site missile interceptors in the UK.

Defence

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his French counterpart on (a) European Security and Defence Policy and (b) NATO. [154253]

Des Browne: I attended the Bastille Day celebrations in Paris on 14 July, where I met the French Defence Minister for bilateral discussions. I also had the opportunity to meet him at the end of September in the course of the EU Defence Ministers' informal meeting in Portugal.

On both occasions we discussed a range of issues, including the European Security and Defence Policy and NATO.

Defence Systems and Equipment International Exhibition

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Ministers from his Department attended the defence systems and equipment international exhibition in September. [158778]

Des Browne: The Minister for the armed forces and the Minister for defence equipment and support each visited the 2007 defence systems and equipment international exhibition in London in September.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason the 1 July DASA figures under TSP04 published on 25 August did not include the Army. [157161]

Derek Twigg: Army personnel figures at 1 July 2007 were not published on 23 August due to ongoing data validation from the new Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system. This is necessary to ensure the statistics are of the quality required of a National Statistics output.

Figures for the total strength of the Army at 1 July 2007 will be published in Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 1: Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces, on 19 October 2007. Detailed statistics relating to Army personnel at 1 July 2007 and 1 October 2007 will be published in TSP 4: Quarterly Press Release, on 22 November 2007.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157863]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally.

Diego Garcia: USA

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 19 March 2007, Official Report, column 604W, on Diego Garcia: USA, if he will list the occasions in each year from 1979 to date when the US has sought approval for operations they wished to undertake from the island. [155373]

Des Browne [holding answer 17 September 2007]: The 1966 UK/US Exchange of Notes requires the US to seek prior approval at the highest political level for any offensive action by the US from their base at Diego Garcia. It is a matter of record that the UK approved US offensive action from Diego Garcia in support of operations in Afghanistan in 2001 and Iraq in 2003. However, I am withholding a full list of the occasions when the US has sought such approval as the release of such information would, or would be likely to, prejudice our international relations.

Ex-servicemen: Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on requiring local authorities to accept applications from members of HM armed forces for social housing on leaving the services; and if he will make a statement. [157785]

Derek Twigg: The Secretaries of State of both Departments met on 14 May 2007 to discuss the issue of 'local connection' in the allocation of social housing.

My hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and I announced through a written statement on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 108WS that the Government will be amending the housing legislation at the earliest opportunity to ensure that service personnel are put on an equal footing with others applying for an allocation of social housing. MOD and CLG officials continue to work closely on the issue.

Helicopters: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total budget was for all helicopter procurement projects in each year since 2001. [157046]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The in-year budgets for all helicopter procurement projects for each completed year from financial year 2001-02 to 2006-07 are:

FY	£ million
2001-2	842
2002-03	524
2003-04	318
2004-05	257
2005-06	260
2006-07	209

These figures exclude funding for emergent urgent requirements and some commodity items bought in support of these projects.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of British service personnel in Iraq are accommodated in tents. [154439]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Approximately two-thirds of UK service personnel in Iraq are currently accommodated in tents. The tents are protected against direct and indirect attack, with either HESCO bastion or breeze block walls, and are air conditioned, heated and equipped with full sanitation facilities.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army have been killed in operations in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan since 2003. [158377]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As of 30 September 2007, four members of the Territorial Army and one Regular Reservist have been killed on operations in Iraq since 2003. Over the same period, two members of the Territorial Army have been killed on operations in Afghanistan.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the (a) 1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles, (b) 1st Battalion the Royal Green Jackets and (c) 2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment were deployed on operations in Iraq or Afghanistan in (i) 2004, (ii) 2005, (iii) 2006 and (iv) 2007. [158393]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The battalions in question operationally deployed, between 2004 and 2007, are as follows:

Unit	Deployment	Date
1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles	Operation Herrick 7 (Afghanistan)	From October 2007
1st Battalion the Royal Green Jackets (now 2nd Battalion the Rifles)	Operation Telic 9 (Iraq)	November 2006 to March 2007
2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment	Operation Telic 7	November 2005 to May 2006

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what coalition policy is on seeking agreements with militias in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [158446]

Des Browne: It is coalition policy to engage with any group that is interested in joining Iraq's democratic process and reducing violence.

Meteorological Office: Information Officers

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many press officers are employed by the Meteorological Office. [154344]

Derek Twigg: The Meteorological Office currently employs four full-time and one part-time press officers.

All may deal with other communications issues, including internal communication or marketing tasks.

Military Exercises

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military exercises were cancelled in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006; and what the reasons were for cancelling each exercise. [158362]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: During financial year 2004-05, a total of 379 training events were scheduled in the Defence exercise programme (DXP) of which 79 (20 per cent.) were cancelled. While specific reasons for cancellation are not available in many cases, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost, the programme was affected by competing operational priorities. Since that time, improved data capture has enabled a more detailed review of the DXP.

During financial year 2005-06, a total of 533 training events were scheduled in the DXP of which 58 (10.8 per cent.) were cancelled. 30 exercises were cancelled due to operational commitments, 13 were removed as savings measures and 10 were cancelled by other nations. The remaining five events were cancelled in response to changing priorities or rescheduling.

In financial year 2006-07, a total of 699 training events were scheduled in the DXP of which 69 (9.8 per cent.) were cancelled. 35 exercises were cancelled due to operational commitments, five were removed as savings measures and 14 were cancelled by other nations. The remaining 15 events were cancelled in response to changing priorities or rescheduling.

Details of the military exercises cancelled between 1 April 2005 and 31 March 2007 are set out in the following table.

NATO Rapid Reaction Corps

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which military units form the UK's current commitment to the NATO Response Force. [158395]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The NATO Response Force is a high-readiness reaction force which comprises four elements (maritime, land, air and special forces) to which allies contribute forces on a six-month rotating basis. The UK is providing the Maritime Component Command for the current rotation of the NATO Response Force (July 2007 to January 2008). The UK forces supporting the Maritime Component Command are drawn, as required, from the Joint Rapid Reaction Force and comprise a carrier group with associated air and surface assets, amphibious forces, naval mine counter measures units, and auxiliary support vessels. In addition, the UK is making some air-to-air refuelling and in-theatre lift assets available to the Air Component Command.

Nuclear Weapons: Transport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether in-house provision of the service for the road transport of nuclear weapons by HM Naval Base Clyde is still under consideration. [157795]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We are not proposing to pursue that option. The operation will remain with AWE plc for the foreseeable future.

Reserve Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many volunteer reservists in each service are deployed on operations. [157044]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 31 August 2007 (the latest figures available), the number of volunteer reservists deployed on operations was:

	Royal Navy Reserve	Royal Marines Reserve	Territorial Army	Royal Auxiliary Air Force
Telic (Iraq)	26	9	169	66
Herrick (Afghanistan)	6	0	397	45
Oculus (Balkans)	1	0	15	0

	Royal Navy Reserve	Royal Marines Reserve	Territorial Army	Royal Auxiliary Air Force
Global Counter Terrorism	0	0	6	0
Total	33	9	587	111

In addition, there were 627 reservists mobilised on pre-deployment training, receiving medical treatment, or on post-operational leave.

Territorial Army: Training

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of training days per year was for members of the Territorial Army in each year since 2003. [158378]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Historically, TA pay has been sufficient to meet the demand for trained TA manpower to support current operations; and for all TA officers and soldiers to train to a level that allows them to be 'certified efficient' and qualify for Bounty. Current levels of Territorial Army (TA) pay permit approximately 41 training days per person per year.

War Pensions

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many former members of the Merchant Marine have been awarded a war pension. [158439]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not available, but figures are available for the number of former members of the merchant marine in receipt of pensions under the War Pensions Mercantile Marine scheme over the past five years. This information is set out in the following table.

War Pensions in payment under the Mercantile Marine scheme[1]

	Disablement pensioners
30 June 2003	1,360
30 June 2004	1,205
30 June 2005	1,090
30 June 2006	980
30 June 2007	855

[1] All numbers have been rounded to the nearest five.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Doha Trade Talks

8. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the Doha development round of international trade talks. [158524]

Mr. Thomas: Negotiations on all aspects of the Doha Development Agenda continue to take place at the WTO in Geneva. The UK Government remain fully committed to working with the EU Trade Commissioner, other EU member states and other WTO members to secure an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha round.

Women's Education and Economic Performance

9. Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the links between education on sexual health for women in developing countries and the economic performance of the country concerned. [158525]

Mr. Malik: Little research has been commissioned or evaluated on the link between education on sexual health for women and overall economic performance.

It is known and accepted that there is a strong link between education for women and overall economic performance in a country. It is also generally assumed that education on sexual health for women leads to better health outcomes. We are funding an evaluation of an adolescent sexual health intervention in Tanzania which will provide important new knowledge on how best to deliver education on sexual health to achieve better health.

Zimbabwe

10. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. [158526]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe is deteriorating. An estimated 4.1 million people will need food aid by year end. Malnutrition has reached emergency levels in places. Urban water and sanitation collapse is causing disease outbreaks. HIV/AIDS remains rife.

DFID is providing life-saving humanitarian assistance until the policy environment improves. We contributed an additional £8 million to the World Food Programme recently which will feed two million people for two months.

12. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Zimbabwe. [158528]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-West Cambridgeshire (Mr. Vara) and the hon. Member for Bexleyheath and Crayford (Mr. Evennett) today (UIN 158522 and 158523).

Climate Change

11. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to help the poorest countries address the adverse impacts of climate change. [158527]

Mr. Thomas: DFID is adapting its development programmes in countries to take account of the adverse impacts of climate change and is assisting Multilateral Development Banks and UNDP to also do so.

Burma

13. Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the humanitarian situation in Burma. [158529]

Mr. Malik: A third of Burma's population lives below the poverty line. Severe economic mismanagement has deprived Burma of the economic growth enjoyed by its south-east Asian neighbours, and investment in public services has been minimal. The brutal suppression of recent demonstrations against economic hardship has exacerbated humanitarian conditions. DFID is providing £1 million to meet urgent humanitarian needs in Burma, in addition to £8 million already planned for this year.

Ethiopia

14. Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia. [158530]

Mr. Malik: A United Nations team made an assessment of the situation at the beginning of September, and concluded that there was no major humanitarian crisis in the Somali (Ogaden) region although humanitarian conditions within conflict areas were deteriorating, and there was an urgent need for food and medical supplies, and help with water and sanitation.

DFID and the other donors are working with the Ethiopian government and the United Nations to ensure that humanitarian assistance will be delivered to those who need it.

Corruption

15. Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the Government's policies for combating corruption in aid recipient countries. [158531]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Corruption is a serious threat to development. DFID's policy is to build effective states that promote development and invest significantly in efforts to address corruption and improve governance.

DFID regards anti-corruption as a priority and discusses this with partner Governments when agreeing and reviewing its Country Assistance Plans. These plans are informed by a comprehensive governance analysis and assessment of local priorities.

Developing Countries: Health Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to increase accessibility of health care in developing countries. [158296]

Mr. Malik: DFID's strategy "Working Together for Better Health", published in June 2007 sets out our approach to support developing countries to improve the health of their people and reaching the Millennium Development Goals. This is to deliver more resources for health; to expand access to basic health services; to improve the effectiveness of international funding for health; and to demonstrate results and build the evidence base of what works.

Our spending on health has doubled since 2002-03. About 15 per cent. of our aid goes to health, a total of £800 million in 2006-07. Overall, the UK is the second largest donor to health. Most of this help is directed through our country programmes. For example, in Bangladesh, DFID is the largest supporter of the health sector donor pooled fund. Immunisation coverage has reached 80 per cent. for the five vaccine-preventable diseases and infant mortality is down from 116 to 88 (1994-2004).

The International Health Partnership, launched by the Prime Minister on 5 September, will help ensure that increasing resources are used more effectively to strengthen health systems and deliver better care and services. In bringing together international agencies, major donors and partner countries, it will work to make sure health services better meet individual country needs.

Developing Countries: Natural Disasters

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to minimise the impact of natural disasters in developing countries. [158295]

Mr. Malik: DFID's policy on Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR)[1] is to support measures to prevent and mitigate the impact of natural disasters at the global, country and community level. At the global level, DFID is supporting DRR programmes through the Geneva-based UN International Strategy for DRR, the World Bank, the ProVention Consortium of Non-Governmental Organisations (NGOs) and the International Federation of Red Cross Societies. DFID is also supporting the community-level DRR work of five NGOs.

DFID's support for DRR through its regional programmes includes the Chars Livelihoods Programme in Bangladesh, which has helped raise 32,700 households on plinths above the flood level; the Caribbean Catastrophic Risk Insurance Facility, to enable Governments to jump-start recovery efforts after disasters; and an NGO Consortium for DRR in Niger, which aims to strengthen vulnerable communities. Following the Government's commitment to allocate up to 10 per cent. of each emergency response to a natural disaster to DRR, where appropriate, DFID is supporting DRR in Indonesia; the Indian Ocean Early Warning System; UN capacity-building in climate adaptation; and the World Health Organisation Disease Early Warning System and institutional capacity-building in Pakistan.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid and assistance has been provided by his Department for development in Palestine. [158631]

Mr. Malik: DFID has provided over £380 million in assistance to Palestinians since the Oslo peace accords were signed in 1994. For 2007-08, we have made £31.6 million available. Of this, we have provided £1 million to the Red Cross for humanitarian work; £3 million to the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) and £15.6 million to the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA). On 17 July, the Secretary of State for International Development announced a £3 million contribution to help the Palestinian Authority pay off its debts to the private sector.

DFID provides technical assistance to Palestinian institutions, including the Office of the President, the Negotiations Affairs Department and the Ministry of Finance. We are launching a £3 million initiative to help Palestinian businesses compete in new markets and increase their exports. Together with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Ministry of Defence, we work to reduce conflict through the Global Conflict Prevention Pool.

United Nations Population Fund

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions (a) Ministers in his Department and (b) officials have had with the United States Administration on its decision to suspend the US contribution to the United Nations Population Fund; and if he will make a statement. [158367]

Mr. Thomas: There have been no discussions between DFID Ministers or officials and the United States Administration on the suspension of the US contribution to UNFPA.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development who the British representative is on the Executive Board of the United Nations Population Fund; and what relevant (a) specialist and (b) general qualifications and experience he or she has. [158370]

Mr. Thomas: The British representative on the Executive Board of UNFPA is a representative of the UK mission in New York, who acts on behalf of the UK ambassador to the UN. The representatives have specialist skills and qualifications in the areas of health and development as well as general qualifications in economics and international enterprise. The representatives' experience in government ranges from five to 25 years.

There is a strong partnership between colleagues in the UK mission and DFID. The former liaise with DFID on all health and development issues.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Office of Information: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff in the Central Office of Information Media Monitoring Unit monitor internet blogs; and what the estimated cost of such monitoring is for 2007-08. [158688]

Gillian Merron: At present, the Media Monitoring Unit has no staff monitoring internet blogs and there is, therefore, no cost in 2007-08.

Charity Commission

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment has been made of the impact of the Charities Act on (a) the workload and (b) the adequacy of funding of the Charity Commission. [155627]

Phil Hope: The Government have considered issues around the work load and resources of the Charity Commission, including obligations arising from the Charities Act 2006. The Chief Secretary to the Treasury announced the details of the Charity Commission's financial settlement for the financial years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 as part of the comprehensive spending review.

Resource funding baseline for 2007-08 (pre-CSR announcement)	30.2
New resource funding baseline for 2007-08	31.7
Resource funding for 2008-09	30.9
Resource funding for 2009-10	30.2
Resource funding for 2010-11	29.4

The Commission will receive £0.5 million in recognition of their responsibilities in the Charities Act. This sum has been added to their pre-CSR announcement baseline which also includes the previously announced funding of £1 million to support the implementation of their counter-terrorism strategy.

We are currently in positive discussions with the Commission to discuss ways to fund the new licensing regime for public charitable collections.

Delegation and Coherence

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made in implementation of the policy statement Delegation and Coherence issued by the Cabinet Office in September 2006. [156830]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 10 October 2007]: Cabinet Office officials continue to work with Departments and the civil service unions to implement the key areas identified in the statement to improve operation of the delegated pay arrangements. Discussions have taken place with Heads of Professions and Departments on greater pay coherence for similar workforce groups; a set of reward principles has been published to inform departmental reward strategies; the Treasury's annual Pay Remit Guidance has been strengthened to help narrow unjustified pay gaps between Departments; and we are currently considering the scope for improving the delegation process and identifying areas that can be managed more corporately.

Departments: Flowers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department on flowers in the last 12 months. [153287]

Gillian Merron: On rare occasions, officials may purchase flowers for specific purposes e.g. events, functions but there are strict guidelines in place determining such transactions. Details of expenditure can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many websites the Cabinet Office operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running the Office's websites in the last five years. [157885]

Gillian Merron: There are currently 14 Cabinet Office websites. There were 38 Cabinet Office websites as at 1 January 2005.

As part of the Government's Website Rationalisation strategy (part of the Transformational Government agenda), the Cabinet Office is focusing its internet presence on two websites—the Civil Service site (www.civilservice.gov.uk). and the Cabinet Office site (www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk). All other Cabinet Office websites will be closed by March 2012.

Annual website costs (including VAT) are as follows:

Financial year	Cabinet Office cost (£)
2006-07	690,000
2005-06	975,000
2004-05	670,000

Website expenditure within the Cabinet Office before 2004-05 is not available. Before this time, budgets for communication activity (including website development and maintenance) were devolved to Cabinet Office business units, and there was no central monitoring of web expenditure.

The Cabinet Office was responsible for the Directgov website until April 2006, when it transferred to the Central Office of Information. Excluding one-off marketing and infrastructure renewal costs, expenditure for Directgov was £5.4 million in 2005-06 and £5.4 million in 2004-05. Prior to 2004-05, Directgov was funded from within the UKOnline budget which was the responsibility of the former Office of the e-Envoy and it has not been possible to obtain financial information for this period.

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by the Cabinet Office has received since 1 January 2007. [157886]

Gillian Merron: Based on statistics, the website with the most hits was the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway (www.careers.civil-service.gov.uk) which from 1 January to the end of August received:

23,612,818 hits

7,940,377 page views

948,502 visits

Based on statistics, the website with the least hits was the HM Government website (www.hmg.gov.uk) which since it was set up on 9 April received:

30,682 hits

7,055 page views

3,598 visits

"Hits" can be a misleading statistic as, depending on how a website is designed and managed, an individual looking at a single page can generate a widely varying number of "hits". Statistics of "Page Views" and "Visits" are generally accepted as a more accurate representation of website usage.

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people have been appointed to his Department outside of civil service grades in the last 30 days. [153292]

Gillian Merron: The only appointments that fall outside civil service grades in the Cabinet Office are those made using fee-paid contracts. The number of fee-paid appointments made during the period 27 June 2007 to 26 July 2007 is six.

In addition, my Department publishes information annually on appointments to the public bodies for which it is responsible. Data for 2006-07 are in the process of being collated, and will be published shortly on the Cabinet Office website:

Copies will also be placed in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members.

Departments: Publications

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) of 26 March 2007, Official Report, column 1393W, on Departments: publications, if he will place in the Library a copy of the July 2007 edition of the Central Office of Information's White Book. [153889]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the July 2007 edition of the Central Office of Information's White Book. [158188]

Gillian Merron: The publication of the White Book is being prepared to reflect the changes in departmental boundaries and responsibilities.

The new edition will be published and placed in the Library next month.

Olympic Games: Greater London

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) what estimate she has made of the cost of construction of the facilities required to stage the Olympic shooting events at the Royal Artillery Barracks; and if she will make a statement; [154847]

(2) what estimate she has made of the cost of staging the shooting events for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games at the National Shooting Centre at Bisley. [154848]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 10 September 2007]: Outline assessments during the bid phase were conducted on the basis of providing the overlay required to stage shooting events at the National Shooting Centre at Bisley. However, during the bidding phase, the International Olympic Committee commented on the distance between Bisley and the Olympic Park. On the basis of this feedback, and following consultation with the International Shooting Federation, the Royal Artillery Barracks was selected as the shooting venue, due to its iconic location and its close proximity to the Olympic Park and Village. These factors will improve the athlete and spectator experience by limiting travel and making it easier to attend other Games events on the same day in the Olympic Park.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will provide a full breakdown of the £2.7 million Olympic contingency fund; and whether any of that contingency has been drawn down. [157734]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: On 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, I announced a funding provision for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games of £9.325 billion. This included provision for £2.747 billion programme contingency, comprising:

£2,509 million contingency to reflect the risk of additional costs arising from factors such as unforeseen ground conditions, inflation beyond existing provision and changes in legislation; and

£238 million for any potential increases in the costs of policing and wider security.

The use of the programme contingency is subject to approval by the ministerial funders group. As set out in recent NAO report "The Budget for the London 2012, Olympic and Paralympic games," in June 2007, the group agreed to release £360 million of programme contingency to the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA). This will be drawn down from April 2008.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library a copy of the cash flow forecast for the Olympic Delivery Authority. [157735]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Details of the Olympic Delivery Authority's cash flows for 2007-08 are included in the ODA's 2007-08 business plan summary, published on its website. A copy of which is in the Libraries of both Houses.

Chapter 20 of the CSR White Paper published on 9 October sets out the Government's contribution for the next three years (2008-09 to 2010-11). The balance of the funding requirement will be met, as planned in March 2007, from contributions from the Mayor of London (GLA and LDA); from funding already coming in from Olympic lottery games; from funds from the Sports Lottery Distributor; and from the funds to be transferred from the National Lottery Distribution Fund, subject to affirmative resolution in both Houses.

Further details of cash flows will be set out in future business plan summaries.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how the issue of financing costs is being addressed in the Olympics Delivery Authority budget. [157736]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The CSR announced grant in aid from Government of £1,559/£1,104/£1,050 million in 2008-09 to 2010-11. Provision for 2011-12 to 2013-14 will be confirmed in the next CSR.

The balance of the funding requirement will be met, as planned in March 2007, from contributions from the Mayor of London (GLA and IDA); from funding already coming in from Olympic lottery games; from funds from the Sports lottery distributor; and from the funds to be transferred from the national lottery distribution fund, subject to affirmative resolution in both Houses.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much it will cost to rent all facilities not located on the Olympic park necessary to stage the London 2012 Olympics, broken down by venue. [158728]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The London Organising Committee for the Olympic games (LOCOG) have informed me that they have set aside an allowance of circa £30 million for arrangements for non-Olympic park sporting venues.

LOCOG are not currently in a position to disclose further information, by venue, as they are still negotiating terms with some of the venue owners and to do so would prejudice their commercial interests.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her latest estimate is of the likely cost of the London 2012 Olympic games that will be paid via the council tax in London; and if she will make a statement. [158837]

Tessa Jowell: The estimated contribution from the London council tax, as announced in 2003, remains at £625 million.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years; [157913]

(2) how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157914]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor (Tony Blair) to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 9 May 2007, Official Report, column 196W.

Information on the number of visits to the site can be found on the No. 10. website (http://www.pm.gov.uk/output/Page13384.asp). A copy of this webpage has been placed in the Library of the House.

The running costs for the No. 10 website the financial year 1 April 2006-1 April 2007 were £189,689. The costs reflect the creation of new channels with which to engage with the public, including e-petitions and the YouTube channel, both of which are major innovations in online Government communication.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158901]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Cleethorpes (Shona McIsaac) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1108W. Figures for the financial year 2007-08 will be published in the usual way after the end of the financial year.

Ministers: Grace and Favour Housing

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list the grace and favour properties available to members of the Government; and who the current occupants of those properties are. [157812]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Prime Minister which Ministers occupy each of the official ministerial residences; and which of them (a) pay and (b) do not pay council tax on their official residences. [158074]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The flats above numbers 10 and 11 Downing Street have traditionally been the residences of the Prime Minister and Chancellor of the Exchequer. I currently reside in Number 11 Downing Street and my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer resides in Number 10 Downing Street. One of the flats in Admiralty House is currently occupied by my right hon. Friend, Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Lord Malloch-Brown). Council tax is paid personally on these official residences by me and both my right hon. Friends. The remaining official residences are currently unoccupied. The ministerial residence in South Eaton Place, Pimlico, is no longer required and it will be sold, with the proceeds going to the Exchequer.

In addition, I have the use of Chequers and my right hon. Friends the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Foreign Secretary, have the use of Dorneywood and Chevening respectively. Council tax in respect of Chequers, Dorneywood and Chevening is a matter for the trustees. Ministers in the Northern Ireland Office have the use of accommodation in Hillsborough Castle and Stormont.

Prime Minister's Questions

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Prime Minister how many hours are spent each week in preparation for Prime Minister's Questions by (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers (i) in Downing Street and (ii) on average in other Departments; and if he will make a statement. [158828]

The Prime Minister: I am briefed in exactly the same way as my predecessors were.

Royal Household: Finance

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what contributions to the cost of the Royal Household are met by countries other than the United Kingdom where Her Majesty the Queen is Head of State; and if he will make a statement. [156845]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

None.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to tax aircraft emissions rather than impose air passenger duty; and if he will make a statement. [157260]

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues about potential alternatives to air passenger duty; and what plans he has to change the current system. [157317]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Members to the Chancellor's statement in the House on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 167W, and to the pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 'Meeting the aspirations of the British people' (Cm.7227) paragraphs 7.54 to 7.56.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England developed breast cancer in each of the last three years; [157519]

(2) what proportion of people in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England developed breast cancer in each of the last three years. [157520]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated, 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions asking how many people developed breast cancer (a) in Hertfordshire and (b) nationally in each of the last three years [157519], and what proportion of people developed breast cancer (a) in Hertfordshire and (b) nationally in each of the last three years [157520].

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases (incidence) of malignant neoplasm of breast are for 2004. Numbers and rates per 100,000 for 2002-2004 for England and the county of Hertfordshire are given in Table 1 below.

It is not possible to produce breast cancer rates for males in Hertfordshire due to the small numbers involved.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases and rates[1] per 100,000 of malignant neoplasm of breast[2]. England and the county of Hertfordshire[3], by sex, 2002-04

		Registrations			Rates
		2002	2003	2004	2002	2003	2004
England	Male	254	289	272	0.9	1.0	0.9
	Female	35,149	37,283	36,939	117	123	121
Hertfordshire	Male	8	7	7	—	—	—
	Female	621	711	667	103	114	104

[1] Rates are directly age-standardised to control for differences in the age structure of populations between geographical areas over time.
[2] Breast cancer is defined as code C50 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10).
[3] Rates were not calculated for males in Hertfordshire as the numbers of registrations were too low.

Childcare: Finance

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what funds are available to local authorities for provision under the forthcoming childcare duty. [157750]

Beverley Hughes: I have bean asked to reply.

We are determined that local authorities should have the resources they need to fulfil the statutory duty to secure from April 2008, so far as is reasonably practicable, sufficient childcare to meet the needs of working parents. From that month the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant to local authorities in England will include revenue and capital funding as shown in the table to fund Sure Start Children's Centres; support outcomes, quality and diversity; and support child care sufficiency and access, This funding is not ring-fenced and it remains up to individual local authorities to determine how their funds will be spent.

	£ million
	Revenue funding	Capital funding
2008-09	1,239	379
2009-10	1,340	472
2010-11	1,508	361

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157908]

Angela Eagle: Information relating to staff currently seconded to the Treasury can be found on the HMT Website at:

http://www.hm-treasury_gov.uk/about/about_secondee.cfm

Disability Aids: Finance

Lorely Burt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will allocate additional funding to improve wheelchair and mobility equipment available to disabled children and young people as set out in the report Aiming High for Disabled Children by his Department and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. [156953]

Andy Burnham: The Department of Health (DH) 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) settlement of £110 billion by 2010-11 included additional resource to support improved outcomes for disabled children (as committed in the HM Treasury/ Department for Education and Skills (DCSF) report "Aiming high for disabled children: better support for families".

Improving outcomes for disabled children and their families will also be reflected in the new PSA and indicator set, with a joint DCSF/DH national disabled children's indicator as part of the new CSR performance management framework setting out Government priorities and driving improved provision and delivery of services.

Employment: Mentally Ill People

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to publish his Department's Review of Mental Health and Employment; if he will give priority to extending access to proven psychological therapies in order to increase employment opportunities and reduce the risk of unemployment among people with mental health problems; and if he will make a statement. [157846]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the statement my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health made on 10 October 2007.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residential dwellings in England are recorded by the Valuation Office Agency with the dwelling house coding of having (a) one bedroom, (b) two bedrooms, (c) three bedrooms and (d) four or more bedrooms. [158058]

Jane Kennedy: As at 4 October 2007, the relevant number of dwellings in England were 2,545,082 with one bedroom, 6,247,291 with two bedrooms, 10,045,887 with three bedrooms and 3,139,945 with four or more bedrooms.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the likely change in revenue from reducing the (a) basic rate of income tax and (b) higher rate of income tax by one per cent. in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09. [158076]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested will be published in the next edition of HM Treasury's tax ready reckoner—'2007 tax ready reckoner and tax reliefs'—which will be published later this year.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Financial Services Authority is taking to assess the effectiveness of the contingency plans of the UK's financial institutions for a potential influenza pandemic. [158470]

Kitty Ussher: In October/November 2006, the Financial Services Authority, on behalf of the Tripartite Authorities (HM Treasury, the Bank of England and the Financial Services Authority (FSA)), led a six week market wide exercise on pandemic flu. Around 70 market participants took part and a report on lessons learned is available on the Tripartite Financial Sector Continuity website (www.fsc.gov.uk).

The Tripartite Authorities have held a series of follow up events to discuss key issues arising from the exercise and the FSA continues to work with retail banks, insurance firms, recovery site providers and telecommunications firms to produce statements about how they would respond in a pandemic.

In addition, the FSA has conducted benchmarking to establish the preparedness of firms to deal with a range of threats or hazards, including pandemic influenza.

Long Term Public Finance Report 2007

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason the Long Term Public Finance Report 2007 was not published with the Pre-Budget Report; and when he plans to publish it. [158850]

Andy Burnham: As set out in paragraph 2.45 of the 2007 pre-Budget report, the Government publish the "Long-term public finance report" to provide a comprehensive analysis of long-term socio-economic and demographic developments, and their likely impact on the public finances, based on the most up-to-date information available.

The population projections provided by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) are central to this analysis. Given that ONS will not publish the new population projections until the 23 October 2007, the next long-term public finance report will now be published at a later date.

Mortgages

Gordon Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the maximum fixed term mortgage available is in the UK; and what estimate he has made of how many borrowers have signed up to such a facility; [157807]

(2) what estimate he has made of how many mortgage holders in the UK have fixed term mortgages. [157811]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Service Authority (FSA) publishes comparative tables of products offered by lenders that report that the maximum fixed term for a mortgage in the UK is 25 years. These tables are available at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/tables

The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) publishes the number of fixed term mortgages issued each year in the UK. These statistics are available at http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

Pay

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many employees have income in excess of £50,000 per year; and what percentage of the total employed workforce that figure represents. [157392]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many employees have income in excess of £50,000 per year; and what percentage of total employed workforce that figure represents. (157392)

The information requested is not available in respect of income, but the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) can be used to provide a partial answer for UK earnings. ASHE is earned out in April each year and is the most comprehensive source of earnings information in the United Kingdom. It is a one per cent. sample of all employees who are members of pay-as-you-earn (PAYE) schemes.

ASHE is not used to provide estimates of the numbers of employees whose earnings is greater than a specific amount, but is used to provide estimates of proportions of the workforce in that category. I attach a table showing an estimate of the percentage of the UK workforce which earned greater than £50,000 per year, from the 2006 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings.

Proportion of UK employees paid in excess of £50,000 per year[1]

UK 2006	Percentage
Full-time	8.3
Part-time	0.5
All jobs	6.3

[1] Employees on adult rates whose pay for the survey pay-period was not affected by absence.

Public Sector: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether delivery agreements will accompany the new public service agreements; and if he will make a statement. [158398]

Andy Burnham: A delivery agreement was published for each public service agreement (PSA) alongside the pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review. They are available on HM Treasury's website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/pbr_csr/pbr_csr07_index.cfm

Stamp Duties: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was collected from stamp duty in each financial year since 1997 in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) the Peterborough City Council area; and if he will make a statement. [157948]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the stamp duty land tax yield at local authority/unitary authority level are not available for years prior to 2005-06. Figures for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are provided in the tables from the following HMRC website:

2006-07: http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table154-0607.pdf

Estimates of stamp duty land tax yield at parliamentary constituency level are under review. The HMRC website will announce an update on the publication timetable in October.

Suicide: Children

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suicides there were amongst children between the ages of 10 and 18 years in each of the last 10 years, broken down by year group. [157790]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many suicides there were amongst children between the ages of 10 and 18 years in each of the last 10 years, broken down by year groups. (157790)

The table below contains numbers of suicides for those aged under 19 by single year of age in England and Wales from 1996 to 2005, the latest available year.

The definition of suicide used by ONS assumes that most deaths from "injury or poisoning of undetermined intent" at ages 15 and over are cases where the harm was self-inflicted but there was insufficient evidence to prove that the deceased deliberately intended to kill themselves. For this reason, ONS includes these in its suicide statistics for those aged 15 and over, along with deaths from intentional self-harm. The same cannot be assumed in deaths at ages under 15. There were no deaths in children aged under 13 with a suicide verdict for the period requested.

Number of deaths from suicide and injury/poisoning of undetermined intent, ages 13 to 18, England and Wales, 1996 to 2005[1]

	Suicide[2]			Suicide and injury/poisoning of undetermined intent[3]
	13 years	14 years	15 years	16 years	17 years	18 years
1996	1	2	9	24	25	61
1997	1	4	6	27	28	42
1998	1	2	8	19	41	46
1999	1	1	7	20	37	57
2000	1	2	16	10	43	48
2001	1	4	8	17	29	45
2002	2	3	11	18	33	36
2003	2	1	4	16	27	36
2004	3	2	7	20	23	42
2005	1	0	6	14	17	34

[2] The came of death for suicide was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E950-E959for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X60-X84for 200J onwards.

[3] The cause of death for injury/poisoning of undetermined intent was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E980-E989 excluding E9 88.8 for the years 1996 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes YW-Y34 excluding Y33.9 where the Coroner's verdict was pending for 2001 onwards.

Tax Allowances: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of tax relief on pensions (a) in total and (b) for higher rate contributions in 2007-08. [158144]

Kitty Ussher: As set out in the 2007 pre-Budget report, the annual cost of tax relief on approved pension schemes for 2007-08 is estimated to be £17.5 billion.

Detailed estimates covering the period 1998-99 to 2006-07 are available in table 7.9 on Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/pensions/menu.htm

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne) on 24 October 2005, Official Report, column 52W.

Taxation: International Civil Servant Status

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in the UK have international civil servant status for tax purposes; what such status means in terms of allowances and exemptions; and if he will make a statement. [158423]

Jane Kennedy: Under UK tax law there is no such person as an "international civil servant". However, officials of the United Nations are sometimes referred to as international civil servants. There is no requirement for visiting officials to notify HM Revenue and Customs of their presence in the UK. Those who are present in the UK for a sufficient length of time to become resident in the UK will be dealt with locally. Information is not collated centrally.

The UK tax position of employees of the United Nations is set out in the United Nations and International Court of Justice (Immunities and Privileges) Order 1974. This provides immunities and privileges that are normal for international organisations. It includes among other things that officials of the UN shall be exempt from income tax on remuneration received by them from the UN. UN Officials are however subject to a form of internal tax operated by the UN, which is referred to as the Staff Assessment.

Teenage Pregnancy

Chris Bryant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many teenagers gave birth in each constituency in 2006. [157349]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many teenagers gave birth in each constituency in 2006. (157349).

The attached table provides the number of live births to mothers aged less than 20 in each parliamentary constituency in England and Wales, in 2006. Since these figures are for births rather than maternities, a small number of teenage mothers who had multiple births will have been counted more than once. A copy has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Unemployment: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the 18 to 24-year-old population of the Peterborough constituency was not been in education, training or employment in each quarter since the second quarter of 2001; and if he will make a statement. [158648]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 17 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what proportion of the 18 to 24 year old population of the Peterborough constituency has not been in education, training or employment in each quarter since the second quarter of 2001. (158648)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. Quarterly data are not available for parliamentary constituencies.

The table attached shows the numbers of 18 to 24 year olds not in full-time education, employment or training, resident in Peterborough for the 12 month periods ending in February for 2002 to 2004 from the local area LFS and for the 12 month periods ending in March for 2005 to 2007, from the APS. The table also shows these numbers as the percentage of all 18 to 24 year olds in the area for each year.

Estimates for a subset of the population in a small geographical area are based on very small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

Persons aged 18 to 24 who are not in full-time education, employment or training resident in the Peterborough constituency

12 months ending	Number (Thousand)	Percentage of all 18-24 year olds
February 2002	2	25
February 2003	2	18
February 2004	2	21
March 2005	2	27
March 2006	2	26
March 2007	2	25

Note:
Estimates are subject to sampling variability.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 4757W, on 18 to 24-year-olds, how many 18 to 24-year-olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 years. [158340]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many 18 to 24 year olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in each of the last 10 years. (158340)

Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) purpose and (b) function is of the Valuation Office Agency's World Class Programme. [158065]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 19 June 2007, Official Report, column 1640W, and also refer to the agency's Forward Plan 2007-10 published on 18 June 2007.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1018W to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt) on the Valuation Office Agency, what the destination was of each of the 412 flights. [158286]

Jane Kennedy: Details of the destinations of these 412 flights could be obtained only at disproportionate cost and time.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's communications toolkit. [158400]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 217-18W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond). The VGA's communications toolkit has been laid in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) last met. [158402]

Jane Kennedy: This programme board last met on 22 November 2005.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's Rating Cost Guide in CD-Rom format. [158414]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency's Rating Cost Guide provides indicative costs of buildings and machinery for use in valuations for non-domestic rating purposes. Since 2004 it has been made available to the general public for purchase at a charge of £750.00 (in CD-Rom format).

Valuation Office: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency spent on (a) champagne and wine and (b) alcohol in the last year for which audited figures are available. [158066]

Jane Kennedy: Costs attributable to (a) and (b) are minimal because the Valuation Office Agency's policy is that alcohol should not normally be provided for internal conferences or for external events. They are not recorded separately and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost and time.

Valuation Office: Digital Versatile Disks

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1019W to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt), on the Valuation Office Agency: digital versatile disks, how many videos, including VHS formats and electronic digital formats, have been produced by the Agency in the last 36 months. [158284]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency has produced no videos in VHS format over the last 36 months. Since October 2004, 25 internal 'videos' to staff have been produced in a digital format available to view via the Agency's wide area network.

Valuation Office: Visits Abroad

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North East Bedfordshire of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1020W, on the Valuation Office Agency: visits abroad, to which bodies the agency's staff have been seconded in Australia; how many staff have been seconded; and what divisions of the agency they come from. [158283]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency has sponsored three reciprocal, six-month, secondments from the Valuation Office to the Australian Valuation Office.

1. Secondee from Tunbridge Wells Valuation Office to Australian Valuation Office for the period 30 January 2006 to 30 July 2006.

2. Secondee from DV Services Central (Shrewsbury) to Australian Valuation Office for the period 2 October 2006 to 30 March 2006.

3. Secondee from Harrogate Valuation Office to Australian Valuation Office for the period 2 April 2007 to 28 September 2007.

VAT: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether VAT will be levied (a) on the local authority search elements and (b) drainage and water search elements of home information packs. [158405]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2243W, to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt). Drainage and water searches remain VAT standard-rated when supplied by a VAT registered business.

VAT: Swimming

Janet Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received on reducing the level of VAT payable on swimming lessons for children; and if he will make a statement. [158441]

Jane Kennedy: Representations are regularly made to Treasury Ministers and officials on a wide range issues.

VAT is not chargeable on swimming lessons provided by non-profit making bodies, local authorities, schools, and private tutors, otherwise they are VAT standard-rated. The VAT agreements with our European partners that allow us to keep our existing zero rates, and which govern the scope of our VAT exemptions and reduced rates, do not allow us to reduce the rate of VAT currently payable on children's swimming lessons.

Venture Capital

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what arrangements are in place for directors and elite shareholders of businesses (a) in the process of being and (b) after having been taken over by (i) private equity businesses and (ii) non-private equity businesses to disclose all deals, promises and transactions of personal benefit to themselves, both prior to and subsequent to the takeover; what duties such directors and elite shareholders have to other shareholders and employees of the business being taken over; what proposals he has to change the existing arrangements; and if he will bring forward urgent proposals to legislate to make such disclosure necessary. [152607]

Kitty Ussher: Takeovers are supervised and regulated by the Panel on Takeovers and Mergers in accordance with the rules set out in the Takeover Code. This provides an orderly framework within which takeovers are conducted, contributing to the integrity of financial markets, and ensuring that all shareholders are treated fairly and are not denied an opportunity to decide on the merits of a takeover.

The Code requires:

that all shareholders of the same class be treated equally (general principle 1)

the disclosure of share dealings during the offer period (rule 8)

that an offeror covers its intentions for the future of the business, including likely repercussions on employment (rule 24.1)

the disclosure of details of directors' interests and dealings in securities of the offeror company (rule 25.3)

the disclosure of details of directors' remuneration or service contracts (rule 25.4)

In addition, the FSA's Listing Rules require listed companies to disclose directors' service contracts, to notify relevant interests in securities by directors and persons connected with them, and also restrict dealings in the company's securities by directors and persons connected with them. Further obligations in relation to the disclosure of relevant information and of particular transactions in substantial portions of shares in a company whose shares are traded on regulated markets are contained in the FSA's Disclosure and Transparency Rules.

The Companies Act 2006 imposes statutory duties on directors of all companies, whether before or after a takeover, whether listed on a public market or privately held. These include the duties in chapter 2 of part 10 among other things to promote the success of the company for the benefit of its shareholders as a whole, having regard—among other matters—to the interests of the company's employees, to exercise reasonable care, skill and diligence, and to avoid conflicts of interest. The Act imposes specific requirements for prior shareholder authorisation in areas likely to give rise to conflicts of interest, such as loans by the company to a director or long-term service contracts for directors. Chapters 4 and 6 of part 15 of the Act also impose disclosure requirements in respect of directors' remuneration, directors' service contracts, and advances, credit and guarantees to directors.

The Takeover Panel and FSA are respectively responsible under statute for setting takeover rules and listing and disclosure rules. BERR is responsible for the general corporate disclosure regime. Current rules are kept under review and regularly updated in line with market developments.

Written Questions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer Question 120846, on domestic taxation and house prices in Northern Ireland, tabled by the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar on 6 February. [158075]

Jane Kennedy: The hon. Member's question was transferred from the Treasury to the Northern Ireland Office. I understand that the former Secretary of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for Neath (Mr. Hain), said in his reply of 19 February that the matter is now the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Executive.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Bankruptcy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) bankruptcy orders and (b) individual voluntary agreements were recorded in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available. [158120]

Mr. McFadden: The table shows the number of bankruptcies and individual voluntary arrangements in England and Wales for financial years 1996-97 and 2006-07.

	Bankruptcy orders	Individual voluntary arrangements
1996-97	21,058	4,441
2006-07	64,610	47,975

Notes:
Figures are not seasonally adjusted.

Bankruptcy: Elderly

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people in (a) England and (b) Suffolk aged 60 years or over declared themselves bankrupt in each year since 1997. [156767]

Mr. McFadden: Bankruptcy statistics broken down by age as well as by region are currently only readily available on the basis of the locations of official receivers offices (each of which cover a group of county courts where the cases are heard and the courts having jurisdiction over these), and for the years 2000 through to 2006.

The table provides estimates of numbers of individuals aged 60 years and over declared bankrupt in the regions considered to be closest to those requested, but they should not be treated as completely accurate statistics because date of birth is not recorded for all bankruptcy cases over the period covered and also because regional statistics based around the jurisdictions of official receivers are not consistent with county or country level geographies.

Estimated numbers of bankruptcy orders, individuals aged 60 and over 2000 to 2006

	Bankrupts aged 60 years and above by geographical area
	England and Wales	England	Anglia	Ipswich
2000	973	924	137	22
2001	1,068	1,027	143	18
2002	1,289	1,249	182	23
2003	1,637	1,566	233	23
2004	2,149	2,059	296	25
2005	3,126	3,042	471	38
2006	4,796	4,622	720	72

Notes:
1. Anglia region covers the following OR offices: Cambridge, Ipswich, Northampton, Norwich, St. Albans, Southend-on-Sea.
2. Ipswich's OR office covers the following county courts: Sudbury, St. Osyth, Ipswich, Colchester and Clacton, Braintree.

Conditions of Employment

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what provisions of the Warwick Agreement, which have not been implemented, he plans to implement. [158679]

Mr. McFadden: The Government remain committed to fulfilling their manifesto over the course of this Parliament. The Government's employment relations strategy, "Success at Work", was published in March last year and sets out our plans for delivering these commitments within the wider context of the labour market and Better Regulation agenda.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [156996]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster gave on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 822W.

The guidance covering the conduct of official business during a general election was last issued in May 2005. This guidance, and other relevant procedures and processes, are kept under constant review by Departments so that they are ready to be put in place when a general election is called.

Departments: Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people were employed by his Department and its predecessor on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [158317]

Mr. Thomas: The average number of people employed by the predecessor to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, in each of the last five years, is as follows:

	Civil servants permanent	Others
2002-03	4130	29
2003-04	3750	456
2004-05	3846.5	419
2005-06	3302.4	211.4
2006-07	3085.5	134

Derelict Land: South East Region

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many hectares of brownfield land were (a) reclaimed and (b) redeveloped by the South East England Development Agency in the last year for which figures were available; and what the annual target range was for that indicator. [158116]

Mr. Timms: SEEDA is on target to remediate over 200 hectares of brownfield land over our three year corporate plan period 2005-08, which is within our target range for this output. A shortfall in 2006-07 was caused by delays with delivery of some large projects, which will create a surplus against the target range in 2007-08. SEEDA does not hold a specific record of when brownfield land is developed.

Brownfield land remediated in the South East by SEEDA

	Target range	Hectare Actual
2005-06	72-120	101
2006-07	75-125	13
2007-08	34.5-57.5	—
Total	181.5-302.5	—

Energy: Meters

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform by what date domestic consumers will be entitled to request a free visual display meter from their energy companies; and if he will make a statement. [158577]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government propose to require companies to provide display devices at the request of electricity customers for a two-year period from 2008. It is currently consulting on this and other proposals, and will take final decisions following that consultation.

Microgeneration

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will estimate the value of the Merton rule to the UK's microgeneration industry in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [159364]

Malcolm Wicks: In line with the Department for Communities and Local Government's Planning Policy Statement 22 on Renewable Energy, some 120 local planning authorities have set targets for the use of on-site renewable energy in new developments. As recognised by our Microgeneration Strategy, such policies play an important role in stimulating the renewables industry and create a market for microgeneration technologies. The first authority to formalise the policy was the London borough of Merton. While we have not estimated the monetary value of Merton style policies, I know that the microgeneration business regard them as an important driver for their market.

Post Offices: Temporary Employment

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the use of agency staff by the Post Office is in line with regulations relating to the Employment Act 2003. [157808]

Mr. McFadden: To date the Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate has not received any information to suggest that the regulations governing employment agencies, the Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Businesses Regulations 2003, are not being complied with by Royal Mail.

Royal Mail has given assurances that it fully complies with the requirements of the legislation regarding employment agencies.

Postal Services: Competition

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the impact of the manner in which Postcomm has imposed the universal service obligation on the profitability of (a) Royal Mail and (b) Royal Mail's competitors; and what comparison he has made with the process of liberalisation in other EU countries. [158756]

Mr. McFadden: Assuring the provision of a universal service and liberalising the postal market are matters for Postcomm, the Postal Services Commission. The Regulator regularly reviews universal service provision and market conditions in both the UK and other EU member states. Its reports are made publicly available on its website at:

http:// www.psc.gov.uk.

Renewable Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations the Energy Minister has received from the renewable energy industry on the future of the Merton rule. [159365]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has had representations at all levels from the renewable energy industry around proposed changes to the planning system, and the future of Merton style policies. We work closely with business to ensure that relevant issues are understood and taken into consideration in the development of new policy.

Renewable Energy: Housing

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions the Energy Minister has held with the Housing Minister on the future of the Merton rule; and if he will make a statement. [159366]

Malcolm Wicks: We are working closely with colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government developing policies in this area. Discussions on the final detail of proposed changes to planning policy are ongoing.

Severn Barrage

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) whether the report he commissioned on a Severn Barrage will consider the potential economic impact of the Barrage on the city of Bristol; [158649]

(2) how many locations are being considered as being potentially suitable for the Severn Barrage; [158650]

(3) whether the report he has commissioned into a potential Severn Barrage will consider all major options for renewable energy generation facilities in the River Severn including the benefits and disadvantages of the status quo; and when the report will be concluded. [158651]

Malcolm Wicks: The feasibility study, for which the detailed remit and budget are now being scoped, will consider all key aspects of a tidal barrage in the Severn Estuary, including environmental, social and economic issues. The Government are committed to taking forward the feasibility study in an open and transparent way, which will include engaging with business, environmental and community groups.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what business, environmental and community groups will be consulted with regard to the report he has commissioned on the Severn Barrage; and how such groups are being made aware of the report; [158703]

(2) what budget he has allocated for the report on the Severn Barrage. [158704]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The feasibility study, for which the detailed remit and budget are now being scoped, will consider all key aspects of a tidal barrage in the Severn Estuary, including environmental, social and economic issues. The Government are committed to taking forward the feasibility study in an open and transparent way, which will include engaging with business, environmental and community groups.

JUSTICE

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were of retailers for selling alcohol to persons under 18 years old for consumption off the premises in each of the last 10 years. [156197]

Maria Eagle: The information requested on prosecutions and convictions of retailers for selling alcohol to persons under 18 years in each of the last 10 years is provided in the following table. It is not possible to identify from the data whether these sales were on or off licensed premises.

In addition to court proceedings, the offence of sale of alcohol to a person under 18 can attract a penalty notice for disorder (PND). The offence was added to the PND scheme on the 1 November 2004, and there were 113 penalty notices issued for the offence in November and December of that year. Additionally, another 2,058 penalty notices were issued in 2005. Data for 2006 will be available in November 2007.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for selling alcohol to under-age customers, England and Wales, 1995 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
1995	198	108
1996	251	119
1997	215	126
1998	311	158
1999	205	115
2000	132	56
2001	158	53
2002	170	105

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for selling alcohol to under-age customers, England and Wales, 1995 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

	Proceeded against	Found guilty
2003	616	419
2004	841	593
2005	1,084	772

[1] These data are provided on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Covers the offences: selling etc. intoxicating liquor to person under 18 for consumption on the premises under the Licensing Act 1964 S.169 A and B as added by Licensing (Young Persons) Act 2000 S.1, wholesaler selling intoxicating liquor to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 1964 S.181 A(1) as added by Licensing Act 1988 S.17, sale of alcohol to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 2003 S.146 and allowing sale of alcohol to a person under 18 under the Licensing Act 2003 S.147. Sections 146 and 147 of the 2003 Licensing Act only came into effect from 24 November 2005, so data prior to 2005 is not available. The first two offences cannot separately identify on and off premises consumption although both are covered by the statutes.

Approved Premises: Reoffenders

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the reoffending rates are of those released from approved premises in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [158202]

Maria Eagle: No information on re-offending rates from those released from approved premises (bail or probation hostels) is available centrally.

This information could only be collated by manual checking of individual case details, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will list his Department and its predecessors (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156643]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice was launched on 9 May 2007 from the merger of Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA), National Offender Management service (NOMS), and Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR). NOMS and OCJR were part of the Home Office prior to 9 May 2007 and details of their related public bodies for 2005-06 and 2006-07 will be covered by the Home Office.

The list of Executive agencies related to DCA for 2005-06 were: HM Courts Service, HM Land Registry, the National Archives, and the Public Guardianship Office. The list of NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations for 2005-06 are included in the Public Bodies Directory 2006, published on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/other/agencies/publications/pdf/public-bodies/publicbodies2006.pdf

The list of Executive agencies related to DCA for 2006-07 were: HM Courts Service, HM Land Registry, the National Archives, Public Guardianship Office, and the Tribunals Service. The list of NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations for 2006-07 are included within the DCA Public Bodies Directory 2007, a copy of which will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

The current list of agencies, NDPBs, trading funds and public corporations listed under Ministry of Justice, are published on the MOJ website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/about/organisationswesponsor.htm

Departments: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make a statement on the Government's plans to increase data-sharing across Government; and whether the Government plans to amend (a) the Data Protection Act 1998 and (b) other legislation to facilitate this. [158190]

Mr. Wills: As part of the Government's Service Transformation Agreement the Ministry of Justice will lead a cross-government programme to deliver a package of measures over the next three to five years to tackle crime and terrorism, improve personalised public services, increase public safety and tackle social exclusion through information-sharing while maintaining openness and respect for citizens' privacy and access rights. No legislative changes are being considered at this stage.

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance his Department and its predecessor have issued on time limits on the right to request an internal review of a response to a request made under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [158198]

Mr. Wills: Guidance on the discharge of public authorities' functions is provided in a code of practice under section 45 of the Act, which is laid before Parliament by the Secretary of State and Lord Chancellor. This guidance sets the procedure for dealing with complaints, referred to as internal reviews. Any request for an internal review must be dealt with in accordance with the code of practice. It contains no specific guidance on time limits for requesters to ask for internal reviews. In response to FOI requests received by the Ministry of Justice, the requester is informed via a letter that they may ask for an internal review within two calendar months from the date of that letter. This is consistent with the time limit set out in the Environmental Information Regulations under Regulation 11(2) of 40 days to issue a complaint. Public authorities are free to decide, on a case by case basis, whether they will carry out an internal review requested after this period has elapsed.

Elections: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has (a) to hold further remote electronic voting pilots, (b) to hold further electronic counting pilots and (c) to extend the use of electronic voting to mainstream elections. [158200]

Mr. Wills: In the Governance of Britain Green Paper the Government set out a long-term aim to investigate the potential benefits of remote electronic voting and to take advantage of emerging communication technologies to provide increased flexibility and choice in the way people vote.

The outcomes of the May 2007 electoral pilot schemes and the subsequent recommendations of the Electoral Commission are currently being considered. I expect to be able to set out our thinking on future piloting involving remote electronic voting and electronic counting pilots in the near future.

The Government currently have no plans to extend the use of e-voting. The Government believe that piloting innovations in e-voting and e-counting have been important in order to test the potential benefits, and establish the evidential basis for future decisions to be taken on whether or not electronic voting could be used more widely in elections.

Electronic Conveyancing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the expected timetable is for the full implementation of electronic conveyancing by the Land Registry. [158199]

Mr. Wills: The latest revision of Land Registry's business case for the electronic conveyancing programme estimates that the programme of work will be fully implemented in 2014-15. The programme's implementation plan is constantly reviewed and updated to ensure that each new service and product is fully tested and that customer feedback is taken on board.

Fraud: Mortgages

Mr. Lilley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of fraudulent registration in the Land Registry of ownership of another person's property and associated mortgage fraud occurred in each of the last three years. [158304]

Mr. Wills: It is not known how many applications have been made to Land Registry in each of the last three years that have resulted in a fraudulent registration, whether in respect of the ownership of land or of a mortgage on land. This is because, firstly, there may be cases that have not come to light, and, secondly, Land Registry does not presently keep a central record of all frauds that affect the register of title. Land Registry does keep a central record of all cases where it pays statutory compensation, including those which result from fraud. It is also in the process of developing a more comprehensive method of recording fraud, whether or not it results in the payment of compensation.

Any owner of land who suffers loss as a result of the registration of a forged transfer or mortgage through no fault of their own is entitled to be compensated for that loss by Land Registry.

Land Registry paid statutory compensation as a result of fraud on a total of 15 claims in 2004-05, 31 claims in 2005-06 and 24 claims in 2006-07. To put this into context, there are currently more than 21 million registered titles and, in each of the last three years, Land Registry received around 4 million applications to register transfers for value and mortgages.

General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157052]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Housing: Prices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average price was for a (a) residential property, (b) detached house, (c) semi-detached house, (d) terraced house and (e) maisonette/flat in each year in England since 1991 according to Land Registry data. [158140]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry began collating this data in 1995. Information prior to this is not available. The following table provides the requested data from 1995 to present.

England average prices and volumes of sales 1995 to Q2 2007

Land Registry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average price derived from Land Registry data was in each local authority area in England and Wales for (a) all homes, (b) flats/maisonettes, (c) detached homes and (d) semi-detached homes in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158270]

Mr. Wills: The latest available figures from Land Registry cover the period from April to June 2007 and can be found in the Libraries of the House.

Land Registry: Internet

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many properties are recorded by the Land Registry but not accessible on Land Registry Online. [158201]

Mr. Wills: All registered titles in England and Wales are publicly accessible via 'Land Register Online'.

Land Registry: Revenue and Customs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what access (a) HM Revenue and Customs and (b) the Valuation Office Agency have to the Land Registry land database for valuation or taxation purposes. [158193]

Mr. Wills: HM Revenue and Customs and the Valuation Office Agency have no automatic access to Land Registry's land database other than that which is available to business users of the electronic service 'Land Registry Direct'.

Land: Registration

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment the Land Registry has made of the number of properties or items of land which are not recorded by the Land Registry. [158139]

Mr. Wills: At the end of September 2007, 61.7 per cent. of the freehold land area of England and Wales was registered with Land Registry representing just over 21 million registered titles. Land Registry estimates that the remaining 38.3 per cent. of the land area will generate around 4.5 million freehold first registrations.

Legal Aid

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment his Department has made of the impact of fixed legal aid fees upon not-for-profit legal aid providers; [158221]

(2) what research his Department has undertaken into the effects of the Government's legal aid reform plans upon different regions and areas of the country; if he will publish such research; and if he will make a statement; [158222]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects of the Government's legal aid reform plans upon (a) clients with severe mental health problems, (b) black and minority ethnic clients, (c) disabled clients, (d) clients with housing problems and (e) clients involved in complex children and family cases who use legal aid. [158225]

Maria Eagle: Each new fee scheme published by the Legal Services Commission (LSC) has been accompanied by an impact assessment. These are available on the LSC's website, and copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Within the next few weeks, the LSC also intends to publish a combined cumulative impact assessment of the legal aid reform programme to date, including those changes due for implementation in January.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what further plans he has to meet representatives of the legal profession and other organisations with an interest or involvement in the delivery of legal aid to discuss the future direction of the Government's legal aid reform plans. [158269]

Maria Eagle: My noble Friend the Lord Hunt of Kings Heath, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, has met a wide range of representatives from the legal profession and others with an interest in legal aid since he became the responsible Minister. He will continue to do so over the coming months to discuss the future direction of legal aid following completion of the introduction of the new fee schemes.

Legal Aid: Blackpool

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received from individuals and organisations from Blackpool on the Government's legal aid reform plans. [158224]

Maria Eagle: In the past year the Ministry of Justice and its predecessor have received two such representations from the hon. Gentleman on behalf of constituents and one from the hon. Member for Blackpool, North and Fleetwood (Mrs. Humble).

Legal Aid: Fees and Charges

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has to re-introduce a graduated fee system for legal aid rates in replacement of the fixed rate fee system. [158223]

Maria Eagle: The fixed fee schemes being introduced for civil, family, immigration and criminal legally aided work set fees for particular tasks or groups of tasks. Thus the fees are graduated according to the requirements of work. This move from remuneration for each hour worked to payment for each job done is an essential part of our strategy for reform of legal aid.

Mental Capacity Act 2005

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what amendments have been made and what recent representations he has received about the operation of the Mental Capacity Act 2005; and if he will make a statement; [158333]

(2) what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars and (c) other documents he (i) has issued and (ii) plans to issue in the next 12 months consequential to the provisions of the Mental Capacity Act 2005; and if he will make a statement. [158334]

Bridget Prentice: Since the Mental Capacity Act 2005 received Royal Assent we have held a series of public consultations seeking views as we have developed the code of practice and secondary legislation to support the implementation of the Act. In addition to the formal responses to consultation we have on occasion received representations on the Act from members of the public via their Members of Parliament. Since April 2007 we have received 43 such communications asking questions or commenting on the Act's provisions.

There have been two minor changes to the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to date, both of which were introduced by the Mental Health Act 2007. The first made a minor amendment to section 20(11)(a) of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to correct a drafting error by replacing the word "or" with "and". The second amended section 49 of the Act to clarify the occasions when it is not necessary to appoint an Independent Mental Capacity Advocate.

In addition the Mental Health Act 2007 contains provisions that will amend the Mental Capacity Act 2005 to introduce new safeguards to address the issues raised in the European Court of Human Rights judgment on 5 October 2004 in the case of HL v. the United Kingdom.

A number of pieces of secondary legislation that prescribe the detail of how the Act will operate have been laid before Parliament and have come into force as of 1 October 2007. In addition the Office of the Public Guardian has produced a wide range of forms, guidance and other information related to the operation of the Act. The Department's Mental Capacity Implementation Programme and the Office of the Public Guardian have also regularly informed stakeholders and customers of progress implementing the Act via update newsletters.

I have laid a table in the House Library today providing a list of the main secondary legislation, forms and guidance and newsletters produced by the Department to support the implementation of the Act. Further information may be produced in the next 12 months as required.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many spaces in prisons in England and Wales are expected to be withdrawn in each of the next five years. [158348]

Mr. Hanson: There is a planned rolling programme of refurbishment of accommodation across the prison estate. This allows the critical maintenance of the estate to be undertaken while having no significant net change on the number of places in use. Annually this means that between 1,500 and 2,000 places are out of use at any one time for essential work. We are not currently planning to withdraw any further accommodation in addition to these places.

Prisoners: Age

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in prison of each ethnic group are (a) 18, (b) 19, (c) 20, (d) 21, (e) 22, (f) 23, (g) 24, (h) 25, (i) 26, (j) 27, (k) 28, (l) 29, (m) 30, (n) 31, (o) 32, (p) 33, (q) 34 and (r) 35 years old. [158643]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the population in prison establishments in England and Wales aged 18-35 by ethnic group as at 31 August 2007:

	White	Mixed	Asian or Asian British	Black or Black British	Chinese or Other	Not stated, Unrecorded and 1991 census codes	All
Age
18	1,645	129	121	358	21	7	2,280

35	1,536	57	143	309	23	19	2,088

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2007, Official Report, columns 1227-8W, on accident and emergency departments, whether the advice on catchment population size applies to West Sussex. [157445]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not issued guidance stating that accident and emergency departments should cover a given catchment population.

It is a matter for the local national health service to ensure that there is appropriate provision of urgent and emergency services that are responsive to people's needs.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Age

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average age was for patients admitted to accident and emergency units in hospitals in the West Sussex primary care trust geographical area in the latest period for which figures are available. [157013]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held by the Department in the format requested. However, the following table shows the count of finished admission episodes and the mean (average) age for patients admitted via accident and emergency with a primary care trust (PCT) of responsibility of West Sussex PCT. The PCT of responsibility is the PCT with whom the patient is registered and has commissioning responsibility for the patient.

Count of finished admission episodes and mean age of patients admitted via accident and emergency with a primary care trust (PCT) of responsibility of West Sussex PCT for 2005-06: National health service hospitals—England

Finished admission episodes	15,492
Mean age (years)	54.5

Notes:
Admission methods:
21—Emergency: via accident and emergency (A and E) services, including the casualty department of the provider
28—Emergency: other means, including patients who arrive via the A and E department of another healthcare provider
Finished admission episodes:
A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
Ungrossed data:
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).
Data quality:
Hospital episode statistics (HES) are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. Whilst this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Accident and Emergency Departments: West Sussex Primary Care Trust

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact on travel times to emergency facilities in West Sussex Primary Care Trust in the event of the relocation of accident and emergency facilities away from Worthing Hospital. [157019]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) in conjunction with other local stakeholders and their strategic health authorities (SHAs) to make assessments of current and future health needs and to commission services accordingly. South East Coast SHA has advised officials that in this case West Sussex PCT has carried out the assessment.

The hon. Member may wish to approach the PCT directly on this matter.

Ambulance Services: South East Coast Strategic Health Authority

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what evidential basis the South East Coast strategic health authority describes as a myth the proposition that patients' lives will be at risk if it takes longer for the ambulance to transport them to accident and emergency as described on its website http://www.southeastcoastfff.nhs.uk. [157010]

Dawn Primarolo: This is a matter for the local national health service. South East Coast strategic health authority has advised officials that the evidence obtained comes from several academic sources and has been a theme in a number of national publications.

We would encourage the hon. Member to contact the chief executive of the lead NHS organisation in this matter which is West Sussex primary care trust.

Ambulance Services: West Sussex

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average (a) response time for emergency ambulance call-outs and (b) time before admission to hospital following emergency call out was in West Sussex primary care trust in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [157440]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on average response time and time before admission to hospital is not available. The closest equivalent measures of average response time are percentage of response times within eight minutes and 19 minutes.

Information on percentage of response times within eight minutes and within 19 minutes is available in tables 6 and 7 of the "Ambulance Services for England 2006-07" report.

This information is available for 2002-03 to 2006-07 for each Ambulance Service Provider in England. Data for 2006-07 are not directly comparable to data for earlier years due to the re-organisation of Ambulance Service Providers in 2006.

Data for West Sussex are not available; however, Sussex on a whole is shown. Complete Sussex data are available until 2005-06 and only for quarter one in 2006-07 due to the re-organisation.

The "Ambulance Services for England 2006-07" report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/audits-and-performance/ambulance/ambulance-services-england-2006-07

Data are not available on time before admission to hospital as timing stops when an emergency vehicle arrives at the scene of the incident.

Chlamydia Infection: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to encourage primary care trusts to ensure that pharmacies offer chlamydia testing kits as part of the chlamydia screening programme. [156791]

Dawn Primarolo: Chlamydia screening programme areas are encouraged to engage a range of screening venues to participate in the National Chlamydia Screening Programme, including pharmacies.

In addition to this, the Department contracted Boots to pilot the potential of community pharmacies as locations for chlamydia screening. Screening started on 14 November 2005. To date, nearly 43,000 screens have been undertaken with a positively rate of around 8 per cent. This pilot is being independently evaluated by TNS Healthcare.

In support of commissioners, the Department is working with the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee and the national health service to develop a national template for a chlamydia screening local enhanced service through the NHS Community Pharmacy Contractual Framework.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many 16 to 24-year-old (a) males and (b) females were tested for chlamydia infection as part of the National Chlamydia Screening Programme broken down by primary care trust in each year since 2003-04; and what proportion of 16 to 24-year-olds this represented in each year; [156793]

(2) how many tests for chlamydia infection have been undertaken in the 16 to 24-year-old age group in the year 2007-08 to date (a) in England and (b) broken down by primary care trust; and what percentage of 16 to 24-year-olds this represents in each case. [156794]

Dawn Primarolo: For the National Chlamydia Screening Programme, as at March 2007, there were 220,147 females and 49,993 males between the ages of 16 to 24 who provided a primary care trust (PCT) postcode of residence, who were tested for chlamydia in England. PCT data for 2003-04, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 have been placed in the Library.

Information is not currently available by PCT or by the number of tests undertaken within genito-urinary clinics. The number of diagnoses of uncomplicated chlamydia infection in 16 to 24-year-olds in genito-urinary clinics in England by strategic health authority and sex for 2006, is given in the following table.

Strategic health authority	Gender	Number of diagnoses
East Midlands	Male	2,473
East Midlands	Female	3,454
East of England	Male	2,184
East of England	Female	3,304
London	Male	4,468
London	Female	6,619
North East	Male	1,774
North East	Female	2,196
North West	Male	4,723
North West	Female	6,121
South Central	Male	1,771
South Central	Female	2,681
South East Coast	Male	1,515
South East Coast	Female	2,041
South West	Male	2,563
South West	Female	3,084
West Midlands	Male	2,476
West Midlands	Female	3,265
Yorkshire and the Humber	Male	3,304
Yorkshire and the Humber	Female	4,434
England	Male	27,251
England	Female	37,199

Notes:
1. Data are only available up to the calendar year 2006.
2. Data are not available at the PCT level.
3. Data on the number of test for chlamydia infection are not available.
4. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
5. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed. For example, individuals may be diagnosed with several co-infections and each diagnosis will be counted separately.
6. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.

Chlamydia: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his latest estimate is of the average cost of delivering and processing an individual chlamydia screening test. [158477]

Dawn Primarolo: "Modelling the Healthcare costs of an opportunistic chlamydia screening" programme research published in 2004 using data from a pilot study undertaken between 1999-2000 in Portsmouth and Wirral within the National Chlamydia Screening programme, estimated the costs per screening offer, testing episode and positive result. This information is given in tables 1 and 2.

A more recent article "The health care and patient costs of an proactive chlamydia screening programme: the Chlamydia Screening Studies (ClaSS)", published in 2007, identifies costs for register-based screening (rather than opportunistic screening which is used currently within the NCSP) but comes up with very similar average costs to the 2004 article.

Table 1: Estimated average costs of a chlamydia screen—excluding partner management costs

Item	Estimated average cost (£)
Screening offer	14.18
Testing episode	20.57
Positive episode	27

Table 2: Estimated average costs of a chlamydia screen—including partner management costs

Item	Estimated average cost (£)
Screening offer	14.88
Testing episode	21.83
Positive episode	38.36

Copies of the research have been placed in the Library.

Contraceptives: Prescriptions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by his Department on (i) the effectiveness and (ii) the safety of the Mirena contraceptive device; whether he has any plans to make this contraceptive device available on NHS prescription; and if he will make a statement. [158309]

Dawn Primarolo: Mirena is an intrauterine device (IUD) that releases a medicine, levonorgestrel, directly into the uterus. It is authorised for contraception, reduction of heavy menstrual bleeding (menorrhagia) and protection from endometrial hyperplasia during oestrogen replacement therapy. Since Mirena first became available in the United Kingdom women have been able to obtain it through the national health service.

The Medicines and Healthcare product Regulatory Agency (MHRA), together with independent expert advice for the Commission on Human Medicines is responsible for ensuring that medicines, including Mirena, have met appropriate standards of efficacy, safety and quality before they are granted a marketing authorisation and for ensuring that the benefits of treatment continue to outweigh the risks post authorisation, as further evidence emerges.

In addition to efficacy studies conducted by the marketing authorisation holder, Schering Health, prior to grant of a marketing authorisation, the Department has funded a number of studies to evaluate the effectiveness of Mirena (mainly in the indication of menstrual bleeding). These include the ongoing ECLIPSE randomised controlled trial in 1,200 women with menorrhagia.

The MHRA monitors the safety of all medicines, including Mirena, by evaluating data including adverse reaction reports received through the Yellow Card Scheme, published data, company studies and safety reviews, and information from other regulatory authorities. The benefits associated with Mirena are currently considered to outweigh the risks in its licensed indications.

The safety of Mirena was recently subject to European review and this has lead to a recommendation to clarify advice about the recognised risks of ectopic pregnancy and uterine perforation. As a precautionary measure, Mirena will be contraindicated in women with progesterone-dependent cancers. The product information for health professionals is being updated to reflect this advice.

The marketing authorisation holder is planning two studies: one to compare the risk of breast cancer in Mirena users with the risk in copper IUD users and users of other hormonal contraceptives and the other to compare the risk of uterine perforation in Mirena users with that in copper IUD users.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157000]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 823W.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156736]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not hold detailed records of laptops, mobile telephones and personal digital assistant (PDA) devices provided specifically to Ministers since 1997. However, the policy is to provide Ministers with one laptop, one mobile telephone, and one PDA each, where they have declared a requirement for such equipment. This equipment is usually new but may be re-allocated equipment depending on age and condition of the device. When a Minister leaves the Department the equipment is returned for re-allocation.

Following this year's Cabinet reshuffle, the six current Ministers have been allocated a total of five laptops, one mobile phone and four Blackberry devices which have dual mobile phone and PDA functionality. The team of Ministers before the reshuffle were allocated four laptops, five mobile phones and four Blackberry devices.

Departments: Marie Stopes International Conference

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the Ministers from his Department who will be (a) attending and (b) speaking at the Marie Stopes International Conference being held at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre on 23-24 October; whether his Department will be contributing (i) direct funding, (ii) informal support and (iii) personnel; whether there are restrictions on the use of these contributions; whether officials from his Department will (A) attend and (B) participate; if he will place in the Library any material produced for the conference by his Department; what discussions his Department has had with the Department for International Development on this conference; and if he will make a statement. [158310]

Dawn Primarolo: No Ministers from the Department of Health are attending or speaking at the Marie Stopes International Conference being held at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre on 23-24 October 2007.

The Department has contributed no funding, informal support or personnel to the event.

Three officials from the Department will be attending the event and will participate in breakout sessions along with other conference delegates.

No materials have been produced for the conference by the Department.

Ministers from both the Department and the Department for International Development were invited to speak at the conference. There was correspondence between the Departments about attendance but due to business and travel pressures neither Minister was able to attend.

Drugs: Licensing

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to allow the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to undertake appraisals of medicines prior to the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency granting them a product licence. [158461]

Dawn Primarolo: Under the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) Single Technology Appraisal process, NICE can already start to conduct an appraisal of a medicine when its marketing authorisation is imminent. However, NICE is unable to publish its final guidance until the medicine has received its marketing authorisation.

Health Services

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the potential impact on health outcomes of instructions to consultants by primary care trusts to reduce by 40 per cent. follow-up appointments. [158155]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: We are not aware of any blanket instructions by primary care trusts (PCTs) to consultants to reduce follow-up by 40 per cent. As good practice we would expect PCTs to be working with primary and secondary care clinicians to identify areas where redesign of the patient pathway can eliminate clinically unnecessary appointments, thereby speeding up and improving the patient experience. But this must be taken forward on the basis of clinical appropriateness.

Health Services: Education

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he has issued to NHS bodies on contributing to health awareness weeks; and if he will make a statement. [158425]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not issue formal guidance to national health service bodies on contributing to health awareness weeks. Participation by individual NHS organisations in such events is arranged at local level.

Where the Department is directly involved in organising awareness weeks, for example National Breastfeeding Awareness Week, it will promote the event to health care professionals and make resources available for use in local activities. For National Breastfeeding Awareness Week, the Department has provided resources such as posters and leaflets.

Where the Department supports awareness weeks organised by third parties it will work with major stakeholders to promote the event to health care professionals through newsletters and other existing channels.

Healthcare Purchasing Consortium: Finance

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the Healthcare Purchasing Consortium spent in 2006-07; and what it is forecast to spend in 2007-08; [158675]

(2) what estimate he has made of the savings achieved within the NHS by the Healthcare Purchasing Consortium in 2006-07; and what estimate he has made of the expected equivalent figure for 2007-08. [158676]

Mr. Bradshaw: The spend by the NHS Healthcare Purchasing Consortium on strategic sourcing activity for 2006-07 and expected forecast for 2007-08 is as follows:

	Expenditure (£)
2006-07	5,163,000
2007-08	5,913,500

The savings achieved by the NHS Healthcare Purchasing Consortium for member trusts during 2006-07 and expected forecast for 2007-08 is as follows:

	Savings (£)
2006-07	19,100,000
2007-08	26,900,000

Herbal Medicine: EC Law

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the numbers of herbal products currently on sale in the United Kingdom which will require registration under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive if they are to remain on the market; by what date applications for registrations must be made to ensure continuity of supply; and by what date the products will become illegal if not successfully registered; [157225]

(2) how many applications for registration have been received by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency; and how many positive decisions the Agency has taken to register herbal products under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; [157226]

(3) what assessment he has made of the number of herbal products which are likely to become unavailable to specialist retailers as a result of the inability or reluctance of manufacturers to submit applications for registration of such products under the Traditional Herbal Medicinal Products Directive; and if he will make a statement; [157227]

(4) what steps are being taken by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency to maximise the opportunities afforded under the Traditional Herbal Medicines Products Directive and other legislation to allow the continued availability of long-established herbal products whilst maintaining appropriate safety standards. [157231]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has so far received applications for traditional herbal registration in relation to 29 products from a total of nine different companies. Five registrations have been granted and the other 24 applications are under assessment. In the light of discussions with individual companies, the MHRA expects steady growth in the number of applications received and registrations granted. The rate of build up of the scheme is reflective of the extent to which many companies needed to acquire expertise, for example in the manufacture of herbal medicines to systematic quality standards, before they could be in a position to submit applications.

Under provisions in Directive 2004/24 /EC, unlicensed herbal medicines legally on the United Kingdom market at 30 April 2004 under section 12(2) of the Medicines Act 1968 received transitional protection until 30 April 2011. Following discussions with industry and the former Better Regulation Task Force the MHRA decided not to require companies to notify the agency of products for which transitional protection was claimed. Accordingly, there is no estimate of the number of products on the UK market being sold legally under section 12(2) but which cannot legally be placed on the market after 30 April 2011.

We do not believe it is realistic to specify a date by which applications need to be made in order to secure continuity of supply. Time taken by the MHRA to assess applications depends on a number of factors including the quality of the application and how quickly the applicant responds to queries raised by the MHRA. The MHRA is giving extensive help to the industry through individual company meetings. Guidance to industry has stressed the importance of companies progressing their applications now if they wish to ensure continuity of supply.

Hospitals: Petitions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he was (a) informed and (b) given sight of the recent petition from Surrey residents on the future of hospital services in the county; and if he will make a statement. [156913]

Dawn Primarolo: I responded to the petition on behalf of the Secretary of State, on 17 July 2007.

Influenza

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which industries he has deemed essential in the event of an influenza pandemic; and what support will be provided to them by the Government. [156771]

Dawn Primarolo: Whether it would be necessary to consider particular industries as essential in the event of an influenza pandemic is kept under review. As part of that process we will consider the results of the public engagement programme, designed to increase the Government's understanding of public attitudes to pandemic preparedness, that is planned for autumn 2007.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what total expenditure was on research into pharmaceutical interventions for use in the event of an influenza pandemic from (a) his Department's research and development budget, (b) the Medical Research Council and (c) other sources of public funding in each year since 1997-98. [156773]

Dawn Primarolo: Many pharmaceutical interventions that would be used in an influenza pandemic (such as antiviral drugs and antibiotics) are also used for other purposes, and research conducted for such purposes would inform our response in an influenza pandemic. Research on seasonal influenza vaccines is also relevant to the development and use of vaccines for use in pandemic influenza.

Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual NHS supported research projects including a number concerned with influenza are available on the national research register at:

www.nrr.nhs.uk.

The Department has also provided support from its research and development budget to a number of projects relevant to pharmaceutical interventions in an influenza pandemic.

Over the next five years, the Department of Health has committed, through the National Institute for Health Research, £2.59 million to projects related to vaccines and immunity in the context of influenza. In December 2005, the Medical Research Council announced a £13.5 million initiative for research relevant to pandemic influenza. A number of other publicly funded bodies also support research relevant to pandemic influenza.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Home Department on the 25 per cent. clinical attack rate assumed for planning purposes in the Home Office's consultation document Planning for a possible influenza pandemic—a framework to manage deaths—consultation, published on 30 August 2007; what his latest estimate is of the most likely clinical attack rate in the event of an influenza pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [156775]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department meets regularly with Home Office officials to discuss planning for pandemic influenza. The United Kingdom's plans are based on a range of attack rates from 25 per cent. up to a reasonable worst case of 50 per cent. This range is reflected in the draft Home Office guidance 'Planning for a possible influenza pandemic—A framework for planners preparing to manage deaths'.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress is being made in developing a clinically-based algorithm for use by call handlers in the event of an influenza pandemic. [156776]

Dawn Primarolo: Development of the clinically-based algorithm for use by call handlers is now being led by NHS Direct; the algorithm is due to be tested in the last quarter of 2007.

Influenza: Vaccinations

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) each strategic health authority, (b) each primary care trust and (c) England will be eligible for the free influenza vaccine this winter; and if he will make a statement. [157235]

Dawn Primarolo: Data are not collected centrally for each strategic health authority or each primary care trust. We estimate that 14.2 million people are eligible for the influenza vaccine in England.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many influenza vaccination doses (a) are available and (b) will be available this winter to those eligible for the free winter influenza vaccine in each (i) strategic health authority, (ii) primary care trust and (iii) England; and if he will make a statement; [157236]

(2) how many doses of influenza vaccination are available in 2007 for (a) strategic health authorities, (b) primary care trusts and (c) doctors surgeries to purchase this winter; and if he will make a statement. [157237]

Dawn Primarolo: The UK Vaccine Industry Group has agreed to make over 15 million doses of seasonal flu vaccine available this winter for the United Kingdom. So far, over 4.4 million doses have been delivered. The information is not available by strategic health authority or primary care trust.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of eligible pensioners who receive influenza vaccinations. [158003]

Dawn Primarolo: We announced our seasonal influenza campaign on 28 September, incorporating a number of strategies aimed at encouraging people aged 65 years and over to receive their flu immunisation. The campaign incorporates:

national TV advertising;

advertising in national and regional newspapers and magazines, including ethnic media;

advertising on pharmacy bags;

work with voluntary organisations and commercial stakeholders such as the Alzheimer's society, AFTAID, Arthritic Association, British Heart Foundation, Lloyds Pharmacy, Tesco, Sainsbury's, Superdrug and Morrison's pharmacists.

The Chief Medical Officer also wrote to all general practitioners with details of this year's flu vaccination programme in his letter of 30 March 2007. This provides surgeries with a number of months to plan their vaccination programme.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to issue guidance to NHS trusts on how they should prioritise their staff for receiving a pandemic-specific vaccine in the event of an influenza pandemic. [158462]

Dawn Primarolo: The pandemic vaccination strategy will be determined by an assessment of the strength of the virus, and its impact on the population. As this assessment can only take place once the virus has emerged, specific advice on the vaccination of any part of the population, including health care workers, can only be issued at that point.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he will issue guidance to employers on the stockpiling of clinical counter-measures for use in an influenza pandemic, with reference to his letter sent to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire, dated 2 October 2007, reference PO00000234688. [158469]

Dawn Primarolo: No central guidance has been issued to employers wishing to stockpile clinical countermeasures. Employers who are considering this as part of their business continuity planning should do so in conjunction with their own occupational health advisers. The National Framework for responding to an influenza pandemic includes information in relation to stockpiling and use of clinical countermeasures. Work is also progressing on testing a clinical algorithm/protocol as part of the process for providing access to antivirals.

Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust: Pay

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was paid to Rose Gibb, the former chief executive of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS trust, upon the termination of her employment. [158719]

Ann Keen [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The employment of staff, clinicians and managers within the national health service is a matter for local NHS Boards. In the case of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells we have asked the NHS trust to withhold any severance payment to the former chief executive prior to the Department considering legal advice on the matter.

Maternity Services: Sussex

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many babies were born while their mothers were in the process of travelling to (a) Brighton hospital and (b) Worthing hospital in the latest period for which figures are available. [157256]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not collected centrally.

Medical Equipment

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1226W, on medical equipment, when he plans to take a decision as to whether to procure and stockpile face masks centrally. [156750]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is progressing work to ensure that the appropriate face masks are made available to health care and social care workers during a pandemic. An announcement will be made in relation to this issue as soon as it is possible to do so.

NHS: Reorganisation

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what briefing Lord Darzi received on the proposals to downgrade Worthing and Chichester hospitals before his recent interview on GMTV. [157255]

Ann Keen: Lord Darzi is aware of the current consultation on the future of health services in West Sussex.

NHS: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of backlog maintenance was in the NHS in each year from 1997-98 to 2006-07 (a) in total and (b) broken down by NHS organisation. [158472]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total backlog maintenance for England is provided in the following table.

	Total backlog maintenance (£ million)
1997-98	2,836
1998-99	3,027
1999-2000	3,108
2000-01	3,242
2001-02	3,378
2002-03	3,517
2003-04	3,193
2004-05	3,142
2005-06	3,684
2006-07	3,740

Information for national health service organisations has been placed in the Library.

The data are as provided by the national health service and have not been amended centrally. Their accuracy and completeness is the responsibility of the provider organisation. Trusts that have not provided data or have provided a zero response have been omitted for brevity.

Investment to reduce backlog maintenance will be prioritised locally based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources. The majority of the backlog maintenance relates to low priority work, which will be undertaken through ongoing maintenance programmes or replacement of facilities. Where higher risks are present, work will be undertaken as a priority.

Obesity: Fertility

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated by his Department on links between obesity and infertility; and if he will make a statement. [158308]

Dawn Primarolo: Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by national health service organisations. Details of individual NHS supported research projects including a small number concerned with the relationship between obesity and fertility are available on the national research register at www.nrr.nhs.uk.

The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills.

The MRC is not currently funding research specifically relating to the causal links between obesity and fertility. As part of a portfolio of more general research relating to the various causes of infertility however, the MRC has recently allocated £300,000 for the following research project on polycystic ovarian syndrome that links the symptoms of obesity and infertility:

Dr. W. C. Duncan, University of Edinburgh—Polycystic Ovarian Syndrome: modelling development, phenotype and progression using a developmental paradigm.

Obesity: Pupils

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the medical testing of school children for obesity is conducted on a parental opt-out basis; and if he will make a statement. [157253]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Child Measurement programme (NCMP) gathers population level surveillance data and informs local planning and service delivery, and allows for the analysis of trends in growth patterns and obesity.

The NCMP is conducted on an opt-out basis. Our guidance states clearly that:

the privacy and dignity of the child is safeguarded at all times and the measurement is done sensitively in a private setting height and weight information should be gathered with minimal physical contact by health professionals (as defined in the Data Protection Act 1998).

parents receive a letter explaining the purpose of the programme, and provide them with the opportunity to withdraw their child from it.

Patients: Smoking

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the percentage of hospital beds occupied by smokers. [156770]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not collected centrally.

According to the latest data available, smoking kills an estimated 87,000 people a year in England, about one-fifth of all deaths, and leads to an extra 560,000 admissions to hospital.

Information Centre Statistics on Smoking 2006 and relates to 2004-05.

Primary Care Trusts: Elderly

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list by primary care trust area the areas in England with the highest proportion of residents over the age of retirement per head of population for the latest year in which figures are available. [157012]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question regarding Primary Care Trust areas in England with the highest proportion of residents over the age of retirement per head of population for the latest year in which figures are available (157012).

The latest population estimates available by primary care trust are for mid-2005. Table 1 shows the percentage of the population over retirement age by Primary Care Organisation. These estimates will be revised shortly.

Estimates for mid-2006 and revised estimates for mid-2002 to mid-2005 will be published on 23 October 2007. These estimates are being revised to include improved international migration estimates. ONS has made improvements this year to the methods used for distributing international migrants to local areas as part of its "Improving Migration and Population Statistics" work programme. Please note therefore that the mid-2005 estimates provided here are not comparable with the revised 2005 mid-year estimates by Local Authority.

Smoking: Fines

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the likely number of fines to be issued for non-compliance with the public smoking ban in the first year of operation in England. [158187]

Dawn Primarolo: From the commencement of smokefree legislation in England on Sunday, 1 July 2007 levels of compliance have been very high.

Levels of compliance are fully in line with the Department's expectations set out in the regulatory impact assessment for the legislation which are based on the experiences of other jurisdictions that have introduced comprehensive smokefree legislation.

Based on data collected from local authorities across England 98.7 per cent. of premises and vehicles required to be smokefree inspected in August were found to be fully compliant with the law. Full information is published at:

www.smokefreeengland.co.uk/thefacts/national-compliance-data.html

A small number of formal enforcement actions have been taken by local authorities, with 45 fixed penalty notices issued (26 in one area) and three court actions having been taken in the period 1 July to 31 August 2007.

Smokefree legislation is supported by over three-quarters of people in England and the high levels of compliance to date is an clear indication that the objective of the new law—to protect people from secondhand smoke is being met.

West Sussex Primary Care Trust: Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what basis West Sussex primary care trust is of the view that its share of the NHS budget will increase by 4.5 per cent. a year over the next few years from 2007-08, as stated in its consultation document "Fit for the Future: modernising healthcare in West Sussex"; whether this figure relates to real-terms increases or cash-terms increases; and if he will make a statement. [157007]

Dawn Primarolo: No decision have yet been made about the timing of revenue allocations to primary care trusts for 2008-09 to 2010-11.

The West Sussex primary care trust should be able to provide further information regarding the figures quoted in its consultation document, "Fit for the Future: Modernising Healthcare in West Sussex", if required

Worthing Hospital

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if (a) he, (b) Lord Darzi and (c) the Chief Executive of the NHS will visit Worthing Hospital. [157840]

Dawn Primarolo: The Secretary of State for Health, Lord Darzi and David Nicholson, the NHS chief executive all make regular visits to national health service facilities across the country. Invitations are of course considered on a case by case basis and will depend upon diary pressures and parliamentary business. Therefore, if the hon. Member wishes to, he may send a formal request to Ministers.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the proposal from the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges that facilities at Worthing Hospital in West Sussex Primary Care Trust be downgraded. [157016]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for local primary care trusts in conjunction with other local stakeholders and their strategic health authorities (SHAs) to make assessments of current and future health needs and to commission services accordingly.

South East Coast SHA has advised officials that it has provided a response to the report which can be found at the SHA's website:

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departments: Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Leader of the House what guidance her Office follows on the maximum time taken to respond to hon. Members' correspondence; and what performance against that target was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [158589]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons' Office aims to respond to hon. Members' correspondence within 15 working days. During August 2007 this was achieved for 91 per cent. of MPs' and Peers' correspondence received. For the year 2006, the target was achieved for 95 per cent. of MPs' correspondence and 97 peers of Peers' correspondence.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many websites her Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running her Department's websites in the last five years. [157905]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons Office operate one website and has done so since June 2003. From April 2006 until March 2007 the annual cost of running the website was £7,050. From April 2007 until October 2007 the cost has been £4,112.50. Following a Machinery of Government change, information prior to 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157906]

Helen Goodman: The Leader of the House of Commons Office website has received a total of 6,894,877 hits since 1 January 2007.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of her Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157903]

Helen Goodman: Following a machinery of government change, detailed information on expenditure incurred in the 2006-07 financial year is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Leader of the House how many staff are seconded to her Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157904]

Helen Goodman: There are currently 20 members of staff who are seconded to the Cabinet Office from outside of Government. This figure includes five members of staff from the Houses of Parliament. The Houses of Parliament do not form part of the civil service. The following table lists (a) the outside body from which each has been seconded from and (b) length of each secondment:

Departments: Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Leader of the House how many and what percentage of questions tabled for answer on a named day received a substantive answer on the day due in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by answering Department. [158051]

Helen Goodman: Individual Departments are responsible for keeping their own records on the timeliness of answers and providing this information to the House when requested by the Public Administration Committee or through Members' questions. To provide this information centrally could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The last available figures of the Leader of the House of Commons Office relate to the 2005-06 session. These show that 100 per cent. of the 71 named day questions tabled were answered on the date specified.

Members: Pensions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) debates and (b) votes there have been on the subject of hon. Members' pensions since 1997. [157367]

Helen Goodman: The following debates and votes relating to Members' pensions have been identified by the Journal Office as having taken place on the Floor of the House since 1997:

5 July 2001 (implementation of the elements of the 2001 SSRB report relating to MPs' pensions):

Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (divisions on amendments moved by hon. Members for Bournemouth, West (Sir John Butterfill) and for Oxford, West and Abingdon (Dr. Harris)).

3 November 2004 (implementation of the elements of the 2004 SSRB report relating to MPs' pensions):

(1) Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (Contribution Rate);

(2) Motion on Parliamentary Pensions (Survivor Benefits and Early Retirement).

In addition, there was a debate in a delegated legislation Committee on 23 July 2002 on the Parliamentary Pensions (Amendment) Regulations 2002 (S.I., 2002, No 1807) (followed by a division).

Parliamentary Scrutiny: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House if she will bring forward proposals to improve scrutiny of European Union legislation. [157578]

Helen Goodman: I refer the hon. Lady to my answer during oral questions on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 19.

TRANSPORT

A12: Essex

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on upgrading the A12 in Essex to motorway standard; and if she will make a statement. [158421]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Secretary of State is not aware of any recent representations for upgrading the A12 to motorway standard. Following the recommendations of the M25 to Ipswich multi-modal study in 2002, the Secretary of State asked the Highways Agency to carry out further appraisal for upgrading the A12 between the M25 and Colchester.

In July 2006 the Secretary of State accepted the advice of the East of England's Regional Assembly on regional transport investment priorities, not to prioritise the A12 for funding in the period up to 2015-16. It will be for the Region to reconsider in the review of the Regional Funding Allocations due in 2008.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will estimate the cost of upgrading the A12 in Essex to motorway standard. [158422]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The A12 all purpose trunk road in Essex is a mixture of dual two and three lane carriageways of varying standard. There are no proposals to upgrade the A12 to motorway standard and consequently no assessment work has been undertaken. Hence no costs for upgrading the A12 to motorway standard are available.

Blue Badge Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what Government research has been undertaken into the independent mobility needs of (a) people with mental health problems, (b) partially sighted people, (c) people with severe learning and/or behavioural difficulties and (d) people with severe autism to determine their eligibility for a Blue Badge; [158032]

(2) whether her Department has issued, on behalf of all four UK Administrations, guidance specifying the criteria for further assessment of applicants for Blue Badge parking permits; [158033]

(3) whether children under two years old whose medical needs require the transport of bulky equipment at all times have been made eligible under the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme; [158034]

(4) what progress her Department has made towards ensuring nationally consistent eligibility criteria for those subject to further assessment under the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme; [158035]

(5) whether assessments of independent mobility for the Blue Badge parking scheme are routinely undertaken by a health professional other than the applicant's GP; [158041]

(6) whether, where entitlement to a Blue Badge is linked to receipt of the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance, the period of issue is linked to that of receipt of the allowance; [158042]

(7) what progress has been made towards establishing a national, centrally funded, database of Blue Badge holders; [158043]

(8) whether Blue Badge applicants automatically entitled by their receipt of the higher rate mobility component of the disability living allowance are required to give explicit consent to the sharing of personal data under the Data Protection Act 1998. [158044]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Research into the mobility needs of certain disability groups who may not be eligible for the Blue Badge under the current eligibility criteria, was completed earlier this year. This included people with severe autism, mental health difficulties, learning and/or behavioural difficulties and people who are partially sighted. The findings were considered as part of the strategic review of the scheme, which reported to me in September and will contribute to the publication of a comprehensive Blue Badge reform strategy by April 2008.

All English authorities will be issued with revised guidance later this year. As responsibility for the scheme is devolved in the UK, the Administrations for Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland are producing their own guidance separately.

Following changes I announced recently, children under the age of two, who are dependent upon bulky medical equipment, have been eligible for a badge under the scheme from 15 October 2007.

The Department for Transport recognises the need to promote greater consistency of assessment. This is a key theme which is being addressed through our strategic review and forthcoming Blue Badge reform strategy. The revised local authority guidance, due for publication later this year, will also help to clarify the assessed eligibility process.

The medical assessment practice varies between different local authorities. We are committed to actively promoting good practice guidance in this area and are engaging with the Department of Health on this issue.

From 15 October 2007, certain badges are now linked to the receipt and issue period of both the higher rate mobility component of the disability living allowance and war pensioners' mobility supplement.

Research into the feasibility of a national database was completed earlier this year. The findings were considered as part of the strategic review of the scheme, which will contribute to the publication of a comprehensive Blue Badge reform strategy by April 2008.

All local authorities have a duty to comply with the Data Protection Act 1988. The revised local authority guidance, due for publication later this year, will provide additional advice on this area and a model data protection statement for Blue Badge applicants to complete.

Car Hire: Regulation

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what legislation covers the regulation of car hire companies; and when the last review of these provisions was undertaken. [154747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport is not aware of any legislation relating specifically to the regulation of car hire companies.

However, the Disability Discrimination (Transport Vehicles) Regulations 2005 [SI 2005/3190], which came into force on 4 December 2006, do cover "hire vehicles" (the definition of which is relevant to vehicles hired out by car hire companies).

The 2005 regulations effectively disapplied certain exemptions contained in the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 in respect of particular types of vehicle, including "hire vehicles". As a result, car hire companies (like other vehicle-hire firms covered by the 2005 regulations) can no longer discriminate against disabled persons when providing vehicles.

Departments: Fixed Penalties

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of her Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157919]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport and its agencies maintain the policy that road traffic violations such as parking tickets and speeding fines remain the responsibility of the individual, and are not reimbursed from public resources. Three of the Department's agencies record penalties incurred by their drivers on official business, and these amounted to a total of 17 in financial year 2006-07. No financial cost was incurred by the Department.

The exception to this is the Government Car and Despatch Agency which pays parking fines incurred operationally in circumstances where the overriding security requirements of high profile passengers or secure or sensitive documents necessarily dictate the choice of parking location. 73 such fines were paid in financial year 2006-07, at a total cost of £5,898.02.

Metronet: Insolvency

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the debts left to the public sector following Metronet's failure to fulfil its contract with London Underground; and how she expects those debts to be met. [157848]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for Metronet's Administrators, working with Transport for London and London Underground, to identify the best route out of Administration. In advance of their conclusions, it continues to be inappropriate to speculate on any public sector financial impacts and, therefore, how such impacts would be handled.

Railways: Performance Standards

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the performance of First Capital Connect services between Peterborough and London over the last five years. [158961]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since the commencement of the First Capital Connect (FCC) franchise on 1 April 2006, the Public Performance Measure (PPM) Moving Annual Average for the Great Northern route, which includes services between Peterborough and London, has increased from 89.56 per cent. to 92.35 per cent. in the most recent complete operating period. FCC recently achieved a period PPM of 96.09 per cent. on the GN route, which is the highest achieved since franchising in the 1990s.

Railways: Wales

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail passengers travelled on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992; and if she will make a statement. [158971]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the services provided within Wales and across the border by Arriva Trains Wales. Details of the number of passengers who have travelled on railway lines in Wales each year since 1992 are not held by the Department for Transport.

Statistics on numbers of passengers on the railway network are published by the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) in the National Rail Trends Yearbook editions, which are available in the House Library or from their website: www.rail-reg.gov.uk.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway carriages were used on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992; how many seats were provided in those carriages in each of those years; and if she will make a statement. [158972]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for the services provided within Wales and across the border by Arriva Trains Wales. Details of the number of carriages that were used on railway lines in Wales in each year since 1992 and the number of seats provided in those carriages are not held by the Department.

Road Traffic

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) which local authorities have submitted bids for funding from the congestion element of the Transport Innovation Fund in each year since its creation; and which were (a) accepted and (b) rejected; [158106]

(2) which local authorities have applied for funding from the Transport Innovation Fund; which have been (a) accepted and (b) rejected; and what form of congestion charging, road pricing or workplace parking taxes the successful ones are proposing. [158107]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Money from the Transport Innovation Fund (TIF) will become available from 2008-09. Ten areas have been awarded pump-priming funding to support the development of Transport Innovation Fund packages that address local congestion problems combining demand management, including road pricing, with better public transport. So far one substantive TIF bid for funding has been received. The Association of Greater Manchester Authorities (AGMA) have submitted a business case for Transport Innovation Fund funding for a package to tackle congestion by combining transport investment and road pricing. Details are available on http://www.gmfuturetransport.co.uk/. We are currently assessing the case.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic (a) accidents and (b) fatalities there were on the A14 in Suffolk in each year since 1997; and how many involved drivers under the age of 21 years in each case. [159209]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is given in the following tables.

Number of reported personal injury road accidents and fatalities on the A14 in Suffolk; 1997-2006

	Accidents (a)	Fatalities (b)
1997	128	7
1998	123	2
1999	122	8
2000	138	8
2001	138	10
2002	157	5
2003	128	3
2004	143	5
2005	150	4
2006	119	6

Number of reported personal injury road accidents involving drivers under the age of 21 and resulting fatalities on the A14 in Suffolk: 1997-2006

1997	21	1
1998	26	1
1999	21	1
2000	22	0
2001	26	1
2002	27	1
2003	29	0
2004	28	0

Taxis

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions control whether hackney carriages outside London may collect customers after being hailed off the street, outside a taxi rank. [158108]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The law allows the drivers of licensed hackney carriages to accept immediate hirings from passengers either when the cabs are standing at a rank or in response to a hailing in the street. The drivers are, however, only permitted to accept such hirings while located in the area for which they are licensed. If a driver drops off a passenger outside his own licensing area he cannot respond to a street hailing (or stand at a rank) until he returns to his own licensing area.

Vehicles: Insurance

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her most recent estimate is of the number of uninsured vehicles in the Greater London area. [159008]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our latest estimate for the United Kingdom is that in 2005 there were about 2.1 million licensed vehicles being driven uninsured (about 6.5 per cent. of the UK vehicle fleet). Information is not held by area.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Aggregates Levy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which beneficiaries of the Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund received more than £50,000 in any one year in each year since the inception of the levy. [158548]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund database contains details of overall amounts paid out to projects from April 2004 onwards, but we do not have annual payments recorded centrally. I have arranged for a list of beneficiaries that have received over £50,000 from the Aggregates Levy Sustainability Fund, since April 2004, to be placed in the Library of the House.

Agriculture: Floods

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration he has given to applying for EU emergency funds under Articles 87 and 88 of the EC Treaty to compensate farmers for flood damage to crops and livestock. [154039]

Mr. Woolas: Articles 87 and 88 of the European Community Treaty do not provide access to European Union (EU) emergency funds. The categories (which also include the guidelines and regulations that have since been formulated on this issue) relate to aid, funded by individual member states rather than the EU, that we are allowed to pay in certain circumstances (state aid).

The UK has submitted an application to the EU Solidarity Fund in the wake of this summer's flooding. However, the purpose of the fund is to assist member state Governments with costs that arise from the relief efforts and those of returning infrastructure to the condition it was in before the disaster occurred. It is unlikely that compensation to private business, including farmers, for losses arising from the floods would be eligible. As part of the application process, the Government will agree with the Commission how any support received from the Solidarity Fund will be used.

Battery Hens: EU Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with the European Commission on the release of the report on the progress of the transition towards the ban on battery cages for egg production due to come into effect in 2012; [157719]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the Laying Hens Directive will have on the number of eggs imported into the UK from outside the EU; and if he will make a statement; [157720]

(3) what assessment he has made of the state of readiness of the British egg industry to implement the Laying Hens Directive, with particular reference to the banning of battery cages for egg production from 2012. [157718]

Jonathan Shaw: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) recently met with Commissioner Kyprianou and stressed the urgency of publishing the Commission's report. The report will consider the various systems for keeping laying hens, their health and environmental impact, socio-economic implications and effects on the Community's economic partners.

A regulatory impact assessment was produced in 2002 when Council Directive 99/74/EC was transposed into domestic legislation. This will be updated in the light of the Commission's report and will consider such aspects as the impact of the 2012 conventional cage ban on the industry and trading patterns. Currently, over half of UK egg production is from caged birds although, during the last few years, there has been a shift in production methods in the UK from conventional cages to enriched cages and alternative systems.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the report Badgers and Cattle TB: Final Report of the Independent Scientific Group was peer reviewed; who peer reviewed it; what feedback was received from the peer review; and if he will make a statement. [157271]

Jonathan Shaw: The Independent Scientific Group's (ISG) Final Report as whole has not been peer-reviewed. However, most of the work has been published in leading, independently peer-reviewed scientific journals. Appendix J of the Report (available on the DEFRA website and in the Libraries of the House) summarises their published scientific papers and other important published material.

Formal independent audits of core aspects of the trial were undertaken at appropriate intervals. These included the field procedures of surveying, social group delineation and badger removal, welfare aspects of the way trapped badgers were dispatched, post-mortem protocols and bacteriological culture procedures, as well as procedures for data collection, handling and statistical analysis. Appendix E of the Report lists the programme of audits undertaken throughout the trial.

The ISG webpage, which lists their publications, can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/tb/isg/isgpublications.htm

and reports of the independent audits that have been carried out can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/tb/culling/p5aud.htm.

Carbon Emissions: Personal Income

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has commissioned research on the carbon footprint of those on low incomes compared to those on high incomes. [158538]

Mr. Woolas: As part of its pre-feasibility study into personal carbon trading, the Government will be looking at, among other things, carbon footprints of different groups to assess the equity impact of personal carbon trading.

This will follow initial work conducted by the Centre for Sustainable Energy (CSE) in November 2006, entitled "A Rough Guide to Individual Carbon Trading". One of the findings of this report was that, in general, those on lower incomes tend to emit less carbon dioxide than average, while those on higher incomes tend to emit more carbon dioxide than average. A personal carbon trading system might have the potential to achieve emissions savings in a fairer way than a carbon tax.

A recent piece of work by the CSE, commissioned by DEFRA to help inform development of the post-2011 supplier obligation, further illustrates the correlation between income level and carbon emissions. This study also draws out important variations within income bands, showing that some low-income households have very high consumption levels and some high-income households have very low consumption levels.

Carbon Emissions: Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy that (a) any carbon budget he sets out for 2008 to 2012 will require a lower level of emissions in that period than in the preceding five years and (b) that every future budget period will be set at a level lower than its predecessor. [158343]

Mr. Woolas: As set out in the draft Climate Change Bill, the independent Committee on Climate Change will advise the Government on the emissions reduction pathway to achieve the 2020 and 2050 targets. The Committee will advise specifically on the level of carbon budgets, taking into account where carbon savings can be achieved across the economy and the optimum balance between domestic action and international trading in carbon allowances.

Its first task will be to advise the Government on the first three five-year carbon budgets by 1 September 2008.

Carbon Sequestration: Peat

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the merits of natural peatlands as net absorbers of carbon dioxide; and what measures are in place to protect peatlands to combat greenhouse gas emissions. [157979]

Mr. Woolas: Peatlands are a significant store of carbon in the UK and require protection. A substantial proportion of these are found in Scotland. However, in terms of absorbing carbon dioxide, the potential is limited, due to their slow growth.

DEFRA is currently seeking to develop its understanding of the risks to this carbon store and to investigate the best means of protecting peatlands and the biodiversity they support. The Department is in the process of setting up a cross-governmental project that is intended to form part of DEFRA's new soil strategy for England. This will ensure that DEFRA and its agencies co-ordinate their activity on peat soils and liaise effectively with the devolved Administrations as well as identifying best practice for protecting peatlands and putting in place the appropriate measures.

However, to a large extent, land managers are already protecting peatlands for their biodiversity value under agri-environment schemes and Sites of Special Scientific Interest. Around 230,000 hectares of peatlands are currently managed under agri-environment agreements in England.

Cattle: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on progress towards a cattle vaccine for (a) foot and mouth disease, (b) blue tongue and (c) bovine TB. [157365]

Jonathan Shaw: A large number of foot and mouth vaccines for a range of different strains are already held in the UK vaccine bank at the Merial production facility in Pirbright This is the only facility licensed to produce foot and mouth disease vaccines in the UK. As soon as we identified the precise strain of the circulating virus we ordered 300,000 doses to be made ready for use. This vaccine is licensed for use in cattle and other species and the production was cleared by the Health and Safety Executive and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate.

However, DEFRA has decided not to vaccinate at this time as the epidemiological evidence concludes that the risk of the infection spreading out of Surrey is very low. Therefore, the slaughter of animals on infected premises and dangerous contacts remains the most effective way of eradicating the disease.

There is currently no suitable vaccine for the bluetongue serotype 8 available; as this serotype only emerged in Europe last year. However, we are aware of several companies who are developing such a vaccine for use in cattle and sheep and we are in urgent discussions with them to do what we can to encourage this work. We are also developing a plan with the industry as to how a vaccination campaign would work once a vaccine becomes available, is licensed, safe and effective for use; we hope this will be next year.

While progress is being made on the development of a TB vaccine for cattle, vaccination as a practical TB control measure is still some way off. DEFRA-funded research has successfully identified lead candidate vaccines and we are now starting to look at delivery protocols. Research is also continuing on tests to differentiate infected from vaccinated animals (DIVA tests). It is important to note that development of a successful TB vaccine cannot be guaranteed, and that if a vaccine can be developed it will only form one part of a balanced package of measures to control the disease.

Departments: Foot and Mouth Disease

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with Ministry of Defence Ministers or officials on restrictions on civilian leisure activities on Ministry of Defence land as a result of foot and mouth disease. [157071]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is in regular contact with the Ministry of Defence (MoD) and, during the recent foot and mouth outbreaks, we have had a range of discussions. During the initial outbreaks, DEFRA was in daily contact with the MoD to clarify public access arrangements and countryside activities in high risk areas.

During the initial outbreaks in August, at the request of DEFRA, officials from Defence Estates, the relevant MoD organisation, assisted Surrey county council in closing MoD public land within the protection zone.

In line with DEFRA guidelines, MoD has not imposed any public access or leisure restrictions on their land in low risk areas during the recent outbreaks.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157002]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 15 October 2007, Official Report column 823W.

Domestic Wastes: Microprocessors

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has produced or commissioned on the use of radio frequency identification chips in rubbish bins. [158220]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 2097W.

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the level of public satisfaction with local authority waste collection services in areas with (a) alternate weekly collections and (b) weekly collections. [155700]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA does not carry out its own monitoring of satisfaction with waste services. It is the responsibility of local authorities to do this at. At present, they are required under the local government performance framework to carry out a survey every three years as part of the best value performance indicators. Further information about these indicators is available from the local government performance website at:

www.bvpi.gov.uk

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on the size of wheelie bins for household rubbish collection; [158096]

(2) what advice (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on the sizes of wheelie bins for household rubbish collection. [158113]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has not given any guidance on this issue.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) issued guidance on alternate weekly collection ("Alternate Weekly Collections: Guidance for Local Authorities") which has a short section on the size of wheelie bins. WRAP has issued no other guidance on this issue.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, columns 156-7W on domestic wastes: waste disposal, to my hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), what estimate has been made of the proportion of household rubbish collected for recycling that is not recycled in local authorities which do not have material recycling facilities. [158138]

Joan Ruddock: No specific assessment has been made by my Department on the proportion of household rubbish collected for recycling not recycled in local authorities which do not have material recycling facilities.

The challenging recycling and composting targets set for all local authorities in England mean that it is in the authority's interest to recycle or compost as much of the viable material collected. Local authorities without local facilities may either use facilities in other areas, or send recyclables for reprocessing outside the UK.

When reporting data to WasteDataFlow, local authorities should specify the amount of waste collected for recycling that is subsequently rejected at the point of collection, at a Materials Recycling Facility (MRF), or at the gate of the reprocessor. The data reported to WasteDataFlow are used by the Environment Agency and DEFRA to monitor the Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research, advice or guidance the consultancy Eunomia has produced at public expense on levying charges on households for providing containers which will hold domestic rubbish. [158247]

Joan Ruddock: Eunomia Research and Consulting Ltd. have conducted research for DEFRA through the project "Modelling the Impact of Household Charging for Waste in England". This report contains a literature review and modelling work, which includes sack-based schemes and bin volume schemes. Both of these involve charging households for containers which will hold domestic rubbish.

They have not provided any policy advice or guidance.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice or guidance (a) the Waste and Resources Action Programme and (b) his Department has provided to councils on levying charges on households for providing containers which will hold domestic rubbish. [158248]

Joan Ruddock: No advice or guidance have been provided by the Waste and Resources Action Programme or DEFRA on these issues.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether, under his Department's proposals to allow local authorities to charge for the collection of household waste, waste collection authorities will remain under an obligation to collect rubbish from households which did not pay the charges. [158403]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA is considering responses to a recent consultation on the issue of whether local authorities should be given a new legal power to introduce non income-raising ('revenue neutral') incentive schemes for minimising waste. This would be a power not a duty, and the aim of any such scheme would be to incentivise behavioural change. This would not be a charging scheme for the collection of waste, as any payments required would be aimed at influencing behaviour change and not on the cost of the collection service.

The duty of waste collection authorities, under the Environmental Protection Act 1990, to collect household waste (subject to certain exemptions) would not be altered by the Department's proposals.

Floods: Insurance

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the insurance industry on the provision of (a) adequate flood defences by the Government and (b) insurance cover in areas vulnerable to flooding; and if he will make a statement. [159097]

Mr. Woolas: Ministerial colleagues, officials and I are in regular contact with the insurance industry and the Association of British Insurers. We are working together with the mutual aim of ensuring continued widespread availability of flood insurance cover through the Association's Statement of Principles. This sets out commitments by insurers on the availability of flood insurance, associated with commitments by the Government on effective management of flood risk.

Floods: Risk Assessment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Environment Agency's definition is of the probability of (a) low, (b) medium and (c) high flood risk in terms of the frequency in years at which an area is likely to flood. [158411]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency uses three categories for defining the probability of a flood. They are low, moderate and significant.

Low—the chance of flooding each year is 0.5 per cent. (1 in 200) or less.

Moderate—the chance of flooding in any year is 1.3 per cent. (1 in 75) or less but greater than 0.5 per cent. (1 in 200).

Significant—the chance of flooding in any year is greater than 1.3 per cent. (1 in 75).

Food: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme has given to local authorities on food waste collection, including which types of food can and cannot be placed in food waste buckets. [158216]

Joan Ruddock: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) offers advice to local authorities on arrangements for food waste collection. This advice has been developed on the basis of published literature, a number of projects commissioned by WRAP and current local authority experience of providing food waste collection services. The general advice is that if local authorities are considering collecting food waste they should consider collecting it separately and on a weekly basis. Where food waste is collected separately, WRAP advises that local authorities provide appropriate containers to householders (typically a kitchen caddy and a rigid external container) to make the separation of food waste easier for residents and to encourage them to take part in the service.

The types of food waste suitable for collection will depend on the treatment facilities available to a local authority. All food waste collected separately must be treated at enclosed facilities (for example, in-vessel composting or anaerobic digestion plants) that meet the requirements of the Animal By-Products Regulations and are approved by the State Veterinary Service. Typically this will include cooked and uncooked food, dairy products, meat, fish and fruit/vegetables.

Foot and Mouth Disease

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what time period elapsed between the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease and cessation of work on dangerous viruses at the Pirbright laboratories. [157521]

Jonathan Shaw: Foot and mouth disease was first confirmed on a premises in Surrey on 3 August. As soon as the circulating virus strain was identified as the same strain as the one held at the Pirbright site on 4 August, DEFRA and Merial agreed that, because of the large quantities involved, the use of live virus would be voluntarily suspended by Merial. The case for a similar suspension at the Institute for Animal Health (IAH) was also considered on 4 August and has been kept under active review since then. Drawing on advice from the Health and Safety Executive, some modification has been made to the agreed areas where IAH can work with live virus. However, our judgment to date has been that, because of the small volumes of live virus handled by IAH and the additional measures the Institute has put in place, complete suspension is not justified.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals have been culled (a) on infected premises, (b) on the basis of slaughter on suspicion and (c) as a result of dangerous contact following the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease. [158644]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: A total of 2,160 animals have been compulsorily culled as a result of the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease. A breakdown of the statistics is shown as follows:

Current premises status	Number of premises	Number culled and disposed[1]
Infected premises[2]	8	1,578
Dangerous contacts	7	195
Slaughter on suspicion[3]	2	387

Current premises status	Number of premises	Number culled and disposed[2]
Totals	17	2,160

[1] Figures as of 12 October 2007 and may be subject to change.
[2] Includes slaughter on suspicion and dangerous contact premises subsequently confirmed as infected premises.
[3] Excludes those cases which were subsequently confirmed as infected premises.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Disease Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many infected premises livestock has been slaughtered in relation to the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease; and how many individual holdings make up the number of infected premises. [157931]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Livestock has been culled on eight infected premises during the current outbreak of foot and mouth disease. These eight infected premises comprised a total of 24 individual locations where susceptible livestock was culled.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on which premises livestock was culled during the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease on the basis of (a) being on infected premises, (b) the policy of slaughter on suspicion, (c) dangerous contact and (d) being on contiguous premises. [157932]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: DEFRA policy is not to name individual affected premises. In addition to the eight infected premises there have been two premises on which animals were culled as part of the policy of slaughter on suspicion, and a further seven premises where animals were culled as dangerous contacts. There are no premises where animals have been culled solely on the basis that they were contiguous to an infected premises.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) infected premises, (b) slaughter on suspicion premises, (c) dangerous contacts and (d) contiguous premises were tested during the recent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease for signs of the disease; and how many in each category returned positive tests. [157933]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Animals have been tested at all premises where culling has taken place for disease control reasons. At least one animal tested positive for foot and mouth disease at all eight of the infected premises. No animals at the two remaining slaughter on suspicion and seven dangerous contact premises tested positive for foot and mouth disease.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Exports

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many animals have been slaughtered as a consequence of the ban on exports because of foot and mouth disease. [157700]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: DEFRA holds figures only for animals culled for disease control purposes. It is estimated that the number of animals (cattle, sheep and pigs) slaughtered for consumption in England during August and September this year is 14 per cent. below the same period in 2006 (equivalent to around 455,152 animals). This figure includes animals slaughtered in England but originating in Scotland and Wales.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) for what reasons trail and drag hunting is prohibited in foot and mouth disease low risk areas; [157068]

(2) whether there are biosecurity hazards associated with trail and drag hunting; [157069]

(3) when he will allow trail and drag hunting on foot and mouth disease (a) low risk and (b) risk areas. [157070]

Jonathan Shaw: The current ban on trail and drag hunting across the whole of Great Britain is a legal requirement under the Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) (England) Order 2006 and was also required by previous legislation dating back to 1983.

Epidemiological evidence from the current outbreak suggests that the disease could have been transmitted by fomites on vehicles or other bodies and could have been carried from areas containing infected animals to previously 'clean' areas.

The risk of horses, in particular, transporting the virus in this way is increased. This is because they are often kept on the same premises as susceptible animals, transported in vehicles used for moving susceptible animals, have contact with susceptible animals on neighbouring farms, or are handled by persons who also have contact with susceptible animals.

There are, therefore, tight controls on the types of activities such as trail and drag hunting involving horses.

Our many licensing priorities in both the FMD risk and low risk areas are constantly under review with consideration from the farming industry and experts. Any decision to allow trail and drag hunting under licence will be based on an assessment of the disease risk. We will continue to keep restrictions under review with the aim of lifting them as quickly as possible consistent with our overriding objective of eradicating FMD.

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will review regulations that forbid trail and drag hunting and stalking in low risk foot and mouth areas such as Northumberland, Cumbria and Yorkshire. [157549]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The current ban on trail and drag hunting and stalking across the whole of Great Britain is a legal requirement under the Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) (England) Order 2006 and was also required by previous legislation dating back to 1983.

Our licensing priorities are constantly under review with consideration from industry and experts. Any decision to allow trail and drag hunting will be based on assessment of the disease risk. We will continue to keep restrictions under constant review with the aim of lifting them as quickly as possible consistent with our overriding objective of eradicating FMD.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Public Inquiries

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to establish an independent public inquiry into its handling of the foot and mouth outbreaks of 2007. [157420]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Following the recent outbreak of foot and mouth disease in August and September 2007, the Prime Minister has asked Dr. Iain Anderson to look at the Government's response to the outbreak. Dr. Anderson chaired the previous independent inquiry into the 2001 outbreak. The terms of reference for the Foot and Mouth Review 2007 are:

To conduct a review of the Government's handling of the outbreak of foot and mouth disease during 2007, in order to:

i. Establish whether relevant points from the Lessons to be Learned Report on the 2001 outbreak were implemented;

ii. Establish whether new lessons might be drawn from the handling of the 2007 outbreak; and

iii. To make recommendations by the end of 2007 to the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the future handling of foot and mouth disease outbreaks.

This is the most effective and efficient way to learn the lessons of this outbreak and respond accordingly. We have no plans to establish a public inquiry.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Scotland

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the National Farmers Union of Scotland on the outbreaks of (i) foot and mouth and (ii) blue tongue disease; [157150]

(2) what meetings (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the Ministers or officials of the Scottish Executive to discuss the outbreak of (i) foot and mouth and (ii) blue tongue disease; and if he will make a statement; [157151]

(3) what representations (a) he and (b) his officials have received from (i) Ministers and (ii) officials of the Scottish Executive on compensation available to farmers in Scotland following the outbreak of (A) foot and mouth and (B) blue tongue disease; and if he will make a statement; [157152]

(4) what representations he has received from the National Farmers Union of Scotland on compensation for losses suffered as a result of the foot and mouth outbreak. [157153]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 11 October 2007]: We are working closely with the Scottish Executive and others to co-ordinate our disease control response throughout the United Kingdom. DEFRA has had a range of discussions with the Scottish Executive throughout the current outbreaks of foot and mouth disease and bluetongue, at both ministerial and official level. The National Farmers Union (NFU) of Scotland have participated in discussions with officials from DEFRA and the Scottish Executive. We have also received a range of representations from the Scottish Executive and the NFU on these issues, including compensation.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Sheep

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimates he has made of the number of fat lambs which remain unsold due to foot and mouth restrictions. [157276]

Jonathan Shaw: It is estimated that the number of fat lambs slaughtered for consumption in England, during August and September this year, is 21 per cent. below the same period in 2006. This equates to around 370,000 animals and it includes lambs slaughtered in England but originating in Scotland and Wales.

Foot and Mouth Disease: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will ensure price support is provided for farmers affected by the foot and mouth outbreaks of 2007. [157419]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Under the Animal Health Act 1981, compensation is paid for animals that are compulsorily slaughtered to prevent the spread of disease. For foot and mouth disease (FMD), the Act requires that compensation is paid at the full market value before the animal became infected. This is determined by an approved valuer at the time of slaughter. Compensation is also paid for other items, such as farm equipment and feed, where these are seized because they are considered to be contaminated; this includes such things as milk. However, it is a long established principle that the Government do not meet the costs of consequential losses, which must be borne by the industry. Government seek to minimise the risk of market impacts, particularly by encouraging public understanding of the issues.

We are taking a risk-based and staged approach to easing movement restrictions when the evidence indicates that it is appropriate to do so. This is the best way to facilitate the return to normal working for the industry. We are working in partnership with the industry, but eradication of foot and mouth disease remains our priority.

There is a role for the Government in partially meeting the immediate need to encourage higher consumption at home and to provide an alternative market for products previously exported. On 8 October, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State (Hilary Benn) announced a support package worth £12.5 million to stimulate the market and assist those livestock farmers worst affected by restrictions imposed as a result of FMD, Official Report, column 39. The package includes £8.5 million to provide support for our hill farmers; £1 million to assist farmers in the FMD risk area with the cost of removing fallen stock; £2 million to promote the sales of red meat and pork domestically and in our export markets; and a donation of up to £1 million to the Arthur Rank Centre for disbursement to Farming Help charities.

Hares Preservation Act 1892

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether there are plans to repeal the Hares Preservation Act 1892 in full or in part. [158628]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 17 October 2007]: DEFRA currently has no plans to repeal the Hares Preservation Act 1892 in full or in part.

Hazardous Substances: Waste Disposal

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what enforcement mechanisms exist to ensure that companies which fail to dispose properly of toxic waste are liable for damage caused as a result. [154589]

Joan Ruddock: The illegal disposal of waste is a criminal offence under section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Individuals and companies can be liable for the offence which carries a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment, an unlimited fine, or both. When deciding on the severity of a sentence to impose on a company that has been found guilty of disposing of waste illegally, the court is able to take into consideration any damage caused as a result, including environmental damage.

In addition, sections 42 and 43 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 amended section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 to give the courts new powers to:

(a) order an offender to pay the enforcing authority's investigation and enforcement costs, and any costs associated with the seizure of vehicles involved in the offence;

(b) require the offender to pay the Environment Agency, a local authority or the occupier or owner of land, any costs incurred in removing waste that has been illegally deposited. Clean-up costs can include removing the waste and/or taking other steps to reduce the consequences of the incident.

The Government are currently in the process of implementing the Environmental Liability Directive which is aimed at the prevention and remedying of environmental damage. This is based on the "polluter pays" principle.

Institute for Animal Health: Pirbright

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what bio-security measures are in force at the Institute for Animal Health Laboratory and the adjoining Merial Animal Health Laboratory at Pirbright to ensure that human and animal health is not affected by work being carried out there; and if he will make a statement. [158629]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 17 October 2007]: Stringent bio-security conditions have always applied to work carried out on the Pirbright site. Additional measures have now been implemented that go above and beyond those contained in the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and Spratt reports. These measures are set out in the Government's response to those reports, which is available in the Libraries of the House and on the DEFRA website.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which officials in his Department have been responsible for the inspection and licensing of Pirbright laboratories in each year since 2002; and whether those officials remain in post. [157316]

Jonathan Shaw: Inspections were carried out for the Department by senior DEFRA veterinarians with specialist knowledge of laboratory containment, exotic animal diseases and the requirements for licensing laboratories under the Specified Animal Pathogens Order (SAPO) 1998. Some of these officials have since left the Department, for reasons not connected with this work, while others remain in post.

Ivory

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what policy line he took at the 14th Conference of the Parties of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species on the sale of stockpiled ivory. [157775]

Joan Ruddock: The UK policy was, and is, that we only support the one-off sale of stockpiled ivory where the conditions originally agreed by CITES parties in 2002 have been met. At the meeting of the 55th CITES Standing Committee on 2 June 2007, immediately prior to the 14th Conference of the Parties (CoP14), it was agreed that the conditions had been met and the stockpile sale was permitted. The UK was satisfied that the conditions had been met and, therefore, supported this decision at the meeting, with the proviso that funding for the subsequent monitoring of the outcomes of the sale was secured.

At the subsequent CoP14 (3-15 June), agreement was reached by African range states that increased tonnages could be sold, including stockpiles from Zimbabwe. It was also agreed that there will be a nine year "resting" period on consideration of any further sales of ivory after the one-off sale takes place to allow the effects of the stockpile sale to be properly assessed. Some of the proceeds of the sale will be placed in an African Elephant Fund to support conservation measures across their range.

Leading up to the Conference, the UK (and EU) maintained an open position on this issue preferring the African elephant range states to debate the issue among themselves. The UK Government was pleased that agreement over such a contentious issue was finally reached and fully supported the outcome.

Land: Planning

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the research report commissioned by his Department on the effect of best and most versatile land designation on planning decisions (LE0217). [158090]

Jonathan Shaw: I have arranged for a copy of this report to be placed in the Library.

Landfill Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of landfill tax which will be raised from waste arising from recent serious cases of flooding. [158251]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has not specifically assessed the increase in landfill tax receipts following recent serious cases of flooding.

However, we would expect only a relatively small increase in municipal waste arisings as a result of recent flooding, which would be within the normal range of variations in annual waste arisings. This should not have a long-term or significant impact on waste management costs.

Landfill: Methane

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what requirements there are for (a) new and (b) existing landfill sites to collect methane emissions from the site and use them as an energy source. [158089]

Joan Ruddock: The EU Landfill Directive (1999/31/EC) requires landfill gas to be collected from all new and existing landfill sites receiving biodegradable waste; landfill gas must be treated and used; and landfill gas which cannot be used to produce energy must be flared. The collection, treatment and use of landfill gas must be undertaken in a manner which minimises damage to or deterioration of the environment and risk to human health.

In this context, an existing landfill site is one which was operational on or after 16 July 2001.

Recycling: Business

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what incentives his Department provides for local authorities to engage with local businesses to promote recycling. [157936]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The landfill tax escalator gives greater financial incentives to reduce, reuse and recycle waste. This was increased in the 2007 Budget so that the standard rate of tax will increase by £8 per year from 2008 until at least 2010-11. If private waste collectors that collect commercial waste fail to offer alternatives to landfill (such as recycling) they will find that the waste treatment services they offer will no longer be cost effective. This is an incentive for waste contractors to consider developing waste management partnerships with local authorities to provide services to local businesses.

In addition, the Business Resource Efficiency and Waste Programme (BREW) has been developed to give money raised through the landfill tax back to business through funding resource efficiency and waste projects that will benefit business. The BREW Centre for Local Authorities was set up to help local authorities undertake a leadership role in supporting the business community to become more profitable through business resource efficiency and waste reduction.

Recycling: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what additional funding is being provided to local authorities to meet central Government recycling targets. [158115]

Joan Ruddock: The main sources of funding for local authorities' waste management services are revenue support grant (RSG) and national non-domestic rates (NNDR), distributed by central Government, and council tax. It is for local authorities to decide what proportion of this funding to invest in waste management services, including recycling. Other funding made available to authorities in England for waste management since 1997 is shown in the following table:

Funding provided

Scheme	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
						million
Waste Minimisation and Recycling Fund	50	90	90	45	—	—
Waste Performance and Efficiency Grant	—	—	—	40	105	110
Grant to Relieve Spending Pressures on Waste	—	—	20	—	—	—
Household Incentives Pilot Scheme	—	—	—	5	—	—
Private Finance Initiative	70	100	125	130	255	280
Local Communications Fund (WRAP)	—	—	16.2	—	—	—
Behavioural Change Local Fund (WRAP)	—	—	—	—	13

As part of Comprehensive Spending Review 2007, the Government have also announced a further step change in Private Finance Initiative spending on waste, more than doubling from £280 million in 2007-08 to £700 million by 2010-11, totalling £2 billion over the three years of the next spending period.

Waste Management: Welsh Assembly Government

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on the CBI's proposals for UK and Europe-wide standards on waste management. [157336]

Joan Ruddock: On 12 October 2006, the Government, in association with the devolved Administrations, published a consultation paper on the European Commission's proposal to revise the Waste Framework Directive (WFD). The Commission's proposal included a provision to enable the adoption by comitology of EU-wide minimum standards for waste management operations. A summary and analysis of the responses to this consultation is available on the DEFRA website at:

www.defra.gov.uk.

The Confederation of British Industry (CBI) responded to DEFRA's consultation on the revision of the WFD. However, I am advised that DEFRA has no record of the CBI subsequently submitting proposals for UK and EU-wide standards on waste management. It follows that no discussions on such proposals have taken place with the Welsh Assembly Government.

Wood

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of methods to decontaminate surplus wood of toxic preservatives prior to being burned in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants. [157321]

Joan Ruddock: No specific assessment has been made by my Department of the effectiveness of methods to decontaminate surplus wood of toxic preservatives prior to being burned in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants.

However, DEFRA's Waste Infrastructure Delivery Programme (WIDP) has investigated ways of diverting waste wood from landfill. This is in response to recommendation 4 of the Biomass Task Force Report to the Government, published in October 2005. DEFRA's general conclusion is that it is more cost effective to treat contaminated waste wood as a waste and to dispose of it in a Waste Incineration Directive (WID)-compliant facility than to attempt to decontaminate and burn it in commercial wood-burning furnaces or power plants as a non-waste. Such WID-compliant facilities can recover energy as electricity, or electricity and heat in the form of combined heat and power for industrial purposes.

Wood: Waste Disposal

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what legislative provisions apply to the safe disposal of timber treated with (a) copper chrome arsenate, (b) ammoniacal copper quaternary, (c) copper azole, (d) boron, (e) creosote and (f) pyrethroid and metal-based light organic solvent preservatives. [157976]

Joan Ruddock: All wastes must be recovered or disposed of without endangering human health and without using processes or methods which could harm the environment.

The Waste Incineration Directive (2000/76/EC) is implemented through the Waste Incineration (England and Wales) Regulations 2002 (SI 2002 No. 2980) and applies to the incineration of waste timber which has been treated with any of the substances mentioned.

The Landfill Directive (1999/31/EC) has been transposed via the Landfill (England and Wales) Regulations 2002 (as amended). One aspect of the Landfill Directive is that landfill sites have to be categorised into one of three types: hazardous, non-hazardous or inert. Hazardous and inert wastes for landfill have to meet the waste acceptance criteria destined for landfill. The criteria are limits of contaminants permitted in waste, together with testing standards and procedures that must be used. Hazardous wastes are also required to be pre-treated before landfill. From 30 October 2007, all non-hazardous and inert wastes going to landfill will also need to meet the pre-treatment requirement.

Where such waste timber, which is classed as hazardous waste under regulation 6 of the Hazardous Waste (England and Wales) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005 No 894), is disposed of by means other than incineration or landfill in a facility with a capacity of more than 10 tonnes per day, the facility is subject to the integrated pollution prevention and control (IPPC) Directive (96/61/EC) which is implemented through the Pollution Prevention and Control(England and Wales) Regulations 2000 (SI 2000 No. 1973).

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Ministerial Responsibilities

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the reasons are for the time taken to produce the list of ministerial responsibilities; and if he will make a statement. [158570]

Edward Miliband: The new "List of Ministerial Responsibilities" has been published today. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House and are also available in the Vote Office for hon. Members.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Electoral Commission plans to appeal against the ruling of the High Court of August 2007 on impermissible donations to the UK Independence Party; and if he will make a statement. [158696]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that, on 7 August 2007, judgment was given on an application by the Commission to Westminster magistrates court under section 58 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 for forfeiture by the UK Independence Party of an amount equal to the value of certain donations the Party had accepted. The court found all of the donations in question to be from impermissible donors, but ordered the forfeiture of an amount equal in value to only some of those donations. On 21 August, the Electoral Commission commenced appeal proceedings. The appeal is for a judicial review by the High Court of the magistrates court's decision not to order forfeiture of an amount equal in value to the remainder of the donations that were the subject of the original application. A date for the hearing has not yet been set.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were screened for breast cancer per head of the population in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [157516]

Ann Keen: The information requested is in the following table for 2005-06, the latest year for which figures are available. The figures are broken down by primary care trust (PCT) in Hertfordshire, along with figures for England. As the figures are for 2005-06, they are based on the previous PCT boundaries.

Primary care trust	Eligible population[1]	Number of women screened	Coverage[2] (Percentage)
Dacorum	10,220	8,104	79.3
Hertsmere	6,342	4,697	74.1
North Hertfordshire and Stevenage	12,671	9,932	78.4
Royston, Buntingford and Bishop's Stortford	5,745	3,494	60.8
South East Hertfordshire	13,212	10,040	76
St. Albans and Harpenden	9,228	6,927	75.1
Watford and Three Rivers	11,488	6,916	60.2
England	3,633,181	2,756,716	75.9

[1] Although the breast screening programme now invites women aged 50 to 70, these figures cover women aged 53 to 64 as coverage of the programme is best assessed using this age range group as women may be first called at any time between their 50th and 53rd birthday depending on the logistics of the local programme. In addition, not all programmes had extended invitations to women aged 70 for the whole of 2005-06, although all had by the end of 2005-06. Eligible population is the number of women in the resident population less those recorded as ineligible.

Contraceptives

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the NHS per patient of (a) long-acting reversible contraceptives and (b) other forms of contraception in the next five years. [157307]

Dawn Primarolo: In October 2005 the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) issued clinical guidance on long-acting reversible contraception (LARC). It shows that all LARC methods are more cost effective than the combined oral contraceptive pill even at one year of use. The following table shows estimated method costs (per 1,000 women) after five years of use. Cost per patient is not estimated centrally.

Method and healthcare service costs

Method	Five year cost
Intrauterine device	534,555
Intrauterine system	603,534
Injectable	760,600
Implant	667,275
Male condom	993,769
Combined pill	899,697

Cosmetics: Health Hazards

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment has been made of the possible effects of skin-lightening products on health; and if he will make a statement; [157826]

(2) what assessment he has made of the compliance with UK regulatory and licensing requirements of skin-lightening products; and if he will make a statement. [158449]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

No such assessments have been made.

Dental Services

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 803W, if his Department will now collect information on dentist practices which have closed their lists to NHS patients since the inception of the new NHS dentist contract. [159034]

Ann Keen: Information on dental practices which have ceased to provide national health service services since the launch of the reforms in April 2006 is not held centrally and there are no plans to make this an additional new central return.

Information is available on the number of dental contracts offered at the start of the new system in April 2006 and the number of those contracts signed and rejected. 8,377 out of 9,428 contracts offered were signed. 2,884 of these were initially signed in dispute. By 30 June 2007, the latest date for which information is available just 223 remained in dispute. Of the disputes resolved over 99 per cent. ended in the contractor staying with the NHS. This information is held by dental contract not by dentist. A contract may cover one dentist or a whole practice.

Dental Services: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what spare capacity, expressed in patient numbers, is available for (a) under 18, (b) over 18 fee-paying and (c) over 18 charge-exempt people to register with each NHS dental practice in Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [158647]

Ann Keen [holding answer 17 October 2007]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Departments: Consultants

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will list the contracts his Department signed on a consultancy basis with a net value of more than £20,000 in 2006. [159319]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect information on contracts signed on a consultancy basis with a net value of more than £20,000 in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will be introduced in April 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such information for the Department.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157892]

Dawn Primarolo: As at 1 September 2007, there were 61 people (57.7 full-time equivalent) seconded into the Department. The Department's main human resources information system does not show where a person has been seconded from, or the length of their secondment.

Work carried out to answer a previous Freedom of Information request suggested that virtually all secondees into the Department are from public sector organisations and anecdotally most of these are from national health service trusts or other health-related organisations. Secondments are normally for a period of up to two years.

Health Hazards: Mobile Phones

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what official response the Government (a) has made and (b) plans to make to the report of the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; [157200]

(2) what health advice he plans to provide to the public following the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; [157201]

(3) what discussions he has had with the Health Protection Agency on the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; whether the Health Protection Agency will be updating its advice to the public in the light of the report from the programme; and if he will make a statement; [157202]

(4) what assessment he has made of the appropriateness of current health advice on the use of mobile telephones in the light of the findings of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme; and if he will make a statement; [157203]

(5) what recent discussions his Department has had with the devolved Administrations on raising awareness of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research programme report and its findings. [157204]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is grateful to the Management Committee of the Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme for producing the "Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research Programme Report 2007—MTHR Programme Management Committee" published on 12 September. The report is available in the Library and at www.mthr.org.uk.

We shall also send a copy to hon. Members, as we believe it will be helpful when responding to enquiries from constituents about mobile phone technology and health.

The Health Protection Agency's (HPA) Radiation Protection Division has the responsibility of advising on radiation risk and health protection matters. In undertaking this role the HPA monitors progress in radiation and electromagnetic field health research, that is undertaken throughout the world, in order to inform its advice. The MTHR results will add to the information available to the HPA in support of that advice.

The Department's advice that is currently available in the form of leaflets and web based information will be updated in the course of the next few months in co-operation with the HPA and Health Department officials in the devolved Administrations.

Kidney Patients: Counselling

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many renal counsellors are employed in England; at which kidney units they are located and what services they provide; whether their services are provided by the NHS; how many and what proportion of kidney patients saw a counsellor in the last 12 months; what the average number of sessions with a counsellor for each patient was in that period; by what means kidney patients may access counsellors and how they are informed of their ability to do so; and whether counsellors are employed solely to aid kidney patients. [158396]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Mentally Ill

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the implications of stigma surrounding mental health in England; and if he will make a statement. [157605]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department recognises that the stigma and discrimination faced by people with mental illness is a major social problem. People with mental health problems are one of the most excluded social groups in society, with fewer than a quarter in employment. They can find themselves excluded from education, health care and community participation. People with mental illness who disclose their condition can find themselves shunned by neighbours and colleagues while some do not disclose their illness to family and friends. For many people with mental illness, a diagnosis of mental illness can have a worse impact upon their lives than their symptoms.

The Department is funding a five-year programme, Shift, through the Care Services Improvement Programme to tackle the stigma and discrimination which surrounds mental illness. Shift is working with various bodies, and its focus this year is on the media and employers. On World Mental Health day on 10 October, Shift launched guidance for employers on improving their recruitment and retention processes for people with mental health problems.

The Department and Shift are working with the mental health charity sector consortium, Moving People, which has recently won £18 million from the Big Lottery and Comic Relief to run a four-year anti-stigma and mental health promotion campaign. The details of how the Government will support this initiative, which involves Mind, Rethink, Mental Health Media and the Institute of Psychiatry, are being formulated.

Midwives: NHS Stockport Primary Care Trust

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were in training in Stockport Primary Care Trust hospitals in each year since 1997. [158000]

Ann Keen: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Myasthenia Gravis

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of services provided by the NHS for people with myasthenia gravis; and if he will make a statement. [157382]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the services provided by the national health service for people with myasthenia gravis.

Out of Area Treatment

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provisions he plans to make for cross-border user representation within local involvement networks to reflect situations where residents from one local authority area routinely use services within another. [159095]

Ann Keen: We recognise the need for local involvement networks (LINks) arrangements to reflect the fact that some people do use health and social care services outside the local authority area where they reside. That is why we have ensured there is appropriate provision within the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, currently before Parliament, to enable LINks activities not only to relate to health and social care services provided within their local authority area, but also health and social care services provided, in any place, for people from the area. We have also included provisions which will enable LINks to work together, regionally and/or nationally, as a means of undertaking their activities.

We intend to published guidance for LINks in the spring and as part of this guidance we will explore in detail how LINks might work together to ensure cross-border representation for patients.

Palliative Care

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines there are for provision of palliative care for patients who wish to die at home; and if he will make a statement. [157995]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Three key tools—the Gold Standards Framework, the Liverpool Care Pathway and the Preferred Priorities for Care—are used as a basis for providing training for generalist staff in the principles of palliative care so that all patients at the end of life have access to high quality care.

Over the last three years we have invested £12 million in an end of life care programme to promote roll-out of these tried and tested tools, and thus promote greater choice for patients about where they are able to be cared for and die.

Latest figures show that one or more of these tools is being used in 69 per cent. of general practitioners practices, 81 per cent. of hospitals, 41 per cent. of community hospitals, 69 per cent. of hospices and 6.4 per cent. of care homes. The Department is currently developing the first ever end of life care strategy for adults, which will deliver increased choice to all adult patients regardless of their condition about where they live and die, and provide them with support to make this possible.

We have deferred publication of the strategy to allow us to take account of the important work being undertaken on end of life care at strategic health authority (SHA) level for the next stage review which will be completed in the new year. We have provided SHAs with information that we hope they will find useful and it is important that we now take account of their work to ensure that the national strategy encompasses local innovation.

Palliative Care: Finance

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amount of funding was allocated in each primary care trust area to palliative care for patients who wish to die at home in each year since 1997. [157996]

Ann Keen: This information is not available centrally. Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning and funding services to meet the needs of their resident population including those for end of life care.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Licensing

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many licences to sell alcohol were (a) suspended and (b) revoked in (i) London and (ii) England in each year since 1997 on grounds of the sale of alcohol to persons under the age of 18 years. [158807]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This information is not held centrally.

Past and future statistical bulletins on licences to sell alcohol include the number of licences revoked, but do not give reasons. Licences may be revoked for a number of reasons or a variety of factors, including sales to children. Prior to 24 November 2005, statistical returns did not differentiate between alcohol licences not renewed and licences revoked.

Big Lottery Fund

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 11 October 2007, Official Report, column 693W, on the Big Lottery Fund, whether interest is earned on this sum. [159357]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The overall balance held in the National Lottery Distribution Fund (NLDF) on behalf of the 13 non-Olympic distributing bodies is invested by the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt (CRND).

The interest earned on this investment is shared between the 13 distributors in the same fixed percentages as income generated by the national lottery operator, Camelot, and becomes available for distribution to the good causes they support. The Big Lottery Fund receives 50 per cent. of the interest earned on the overall NLDF balance. Its share is not directly related to the size of its individual NLDF balance.

Bookmakers: Licensing

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much revenue was collected from fees for bookmakers' premises licences in the UK in 2006-07; and what percentage of this came from independent bookmakers. [159031]

James Purnell: For 2006-07, and until 1 September 2007 when the Gambling Act 2005 was implemented, bookmakers required both a bookmaker's permit and a betting office licence. These were issued and charged for by local magistrates, under the Gaming Act 1968. Since 1 September local licensing authorities have issued premises licences. Information on revenue from this source raised by local licensing authorities, and previously by magistrates, is not held centrally. Data could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many independent bookmakers there are in the UK; and what the cost to them of (a) licence fees charged, (b) the operating licence charged and (c) the premises licence charged was in 2006-07. [159032]

James Purnell: Bookmakers have been able to apply to the Gambling Commission for operating licences under the Gambling Act 2005 from 1 January 2007. There is no defined category of "independent bookmaker". Total numbers of off-course bookmakers to which the Commission has issued operating licences to date are:

Category	Operators
A—four or fewer premises	605
B—five to 15 premises	52
C—16 to 50 premises	17
D—51 to 199 premises	4
E—200 or more premises	5

Both application fees and annual fees are charged by the Commission, in accordance with the table. In the period to 31 March 2007 it collected £56,318 in application fees from off-course bookmakers. Premises licence fees are a matter for local licensing authorities, and data are not collected centrally.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to review the system of betting licences, operating licences and premise licences issued to British bookmakers. [159033]

James Purnell: The Gambling Act 2005, which came fully into effect on 1 September 2007, places the protection of children and vulnerable people at the heart of the gambling licensing system for the first time. We have no plans to review this new framework.

British Bob Skeleton Association: Legal Costs

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much and what proportion of the cost of the British Bob Skeleton Association's legal action against the British Bobsleigh Association was met from the public purse or National Lottery funds via UK Sport. [158847]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport is not aware of any legal action by the British Bob Skeleton Association (BBSKA) against the British Bobsleigh Association.

UK Sport is aware of legal action taken earlier this year by the BBSKA against the Federation Internationale de Bobsleigh et de Tobogganing (FIBT). This was in the form of an appeal to the Court of Arbitration for Sport against the FIBT's decision to change the rules over race licensing arrangements for skeleton athletes, without prior consultation. BBSKA used £17,000 of funding received from UK Sport to meet the costs of this successful action.

UK Sport agreed to meet this proportion of the costs because of the direct impact the decision was having on the athletes' ability to train and compete, and therefore the BBSKA's ability to deliver its performance programme. UK Sport did, however, make clear to the BBSKA that further costs associated with this legal action would need to be met from other sources of income. UK Sport is not aware of the total cost to the BBSKA of undertaking this legal action.

Casinos

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the written statement of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 2WS, on casinos, what the Government's policy is on the establishment of a supercasino in the UK. [159171]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prime Minister has asked the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to consider, with other Departments, including the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, whether deprived areas can be equally well served by other forms of regeneration than a regional casino.

That work is now well under way, and the Prime Minister has asked the Secretary of State to report to him later in the autumn.

Casinos: Licensing

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to review the rollout of premises licences issued by local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [159099]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We see no necessity to review the way in which premises licences have been introduced under the Gambling Act 2005. Applications by existing businesses could be made from 31 May 2007 and any businesses whose applications had not been determined by 1 September 2007, when the Act came into force are being permitted to operate until their applications are determined. The Department issued guidance to both the industry and licensing authorities for the transitional period. The Gambling Commission have published guidance to licensing authorities on the premises licence regime as a whole.

Gambling: EU Legislation

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he last met his French, Spanish and German counterparts to discuss EU gambling legislation. [159105]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS Ministers have not had any meetings with their French, Spanish and German counterparts specifically to discuss EU gambling legislation over the past year. I am scheduled to meet with them at the next EU Sports Ministers meeting on 25 October.

However, officials from my Department keep in close contact with officials in the European Commission on developments affecting gambling.

Gaming Machines

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to review the number of category B1 machines permitted in adult amusement centres. [159098]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Adult gaming centres are permitted a maximum of four category B3 machines, which have a maximum stake of one and a maximum prize of £500. There are no plans to review the number of category B3 machines that adult gaming centres can make available.

Category B1 machines have a maximum stake of two and a maximum prize of £4,000 and can only be made available in casinos.

National Lottery

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on national lottery ticket sales in (a) Wirral South, (b) Wirral, (c) Merseyside, (d) the North West and (e) England in the last year for which figures are available; and how much was distributed to good causes in those areas in the same period. [158016]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The national lottery operator, Camelot, does not collect ticket sales information on a constituency, district, county or regional basis, nor do they routinely collect ticket sales data based on postcodes. The most up-to-date sales data by postcode area is available in the Libraries of both Houses and provides information up to 2004.

QUEST

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the Quality, Efficiency and Standards Team is still in operation in his Department. [158844]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Quality, Efficiency and Standards Team in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport was disbanded in 2002.

Rugby

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate he has made of the number of people who regularly take part in rugby union games and training, including tag and touch rugby; and if he will make a statement. [159035]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the 2005-06 Sport England 'Active People' survey showed that 267,817 adults (16 years and over) regularly participated in rugby union games and training. 'Active People' regards participating at least once in the last four weeks as regular participation.

Rugby League

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he plans to attend any of the rugby league test matches between Great Britain and New Zealand in an official capacity. [158665]

James Purnell: I will be attending the rugby league test match between Great Britain and New Zealand on 27 October in Huddersfield. I am looking forward to this unique test series which will celebrate the centenary of international rugby league competition.

Sports: Finance

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of progress in tackling the inequality of sports funding between men and women; what plans he has to reduce such inequality; and if he will make a statement. [158426]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures from the Taking Part survey show that on average women have lower rates of participation in sport than men. We therefore have a public service agreement to increase participation in sport by 3 per cent. by 2008, with a specific focus on priority groups with lower than average rates of participation—one of which is women.

As part of this focus to increase participation in sport by women, since 2006 the Department for Culture, Media and Sport through Sport England has funded 770 projects where women are one of the target beneficiaries. Sport England also grant aids the Women's Sport Foundation and in 2007-08 it is providing £326,148. The Sport England application process is open to all and does not discriminate by gender or any other group.

UK Sport

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many overseas conferences and events UK Sport has been involved with since 2005; how many it is due to be involved with in the future; and what the cost of such involvement was in 2006-07. [158845]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport has financially supported or helped organise six international conferences between 2005 and 2007. In addition, individual UK Sport employees have attended various overseas conferences and events as delegates or speakers since 2005.

It currently has plans to support two future events in partnership with the British Council: a PE and School Sport seminar in Brazil in February 2008 and a Dreams and Teams Young Leaders event in India in 2010 to coincide with the Commonwealth games in New Delhi.

The cost of UK Sport's involvement in 2006-07 was approximately £35,500.

UK Sport: Grants

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what account UK Sport takes of recognition of national governing bodies of sports by international federations in deciding whether to fund them; and if he will make a statement. [158846]

Mr. Sutcliffe: One of the criteria for recognition of a governing body used by all the sports councils, including UK Sport, is that it is affiliated or is in the process of affiliating to the international governing body for the sport (as appropriate to the sport).

The recognition of a governing body does not necessarily make it eligible or entitled to consideration for funding. The decision on which body to fund is based on various separate considerations, of which recognition is one.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Sudan

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will cease returning Darfuri asylum seekers pending (a) review of the safety of such asylum seekers who have already been returned to Sudan and (b) a ceasefire peace agreement and secure environment being in place in that country. [158803]

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment her Department has made of the (a) safety of Darfuri asylum seekers who have been returned to Khartoum from the UK since 2003 and (b) likely safety of Darfuri asylum seekers who are due to be returned to Khartoum from the UK. [158819]

Mr. Byrne: We take the recent allegations made by the Aegis Trust regarding the treatment of failed asylum seekers who have returned to Sudan very seriously and we are investigating them very thoroughly.

On 4 October, the House of Lords heard an appeal brought by the Home Office on whether it is reasonable to return failed asylum seekers to Khartoum where the Court of Appeal have found no risk of persecution.

There are no enforced returns of failed asylum seekers currently planned before the House of Lords judgment is expected.

Border and Immigration Agency: Correspondence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of time was between the receipt of a letter by the Border and Immigration Agency and its predecessor from a hon. Member and the sending of a substantive reply in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [158979]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received before August 2004 are not available.

The figures by year are:

August-December 2004—37.83 working days

January-December 2005—32.80 working days

January-December 2006—23.56 working days

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Border and Immigration Agency in 2006 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158984]

Mr. Byrne: In the period 1 January to 31 December 2006 the Border and Immigration Agency received 41,513 letters from hon. Members.

Of these:

(a) 22,837 (55.0 per cent.) were answered in three weeks or less

(b) 32,436 (78.1 per cent.) were answered in four weeks or less

(c) 34,802 (83.8 per cent.) were answered in six weeks or less

(d) 35,575 (85.7 per cent.) were answered in eight weeks or less

(e) 36,121 (87.0 per cent.) were answered in 10 weeks or less

(f) 5,393 (13.0 per cent.) took more than 10 weeks to answer.

Courts: Administrative Delays

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average length of time taken to bring suspects before a court in cases of (a) assault and (b) other crimes; what steps she is taking to reduce these times; and if she will make a statement. [156214]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The table sets out the average time taken between the recorded date on which a defendant commits an offence to the date on which the defendant's case is first considered by a magistrates court, for the last six years. Figures have also been provided for the average time taken between:

(a) the first listing of a case to completion of that case in the magistrates court

(b) the overall period from offence to completion of a criminal case in the magistrates court.

The figures are from the Time Intervals Survey (TIS) and are based on defendants (adults and youths) in all criminal cases that were proceeded against in the magistrates courts.

The Government established the Criminal Justice Simple Speedy Summary Justice (CJSSS) programme to improve the speed and effectiveness with which cases proceed through the criminal courts. A key part of this programme aims to improve the way cases proceed in the magistrates courts. Following successful tests (with evidence of more offenders pleading guilty at an early stage, fewer hearings and the majority of trials for contested cases being set within 6-10 weeks), national implementation is firmly under way throughout England and Wales. CJSSS is now running in at least one site in each of the 36 local criminal justice areas and fully implemented in all magistrates courts in 11 of those areas. Implementation is expected to be completed in all but a handful of magistrates courts by December 2007. Once fully implemented these changes should deliver a step change in the public's experience of the justice system, improving the speed and effectiveness of magistrates courts.

[1] Includes common assault, assault on a constable, offences against Public Order and Education Act offences.

Notes:

1. Results are based on proceedings in one sample week in March and September. The Time Intervals Survey (TIS) is a sample survey that produces estimates of the average time taken between stages of proceedings for defendants in completed criminal cases in magistrates courts. More information on TIS is available on the Ministry of Justice website.
2. The margin of error is a measure of the precision of a result based on a sample survey. Timeliness in magistrates courts is measured using data from a sample of the total number of defendants. The sample provides one estimate of the average time taken and different samples would produce different average times. The true value is likely to fall within the range of the sample result +/- the margin of error.
3. "First listing" refers to the first listed hearing of the case in the magistrates court.
4. It is not totally clear which "assault" cases are being referred to in the question. Information on broad offence group is collected in TIS although not at a level that would make it possible to provide estimates for defendants proceeded against for assault crimes separately. The offence classifications are as follows: burglary, criminal damage, drunken driving, drug offences, driving without due care, fraud and forgery, failing to stop, indictable motoring offences, other summary motoring offences, robbery, sexual offences, summary non-motoring offences, theft and handling stolen goods, violence against the person, other indictable offences (excluding motoring offences). Information is not available in TIS at individual offence level. Assault offences are classified in several different offence groups. In addition to timeliness of all criminal cases, timeliness figures have been provided for one of the offence groups ('summary non-motoring offences') as it was thought this might be helpful. The 'summary non-motoring offences' group includes the offences common assault, and assault on a constable, which were thought to be the most relevant offences to answer this question. Please note that in addition to the assault offences, the summary non-motoring offence group also includes a wide variety of other offences such as offences against Public Order and Education Act offences. In addition, certain other forms of assault (e.g. sexual assaults and assault with intent to rob) are counted in other offence groups and will not be included in the table.

Crime: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent change there has been in the level of recorded crimes in (a) Chorley and (b) Lancashire, broken down by type of crime. [158768]

Mr. McNulty: The most recent information for Chorley Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) and Lancashire police force area is given in following the table.

Recorded crime by offence group and percentage change, 2005-06 to 2006-07

	Chorley CDRP			Lancashire police force area
Offence group	Offences recorded 2005-06	Offences recorded 2006-07	Percentage change 2005-06 to 2006-07	Offences recorded 2005-06	Offences recorded 2006-07	Percentage change 2005-06 to 2006-07

Crimes Against Property: Business

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it a requirement that crime against business is recorded as a separate category in official statistics; and if she will make a statement. [157784]

Mr. McNulty: The current recorded crime offence classification series does differentiate between robbery of personal property and robbery of business property, and also between domestic burglary and that of burglary in a building other than a dwelling. However, these categories will only represent some of the crimes against business which are recorded by the police. Offences of theft by an employee and fraud by company director are also included within the series.

The feasibility of police forces flagging commercial burglary offences is being examined as part of the regular annual data requirement review process by the Home Office and ACPO. These data are to be provided under a pilot scheme using a new crime recording system which is currently being developed in the Home Office. It will enable a richer range of data to be collected from police forces. The feasibility of measuring crime against business will be examined during 2008-09.

Departments: Civil Service Agencies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will list her Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations in each financial year since 2005-06. [156632]

Mr. Byrne: The 2005-06 list of (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-department public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations can be found in the publication Public Bodies 2006 at:

wwww.civilservice.gov.uk.

The 2006-07 list of (a) executive agencies, (b) executive non-department public bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporation will be published shortly on the Home Office website.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what contingency preparations her Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs of those preparations were. [156999]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 16 October 2007, Official, Report, column 823W.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) the least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157898]

Mr. Byrne: Of all of the Home Office websites managed by the core Home Office web team, the main Home Office site (www.homeoffice.gov.uk) is the most popular, with 5,025,514 visits since January 2007 and 3,380,390 unique visitors (as at September 2007). The least popular site (by means of visitor numbers) is the website of the Technical Advisory Board (www.technicaladvisory board.org.uk), one of the Home Office advisory bodies. At September 2007, it had received 324 visits and 265 unique visitors since January 2007. This website is currently being migrated into the Home Office corporate website as part of our Transformational Government work.

Fibre Optics: Mitcheldean

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what purpose her Department requires fibre optic cables to be laid in Mitcheldean, Gloucestershire; and if she will make a statement. [158036]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 October 2007]: On the basis of the information provided, it has not been possible to ascertain whether the works identified by the hon. Gentleman are connected to the Home Office. If the hon. Gentleman could provide any further information that might be at his disposal, I would be more than willing to review the matter again.

Hampshire Constabulary: Firearms

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times police have been issued firearms in Hampshire in each of the last five years. [158752]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 11 October 2007, Official Report, column 718W.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate: Correspondence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in 2003 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158973]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received in 2003 are not available.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of letters sent by hon. Members to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in 2001 received a substantive reply within (a) three, (b) four, (c) six, (d) eight, (e) 10 and (f) more than 10 weeks; and if she will make a statement. [158983]

Mr. Byrne: Figures on the length of time taken to reply to hon. Members' correspondence to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate received in 2001 are not available.

Immigration: Detainees

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average length of stay of detainees within the immigration detention estate was in each of the last five years. [158699]

Mr. Byrne: Statistics on persons recorded as leaving detention solely under Immigration Act powers during 2005 and between January to September 2006 broken down by length of detention have been published in the "Asylum Statistics: United Kingdom 2005" and "Asylum Statistics: United Kingdom 2006" bulletins respectively. This information was first available for 2005 and is the latest period for which information is currently available.

Snapshot details of people detained solely under Immigration Act powers for each of the last five years are also published in this series of bulletins. Immigration Research and Statistics plans to start publishing statistics on all persons recorded as leaving detention solely under Immigration Act powers again (and full details on length of detention) as soon as the data quality problems associated with the new administrative system have been resolved.

We do not publish an average length of stay in detention since this would be potentially misleading and could easily be skewed by a small number of cases in the upper range.

Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Lancashire Constabulary: Community Support Officers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers are deployed in Lancashire. [158767]

Mr. McNulty: At 31 March 2007, Lancashire Constabulary had 374 PCSOs in post.

Members: Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter of 30 August from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West in relation to his constituent Mr. Nader El-Reah Almutbage. [158770]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 27 September 2007]: A reply was despatched on 27 September 2007.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Parliamentary Business Unit of the Immigration and Nationality Department will reply to the letters of (a) 25 June, (b) 31 July and (c) 11 September from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West on his constituent Mr. Abdul Rashid Abdullah. [158776]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency replied to the hon. Member on 15 October 2007.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she will reply to the letter of 29 July from the hon. Member for Edinburgh West on his constituent Mr Denboba Natie. [158777]

Mr. Byrne: The Border and Immigration Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 15 October 2007.

Metropolitan Police: Secondment

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers have been seconded to the Metropolitan police for counter-terrorism duties from regional police forces; and what the cost has been (a) in total and (b) for each regional police force concerned. [157319]

Mr. McNulty: The requested information is not collected centrally in the police personnel statistics.

The number of officers seconded to individual police forces is collected centrally, but the home force, reason for secondment and associated costs are not.

Office of Surveillance Commissioners: Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if the Office of Surveillance Commissioners will amend its inspection priorities to undertake a first inspection of (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) the Valuation and Lands Agency. [158134]

Mr. McNulty: The Valuation Office Agency and the Valuation and Lands Agency do not carry out surveillance of individuals and do not operate covertly. Their officers always identify themselves when carrying out their duties.

Police Stations: CCTV

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of custody offices in police stations are equipped with fully functioning audio and visual CCTV in (a) Lancashire and (b) England and Wales. [158711]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 October 2007]: This is an operational matter for chief constables.

Police: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what account is taken in the manning formula for Bournemouth police of the number of visitors to Bournemouth every weekend. [157308]

Mr. McNulty: The deployment of police officers in Bournemouth at weekends is an operational matter for the chief constable of Dorset police.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of funding for additional policing during the Labour party conference in Bournemouth was provided by the Government. [157309]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office provides special grant to police authorities to pay for the additional costs incurred on policing the two main annual party conferences.

Dorset police submitted a bid of £4.5 million (revenue) plus £80,000 (capital) for the additional costs of policing the 2007 Labour party autumn conference, which was approved in full.

Police: Dogs

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dog handlers were employed by North Wales Police on (a) 31 December 2004, (b) 31 December 2005, (c) 31 December 2006 and (d) the most recent date for which figures are available. [156952]

Mr. McNulty: The information is shown in the following table.

Police officers in North Wales whose primary function[1] is dogs, as at 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2007 (FTE)[2]

	Number
31 March 2004	12
31 March 2005	15
31 March 2006	11
31 March 2007	12

[1] Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their primary role or function. The deployment of police officers is an operational matter for individual chief constables.
[2] Full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. This figure includes those officers on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.

Police: Finance

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to address geographical disparities in police funding. [158720]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 October 2007]: The Police Service in England and Wales has benefited from a significant increase in resources over a sustained period.

Government funding for police authorities is chiefly allocated using a funding formula that distributes resources on the basis of relative needs and resources. A damping mechanism is subsequently applied to protect all authorities against financial instability which ensures that all authorities receive an increase in grant at least equal to the "floor" level on a like-for-like basis year-on-year.

The Home Office will announce a Provisional Finance Settlement for the police for the CSR years, 2008-09 to 2010-11, in late November/early December as in previous years which will take account of responses to the recent consultation exercise on local government formula grant distribution.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the outcome was of the meeting at Heathrow on 30 July of police and their oversight bodies from around the UK and representatives of her Department and the Department for Transport to discuss a common approach to police-industry service agreements covering security, resourcing and costs. [157829]

Mr. McNulty: The meeting that took place on 30 July 2007 was arranged by the Metropolitan Police Authority for an invited audience of police authorities and police forces to discuss progress on the implementation of the provisions of the Civil Aviation Act 2006. The Act requires the airport operator and police at designated airports to agree a Police Services Agreement, which must be in place by 7 November 2007. Attendees shared with each other the progress that had been made in their local negotiations with airport operators and what further work may be needed to reach agreement.

Policing: Luton Airport

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to assist Bedfordshire police with the costs of policing London Luton airport following Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary 2006-07 assessments. [158500]

Mr. McNulty: [holding answer 16 October 2007]: Luton airport is not a designated airport and as such the airport operator is not required, by law, to pay for the policing of the airport.

Bedfordshire Police Authority has been receiving substantial financial assistance for the policing of Luton airport for a number of years.

The system of designation and the cost of policing airports was raised in the Independent Review of Airport Policing 2006. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport and I are currently reviewing the process to enable the recovery of associated policing costs from airport operators.

Resettlement: Iraq

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans the Government has to assist Iraqis who wish to enter Great Britain and claim asylum, with particular reference to those who have worked in Iraq for the British Army; [158799]

(2) what measures the Government plans to put in place to help Iraqi interpreters who have worked for the British Army to claim asylum in the UK; [158800]

(3) if the Government will set up a website with instructions on claiming asylum in the UK aimed at Iraqis who have been employed by the British Army. [158801]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 17 October 2007]: The Foreign Secretary announced in his written ministerial statement of 9 October the assistance that would be made available to help Iraqis employed by the Government in Iraq.

The statement also promised that we will announce further details, including on how eligible staff may apply, before the end of the month.

Surveillance: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance the Office of Surveillance Commissioners has provided to local authorities on surveillance in relation to (a) the public smoking ban and (b) rubbish collection and waste disposal; and how many inspections of local authorities have taken place in relation to each. [158128]

Mr. McNulty: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners has not given specific guidance to local authorities and does not undertake thematic inspections of surveillance relating to specific investigative activity. Inspections conducted on behalf of the Chief Surveillance Commissioner are not designed to provide guidance but to review performance, although specific scenarios may have been addressed during inspections.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the local authorities inspected by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners in 2006-07 used surveillance for (a) enforcement of the public smoking ban, (b) tackling fly-tipping and (c) other issues relating to waste collection and disposal. [158136]

Mr. McNulty: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners does not break down its reports to reflect the specific purposes for which the conduct of surveillance is undertaken.

Terrorism Act 2000

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department where information gathered under Schedule 7 of the Terrorism Act 2000 is stored. [158848]

Mr. McNulty: Any information that may be retained as a result of a Schedule 7 examination is stored by the local constabulary covering the port concerned and may be shared with other police forces and Government agencies.

In terms of numbers of occasions when stops are made under Schedule 7, the relevant codes of practice advise that all Schedule 7 examinations lasting longer than one hour are recorded centrally and that examinations of shorter duration are recorded locally. There is no centrally held information about the number of stops made by police officers lasting less than one hour.

Terrorism Act 2000: Freedom of Information

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the process is by which an individual can apply for access to information gathered about them under Schedule 7 of the Terrorism Act 2000. [158849]

Mr. McNulty: Any individual can apply for access to information gathered about them by contacting the local constabulary for the port concerned. Access details for the constabularies can be found on their websites.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the projected budget is for the new Commission for Equality and Human Rights in its first full year of operation. [157662]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

It is anticipated that the budget for the Equality and Human Rights Commission will be around £70 million which meets ministerial expectations.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget of the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Equal Opportunities Commission and (c) Disability Rights Commission was in the most recent year for which figures are available. [157494]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the resource and capital budgets on an annual basis for the Disability Rights Commission, Equal Opportunities Commission and Commission for Racial Equality.

Organisation	Resource Budget for financial year 2007-08 (expressed as annual figure) (£000)
Disability Rights Commission	20,100
Equal Opportunities Commission	8,020
Commission for Racial Equality	19,392

Organisation	Capital Budget for financial year 2007-08 (expressed as annual figure) (£000)
Commission for Racial Equality	750

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Redundancy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been allocated for redundancy and severance payments to staff members of the (a) Equal Opportunities Commission, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Commission for Racial Equality as part of the creation of the Commission for Equality and Human Rights. [157455]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

No staff were made redundant. However, the cost of the voluntary severance scheme, excluding the ongoing costs of annual compensation payments (ACP) for people over age 50, is expected to be as follows: CRE cost £3,839,617; DRC cost £1,884,707 and the EOC cost £1,780,364.

Departments: Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions she has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [158916]

Mr. Dhanda: Since joining the Department in June 2007, the Secretary of State has visited the following regions: the West Midlands (1), the North-West (6), the North-East (2), the South East (1) and has made numerous visits within London. The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government plans to visit the remaining regions as soon as diary engagements permit her to do so.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Housing: Grants

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) local authorities and (b) arm's length management organisations have been granted approval to bid for Government grants to build new homes; on what dates the respective approvals were made; and what discussions she and the Minister for Housing have had with Welsh Assembly Government Ministers on extension of permissions to local authorities in Wales to bid for new housing grants. [157322]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation announced on 23 July that eight arm's length management organisations (ALMOs) and two local authority special purpose vehicles had pre-qualified as investment partners for the 2008-11 affordable housing programme and moved to the next stage of the bidding process.

The ALMOs named by the Corporation were Ashfield Homes, Brent Housing Partnership, City West Homes, Derby Homes, Hillingdon Homes, Hounslow Homes, Kirklees Neighbourhood Housing, and Sheffield Homes. The two local authorities were Knowsley metropolitan borough council and Norwich city council. Not all of these organisations will necessarily go on to bid or be successful in their bid. In particular, Hillingdon Homes recently failed to achieve 3 star status following its Audit Commission inspection and has been disapplied from bidding this autumn. Hillingdon will however have an opportunity to consider a new bid next year as a 2 star ALMO under the Corporation's revised criteria.

The Housing Corporation is responsible for the funding of development schemes in England. The Welsh Assembly Government is responsible for funding decisions for social housing in Wales.

Housing: Immigration

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to complete her review of the impact of immigration on (a) new house build and (b) previously-occupied housing. [155516]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department has no plans to undertake a review of this nature. However, we do publish household growth projections, which form part of the evidence base for decisions on planning for housing, and which take into account data on past and projected migration trends. The latest household projections were published as 'New Projections of Households for England and the Regions to 2029' on 16 March 2007, on the Communities and Local Government website. The Department continues to consider the impacts of migration on a range of services and policies—including housing—through the Migration Impacts Forum.

Waste Management

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the existence of separate collection and disposal authorities within county council areas and the adoption of a strategic approach to waste management across the whole county council area. [157937]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The division of responsibilities between the waste disposal and collection authorities in two-tier areas can make sustainable waste management more challenging. Authorities in such areas have a statutory obligation to draw up joint municipal waste management strategies, subject to certain exemptions. These strategies help to encourage and deliver a strategic approach to waste management in two-tier areas.

A report on "Joint Working in Wastes Management[1]" by the Innovation Forum (a group of high-performing authorities) highlighted the benefits of joint working in two-tier areas, citing possible efficiency savings of around £150 million nationally. The report identified the limited legal basis for joint working arrangements as a key barrier to establishing such arrangements. In response to this, the Government have introduced powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill which will allow the establishment of joint waste authorities.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how fuel is transported into theatre in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [154226]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding details of specific routes of supply as the release of information would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution made to greenhouse gas emissions of the deployment of British military forces in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq. [157324]

Derek Twigg: Based upon the available data for quantities of aviation and ground fuel supplied in the operational theatres, it is estimated that the average carbon dioxide emissions directly attributable to the deployment of British military forces in Afghanistan and Iraq totalled approximately 250,000 tonnes and 200,000 tonnes respectively for any 12-month period during 2005-07. This can be compared to the MOD's total carbon dioxide emissions (from its estate and non-operational activities such as training) of approximately 5.5 million tonnes per annum and the UK's national emissions of approximately 560 million tonnes per annum in the same period. Data on operational emissions of other greenhouse gases are not currently collated.

Aircraft Carriers: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes are proposed to the numbers of (a) destroyers and (b) frigates in consequence of the ordering of the two future aircraft carriers. [157213]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The defence programme is kept under regular review. No decision has been made to change the number of destroyers or frigates.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what protection is given to British military personnel from indirect fire in their living quarters. [154264]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Indirect fire (IDF) is a serious threat which we seek to counter using a layered approach to force protection. This includes the use of hardened infrastructure, security patrols, intelligence gathering, counter measures and, where appropriate, both reactive and proactive strikes against enemy IDF capabilities. It is, however, impossible entirely to eliminate the risks from IDF attacks.

I am withholding details of force protection arrangements in Iraq and Afghanistan as their release would be likely to prejudice the safety or security of our armed forces.

Defence: Inflation

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the National Statistics Quality Review of Ministry of Defence Finance and Economic Statistics Implementation Plan, what progress his Department has made in creating a defence-specific inflation index; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [156235]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Work on developing a Defence related price index commenced in 2004-05 and has continued since. Unfortunately, despite commitment by both the Office for National Statistics and Defence Analytical Services Agency (DASA), work has as yet failed to produce a defence specific inflation index.

Matching the companies, to which MOD has made payments, with Office for National Statistics data has been difficult due to changes in names, ownership, recording of information and ONS data on prices being from a sample survey. Less than 20 per cent. of companies paid more than £1 million by MOD in 2002-03 could be matched to price data, which accounted for less than 30 per cent. of MOD spend. Confining analysis to the subset of Defence problems further decreases this already poor coverage causing any estimates of defence inflation to be unreliable and biased.

Using published indices for MOD purchases of goods and services, and indeed the underlying data for these indices also presents a variety of problems. Price changes collected by ONS represent off the shelf products whereas the large value goods that MOD buys tend to be bespoke systems. Quality adjustment of price indices is appropriate for determining change in value, but not for the replacement costs that MOD faces. It is difficult to incorporate overseas expenditure. Indices used in placing contracts frequently do not reflect the expenditure patterns of the MOD.

Work continues to overcome these challenges.

Departments: Departmental Expenditure Limits

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the request for resources 1 (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) indirect resource DEL and (c) capital DEL forecast control totals are for each of his Department's top level budget holders in each of the years 2008-09 to 2010-11. [158391]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 636W, to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth).

Departments: General Election

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157003]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 823W, by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he was first told that the Prime Minister would be announcing troop withdrawals during his visit to Iraq. [157216]

Des Browne [holding answer 15 October 2007]: In preparing for the Prime Minister's visit, I discussed with him all aspects of our future policy in Iraq including troop withdrawals.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what bases UK forces are stationed in Iraq; and what measures are in place in each such base to prevent death or injury from rocket attack. [158445]

Des Browne: The precise area of deployment of UK forces in Iraq can and does vary according to the operational circumstances. The vast majority of UK forces are based at the Contingency Operating Base at Basra airport. UK forces are also present in much smaller numbers at a number of other locations in Iraq, including in Baghdad and Dhi Qar province.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 12 September 2007, Official Report, column 2072, to the hon. Member for The Wrekin (Mark Pritchard) about force protection.

Navy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what long-term capacity the Royal Navy will retain in respect of (a) minehunters and (b) patrol vessels. [157212]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 15 October 2007]: While the defence programme is kept under regular review, the July 2004 White Paper "Delivering Security in a Changing World - Future Capabilities" (CM6269) explained that we plan to retain a fleet of 16 mine counter measure vessels. We also intend to maintain a balanced fleet of patrol vessels to fulfil a variety of commitments in home waters and overseas.

Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many individuals (a) captured and (b) killed by British Forces in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan since 2001 have been of Iranian nationality. [157036]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence does not maintain records on the nationality of individuals killed in engagements involving UK forces in Iraq or Afghanistan.

As far as we can determine, no Iranian nationals have been processed at the Divisional Internment Facility or its predecessor, the Divisional Temporary Detention Facility, since the latter was established in December 2003. However, most individuals logged in our records do not have their nationality recorded, primarily because this is not always readily attainable and verifiable. Our records indicate that five Iranian nationals were captured and released by UK forces in Iraq prior to December 2003.

Individuals captured by UK forces in Afghanistan are held only temporarily before being either released or passed to the Afghan authorities. We do not routinely maintain records on nationality in these cases.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average number of days for Relief in Place operations between each roulement to (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq was in each year since 2001. [157040]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In Afghanistan, large-scale Relief in Place operations were not conducted prior to the start of Herrick IV in 2006. The average number of days for subsequent Relief in Place operations in 2006 was 55 days.

In Iraq, the average number of days for Relief in Place operations after the initial deployment of 2003 was as follows:

	Days
2003	36
2004	46
2005	46
2006	49

Roulements for 2007 are not yet complete, but the proposed timelines suggest that the average will be 47 days and 36 days for Afghanistan and Iraq respectively.

Salisbury Plain: Hunting

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether trail and drag hunting is permitted on the Salisbury Plain Training Area. [157074]

Derek Twigg: Hunts and beagle packs that have traditionally hunted over defence land are permitted to trail and drag hunt on the defence estate, including Salisbury Plain, subject to the issue of an appropriate licence. However, trail and drag hunting activities cannot currently take place on Ministry of Defence land due to the foot and mouth outbreak, as part of measures implemented by DEFRA to control the spread of the disease.

Submarines: Procurement

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what timeline he expects for the future submarine programme, including the dates for (a) high level design specification, (b) design matures, (c) long leads, (d) start of construction, (e) nuclear power plant trials and (f) sea trials. [158336]

Des Browne: The Future Submarine Programme is required to deliver a new submarine in around 2024, which is the forecast date for entry into service of the first of the new class. The timetable to achieve this comprises a two-year concept phase, a seven-year design phase, a seven-year build phase and a period of sea trials. Work on the concept phase is now under way and dates for various aspects of the programme are under consideration as part of this work. As stated in my answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1252W, to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Mr. Llwyd), we currently expect to reach the Initial Gate approval point in 2009. This will signify the end of the concept phase.

War Pensions

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which areas of the world members of the merchant marine who qualify for a war pension served. [158440]

Derek Twigg: This information is not available in the form requested. The Mercantile Marine scheme provides for awards to be made to members of the mercantile marine who have sustained injuries whilst serving during conflict and war. The scheme dates from the second world war and in addition to that war the scheme applied in principle to members of the mercantile marine involved in the Korean war, the Suez crisis, the Falklands conflict and the first Gulf conflict.

Wind Power: Planning Permission

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what objections his Department made to wind farm planning applications in each of the last two years. [158424]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence has objected to a total of 21 planning applications since October 2005.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Discrimination Law Review

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government plan to publish their response to the consultation on the Discrimination Law Review Green Paper. [157818]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: We were pleased with the substantial response to the consultation—more than 4,000 replies. I will be considering the Government's response with colleagues and plan to publish it as soon as possible.

Equality

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the Government's definition is of equality. [157725]

Barbara Follett: The Government's vision of an equal society is one where there is opportunity for all and responsibility from all, regardless of age, disability, gender, race, religion or belief or sexual orientation. In such a society all people should have the opportunity to fulfil their potential and the talents of each should contribute to the well being of all.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government plan to publish their Single Equality Bill. [157819]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The responses to the consultation on proposals for a new Equality Bill are currently being considered. We remain committed to introducing the Act during this Parliament.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Buildings

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the addresses were of each of the premises occupied by the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157115]

Barbara Follett: The information is as follows.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Finance

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the total budgets were of the (a) Commission for Racial Equality, (b) Disability Rights Commission and (c) Equal Opportunities Commission in the most recent period prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157117]

Barbara Follett: The following tables show the resource and capital budgets on an annual basis for the Disability Rights Commission, Equal Opportunities Commission and Commission for Racial Equality.

Organisation	£000 Resource budget for financial year 2007-8 (expressed as annual figure)
Disability Rights Commission	20,100
Equal Opportunities Commission	8,020
Commission for Racial Equality	19,392

Organisation	£000 Capital budget for financial year 2007-8 (expressed as annual figure)
Commission for Racial Equality	750

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the annual budget of the Equality and Human Rights Commission is expected to be. [157118]

Barbara Follett: As stated in the explanatory notes to the Equality Bill, the estimate of the annual budget for the Equality and Human Rights Commission when it is fully operational is £70 million.

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the total annual cost was of (a) salaries, (b) pension contributions and (c) bonuses of staff employed by the (i) Commission for Racial Equality, (ii) Disability Rights Commission and (iii) Equal Opportunities Commission in the latest period available prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157111]

Barbara Follett: We do not have the information available to give an accurate answer to this question at present. Salary information will be available following completion of the final accounts of the three Commissions.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Redundancy

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much was spent on redundancy packages for staff employed by (a) the Commission for Racial Equality, (b) the Disability Rights Commission and (c) the Equal Opportunities Commission prior to the establishment of the Equality and Human Rights Commission. [157108]

Barbara Follett: No staff were made redundant. However, the cost of the voluntary severance scheme, excluding the ongoing costs of annual compensation payments (ACP) for people over age 50, is expected to be as follows: CRE cost £3,839,617; DRC cost £1,884,707 and the EOC cost £1,780,364.

Flexible Working

Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what plans the Government has to extend the right to request flexible working to all employees. [157755]

Barbara Follett: The right to request flexible work has been a huge success—and in April this year we extended the right to carers of adults—that is another 2.65 million employees.

In the recently published Priorities for the Ministers for Women Command Paper, I made a commitment to support the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in considering whether to extend the right to request flexible work to parents of older children.

Refugees: Forced Prostitution

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities what assessment she has made of the extent and causes of Iraqi women and children who have become refugees being forced into prostitution; what action the UK Government are taking in this regard; and if she will make a statement. [156087]

Barbara Follett: The UK Government are concerned at reports, including from the UN High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR), that some Iraqi refugee women and young girls have been forced to resort to prostitution and children forced into labour or other forms of exploitation to survive. We will continue to support the efforts of UNHCR, who are working closely with host country Governments to assess and address the needs of all Iraqi refugees.

So far this year the UK Government have committed £15 million to support humanitarian agencies working in Iraq and the region , bringing our total humanitarian assistance for vulnerable Iraqis to over £130 million since 2003. We remain in close contact with our humanitarian partners to ensure they are adequately resourced to respond to needs on the ground.

JUSTICE

Alcoholic Drinks: Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to ensure that court hearings, including appeal hearings, relating to underage sales of alcohol are conducted promptly. [159101]

Maria Eagle: All cases, in both the magistrates court and appeals to the Crown court, are dealt with on their merits and are heard as quickly as possible. The Government's Criminal Justice Simple, Speedy, Summary (CJSSS) programme is under way to improve court processes in the magistrates courts to ensure that cases are dealt with as fairly and as quickly as possible. Early indications are that the programme will have a significant impact on eliminating unnecessary hearings and reducing the time from charge to disposal for adult charged cases. This should also allow summons cases such as underage sale of alcohol to be heard more quickly.

Arms Trade: Israel

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Legal Services Commission is funding a case brought by Mr. Saleh Hassan against the UK Government in relation to Israeli policy in the West Bank. [159040]

Maria Eagle: Saleh Hasan is receiving legal aid to fund a judicial review of the British Government in relation to the granting of export licences for the sale of arms to Israel. Individual funding decisions are made by the Legal Services Commission in accordance with the Access to Justice Act 1999 and other documents laid before Parliament.

Coroners

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the oldest outstanding inquest is in each coroner's jurisdiction; [156048]

(2) what estimate he has made of the average time taken to complete an inquest in England and Wales in each year since 2001, broken down by coroner's jurisdiction; [156049]

(3) how many inquests were pending before coroners in England and Wales at the end of each calendar year since 2001, broken down by coroner's jurisdiction. [156050]

Bridget Prentice: For the oldest outstanding inquest in each district, as at 31 December 2006, I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott) on 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1157-60W, in response to a similar question. More up-to-date information is not held centrally.

The average time in weeks taken to complete an inquest in England and Wales, for each coroner's district, in each year since 2004 (the earliest year for which figures are available) is shown in the following tables.

The number of inquests outstanding within each coroner's district as at 31 December 2006, and at the end of each calendar year since 2001 is shown in the following tables.

Note:

In certain circumstances where the data were not available, we have estimated the number of outstanding inquests in a jurisdiction at the end of a year by using related data on the numbers of inquests opened and closed during the year. Around 6 per cent. of values shown in this table have been subject to such an estimation process.

Departmental Reorganisation

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on what date the Transfer of Functions Order detailing the changes in his Department was laid before Parliament for approval. [157722]

Maria Eagle: A Transfer of Functions Order relating to the machinery of government changes of 9 May 2007 was made on 25 July 2007. This was laid before Parliament under the negative resolution procedure on 1 August, and came into force on 22 August 2007. The order is entitled the Secretary of State for Justice Order 2007 (S.I. 2007/2128).

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1st January 2007. [157771]

Maria Eagle: My Department does not hold web usage statistics for all of its websites. For those that we do hold, in January 2007 the most visited website was Her Majesty's Courts Service and the least visited was the Community Justice website. The following table below shows the number of visits each site received for the period January to August 2007:

Feltham Young Offenders' Institution and Remand Centre

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 381W, on Feltham Young Offenders' Institution and Remand Centre, what research was undertaken in arriving at the conclusion that the rise in reported racist incidents was due to more robust reporting; who commissioned this research; who carried it out; if he will place a copy of the research in the Library; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Hanson: The assertion that there had been no increase in racist activity and that the reporting system was more robust was and is the operational view of managers and staff at Feltham and senior management in the Prison Service. The Independent Monitoring Board have commented favourably on improvements at Feltham and the recently published report by HMCIP commented that Feltham:

"is a long way from the establishment described in our earlier reports and in the Mubarek inquiry."

I agree with this view.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2007, Official Report, column 381W, on Feltham Young Offenders' Institution and Remand Centre, whether the investigation carried out by the Deputy Governor of HM Prison Wormwood Scrubs is the inquiry to which the answer refers; whether this was classified as a simple inquiry; how long the inquiry took to complete; how many people were interviewed; how many pages were included in the final completed report; who commissioned the inquiry; whether it is his Department's policy that inquiries may be conducted by an employee of lower grade than the person under investigation; and if he will make a statement. [158540]

Maria Eagle: Yes, the simple inquiry carried out by the Deputy Governor of Wormwood Scrubs is the inquiry to which the previous answer refers. The inquiry took seven and a half months to complete; two members of staff were interviewed, and the final report ran to 25 pages. The area manager for London was the commissioning authority for this inquiry, and the only grade requirement for an investigating officer is that they are at least of principal officer or executive officer grade, and that the commissioning authority must be satisfied with the competence and impartiality of the investigating officer.

Human Trafficking

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will extend the provision of supported housing for victims of human trafficking. [158262]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice currently funds the Poppy project to provide adult women trafficked into sexual exploitation with secure accommodation, one-to-one intensive crisis support, outreach support and a resettlement service. This year an additional £100,000 was invested to top-up the £2.4 million grant, to increase the capacity of the project during the national enforcement campaign Operation Pentameter 2.

The United Kingdom became signatory to the Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings in March 2007, which sets out minimum obligations in relation to the protection and support of all identified victims of trafficking. The Government are committed to implementing these measures which will enhance existing support arrangements.

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prisoner-on-prisoner and (b) prisoner-on-officer assaults were recorded in each prison establishment in each month in the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [159094]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is not held centrally and to obtain and check the data to the level of detail requested would involve contacting each individual prison to verify data.

Prostitution: Prosecutions

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many men have been successfully prosecuted for paying for sex with women aged under 18 years in each of the last six years. [158535]

Maria Eagle: Between 2000 and 2005 three men were proceeded against for the offence of paying for sex with women aged under 18. None of these men were found guilty of this offence.

Child prostitution cases are hard to prove; and defendants are more likely to be proceeded against for offences of "Sexual Activity with a child" under Section 9 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003. (Prior to the 2003 Act, these offences were "Unlawful Sexual Intercourse with a Girl" under the Sexual Offences Act 1956 Sections 5 and 69). The number of men found guilty of these offences in England and Wales from 2000 to 2005 are shown in the following table.

Number of males found guilty at all courts of offences of sexual activity with a female child and unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl, England and Wales, 2000 to 2005[1, 2, 3]

Statutes	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005

Sexual Offences Act 2003 (Section 9)[3]	—	—	—	—	67	374
Total	267	267	275	297	146	389

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The Sexual Offences Act 2003 came into force on 1 May 2004.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Pupils: Mathematics

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) independent, (b) maintained and (c) grammar schools received a grade A in both mathematics and further mathematics in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; [148162]

(2) how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) independent, (b) maintained and (c) grammar schools received a grade A in both mathematics and physics in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [148163]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the level of humanitarian aid to Afghanistan was from (a) the UK and (b) the EU in the last year; and if he will make a statement. [158755]

Mr. Malik: In 2006-07 DFID provided £1.6 million in bilateral humanitarian aid to Afghanistan. Afghanistan is also one of the largest recipients of UN Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF) support, to which the UK is the largest contributor (23 per cent. of total CERF value in 2006). Afghanistan received $32.3 million from CERF in 2006. We also provide core funding to UNICEF, the World Food Programme, and UNHCR, all of whom have operations in Afghanistan.

In 2005 (the latest year for which figures are available) the total humanitarian aid to Afghanistan from EU Development Assistance Committee (DAC) member states was $90.33 million.

Africa: Floods

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) financial and (b) other support he has made available to African countries affected by the recent flooding, broken down by country. [157535]

Mr. Malik: DFID is playing a full role in the response to the African floods and staff were deployed quickly to review the humanitarian situation in Ghana, Kenya and Uganda.

DFID is the largest donor to the UN's Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF), contributing £42.2 million this year. This means that funds are available to start humanitarian operations immediately, not wait for appeals to be launched. So far, CERF funding has been used to support flood responses in Sudan (£4.35 million), Uganda (£3 million), Ghana (£1.25 million), Togo (£110,000) and Mali (£500,000).

DFID is also the largest donor to the Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF) in Sudan, contributing approximately £40 million this year, and the Humanitarian Response Fund (HRF) in Ethiopia, contributing £3 million this year. These funds have been drawn on in Sudan (£2.4 million) and Ethiopia (£1 million) for flood response.

In addition, direct funding is being provided where humanitarian needs remain unmet. So far, DFID has contributed £1.15 million in Uganda, including £750,000 through the World Food Programme for food aid and logistics, and £400,000 through the Red Cross for emergency shelter and health. In Ethiopia, DFID is providing £1 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) annual humanitarian appeal, some of which is being used for flood response. In Ghana we have provided £250,000 to the Red Cross for emergency shelter, provision of safe water and health care.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157876]

Mr. Malik: DFID has eight inward secondees from outside Government. Secondments vary from a period of 12 months to four years. The breakdown is as follows:

Seconding organisation	Number of secondments	Duration (year)
World Bank	3	2-4
Australian Agency for International Development (AusAID)	1	2
Police Service of Northern Ireland	1	2
British Overseas NGOs for Development (BOND)	1	1
Belgian Technical Cooperation	1	2
French Foreign Ministry	1	1

Mexico City

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions (a) Ministers in his Department and (b) officials have had with the United States administration on its Mexico City policy; and if he will make a statement. [158366]

Mr. Malik: Ministers and officials have had no recent discussions specifically with the United States administration on its Mexico City policy.

Overseas Aid: Gaza

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 1980W, on humanitarian aid: Gaza, what representations have been received from the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees in the Near East regarding the movement of humanitarian supplies through Gaza's border with Israel; and if he will make a statement. [157524]

Mr. Malik: We have not received any representations from the United Nations Relief and Works Agency on this issue.

Palestinians: International Assistance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 138W, on Palestinians: international assistance, what agreement has been reached on EU financial assistance for the Palestinian Emergency Government; and if he will make a statement. [157531]

Mr. Malik: On 24 July, the European Commission announced $123 million (£62 million) of assistance for 2007. EU donors including the UK, Sweden and France have already committed direct financial support to the PA.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Benefit

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of paying child benefit to households in the (a) £0-£10,000, (b) £10,001-£20,000, (c) £20,001-£30,000, (d) £30,001-£40,000, (e) £40,001-£50,000 and (f) over £50,000 per annum income brackets in the latest period for which figures are available. [157394]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the estimated expenditure on child benefit in 2005-06, broken down by gross family income.

Estimated expenditure on child benefit by gross family income: 2005-06

	Number of families (000)	Number of children (000)	Estimated expenditure (£ million)

Commission for Equality and Human Rights: Manpower

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the Commission for Equality and Human Rights to reach its full staffing complement. [157816]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 10 October 2007]: The Commission has commenced the recruitment of staff. The timing of meeting the full complement will depend on the outcomes of recruitment exercises and the availability of suitably qualified staff.

Departments: Departmental Records

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2007, Official Report, column 84W, on departments: departmental records, what the reasons are for the difference in the number of files and the number of claimants. [153703]

Mr. Plaskitt: It is quite legitimate for a customer to have more than one DWP record file. At any given time an individual may be in receipt of injury benefit, income support, disability living allowance, social fund payment(s). It should be noted that each social fund claim generates a new file. It is also feasible that CSA, debt management and fraud hold files on the individual as well as dormant records for jobseekers allowance and the labour market unit. Other benefits for which individual records are kept include retirement pension, attendance allowance and industrial injuries disablement benefit.

Not all files held are benefit files. There are also registered files and personnel files.

Departments: Public Bodies

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list his Department's (a) executive agencies, (b) executive Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs), (c) advisory NDPBs, (d) tribunal NDPBs, (e) trading funds and (f) public corporations for each financial year since 2005-06. [156619]

Mrs. McGuire: Details of the Department for Work and Pensions' Executive Agencies and Non-Departmental Public Bodies (NDPBs) for each financial year since 2005-06 are set out as follows:

Deprived Areas Fund

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) areas and (b) parliamentary constituencies the deprived areas fund applies to; how much the fund is; and what its purpose is. [154669]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information about the areas and parliamentary constituencies to which the deprived areas fund applies is lengthy and has been placed in the Library.

The deprived areas fund was £19.3 million for the third and fourth quarters of 2006-07 and is £59.1 million in 2007-08.

The deprived areas fund is an area based initiative which aims to improve the employment rate across all areas of the country and, in particular, on narrowing the gap between those areas with the lowest employment rates and the overall national rate.

Employment Schemes: Luton

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which organisations are assisting (a) long-term unemployed and (b) disabled people into work in Luton under contract with his Department. [149423]

Caroline Flint: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 18 October 2007:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking which organisations are assisting long term unemployed and disabled people into work in Luton under contract with his Department. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Our main contracted provision for long term unemployed customers receiving Jobseeker's Allowance is through our New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 plus programmes. The Training Network Group is contracted to deliver these programmes in Luton, and they also deliver English for Speakers of Other Languages work placements and additional training for customers who have completed New Deal but have no job to start in the next four weeks.

New Deal for Young People and New Deal 25 plus customers can also access:

New Deal Self Employment, contracted to Norfolk and Waveney Enterprise Services (NWES);

New Deal Mentoring which is contracted to Armstrong Learning;

New Deal for Musicians which is also contracted to Armstrong Learning; and Progressive Steps, a European Social Fund contract, which addresses customers' barriers to work. SEETEC deliver this contract.

We also contract a range of provision for people with disabilities. Through our New Deal for Disabled People, we have contracts with the following Job Brokers: SEETEC, Royal British Legion Industries and Futura.

Work Preparation helps customers who have been out of work for a long time due to a disability or illness to help overcome any difficulties they might face when they return to work. Work Preparation is contracted to North Hertfordshire College and delivered by Dunstable College for Luton customers.

Disabled people can also access our WORKSTEP provision, delivered by Bedfordshire County Council, Watford Sheltered Work Shop, Papworth Trust, Shaw Trust, Remploy, Scope, Employment Opportunities and Royal British Legion Industries. WORKSTEP is a flexible programme designed to meet the individual needs of customers with disabilities and their employer.

People with disabilities can also be referred to a Disability Employment Adviser or Work Psychologist employed by Jobcentre Plus.

My District Manager for Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire, Carolyn Taylor, would be happy to brief you in more detail on the range of provision available in the Luton area. Carolyn can be contacted by post at Jobcentre Plus, Beauver House, 6 Brickett Road, St. Albans, Hertfordshire, AL1 3JU, by telephone on 01727 773426 or by email at carolyn.taylor@jobcentreplus.gsi.gov.uk.

I hope this is helpful.

Housing Benefit: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fraudulent claims for housing benefit there were in each of the last 10 years, broken down by super-output area. [157194]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested.

Jobseekers Allowance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many jobseekers allowance applications have been received from qualified or part-qualified home inspectors in the last 12 months. [157513]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Maternity Pay: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fraudulent applications for maternity pay there were in each of the last 10 years; and how many of the claimants were men. [157195]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Pension Credit: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of pension credit fraud were (a) opened and (b) successfully closed in each of the last three years. [157196]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information is in the following table.

Investigations into suspected cases of pension credit fraud

	Number of investigations	Investigations closed with a result[1]
2004-05	1,826	649
2005-06	5,291	2,563
2006-07	1,682	721

[1] A result is an investigation closed with an identified overpayment, underpayment, monetary value of adjustment or sanction.

Notes:

1. Pension credit came into effect in October 2003 so during 2004-05 the benefit had only been in place for six months which explains the low number of investigations.
2. The number of investigations into pension credit fraud reduced in 2006-07 as many of the cases that were previously investigated by Fraud Investigation Service were instead passed to the newly formed customer compliance team. Information regarding the number of customer compliance cases opened and successfully closed with a result is not available broken down by benefit.

Pensions: Females

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proposals he intends to bring forward for women who do not have enough National Insurance contributions for a full state pension. [158252]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The Pensions Act 2007 introduced reforms that will ensure that, in 2010, almost 75 per cent. of women will be entitled to a full basic state pension when they reach state pension age. By 2020 around 90 per cent. of women and over 90 per cent. of men reaching state pension age will be entitled to a full basic state pension.

As set out in the 2007 pre-Budget report, during the Pensions Bill debate, proposals were made that individuals with gaps in their contribution record—particularly women and carers—should be able to buy voluntary national insurance contributions for a greater number of missed years than the system currently allows. The Government are continuing to analyse the options in terms of fairness, affordability and simplicity, and are holding informal discussions with stakeholders.

Pensions: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of pension or pension credit fraud were investigated where the false claimant was under 60 years old in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by government office region. [157186]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Remploy: Redundancy

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to ensure that no disabled people are subject to compulsory redundancies as a result of changes announced by the management of Remploy; and if he will make a statement. [156654]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 8 October 2007]: We have guaranteed that there will be no compulsory redundancies for disabled people. This was clearly highlighted in my statement to Parliament in July 2006 and reaffirmed by the Secretary of State's statement on 22 May 2007.

Where Remploy are proposing that a factory will close, disabled employees will be offered a range of options including voluntary redundancy, early retirement or a job with another local employer on their current Remploy terms and conditions, including membership of Remploy's pension scheme. Some disabled employees will have the opportunity to transfer to another Remploy factory.

A decision on the future of Remploy will be made, once we receive Remploy's final proposals later this year. Until then, no Government decision will be made concerning Remploy's factories.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many charges of benefit fraud were made in each of the last five years for which figures are available; how many such charges resulted in a prosecution in each year; and how many such prosecutions were successful in each year. [155933]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available regarding the number of charges for benefit fraud. Information regarding the number of prosecutions and convictions is in the following table.

Benefit fraud prosecutions and sanctions by DWP and local authorities

	Prosecutions	Convictions
2002-03	12,573	11,733
2003-04	13,891	12,844
2004-05	14,299	13,204
2005-06	16,852	15,088

Benefit fraud prosecutions and sanctions by DWP and local authorities

	Prosecutions	Convictions
2006-07	12,890	12,605

Notes:
1. Prosecutions and convictions figures include General Matching Service, Instrument of Payment (IOP) and Organised Fraud cases.
2. Prosecutions figures exclude cases withdrawn at court.

United Kingdom Advisory Network on Disability Equality

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the report of the meeting of the United Kingdom Advisory Network on Disability Equality held on 5 October. [158037]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The United Kingdom Advisory Network on Disability Equality, known as Equality 2025 did not have a meeting on the 5 October 2007.

Winter Fuel Payments: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many fraudulent claims for winter fuel allowance there were in each of the last five years; and of these how many claimants were aged under 60 years. [157191]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

TREASURY

Global Business Plan

16. Chris McCafferty: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Norwegian Prime Minister on the global business plan joint-initiative; and if he will make a statement. [158874]

Kitty Ussher: The UK is strongly committed to achieving the millennium development goals for health. Prime Ministers Brown and Stoltenberg jointly launched the International Health Partnership in September, which aims to improve the effectiveness of global health funding, and the UK strongly supports the Norwegian-led global campaign for the health MDGs. UK officials have worked closely with Norway and other international partners in developing the campaign.

Financial Advice

17. Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to raise the quality of financial advice available to consumers. [158875]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Services Authority is reviewing the retail distribution of financial products, reporting next year. Adviser qualifications are part of this review.

The Government has asked Otto Thoresen to examine the feasibility of a high-quality national generic financial advice service. He will report in the new year. The Government will respond next spring.

Through its Financial Inclusion Fund, the Government have provided over £50 million to fund free face-to-face money advice for financially excluded people.

Tax Credits

18. Peter Viggers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many claimants of tax credits are being pursued for repayment; and what total sum is involved. [158876]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available in the format requested. Information on the number of families with an overpayment can be found in child and working tax credits statistics finalised awards supplement on payments on HMRC's website. Information on the amount to be recovered can be found in Chapter 2 Figure 4 of the Comptroller and Auditor General's standard report in the HM Revenue and Customs 2006-07 accounts.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people who have claimed tax credits in the past and continue to be eligible for them but no longer claim them. [158867]

Jane Kennedy: A family's tax credit claim is renewed automatically as they finalise their previous year's award for tax credits if they continue to be eligible. Tax credits take-up is a success. The latest figures show that in 2004-05 take up of the child tax credit was 82 per cent. with over 90 per cent. of the money available being claimed, higher than any previous system of income-related financial support for in-work families.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking in response to the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration's October 2007 report "Tax Credits: Getting it Wrong". [158872]

Jane Kennedy: I refer to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Edinburgh, West (John Barrett).

Council Tax

19. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the impact of the spending plans announced in the comprehensive spending review on the level of council tax in the next three years. [158877]

Andy Burnham: As my right hon. Friend the Chancellor set out to this House in his pre-Budget report statement we expect the overall council tax rise over the next three years to be substantially below 5 per cent.

Youth Employment

20. Barbara Keeley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the impact of trends in youth employment on the UK economy. [158878]

22. Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the impact of trends in youth employment on the UK economy. [158880]

Angela Eagle: The number of young people unemployed and claiming benefits has fallen by 163,000 since 1997 and those on benefits for more than a year has been reduced by over 90 per cent.

Structural Deficit

21. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the UK's structural deficit in comparison to other EU economies; and if he will make a statement. [158879]

Kitty Ussher: Cyclically-adjusted net borrowing in the UK has averaged 1.0 per pent. of GDP over the current economic cycle. Over the same period, the structural balance has averaged 1.9 per cent. in the euro area, 2.1 per cent. in France, 2.3 per cent. in Germany and 2.8 per cent. in Italy.

23. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the reasons for the difference between the UK's structural deficit and those of the other major EU economies. [158881]

Kitty Ussher: Cyclically-adjusted net borrowing in the UK has averaged 1.0 per cent. of GDP over the current economic cycle. Over the same period, the structural balance has averaged 1.9 per cent. in the euro area, 2.1 per cent. in France, 2.3 per cent. in Germany and 2.8 per cent. in Italy.

With output close to or at trend throughout the projection period, the profile of cyclically-adjusted borrowing is very similar to that of headline PSNB. Cyclically-adjusted borrowing is slightly higher than the main aggregate in 2007-08 because the economy appears to be slightly above trend in this year.

Hedge Funds

24. Mr. Grogan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the Financial Services Authority on the regulation of hedge funds. [158882]

Kitty Ussher: The Financial Services Authority is responsible for the regulation of hedge fund managers operating in the UK. It has published a number of documents setting out its approach in this area. The Treasury discusses hedge fund regulation regularly with the FSA. The Financial Stability Forum has published five recommendations to improve the existing supervisory and market response to the risks of hedge funds and the Financial Services Authority is working closely with international supervisors to implement these.

Child Trust Fund

25. Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact on family savings patterns in the UK of the child trust fund. [158883]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Trust Fund will ensure that at age 18 all children have access to a financial asset. Over three million children now have a Child Trust Fund account and evidence suggests that levels of engagement with the scheme are high. Data on contributions into accounts will be published for the first time later this month and will enable us to assess the impact of the Child Trust Fund on family saving patterns going forward.

Children: Maintenance

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment HM Revenue and Customs has made of the effect of a decision to pay child benefit to a separated parent on the entitlement to (a) tax credits and (b) other benefits of the other parent, when both parents have applied for child benefit in relation to a child. [159106]

Jane Kennedy: Child benefit is a universal benefit which is non-contributory and paid to families regardless of income.

Ideally, separated parents will decide between themselves who should be entitled to receive child benefit. Only where the parents cannot decide who should be entitled will an officer on behalf of the commissioners of HMRC decide the matter.

In such cases, HMRC determines which parent has the greater responsibility on the basis of the information provided by both parents. Where it is appropriate, consideration will also be given to the impact on entitlement to other benefits of paying child benefit to one parent.

The tax credit system does not prevent child tax credit from being paid to a parent if they are not receiving child benefit, so long as they are mainly responsible for the child's day to day care.

Council Tax: Tax Yields

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the net revenue from council tax receipts was in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Great Britain in each year since 1997-98; and if he will estimate what the revenue will be in each case in 2007-08. [158067]

Angela Eagle: Outturn and budget figures for net council tax receipts in England, Wales and Great Britain to 2006-07 are available from:

Communities and Local Government (CLG): Local Government Finance Statistics England (numbers 15, 16 and 17: table 2.2a). The 2006-07 figure for England can be found in Local Authority Revenue Expenditure and Financing 2006-07 Provisional Outturn, table 2 at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/laout0607.pdf

Welsh Assembly Government: Statswales (table: Council Tax Collection, In-year council tax) at:

http://www.statswales.wales.gov.uk/TableViewer/tableView.aspx?ReportId=396

Scottish Executive: Council Tax Collection Statistics (table 1) at:

http://www/.scotland.gov.uk/Publications/2007/06/22095121/1

These figures are provided on a cash basis.

The aggregated estimate for net council tax receipts in 2007-08 for the UK is available from table B8 in the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review. The statistics in this table are determined on a national accounts accruals basis, so do not read across from the cash figures provided by CLG and the devolved Administrations.

A figure for England in 2007-08 is available from Local Authority Revenue Expenditure and Financing 2007-08 Budget, table 2 at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/rev0708june07.pdf

Departments: Property

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many properties are held on the Electronic Property Information Mapping Service database; and what property attributes are recordable for each property. [158408]

Jane Kennedy: The Electronic Property Information Mapping Service database holds records of 9,636 holdings (either whole buildings occupied by Government or parts of buildings). It also holds 2,578 land records.

Each property record contains:

1. General property details such as address, ownership, use, location.
2. Space details such as area occupied, vacant space, number of full-time equivalent staff.
3. Title Interest such as rent periods, break and review dates, rent and service charge payments.
4. Sub tenancies such as sublets outside of Government and internal Memorandum of Terms of Occupation (MOTOs) to Government Departments.
5. Environmental data such as annual electricity consumption, water consumption and total waste.

Departments: Sexual Harassment

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1001W, on Departments: sexual harassment, if he will place in the Library (a) copies of the Valuation Office Agency's Gender Equality Scheme and Action Plan and (b) the latest monitoring report for diversity strands. [158212]

Jane Kennedy: A copy of the Agency's Gender Equality Scheme and Action Plan is published and available on the Agency's website at:

www.voa.gov.uk

Copies of the Agency's Gender Equality Scheme and Action Plan and the latest Monitoring Report for the Agency will be placed in the Library.

Financial Services: Pay

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on the economy of recent trends in the levels of City bonuses. [158014]

Angela Eagle: Box 2.3 on page 23 of the 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review sets out the impacts of the financial sector on the economy and public finances.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proposals the Valuation Office Agency has considered (a) to increase the amount of property attribute information on domestic dwellings online and (b) to publish council tax information with colour coded maps using Ordnance Survey data online; and what plans the Agency has to implement those proposals. [158059]

Jane Kennedy: None, following the completion of the council tax revaluation in Wales and the postponement of that in England.

Income Tax

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 384W, on income tax, (1) how many people who will experience a reduction in income will be (a) economically active and (b) inactive; [147819]

(2) how many (a) single adults, (b) families with one earner and (c) individuals in families with two earners will experience a reduction in income, broken down by sex; [147820]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of people with annual incomes of (a) £10,000, (b) £10-£15,000, (c) £15-20,000 and (d) £20,000 and above whose income will be reduced by the abolition of the 10p income tax rate; [147990]

(4) what estimate he has made of the numbers of (a) single adults earning less than £18,500, (b) families with two earners whose tax rise is not met by tax credit changes, (c) women aged between 60 and 64 and (d) workers who have prematurely retired and do not qualify for the higher pensioner tax allowance whose income will be reduced by the abolition of the 10p income tax rate; [148003]

(5) how many of the three million taxpayers whose incomes will be reduced by the abolition of the 10p income tax rate and who will not gain from the cut in the basic rate of tax to 20p, will have their incomes reduced by (a) under £1, (b) between £1 and £3, (c) between £3 and £5 and (d) between £5 and £10 a week. [148308]

Jane Kennedy: The removal of the 10p rate of income tax on earned income was part of a package of reforms announced in Budget 2007. The exact effect of the reforms will depend both on individual incomes, and on the circumstances of the household in which people live, for example whether they have children and their age.

As a result of the personal tax reforms announced in Budget 2007 21 million households are better off or no worse off.

Of those households that will see their income rise due to the reforms, the following table shows the distribution of households by change in their weekly income.

Change in weekly income	Number of households (million)
Increase by less than £1	3.0
Increase between £1 and £3	4.7
Increase between £3 and £5	3.2
Increase between £5 and £10	4.0
Increase by more than £10 a week	1.0

Of the 5.3 million households that will pay marginally more in net tax—on average less than a half per cent. of net income—the following table shows the distribution of households by change in their weekly income.

Change in weekly income	Number of households[1] (million)
Decrease by less than £1	1.5
Decrease between £1 and £3	2.2
Decrease between £3 and £5	1.1
Decrease between £5 and £10	0.4
Decrease by more than £10 a week	0.0

[1] Rows may not sum to total due to rounding.

Of these 5.3 million households, around 900,000 households contain a single adult, who see their income decreased by £1.45 a week on average, a further 700,000 are households with more than one adult but with a single 'earner', who see their income decreased by £2.00 a week on average, and around 3.3 million households who are worse off have two or more adults who are defined as 'earners', who see their income decreased by £2.60 a week on average.

Around 4.8 million of these 5.3 million households contain at least one adult who is economically active, who see their income decreased by £2.30 a week on average, and around 0.5 million losing households only contain economically inactive adults, who see their income decreased by £2.05 a week on average. Some 0.8 million are single adults with an income below £18,500, who see their income decreased by £1.45 a week on average, and 0.6 million are women aged between 60 and 64, who see their income decreased by £1.95 a week on average. An adult is defined as an 'earner' if they are economically active.

Of these 5.3 million, 0.9 million have a household reference person with an income under £10,000 a year, 1.1 million have a household reference person with an income between £10,000 and £15,000 a year, 1.5 million have a household reference person with an income between £15,000 and £20,000 a year, and 1.8 million have a household reference person with an income between £10,000 and £20,000 a year. The Household Reference Person is the person who owns the accommodation or is legally responsible for the rent. If this should apply to more than one person in the household, then they are the one with the highest income.

The estimates are for 2009-10 and have been calculated by comparing against a base that has been increased in line with inflation, using the 2004-05 Expenditure and Food Survey.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the estimated impact is on (a) 16 to 18-year-olds in work, (b) single people aged 18 to 65 years, (c) lone parents where the parent works fewer than 25 hours per week, (d) lone parents where the parent works more than 25 hours per week, (e) two parent/adult families with one child, (f) two parent/adult families with two children and (g) two parent/adult families with three children earning (i) less than £15,000 per annum, (ii) £15,000 to £20,000 per annum, (iii) £20,000 to £25,000 per annum, (iv) £25,000 to £30,000 per annum, (v) £30,000 to £35,000 per annum, (vi) £35,000 to £40,000 per annum, (vii) £40,000 to £45,000 per annum, (viii) £45,000 to £50,000 per annum, (ix) £50,000 to £55,000 per annum and (x) £55,000 to £60,000 per annum of the abolition of the 10p starting rate in income tax and the 2p reduction in the standard rate. [130214]

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the percentage change is in (a) income tax and (b) employee national insurance contributions arising from budget changes for individuals (i) at or over the state pension age and (ii) below the state pension age with an income of (A) £60,000 per annum, (B) £30,00 per annum and (C) £15,000 per annum. [131600]

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on incomes in each year up to 2011 of (a) changes to personal allowances, (b) the removal of the 10p tax rate and (c) the reduction of the basic rate of income tax to 20 pence on people born (i) before and (ii) after 1935 with incomes of (A) £8,000, (B) £9,000, (C) £10,000, (D) £11,000, (E) £12,000, (F) 13,000, (G) £14,000, (H) £15,000, (I) £16,000, (J) £17,000 and (K) £18,000. [136787]

Mr. Syms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the average change in income tax which has to be paid by a 21-year-old single person living in Poole working full-time on the minimum wages as a result of the measures announced in the 2007 Budget. [151580]

Jane Kennedy: Budget 2007 announced a number of reforms to simplify the personal tax system. The exact effect of the reforms will depend both on individual incomes, and on the circumstances of the household in which people live, for example whether they have children and their age.

Projected changes in net income in 2009-10 as a result of this package are shown in the following tables. Net incomes are based on a single earner with gross earned income as specified, net of income tax and employee national insurance contributions, and including child benefit and tax credits (non-pensioner families) or pension credit (pensioner families). The projections assume full take-up of entitlements to tax credits where applicable, without child care costs or disability premiums.

Change in net income by April 2009 (2009-10 prices £ a year)

£60,000	610	610

Notes:
1. Other than the changes announced at Budget 2007 this assumes normal indexation of personal allowances, thresholds and limits.
2. National insurance contributions (NICs) are assumed to be paid at the class one not contracted out rate.
3. Only individuals aged 16-64 for males and 16-59 for females are liable for NICs. Therefore there is no change in NICs liability for individuals aged outside of these age ranges.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the monetary benefit of the cut in the basic rate of income tax announced in Budget 2007 to take effect in April 2008 will go to (a) the poorest 10 per cent. of the population and (b) the richest 40 per cent. of the population; and if he will make a statement. [150897]

Jane Kennedy: The cut in the basic rate of income tax announced in Budget 2007 was part of a package of reforms designed to simplify the tax and benefit system. The following table shows the gain by income decile from the reforms taken together.

Income decile	Percentage change in net household income
Bottom	0.77
2nd	0.81
3rd	0.62
4th	0.29
5th	0.17
6th	0.16
7th	0.21
8th	0.32
9th	0.46
Top	0.31

The measures announced in Budget 2007 are part of ongoing reform of the tax and benefit system since 1997. Since 1997, these changes have benefited those at the bottom of the income distribution most, with over a fifth of the net gains going to the bottom tenth of the income distribution, compared to around a tenth going to the top four income deciles.

Inheritance Tax

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the scheme of relief for inheritance tax for current and former spouses announced in the pre-Budget report will be extended to cover those whose spouse died under the estate duty regime applicable until 1974; and if he will make a statement. [157952]

Jane Kennedy: The Chancellor announced in his pre-Budget report statement that the transferable inheritance tax allowance is available to all existing widows, widowers or bereaved civil partners. This includes those whose spouse died under the estate duty regime.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give consideration to the possibility of extending his inheritance tax exemption transfer to cohabiting couples who can indicate that they have not married or entered into a civil partnership because they are of different religions or have special circumstances. [158009]

Jane Kennedy: The Chancellor announced in his pre-Budget report that the combined IHT allowance for married couples and civil partners is now £600,000, rising to £700,000 in April 2010. This combined allowance will apply where IHT spouse relief is already applicable to transfers between the two partners.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much revenue was raised via inheritance tax in (a) England and (b) the United Kingdom in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 2006-07; [158410]

(2) how many estates paid inheritance tax in (a) England and (b) the United Kingdom in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 2006-07. [158415]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available for England. The following tables show figures for the United Kingdom, and for England and Wales combined.

Inheritance tax receipts

£ billion

	United Kingdom	England and Wales
1996-97	1.6	1.4
2006-07	3.5	3.3

Estates paying inheritance tax

	United Kingdom	England and Wales
1996-97	[1]17,900	16,100
2006-07	33,000	30,700

[1] The figure of 17,900 in 1996-97 is a revision of the previously published figure of 15,000.

Tim Farron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the financial impact of the proposed changes in inheritance tax on (a) single parent families and (b) divorced couples. [159275]

Jane Kennedy: Following the changes to inheritance tax announced by the Chancellor in the pre-Budget report, every individual will benefit from a tax-free allowance of £300,000 whatever their marital status. Previous Budgets have announced that this allowance will rise faster than forecast inflation in each of the next three years reaching £350,000 in April 2010.

Inheritance Tax: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much inheritance tax was collected from residents of Hampshire in each year since 1997 in (a) cash and (b) real terms. [158814]

Jane Kennedy: Figures for amounts of inheritance tax collected are not available at local levels.

Inheritance Tax: Tax Yields

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what revenue was received by the Treasury from inheritance tax in each of the last three years, broken down by constituency. [158084]

Jane Kennedy: Information on total inheritance tax receipts is published by HMRC at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/inheritance_tax/table121.pdf

Figures are not available for inheritance tax received at local levels.

Members: Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letters of 21 May and 31 July 2007 from the hon. Member for Edinburgh, West in relation to his constituent Mrs. Deborah Karimi. [158769]

Jane Kennedy: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Microgeneration: Finance

Helen Southworth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward fiscal measures to encourage UK businesses to develop production of microgeneration for supply of energy for domestic and commercial consumption. [159100]

Angela Eagle: All taxes are kept under review and any changes are announced by the Chancellor as part of the Budget process.

The Government have introduced a number of measures in support of microgeneration including reduced VAT on installations; access to renewable obligation certificates; and tax exemptions for revenues earned from domestically generated electricity exported to the grid. Further to this, the Government announced, at pre-Budget report 2007, that microgeneration investments will not be included in ad hoc re-assessments of business rates liability from 2008, subject to state aid clearance.

The Government have also set out, in their Microgeneration Strategy and Energy White Paper, measures to help support and develop the microgeneration industry.

Personal Income

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many households have total income in excess of £50,000 per year; and what percentage of all households that figure represents. [157393]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have been asked to reply.

We estimate that there are 4.3 million households in the UK with total gross annual income in excess of £50,000. This is 17 per cent. of all households in the UK.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 1980W, on stamp duties, what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of first time buyers who were exempt from stamp duty land tax in (a) 1996 and (b) 1997. [158061]

Kitty Ussher: No estimate has been made of the proportion of first time buyers who were exempt from stamp duty (the forerunner to stamp duty land tax) in 1996 or 1997.

Stamp Duties: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much stamp duty was collected arising from sales of Hampshire properties in each year since 1997 in (a) cash and (b) real terms. [158815]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the stamp duty land tax yield at county level are not available for years prior to 2005-06. Figures for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are provided in the following tables from the HMRC website:

2005-06

2006-07

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table15-4-0607.pdf

Taxation: Domicile

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many people are registered as non-domiciled for tax purposes; how many of them are (a) resident, (b) ordinarily resident and (c) non-resident; and what (i) UK and (ii) foreign income was declared by each group in the most recent year for which figures are available; [155851]

(2) when he expects figures for the number of individuals indicating non-domicile tax status through their self-assessment returns in 2005-06 to be available. [155853]

Jane Kennedy: The last full year's data relate to 2004-05, in which there were 115,000 non-domiciles. HMRC's live systems show the latest figure (as at August 2007) for 2005-06 is 114,000 non-domiciles however HMRC expect more returns to be processed. Data on incomes are only available annually—the annual data (as at April 2007) for 2005-06 showed the following:

	Non-domiciles	Not-ordinarily residents
Number of individuals	111,000	29,000
Total declared UK taxable income, of which:	11.9	1.0
remitted foreign income (£ billion)	0.2	0.1
Reported non-taxable unremitted foreign employment income (£ billion)	0.7	0.1

Taxation: Pensioners

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many pensioners will experience a higher marginal deduction rate as a result of the changes announced in the 2007 Budget. [143315]

Jane Kennedy: Budget 2007 reforms to personal taxation included increases to higher personal allowances for those aged 65 and over by £1,180 above indexation in April 2008, removing around 600,000 pensioners from paying tax, and ensuring that around 95 per cent. of pensioner households either gain or are unaffected by the reforms overall. Pensioner households are on average £1,450 a year better off in real terms since 1997.

We estimate that marginal deduction rates will fall for around 2.8 million pensioner heads of household in 2009-10 as a result of the reforms, and that they may rise for around 600,000 pensioner heads of household, in most cases reflecting changes in marginal rates of income tax. Not all of those with higher marginal deduction rates will be worse off as allowances have risen.

These estimates reflect today's pensioner population, projected tax and benefit parameters in 2009-10.

Unpaid Taxes

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the (a) amount of uncollected tax that was written off by HM Revenue and Customs in each year since 1997 and (b) the proportion of uncollected tax written off in each year which was due to taxpayer insolvency. [159018]

Jane Kennedy: Details of revenue losses including tax written off by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is published annually in the departmental accounts and are available on the departmental website. The information on the proportion of tax written off by HMRC and its legacy Departments attributable to taxpayer insolvency from 1997 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the presentation and handout produced by representatives of the Valuation Office Agency at the workshop on automated valuation models of real estate for cadastral purposes organised by the Permanent Committee on the Cadastre in the European Union held at Santiago de Compostela, Spain, in October 2006. [158060]

Jane Kennedy: A copy of the presentation has been placed in the Library. No handouts were issued.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the final report of the Gateway Review by the Valuation and Lands Agency for the Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal Implementation Project and the Public Interface Project; [158062]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of the net revenue generated from domestic rates, including district and regional rates, in Northern Ireland in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; [158068]

(3) how much revenue was generated from domestic rates in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997-98. [158069]

Angela Eagle: These are matters for the Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency, an agency within the Northern Ireland Department of Finance and Personnel.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what work is being carried out by the Valuation Office Agency into the merits of acquiring a geographic information system. [158064]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency is considering the merits of procuring a geographic information system and commissioned its IT partner, Aspire, to prepare a design proposal.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt) of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1018W, on the Valuation Office Agency, what the purpose was of the visit to Japan by the Valuation Office Agency. [158285]

Jane Kennedy: The International Property Tax Institute (IPTI) was invited to meet with officials in Japan to discuss their local property tax system and a member of the VOA attended that meeting in his capacity as a member of the IPTI Advisory Board. IPTI met all the costs involved.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Toolkit was last updated. [158412]

Jane Kennedy: The Council Tax Toolkit is a live set of training modules on the Valuation Office Agency's intranet, which are continually being updated.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what use the Valuation Office Agency makes of unique property reference numbers. [158416]

Jane Kennedy: The VOA uses unique property reference numbers to distinguish individual property records.

Valuation Office: Contracts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many invitations to tender (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) HM Revenue and Customs has issued since January 2003; and for what purpose in each case. [158404]

Jane Kennedy: VOA have not directly placed any Invitations to Tender in the OJEU (Official Journal of the European Union) since January 2003.

The following is a list of contracts advertised through OJEU—a total of 76 Invitations to Tender (ITTs) were issued since January 2003. As HM Revenue and Customs was formed on 18 April 2005 following the merger of HM Customs and Excise (HM C and E) and Inland Revenue (IR), information for years prior to the merger are shown for the respective departments.

The list excludes any contracts awarded through Government-wide Framework Agreements and collaborative tenders where HMRC are not the contracting authority.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Invitation to Tender issued by the Valuation Office Agency in October 2004 on the provision of Access to Property Data. [158413]

Jane Kennedy: The Invitation to Tender was issued in the form of a proposal to potential suppliers. This is available in Appendix 1 of the contract between Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Rightmove.co.uk Ltd. and I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove) on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 1969W.

Valuation Office: Manuals

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt) of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1189W, on the Valuation Office: manuals, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Referencing Manual. [158281]

Jane Kennedy: A copy has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the title is of each of the Valuation Office Agency's learning manuals. [158401]

Jane Kennedy: The following learning documents are currently available to Valuation Office Agency staff:

Valuation Office: New Zealand

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings the Valuation Office Agency has had in New Zealand in the last 36 months; and what conferences it has attended. [158399]

Jane Kennedy: The VOA has not had any formal meetings, or attended any conferences, in New Zealand in the last 36 months. The International Property Tax Institute (IPTI) was invited to meet with officials in New Zealand to discuss their local property tax system and a member of the VOA attended that meeting in his capacity as a member of the IPTI Advisory Board. IPTI met all the costs involved.

Valuation Office: Visits Abroad

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North East Bedfordshire of 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1020W, on the Valuation Office Agency: visits abroad, what the title of the Lithuania conference was; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the handouts and presentation given by the representatives of the Agency to the conference. [158282]

Jane Kennedy: The title of the conference in Lithuania was "Role of Property Taxation-Local Revenue Mobilization". It was a conference organised by the International Property Tax Institute in conjunction with the Institute of Revenues, Rating and Valuation along with the co-operation of the State Enterprise Centre of Registers of Lithuania.

The conference was public and a copy of the presentation made by a member of the Valuation Office Agency at the conference has been placed in the Library.

VAT: Parish Councils

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made in the explorations by his officials regarding the VAT status of parish meetings referred to in the answer of 26 April 2006, Official Report, column 1174W, on parish councils; and if he will make a statement. [157965]

Jane Kennedy: The VAT status of parish meetings remains under review, including whether any change to the current position would deliver cost-effective benefits that are consistent with the objectives outlined in 'Strong and Prosperous Communities', the Government White Paper on the future role and structure of local government published in October 2006.

VAT: Sunscreens

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to reduce VAT on suncare products; and if he will make a statement. [158451]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 23 April 2007, Official Report, column 998W.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the written statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS, on tax credit administration, how many households have been written to by HM Revenue and Customs to inform them that their tax credit case is being reviewed; [158606]

(2) what deadline HM Revenue and Customs has adopted for completion of the reviews of the 160,000 tax credit cases described in the written statement of 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS, on tax credit administration. [158607]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs have written to around 175,000 households to advise them that they will be reviewing their tax credits awards from 2003-04 and 2004-05, and to around 75,000 recipients about their 2005-06 awards.

These are cases where new information came to light that reduced tax credit entitlement after the award for that year had been finalised and closed. The vast majority of those affected will not see any impact on their tax credits award and no-one will be worse off as a result of this issue.

The planned programme of work to review these awards has now started and will be completed in three years. The time span reflects the need to put these cases on a sound footing as soon as practicable while ensuring HM Revenue and Customs continues to improve the service it provides to tax credits claimants. The plans include ensuring that those where the overpayment is greatest will be reviewed first, and priority will also be given to those where there is an outstanding query about the overpayment.

Written Questions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer question 143315, on marginal deduction rates, tabled by the hon. Member for Twickenham on 13 June 2007. [152500]

Jane Kennedy: I have answered the hon. Member's question and very much regret not being in a position to do so earlier.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to answer question 136787, on taxation and allowances, tabled on 8 May 2007 by the hon. Member for Blaydon. [156858]

Jane Kennedy: I have answered the hon. Member's question and very much regret not being in a position to do so earlier.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Arms Trade: Channel Islands

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what military goods have been licensed for export to the Channel Islands from the UK in the last three years. [158736]

Mr. Thomas: The Government publish detailed information on export licences issued, including the number of military export licences approved for the Channel Islands, in their Annual and Quarterly Reports on Strategic Export Controls. The Government's Annual Reports, published since 1997, are available from the Libraries of the House and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029395474

The Government have published quarterly reports on Strategic Export Controls since January 2004 and these are also available from this website.

Bevin Boys

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on the progress to date of introducing the individual recognition scheme for the Bevin Boys. [159276]

Malcolm Wicks: The application process for the Bevin Boys Veterans Badge was launched on 24 September and the first Badge will be awarded to coincide with the 60th anniversary of the demobilisation of the final Bevin Boys in March 2008. The Badge is available to all survivors who, either through compulsion or on a voluntary basis, worked in the mines under the Bevin Boys' scheme rather than serving in the armed forces. The widows of eligible men who died on or after 20 June 2007, the date of introduction, are also eligible. To date, some 600 applications have been received.

Defence Equipment: Exhibitions

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which Ministers from his Department attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition in September. [158780]

Mr. Timms: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, attended the Defence Systems and Equipment International exhibition, as did the Minister for Defence Equipment and Support, and the Minister for Trade Promotion and Investment.

Derelict Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what definition of brownfield land is used for the Regional Development Agency's target on the amount of brownfield land that is reclaimed or redeveloped. [158123]

Mr. Timms: The regional development agencies use the definition of brownfield land as specified in the Core Outputs Technical Note drawn up by the Office of Project Advice and Training (OffPat), which states that brownfield land

"includes contaminated, derelict or previously developed land which is or was occupied by a permanent structure (excluding agricultural or forestry buildings), and associated fixed surface infrastructure within the curtilage of the development."

Details are available on the OffPat website:
http:/www.offpat.info/

Electricity Generation: Landfill

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what total amount of electricity was generated in (a) Scotland and (b) the UK from landfill gas in each year since its introduction as a fuel for electricity generation. [159188]

Malcolm Wicks: The information requested first became available in 1990 and is as follows. Data for Scotland are not separately available before 2000:

GWh

	Electricity generated from landfill gas
	Scotland	United Kingdom
1990	—	139
1991	—	208
1992	—	377
1993	—	447

Estate Agents

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) when he expects the Office of Fair Trading to make a decision on the approved scheme to run an estate agent redress scheme from April 2008; [155912]

(2) whether he expects the Office of Fair Trading to approve only one scheme to run an estate agent redress scheme from April 2008; [155913]

(3) how many applications or expressions of interest the Office of Fair Trading has received to run an approved estate agent redress scheme from April 2008. [155914]

Mr. Thomas: The OFT will shortly publish the criteria it will use when assessing applications to run a redress scheme together with an invitation for scheme operators to submit applications for approval of their redress scheme. To date there have therefore been no applications or formal expressions of interest.

Subject to the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) receiving a suitable application to run an estate agents redress scheme, the OFT may be in a position to approve a scheme in late February or early March 2008.

There is not a pre-determined number of schemes that the OFT is expected to approve—there could be one or more approved schemes.

Farepack: Compensation

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on progress with the assistance offered to those affected by the Farepak collapse; and what (a) compensation and (b) restitution they have received. [159026]

Mr. Thomas: The Government are entirely sympathetic to the plight of those who lost money in the Farepak collapse. They were strongly supportive of the commendable efforts of the Farepak response fund appeal which raised £8 million from business and members of the public to help those affected.

It is the central duty of the liquidators to realise as much as possible for the benefit of all of the creditors of the collapsed company. The timing and level of any dividend payment to unsecured creditors (including the agents and customers) is as yet uncertain. On present information, however, the dividend will be approximately five pence in the pound.

For the future, the Government have taken steps to provide better protection and information for consumers. They have worked with the other hamper companies to put in place greater protection for customers' prepayments, and are pleased to note the initiative of the companies in improving security for consumers' money, which is now held in trust accounts under the control of independent trustees. The arrangements within the individual companies will be monitored by a new trade body, the Christmas Prepayments Association, with a new code of practice to ensure that customer protection measures are established and operated effectively.

The Government have also given the OFT funding for a consumer education campaign so that consumers are better aware of their options for Christmas savings and empowered to make decisions that are right for their own circumstances.

Farepak: Insolvency

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made by the inquiry set up by his predecessor Department to investigate the Farepak collapse. [159042]

Mr. Timms: The investigation will be completed as soon as possible consistent with the need for a thorough enquiry into the matters of concern.

On completion, the findings will be studied to decide what follow up action is justified.

Ministers

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the new Minister of State in his Department. [154628]

Mr. Thomas: The total estimated annual cost for the new Secretary of State in BERR is £761,259 broken down as follows:

(a) Expenses	217,000
(b) Salary	77,000
(c) Office space	28,152
(d) Administrative support	295,107
(e) Special advisers	145,000
Total	761,259

Overseas Trade: Burma

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what advice his Department has issued to British companies undertaking business in Burma. [156761]

Mr. Thomas: The Government have a long-standing policy of not encouraging British firms to trade with or invest in Burma. We offer no commercial services or support to companies wishing to trade with or invest in Burma. British companies who inquire about trade with Burma are informed of the grave political situation, the regime's atrocious record on human rights and the country's dire economic prospects.

They are reminded that the UK is party to the EU's "Common Position" on Burma, which imposes sanctions on Burma, including a ban on EU companies investing in certain Burmese state-owned companies.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what monitoring the Government undertakes of British business activities in Burma; and if he will make a statement. [156762]

Mr. Thomas: We do follow reports on business activities in Burma produced by the UN, NGOs and other organisations. We monitor the level of UK corporate activities through statistics from Office for National Statistics and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, which show that trade with and investment in Burma has fallen in recent years.

Overseas Trade: Maldives

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value of (a) imports and (b) exports of (i) goods and (ii) services between the Maldives and the United Kingdom was in each of the last 10 years. [159643]

Mr. Thomas: (i) Overseas Trade Statistics data for UK trade in goods with the Maldives are shown in the following table:

£ million

	UK imports of goods from the Maldives	UK exports of goods to the Maldives
1997	9.7	7.4
1998	11.2	4.5
1999	5.5	4.9
2000	6.8	5.1
2001	6.4	5.0
2002	7.2	3.0
2003	6.8	5.9
2004	10.5	7.7
2005	11.7	8.9
2006	14.3	6.2

(ii) Data on trade in services are not available for the full 10 years requested. Table 9.13 of the UK Balance of Payments Pink Book 2007 gives the following figures for UK trade in services with the Maldives:

£ million

	UK imports of services from the Maldives	UK exports of services to the Maldives
2005	84	7

Christmas Savings: Protection

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made on implementing the recommendations of the Pomeroy Review of Christmas hamper savings schemes. [159027]

Mr. Timms: There has been substantial progress in implementing the recommendations of the Pomeroy Review of Christmas savings schemes since its publication in March 2007.

Firstly, the Government have taken steps to provide better protection and information for consumers. They have worked with the other hamper companies to put in place effective protection for customers' prepayments, and are pleased to note the initiative of the companies in improving security for consumers' money, which is now held in trust accounts under the control of independent trustees. The arrangements within the individual companies will be monitored by a new trade body, the Christmas Prepayments Association, with a new code of practice to ensure that customer protection measures are established and operated effectively.

In response to the recommendation on mounting an awareness campaign, the Government have given the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) funding for a consumer education campaign so that consumers are better aware of their options for Christmas savings and empowered to make decisions that are right for their own circumstances. The OFT education programme is delivering face-to-face sessions for consumers across the UK. The sessions, run by community groups, explain the options for people and help them to choose the best way to save for them as individuals, pointing out the features of the alternatives. This work is being well received and will continue to be delivered into 2008.

The OFT were also asked to consider whether there were any competition issues in the hamper scheme market. The OFT examined the merger of Park Group and Home Farm Hampers and found that alternative sources of saving operated as a constraint on the merging parties. This is because the majority of customers are prepared to consider switching between a wide range of savings products. No competition concerns were raised either by competitors or customers.

As detailed in the review, a number of credit unions across the country have historically also offered Christmas saving accounts, and this number increased significantly after the collapse of Farepak. There are now more than 100 such accounts. The OFT's "Save Xmas" campaign has provided consumers with information on all Christmas saving options, including credit union Christmas and regular saving accounts. This will ensure consumers have the necessary information to choose the right product for their needs. The Financial Inclusion Taskforce has reported that Post Office Limited's plans to launch a Christmas saving product is progressing.

The Government's work on financial inclusion and capability has responded to the recommendation that informal saving schemes be given greater emphasis. In addition to the OFT "Save Xmas" campaign, the Department for Work and Pension's "now let's talk money" campaign, which provides people with information and support in accessing financial services, is providing guidance on the different ways in which people can save. The Thoresen review on generic financial advice, which will shortly be publishing an interim report, with a final report to follow early next year, is considering the provision of guidance on informal savings. And the FSA's "money made clear" website also has information on Christmas saving schemes.

Finally, on the recommendation relating to Government awareness of all methods of savings, the new wealth and assets survey is collecting information on informal saving. Interim findings from the first wave of data collection will be published by the end of the year.

Postal Services: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the likely effect on carbon emissions of (a) the proposed introduction of outreach service points to replace certain post offices branches in (i) the UK and (ii) Suffolk Coastal and (b) the proposed closure of post offices in (A) the UK and (B) Suffolk Coastal. [158890]

Mr. McFadden: No such estimates have been made by my Department. But, in developing its proposals for post office closures and new outreach service points, Post Office Ltd takes into account the Government's access criteria and wider factors relating to accessibility of post office services.

Royal Mail: Strikes

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the estimated cost to (a) Royal Mail and (b) UK business has been of the recent Royal Mail dispute. [159191]

Mr. McFadden: We have not estimated the costs of the dispute. It is clear that the strikes have impacted on business. The Federation of Small Businesses reports that 94 per cent. of small businesses rely on the Royal Mail as their provider of postal services.

Small Businesses: Advisory Services

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate his Department has made of planned expenditure on business support and promotion of enterprise for 2007-08 and each financial year to 2010-11. [157928]

Mr. Timms: The Department plans to spend the amounts shown in the table on business support and promotion of enterprise in 2007-08. Plans for future years are subject to the normal business planning process following the recent announcement of the Comprehensive Spending Review and the outcome of the Business Support Simplification Programme.

The amounts shown relate only to those products or services that are funded directly by the Department or are centrally designed but funded through the RDAs' 'single pot' (e.g. the Manufacturing Advisory Service). So, for instance, it excludes regionally designed business support products and schemes as well as expenditure on regional enterprise promotion activities (which are funded from the RDAs' 'single pot'), as this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Expenditure plans 2007-08

Business support products	Amount (£ million)
Small Firms Loan Guarantee Scheme	71.7
Equity Investment Funds (e.g. Enterprise Capital Funds, Regional Venture Capital Funds, Early Growth Funds)	61.0
Sustainable Energy Capital Grants	37.8
Business Performance Diagnostics	1.4
Manufacturing Advisory Service—funded through RDAs' single pot	6.0
Selective Finance for Investment in England (cases of greater than £2 million)	32
Selective Finance for Investment in England (cases of less than £2 million)—funded through RDAs' single pot	66
Promotion of Enterprise includes funding for the National Council for Graduate Entrepreneurship and Enterprise Insight (e.g. the Make Your Mark campaign, Enterprise Week and the Enterprising Britain competition)	6.8

Small Businesses: Regulation

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures he is taking to reduce the burden of regulation on small and medium sized businesses. [158667]

Mr. McFadden: Government have embarked upon one of the most radical programmes of regulatory reform in the world. For the first time ever, government departments have published rolling simplification programmes—outlining measures to reduce burdens for business. That is why we attach particular importance to better regulation and are committed to reducing the burden of regulation on business by 25 per cent.—a total saving across government of £2 billion by 2010, with BERR playing its part, reducing its burden by about £700 million by 2010.

Tradeshow Access Programme

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many applications the Tradeshow Access Programme received in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; how many it has received in 2007-08; and how many his Department forecasted for the financial year 2007-08. [155860]

Mr. Thomas: The number of participants that received financial support at overseas exhibitions under the Tradeshow Access Programme (TAP), or its predecessor Support for Exhibitions and Seminars Abroad (SESA), between the dates requested are as follows:

		Participants
2005-06	SESA	6,400
2006-07	TAP	4,390
2007-08	TAP	[1]3,279

[1] Applications received as of end August 2007, not all of which will result in grant.

The revised forecast for the financial year 2007-08 was to support 3,400 businesses.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of the Tradeshow Access programme budget was used by the end of August 2007; how many applications were made in this period; and how many applications have been refused. [155861]

Mr. Thomas: By the end of August 2007, the Tradeshow Access programme had commitments which we forecast to result in a spend of 83 per cent. of its revised budget of £8.5 million; this was to fund participations in tradeshow activity throughout the financial year from April 2007 until March 2008 (i.e. not just until end August 2007). The scheme had received 3,279 applications during this period, a figure which will be subject to downward revision following companies dropping out of the scheme. My department has not refused any eligible applications under the scheme. In August 2007, we announced some restrictions in numbers for events in the second half of the year intended to manage demand against the resources available.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the total budget was of the Tradeshow Access programme for the financial year (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [155862]

Mr. Thomas: The total revised budgets for the Tradeshow Access programme in financial year 2006-07 was £10.5 million and for 2007-08 is £8.5 million.

The Tradeshow Access programme (TAP) was established at the beginning of financial year 2006-07. However, exhibition support prior to this date was covered under a different scheme called Support for Exhibitions and Seminars Abroad (SESA). The comparative budget for 2005-06 was £15.9 million.

Unfair Practices: Competition

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) if he will take steps to ensure that a market-dominant vertically integrated business is required to wholesale its channels on a reasonable basis to other retailers; [157027]

(2) what assessment he has made of the level of retail price competition in the pay TV market; and what assessment he has made of the effect of this level on consumers; [157028]

(3) what his policy is on consumer choice in the pay TV market. [157029]

Mr. Thomas: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many city academies (a) have been (i) opened and (ii) agreed and (b) are proposed in each local education authority. [152923]

Jim Knight: The Government are firmly committed to establishing 400 academies. There are 47 Academies now open; 35 academy projects have funding agreements with the Secretary of State and are in their implementation phase; and there are 65 proposed projects where the Secretary of State has agreed a formal expression of interest with a sponsor for an academy project. Details are given in the following table. In addition to these, the Department is in discussion with local authorities on a large number of potential projects where no formal expression of interest has yet been agreed.

Building Schools for the Future

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will revise the criteria for granting Building Schools for the Future capital funding to local education authorities to ensure adequate funding for schools which have an intake of students from deprived areas but which are relatively prosperous local authority areas, with particular reference to Stockport. [159419]

Jim Knight: As I set out in my written statement of 10 October 2007, Official Report, columns 33-38WS, on capital investment in schools, 2008-11, the Government aim to provide a balance of capital programmes that meets national and local needs. The balance of devolved, strategic and targeted programmes ensures that, while we press ahead as fast as possible with our strategic programmes (the Primary Capital Programme and Building Schools for the Future), there is also significant funding available for other areas.

Overall, there is £21.9 billion capital available over three years for schools. The allocations for Stockport for 2008-11 are given in the following tables.

We are reviewing the operation of waves 7 to 15 of Building Schools for the Future and will be consulting publicly later this year. The key criterion that is emerging for Building Schools for the Future is readiness to deliver, and with the right education vision authorities can put themselves in a good position to accelerate their entry into the programme.

Children: Abuse

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the incidence of sexual abuse of children was in England in each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [153938]

Kevin Brennan: The Government collect data on children who became the subject of a child protection plan. In the past this meant they had also had their names placed on a local authority child protection register. Arrangements to maintain a separate register are being phased out by 1 April 2008. Figures on the number and percentage of children who became the subject of a child protection plan as a result of sexual abuse are shown in the table for the years ending 31 March 1990 to 2007.

Up until year ending 31 March 2001 sexual abuse was recorded and could also be identified in cases where concerns about children included a mix of different categories. After that point, local authorities ceased reporting mixed categories separately so figures from year ending 31 March 2002 onwards are only available for registrations and child protection plans that are attributed to sexual abuse as a single category.

n/a = Not available (children ceased to be reported under mixed categories in 2002).

[1] A child may be registered more than once during the year.

[2] Includes children who have suffered sexual abuse alone in conjunction with other categories of abuse. Children may be counted more than once in these mixed categories.

[3] Expressed as a percentage of the total children who became the subject of a child protection plan during the year.

[4] The increase in figures reflects the removal of the category 'grave concern'. Children who were at significant risk of abuse but whose situations did not fit the main categories of neglect, physical injury, sexual and emotional abuse were recorded under 'grave concern'. After the removal of this category, these children were re-classified within the main categories including sexual abuse.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of child care providers have designated outdoor space for children as part of their premises. [158546]

Kevin Brennan: The information is not collected centrally. We recognise the importance of outdoor play and that regular play opportunities are crucial to a child's growth and development. For example, our guidance on the Early Years Foundation Stage makes clear to providers our expectation that, wherever possible, there should be access to an outdoor play area. Providers without direct access to an outdoor play area will be expected to make daily arrangements for outdoor play in an appropriate nearby location.

Class Sizes: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the teacher-pupil ratio was in each London borough in each of the last five years. [159003]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the overall pupil teacher ratio within maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in local authority areas within London, January 2003 to 2007.

Curriculum: First Aid

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will include the teaching of first aid within the national curriculum; and if he will make a statement. [154839]

Jim Knight [holding answer 10 October 2007]: There is already scope in the non-statutory Personal Social and Health Education (PSHE) framework for schools to explore safety and emergency procedures as part of the curriculum. At key stages 2 and 3, the framework suggests pupils should be taught "basic emergency procedures and where to get help and support".

At key stage 4 pupils should be taught to "develop skills to cope with emergency situations that require basic aid procedures, including resuscitation techniques".

Basic and emergency aid will continue to be part of the non-statutory framework when the new secondary curriculum is introduced from September 2008.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices his Department and its predecessors have bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [156738]

Kevin Brennan: The information is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Qualifications

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils who received the education maintenance allowance gained qualifications in 2006, broken down by type of qualification gained; [158809]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 210W, how many pupils who received the education maintenance allowance while studying for A-levels completed their course of study, broken down by number of A-levels being taken by individual students; [158810]

(3) how many pupils who received the education maintenance allowance gained A-levels in 2006, broken down by (a) grade and (b) subject; [158811]

(4) how many pupils who received the education maintenance allowance completed their course of study since inception of the allowance, broken down by qualification sought; [158812]

(5) how many pupils who received the education maintenance allowance who were studying for A-Levels in (a) mathematics, (b) English language or literature, (c) physics, (d) chemistry, (e) biology, (f) a modern language and (g) another subject (i) completed their course of study and (ii) gained a qualification since inception of the allowance. [158813]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council (LSG) is responsible for the operation of the education maintenance allowance (EMA) scheme. The LSC do not analyse attainment of EMA recipients by subject area or grade as the costs of extracting the data would be disproportionate to the benefits. However, an analysis of the impact of EMA on participation and attainment has been commissioned by the LSC. The results of this analysis have been delayed due to data availability issues and are now due to be published in November 2007. A copy of these reports, with a summary of key findings, will be placed in the House Library when they are published.

Education: Citizenship

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what contribution his Department made to the National Foundation for Education Research's Citizenship Education Longitudinal Study; what steps he intends to take in response to its conclusions; and if he will make a statement; [159077]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the statutory citizenship courses in schools. [159078]

Jim Knight: The Department has provided £1.57 million to fund the National Foundation for Education Research's nine year longitudinal study into citizenship education due to be completed in November 2009. The findings from this study and the Ofsted Citizenship report "Towards Consensus? Citizenship in secondary schools" (2006) have helped to shape policy in this area. Both reports found that whilst remaining patchy in some areas, progress has been made in citizenship provision and it is adequate or better in 75 per cent. of schools. The Department has funded a self evaluation tool for schools to enable them to strengthen their citizenship provision.

Both reports point to teacher training continuing to be needed. We are addressing this issue both through providing places for initial teacher training (200 per year) and through the citizenship continuing professional development certificate (1200 teachers over the next two years).

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the number of teachers teaching citizenship who have not received citizenship-related training; [159079]

(2) what plans he has to recruit and retain teachers who specialise in teaching citizenship. [159082]

Jim Knight: The Department does not monitor all training courses undertaken by teachers, for example those provided by local authorities and commercial providers. We have made available over 200 ITT places per year for the last five years, and the published a CPD handbook for use by citizenship teachers. The Department has also supported a national dissemination effort to provide training on use of the handbook. Additionally, we are funding 1,200 citizenship continuing professional development (CPD) places in higher education institutions over 2006-07 and 2007-08 to enable citizenship teachers to broaden and deepen their subject knowledge. The CPD course will be evaluated by Ofsted. We continue to support the Association of Citizenship Teachers and work with a range of organisations to provide resources and support for teachers.

Education: Languages

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance he has given to local education authorities on teaching foreign languages; and if he will make a statement. [158839]

Jim Knight: We have not issued formal guidance to local authorities on teaching languages but we have produced a range of guidance and support materials for schools which are disseminated to local authority language advisers through our networks—including the key stage 2 framework for languages and new schemes of work for primary schools. We have allocated £27.5 million funding to local authorities to support the delivery of primary languages in 2007-08 and the National Director for Languages wrote to each local authority with suggested models for using this funding.

The Secondary National Strategy and CILT, the National Centre for Languages have worked with local authorities to create 355 networks of secondary schools which are building on the key stage 3 framework guidance to raise achievement and improve teaching and learning at KS3.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in each London constituency offer tuition in (a) Cantonese and (b) Mandarin; and whether he has any plans to put Cantonese and Mandarin on the National Curriculum. [158840]

Jim Knight: The information requested on numbers of schools offering Mandarin and Cantonese is not available broken down by constituency. However, research conducted earlier this year for the Department by CILT, the National Centre for Languages showed that around 7-8 per cent. of all maintained secondary schools in England were providing some Mandarin teaching.

The National Curriculum for Modern Foreign Languages does not prescribe which languages schools should offer, However, from September 2008, the requirement that pupils at Key Stage 3 (ages 11-14) must first study a working language of the European Union will be lifted so that schools will be able to teach any major European or world language. Examples given in the new programme of study include Mandarin, although the choice of language is for schools to determine.

The national languages strategy set out an entitlement for all Key Stage 2 (7-11 year old) pupils to learn a language in class time by 2010. Schools can choose which languages they teach; including Mandarin and Cantonese. Research carried out by the National Foundation for Educational Research (NFER) into language teaching in primary schools found that 1 per cent. of responding schools in London were teaching Chinese.

Examinations: Children

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on the number of educational tests and examinations that children and young people are required to sit; and if he will make a statement. [158838]

Jim Knight: The Department receives representations from stakeholders, in particular pupils and parents, about the numbers of tests and examinations which pupils are required to take. There are statutory assessments of each pupil's progress and attainment at the end of key stages 1, 2 and 3, In key stage 1, pupils are set at least one task in each of reading, writing and mathematics. Tasks can be taken at any time and enable teachers to be secure in their judgment of which level the child has reached. Assessment at key stages 2 and 3 involves tests in English, mathematics and science, and teacher assessments. Although there are no statutory requirements for assessment at the end of key stage 4, approximately 96 per cent. of 15-year-olds are entered for one or more full GCSE courses each year. The tests and examinations taken at the end of each key stage do not amount to an excessive burden on pupils or schools. For example, the key stage 2 tests amount to less than six hours, accounting for around 0.15 per cent. of available teaching time in the key stage, and the key stage 3 tests amount to less than eight hours, accounting for less than 0.2 per cent. of available teaching time in the key stage.

These tests and examinations provide objective and reliable measures of the standards secured by pupils at crucial stages in their development, and equip us with the best data possible to support our education system. In addition to assessment at the end of each key stage, schools monitor pupils' performance during each key stage and it is for each school to decide whether to use tests as part of their monitoring arrangements.

Foster Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of local authority collection of information about informal fostering of children. [157944]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Department has not assessed the effectiveness of the collection by local authorities of information about private fostering since this collection was introduced for the year ending 31 March 2005.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Citizenship

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will introduce a full GCSE qualification in citizenship. [159075]

Jim Knight: New subject criteria for GCSE Citizenship Studies are being developed and will shortly be published by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority. The new criteria will reflect the revised secondary curriculum and will enable full course GCSEs to be developed by awarding bodies for first teaching in 2009. There is a short-course GCSE in Citizenship Studies which is the fastest growing GCSE. There were 73,142 entries for the GCSE in 2007—an increase of nearly 19,000 on 2006 entries.

General Certificate of Secondary Education A Level: Mathematics

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils from (a) independent, (b) maintained and (c) grammar schools received a grade A in two of Mathematics, Further Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [148274]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Standards

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the most improved secondary school was in terms of the GCSE five A*-C score measure between 1999 and 2007; and if he will make a statement. [159013]

Jim Knight: Data for 2007 are not yet available, 2006 data have been used instead. For maintained schools, Phoenix High School, in Hammersmith and Fulham had the largest increase in the percentage getting 5 A*-C at GCSE between 1999 and 2006. The number of 15-year-old pupils[1] achieving 5 + A*-C at GCSE increased from 4 per cent. to 77 per cent. Only schools with a cohort size of 10 or more in both years were included in the analysis.

[1] Aged 15 on the 31 August

Politics: Curriculum

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will take steps to support (a) hon. Members, (b) Parliament's Education Service and (c) local authorities in the contributions that they make to the teaching in schools of the political literacy strand of the citizenship curriculum. [159076]

Jim Knight: The Department has funded a number of initiatives to promote political literacy through citizenship and to support MPs that wish to be more involved in schools. Working with the Hansard Society and the parliamentary education unit, we have supported the development of the MPs in Schools pack, which prepares pupils for a visit from their local MP. The Hansard Society, with DCSF backing, has also developed the "Headsup" website, an online forum that assists teachers in delivering political literacy, and also MPs who can use it to consult with their younger constituents; the "Big Ben" and "All That! teaching resource, which gives teachers and pupils an inside view of Westminster through interviews with MPs and Peers as well as archived footage from Parliament; and "Y Vote Mock Elections", which aim to actively engage students with the electoral process. DCSF has also funded a programme of MP mentoring, where MPs work directly with trainee citizenship teachers to help them with their knowledge of Parliament so that they can teach the political literacy element of citizenship with confidence. In addition, DCSF set up and funded the Association for Citizenship Teaching (ACT) to work with teachers and local authorities to provide training and help to spread good practice.

Pupil Exclusions

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which are the 200 schools with the highest number of permanent and temporary exclusions over the last 10 years. [156633]

Kevin Brennan: A list of the 200 schools with the highest number of permanent exclusions for the years 1997/98, 2000/01, 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 has been placed in the Library.

Only three years of data relating to fixed period exclusions are currently available. The first year for which information on fixed period exclusions is available relates to the 2003/04 academic year. Due to underlying changes in the data collection, information on fixed period exclusions is not available for maintained primary and special schools for 2005/06. A list of the 200 schools with the highest numbers of fixed period exclusions in 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 has also been placed in the Library,

The lists of schools which have been provided here do not necessarily relate to schools with the highest rates of exclusions.

Pupils: Citizenship

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to enable schools to assist students to get involved in their communities, particularly through volunteering, as part of the citizenship curriculum. [159074]

Jim Knight: The revised Citizenship curriculum at Key stages 3 and 4 provides that pupils should have opportunities to "participate in different forms of individual and collective action, including decision-making and campaigning and participate in both school-based and community-based citizenship activities".

Additionally, Over the next three years, v the independent charity launched to implement the recommendations of the Russell Commission, will be investing over £70 million in a new framework for youth action and engagement through its recently announced National Youth Volunteering Programme (NYVP). This programme will not only fund new opportunities, but it will also create a v presence in every local authority area in England, working with local organisations to deliver high quality volunteering placements. It will also establish a framework for the recognition and accreditation of youth volunteering opportunities, so that young people who give up their time for the benefit of their communities will have their achievements acknowledged and celebrated.

Pupils: Mathematics

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to allow pupils who have not mastered basic numeracy skills (a) to have extra tuition and (b) not to be required to take GCSE in mathematics. [159041]

Jim Knight: The Department is planning two separate, but related one-to-one tuition programmes, which are designed to raise standards in mathematics:

one-to-one tuition to help 300,000 children who have fallen behind in mathematics by 2010-11. We are currently planning how this should be delivered and will use lessons learned from the tuition element of the Making Good Progress pilot, and from other existing individual intervention programmes, to inform this.

'Every Child Counts' (ECC), a more intensive initiative specifically designed for intervention in mathematics during Key Stage 1, which will be a counterpart to 'Every Child a Reader' (ECAR).

Under the Making Good Progress pilot we are offering up to 10 hours of one to one tuition in mathematics for pupils who are behind, or at risk of falling behind, national expectations. Tuition will be delivered outside school hours by fully qualified teachers working in partnership with the class teacher.

ECC, set to start in 2010, will be aimed at children whose attainment as six-year-olds shows they are failing to make expected progress for their age. In Year 2, they will get intensive support in half hour sessions each day from teachers, mostly provided one-to-one, but also through group work.

We are investing £144 million over the next three years into rolling out nationally ECAR and ECC and by 2011 30,000 seven-year-olds who need help with mathematics will benefit from the programme each year. We are working with the charitable KPMG Foundation on this programme.

Mathematics is a compulsory subject at Key Stage 4. It is not compulsory for students to be entered for the GCSE, though achievement in GCSE mathematics is an important gateway to opportunities for further study and employment and we therefore expect the vast majority of young people to be entered for it. As part of our 14-19 reform programme we have developed new functional skills standards at entry level and levels 1 and 2 in mathematics which will be incorporated into all qualification routes (GCSE, Diplomas and Apprenticeships) and will also form the basis of freestanding qualifications. The freestanding qualifications will provide opportunities for achievement and progression in mathematics for those young people for whom a GCSE might not be the most appropriate option at the end of Key Stage 4.

Pupils: Truancy

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils took unauthorised absences at least once in each of the last five school years; [154280]

(2) how much the Government have spent on anti-truancy measures since 1997. [154281]

Kevin Brennan: The pupil numbers requested are shown in the following table.

	Number of day pupils of compulsory school age	Unauthorised absence number of pupils with at least one session missed
2002	7,188,176	1,169,252
2003	7,118,701	1,231,927
2004	7,166,992	1,306,145
2005	7,077,373	1,428.590
2006	7,026,910	1,431,482

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes ail unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and other unauthorised absence.

On the cost of attendance measures, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 23 July 2007, Official Report column 894W, to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws).

School Milk

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools have taken up the EU school milk subsidy scheme in each constituency; [158085]

(2) how many school children are eligible for the EU school milk subsidy scheme. [158086]

Kevin Brennan: This Department does not collect the information requested. Local authorities are not obliged to provide milk, but where they do so they must provide it free of charge to pupils entitled to receive a free school lunch. They are also free to make use of the EU school milk subsidy scheme, which reduces the cost of whole milk and semi-skimmed milk purchased.

The Rural Payments Agency, a DEFRA executive agency, is responsible for the administration of the EU subsidy scheme in Britain. It provides advice online, in response to individual requests and via its helpline to those schools and local authorities which choose to participate in the scheme, including how to apply for the payment of subsidy.

Schools: Admissions

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of secondary school pupils in each London borough secured a place at their parents' (a) first, (b) second and (c) third choice of secondary school in each academic year since 1997. [158820]

Jim Knight: We do not currently hold these data However, my officials are currently consulting on draft regulations which will enable us to have this information in future. The consultation document is available on the DCSF website at:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/consultations/conDetails.cfm?consulationId=1506

Schools: Construction

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy to require all major new-build for schools to meet a minimum BREEAM rating of excellent in accordance with the Common Minimum Standards; and if he will make a statement. [153858]

Jim Knight: The Department currently has no plans to require new-build schools to meet a minimum BREEAM rating of excellent. We have adapted the Building Research Establishment's Environmental Assessment Method (BREEAM) for schools and since 2005 it has been our requirement that major school building projects achieve a minimum BREEAM rating of 'very good'. This is a challenging but achievable target.

The Department is funding demonstration schemes that will achieve a BREEAM schools rating of 'excellent' and we have commissioned a study to investigate the potential implications of raising the target to 'excellent'. The outcomes of these initiatives will inform future policy.

The Department has also allocated £110 million over the next three years to test the aim of reducing carbon emissions by 60 per cent. in new schools built in Building Schools for the Future and the Academies programme. Around 200 schools will benefit from the additional investment.

Schools: Finance

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will rescind his policy requiring all schools to repay five per cent of any surplus carried forward from the financial year 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [159030]

Jim Knight: The Government believe it right to take action to reduce the total of schools' revenue balances which more than doubled from £740 million to nearly £1.6 billion between 1999-2000 and 2005-06. This is taxpayers' money voted by Parliament for the education of the pupils in schools in the year in question and it should not be steadily accumulating in schools' bank accounts.

The Department is consulting on the detailed implementation of the proposal to require local authorities to redistribute 5 per cent. of all surplus revenue balances locally, as part of consultation on the draft school finance regulations for 2008. Consultation closes on 26 October and I will announce our final decisions after taking careful account of the responses received.

Schools: Sports

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of secondary schools offer at least (a) two hours and (b) five hours of supervised sport for pupils in years 7, 8 and 9 each week. [158545]

Kevin Brennan: Information is not collected in the format requested. The 2006/07 School Sport Survey collected data from all maintained schools in England about the percentage of pupils who take part in at least two hours high quality PE and school sport each week. The results of the survey are being published today. They show that 92 per cent. of pupils in year 7 are taking part in at least two hours high quality PE and sport each week. For year 8 pupils, the figure is 91 per cent., and for year 9 pupils, the figure is 86 per cent.

Data on take-up of five hours of sport are not collected centrally.

Copies of the results of the survey are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Secondary Education: Curriculum

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families why it was decided not to make reference to (a) knowledge and (b) culture in the aims of the review of the secondary curriculum as set out in the draft summary of findings document. [150394]

Jim Knight: In the draft summary of the findings document, the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority stated that one of the aims of the secondary review was to help schools refresh and renew their curriculum by

"embedding the curriculum aims to help pupils become successful learners, confident individuals and responsible citizens".

The curriculum aims are described in more detail within the new secondary curriculum, where explicit references are made to knowledge and culture. For example, included in the definition of 'Successful Learners' are our expectations that successful learners should:

have the essential learning skills of literacy, numeracy and information and communication technology; have inquiring minds and think for themselves to process information, reason, question and evaluate;

know about big ideas and events that shape our world.

All of these outcomes rely on knowledge acquisition.

Under the heading of 'Confident Individuals', the curriculum aims state that confident pupils will be "open to the excitement and inspiration offered by the natural world and human achievements".

This is intended to include cultural achievements.

More specifically, under the heading of 'Responsible Citizens', the aims state that responsible citizens should "understand their own and others' cultures and traditions, within the context of British heritage".

Stockwell Park School: Swimming Pools

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reason the Building Schools for the Future proposal for the new Stockwell Park School in Lambeth does not include a replacement for the existing swimming pool; and if he will make a statement. [158795]

Jim Knight: BSF funding is allocated formulaically, based on pupil numbers and DCSF area guidelines for secondary schools ('BB98'). Within BB98 swimming pools are not considered to be part of the core school facilities which DCSF fund.

It is for each local authority to decide how to make the best use of its overall BSF funding allocation across the schools in a particular project and the scope of works at each school. An authority can choose to use some of its BSF allocation to refurbish an existing pool where it considers this to be the best use of the available funding. There is also the option of exploring other sources of funding (e.g. DCMS/Sport England) to supplement that from BSF.

Lambeth council took the view that using funding to replace the pool at Stockwell Park would not represent good value for money. Other, better, facilities are available locally and swimming pools require significant investment, not just of capital funding but also of revenue to support the considerable ongoing running costs—costs which were unlikely to be recouped in this case through community use.

Teachers: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) classroom assistants work in schools in (i) Chorley and (ii) Lancashire; and what the equivalent figures were in 1997. [158757]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the full-time equivalent number of teachers and teaching assistants employed in local authority maintained schools in Chorley constituency and Lancashire local authority in January 1997 and 2007.

Full-time equivalent teachers arid teaching assistants employed in local authority maintained schools in Chorley constituency and Lancashire local authority, January 1997 and 2007

	1997		2007
	Teachers[1]	Teaching assistants[2]	Teachers[1]	Teaching assistants[2]
Chorley	810	100	890	320
Lancashire[3]	n/a	n/a	9,840	4,070

n/a = not available

[1] Qualified and unqualified teachers.

[2] Teaching assistants include teaching assistants, special needs support staff and minority ethnic pupil support staff.

[3] Lancashire local authority was reorganised in 1999 and therefore 1997 figures are not comparable with 2007.

Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Written Questions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he will answer question 148140, on the Building Schools for the Future programme, tabled on 3 July by the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton. [156239]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 15 October 2007, Official Report, column 866W.

Youth Citizenship Forum

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when he expects the Youth Citizenship Forum to meet; [158954]

(2) whether his Department will have lead responsibility for the Youth Citizenship Forum. [158955]

Kevin Brennan: I assume the hon. Member's question refers to the Youth Citizenship Commission. The Commission will be launched this autumn. It will report to the Prime Minister, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, and the Secretary of State for Justice. The Commission will be supported by a small Secretariat, based at the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Co-ordination

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the case for appointing an International Coordinator for Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [157384]

David Miliband: The UK was instrumental in the adoption of the Afghanistan Compact, which recognises the central co-ordinating role exercised by the UN. We have long supported the need for the Special Representative of the UN Secretary-General to provide effective co-ordination for the international community's effort in Afghanistan and continue to do so.

Alexander Litvinenko

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in Government efforts to seek the extradition from Russia of Mr Andrei Lugovoy in connection with the murder of Mr Alexander Litvinenko. [157529]

David Miliband: Since I made my statement to the House on 16 July 2007, Official Report, columns 21-22 on a package of measures in response to Russia's failure to extradite Andrei Lugovoy, I have raised the matter on a number of occasions both with my Russian counterpart and with other partners. We continue to demand the Russian authorities co-operate with the Crown Prosecution Service's request for the extradition of Mr. Lugovoy so that he can stand trial in the UK.

Andrei Lugovoy: Extradition

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions have taken place between his Department and the Russian Government on the extradition of Andrei Lugovoy; what recent progress has occurred on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [158028]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague) today (UIN 157529).

Arab League

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to attend the next meeting of the Arab League. [159167]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary currently has no plans to attend the next meeting of the Arab League.

BBC External Services: Finance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the planned (a) near cash departmental expenditure limit, (b) non-cash departmental expenditure limit and (c) capital departmental expenditure limit is for the (i) BBC World Service and (ii) British Council for financial years 2008-09 to 2010-11. [159024]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The British Council and BBC World Service (BBCWS) are not given separate departmental expenditure limits but are included in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) limits as ring-fenced amounts.

The BBCWS grant-in-aid limit will be £234,043 million, £241,043 million and £240,043 million per annum between financial years (FYs) 2008-09 and 2010-11 (not including capital). It does not have a non-cash departmental limit as it is treated as public corporation. Its capital grant for the period in question will be £31 million per annum.

The British Council's grant-in-aid limit will be £188,003 million, £193,003 million and £189,003 million per annum between FYs 2008-09 and 2010-11 (not including capital). It does not have a non-cash departmental limit as it is treated as public corporation. Its capital grant for the period in question will be £7.8 million per annum for the period in question.

Burma: Arms Trade

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the EU arms embargo on the (a) sale and (b) re-sale of military equipment and technology from EU member states to the Burmese regime. [159174]

Dr. Howells: The EU annual report for 2006 listed only three military related sales to Burma from the EU. Those three items were from the UK. However, all these items were deemed to fall outside the EU Ban and with a full explanation given in the UK strategic export controls annual report of 2006. The items were pharmaceutical equipment, an armoured four-wheel drive vehicle for our embassy in Rangoon and hydrophones.

The EU Common Position includes a ban on all arms sales to Burma, directly or indirectly. Any act to breach this ban knowingly would be illegal. However, if we subsequently learn that military products or components are re-exported to Burma, we would make representations to the relevant foreign government.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, in his statement issued on 15 October, said that we would review the implementation of the embargo with our partners to address any risk that arms or their components might be diverted or re-exported to Burma.

Burma: Politics and Government

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last met his Indian and Chinese counterparts to discuss the situation in Burma. [158438]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have had intensive contact about Burma recently with international partners, including China and India. Most recently my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed Burma with the Indian Minister for External Affairs on 3 October and the Chinese Foreign Minister on 29 September. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised the situation in Burma with Prime Minister Singh on 11 October.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) whether a further date has been set by the UN Security Council to discuss the situation in Burma following its discussions on 5 October 2007; and if he will make a statement; [159172]

(2) pursuant to his statement of 15 October 2007, what further measures he expects the UN Security Council to consider taking against Burma if it does not take clear steps towards the return of democracy. [159173]

Dr. Howells: The UN Security Council remains focused on the situation in Burma. The UN Secretary-General's Special Envoy Ibrahim Gambari has returned to the region and will return to Burma shortly. We would expect the Security Council to review progress in the light of Professor Gambari's further visit.

On 15 October my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister made a statement welcoming the UN Security Council's statement on Burma and making clear that the Burmese regime must end the violence, release political detainees and take clear steps towards the return of democracy. He also said that the Security Council should meet again to review progress made in Burma. If progress is insufficient, the council will need to consider further measures. We shall discuss possible further measures with our Security Council partners.

Chevening Scholarships Programme

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Chevening scholarships were awarded in each year since 1997, broken down by country of origin of recipients. [157557]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Details for the eight academic years from 1998/99 to 2005/06 are given in the Chevening Programme Annual Report for each year. The reports are available at:

http://www.chevening.com/about/reports/.

They will also be placed in the Library of the House. There was no Annual Report for 1997/98, but the details for that year are provided in the following table below. For information on academic year 2006/07 I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Chelmsford West (Mr. Burns) on 16 October 2007, Official Report, columns 996-999W.

Cyprus

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the full reopening of the town of Famagusta; and if he will make a statement. [157332]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Any agreement on the future of the closed town of Varosha and the ongoing division of the island is only likely to be resolved through a comprehensive settlement acceptable to both sides and brokered by the UN. We continue to urge both sides to show the political will and flexibility to bridge the gap between words and deeds, and to engage constructively with the UN's efforts to broker a comprehensive and durable settlement.

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Mayor of Famagusta Mr. Alexis Galanos on his campaign to see the full reopening of the town of Famagusta; and if he will make a statement. [157334]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials have met with the Mayor of Famagusta in both Cyprus and the UK and received details of his campaign. My right hon. Friend the Member for Enfield, North (Joan Ryan), in her role as Special Representative to Cyprus, also met Alexis Galanos during her recent visit to Cyprus, In their discussions, they emphasised the importance of a UN process leading to a comprehensive and durable settlement of benefit to all Cypriots.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157001]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) gave to him on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157901]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As at the end of August 2007, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office had responsibility for 220 websites under five main Uniform Resource Locators; www.fco.gov.uk, www.britishembassy.gov.uk: www.britishhighcommission.gov.uk; www.ukvisas.gov.uk; www.i-UK.com. At 1 January 2005 the department operated 202 websites, including foreign language versions. The estimated annual cost over the last five years to run these websites is £700,000.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157902]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's most popular website since January 2007 has been www.fco.gov.uk, which received 7,060,766 visitors. The least popular website has been Vanuatu's Post website, with 764 visitors.

Departments: Ministers

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the total estimated annual cost is of (a) expenses, (b) salary, (c) office space, (d) administrative support and (e) special advisers for the Minister of State for Africa, Asia and the UN. [154625]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The estimated annual cost of the office space for my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, is £50,967.10, similar to that incurred in the previous year. This figure includes management fees, business rates, tax and the cost of utilities. Based on average earnings, the estimated cost of administrative support, which is the combined salaries of five staff, is £192,581. Administrative costs for the previous year are estimated at £186,322.

Details of ministerial salaries are available in the Library of the House and at: http://wwwcivil service.gov.uk/other/parliamentary/pay/ministerial/ index.asp. The Minister does not have a special adviser.

Like all Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers, Lord Malloch-Brown will have travel and other expenses associated with performing his ministerial duties. Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis, a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500, as well as the total cost of all ministerial travel overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Library of the House. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Ministerial Code".

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent by his Department on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158892]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not maintain central records of total annual expenditure on hospitality across the FCO and UK missions overseas. To collate this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Government Hospitality, Protocol Directorate, spent approximately £588,000 in total in the year October 2006 to 30 September 2007. Government Hospitality funds and arranges formal ministerial hospitality for all Government Departments. Although the FCO is the largest single user of the service (and budget) it accounts for around 30 per cent. of the total annual spend.

Departments: Public Expenditure

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) near cash and (b) non-cash administration cost limit for his Department is for financial years 2008-09 to 2010-11. [159025]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information requested is set out at table B15 of Meeting the aspirations of the British people: 2007 pre-Budget report and Comprehensive Spending Review (Cm 7227), copies of which are in the Library of the House. Separate near- and non-cash limits for administration budgets are not specified as HM Treasury control limits.

Diplomatic Service: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff in UK embassies have been seconded from outside Government; from which company or outside body each has been seconded; and to which embassy each secondment has taken place. [157774]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have no staff working in Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) positions overseas who have been seconded from outside Government. Various categories of locally recruited non-Government personnel work at FCO premises overseas in support functions, under both contractual and non-contractual arrangements. We do not hold central records for them and could not compile data about them without incurring disproportionate cost.

Ethiopia: Human Rights

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) of 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 2005W, whether the Government has received the UN assessment team's appraisal of the situation in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia; and if he will make a statement. [158280]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UN has completed its assessment of the situation in the Ogaden region of Ethiopia and passed a copy of its report to the Ethiopian government. It is now publicly available.

We welcome the Ethiopian government's acceptance of the UN assessment team's appraisal and look forward to co-operation between the Ethiopian government and the UN to implement its findings. We expect this to lead to an improvement in the humanitarian and security situation in the region.

Ethiopia: Political Prisoners

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made in the case of the Ethiopian anti-poverty campaigners Daniel Bekele and Netsanet Demissie, who are currently in gaol. [157534]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have raised the case of Daniel Bekele and Netsanet Demissie with the Ethiopian Government on numerous occasions. Most recently my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, raised it with the Ethiopian ambassador to London on 23 August and again with the Ethiopian Foreign Minister in the margins of the UN General Assembly in New York on 27 September.

On 9 October, the presiding judge adjourned the trial until 22 November to consider both sides' concluding remarks. We will continue to press the Ethiopian authorities for a quick and transparent trial process.

European Constitution

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if he will bring forward proposals for a written constitution for Europe; [158677]

(2) what recent representations he has received on a draft European constitution; and if he will make a statement. [158678]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The draft treaty establishing a constitution for Europe is now defunct. The mandate for a reform treaty agreed by the European Council states clearly:

"The constitutional concept, which consisted in repealing all existing Treaties and replacing them by a single text called "Constitution", is abandoned."

EU External Relations: African Union

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the officials who will attend the EU-AU summit in Lisbon on behalf of the United Kingdom. [157387]

David Miliband: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said that neither he nor any senior Government Minister will attend the EU—Africa summit in Lisbon if President Mugabe attends. Our focus now is on working for solutions that deliver a successful summit without President Mugabe attending. No invitations to the summit have yet been issued and consequently no final decision has been made as to who will or will not attend for the UK.

EU Reform: Treaties

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes there have been between the latest draft of the EU reform treaty and the previous draft. [157538]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The latest draft of the reform treaty includes technical amendments as a result of discussions in the intergovernmental conference legal working group, including technical points on the UK's joint home affairs protocol. Following my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's oral evidence session with the Foreign Affairs Committee on 10 October, he agreed to write to the Committee and place in the Library of the House a document setting out how the Government's red lines are reflected in the latest draft of the reform treaty.

Iraq: Resettlement

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps have been taken by the Government to inform Iraqi staff (a) working for and (b) who formerly worked for the Government that they are eligible for assistance from the UK. [158275]

David Miliband: We have held meetings with our locally-engaged staff in Iraq to inform them of the written ministerial statement I made on 9 October, Official Report, columns 27-28WS, and to hear their views. We will inform serving Iraqi staff of the full details of the scheme once these are announced. We plan a wide range of measures to ensure that former staff who meet the eligibility criteria have the best possible chance of hearing about the scheme.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the budget is for ex gratia assistance to (a) Iraqi staff working for the Government and (b) Iraqi staff who formerly worked for the Government; and if he will make a statement. [158276]

David Miliband: The total cost of the assistance scheme will vary according to take-up and the forms of assistance chosen by individuals.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of progress in implementing the UN Security Council resolution on the future of Kosovo; and if he will make a statement; [158023]

(2) what assessment he has made of the progress of the Contact Group in resolving the future of Kosovo; and if he will make a statement. [158025]

Mr. Jim Murphy: UN Security Council Resolution 1244 provides a framework for a political process to decide Kosovo's future status. That process is ongoing. The UN Special Envoy for Kosovo submitted a comprehensive proposal for a status settlement on 26 March 2007. This was accepted by Pristina, but rejected by Belgrade. As a further effort to achieve a negotiated settlement, the Contact Group established a Troika whose task is to facilitate a period of further discussion between the parties. The Troika process will be concluded by the Contact Group reporting to the UN Secretary-General by 10 December.

Contact Group Ministers met in New York on 27 September. They reiterated that an early resolution of Kosovo's status is crucial to the stability and security of the Western Balkans. They endorsed fully the UN Secretary-General's assessment that the status quo is not sustainable. They expressed full support for the Troika process.

Mercenaries

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 October 2007, Official Report, on private military security companies, which private military security companies have been employed by the Government in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; what monitoring of those companies and their actions is carried out by the Government; under what terms the Government can terminate a contract; how many times private military security companies employed by the Government in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan were involved in weapons fire which has resulted in civilian casualties in each year since 2003; and if he will make a statement. [157810]

David Miliband: The following private security companies have been contracted to provide security services in Iraq and Afghanistan during this period:

Iraq—Armorgroup, Control Risks and Garda World (former Kroll Security Group); Afghanistan—Armorgroup and Edinburgh International.

All of these contracts are subject to continuous performance monitoring and contract management by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and other Government Departments concerned, both in country on-the-ground and from the UK, in respect of all aspects of the delivery and operation of these contracts.

In line with normal practice the Government can terminate these contracts, in whole or part, in a situation where the company is in default e.g. if it breaches any obligation under the contract, or in the event of the company becoming insolvent or of a change of control over the company, or for the Government's convenience in line with a pre-defined period of notice.

The companies contracted by the Government have never been involved in weapons fire which has resulted in civilian casualties in either Iraq or Afghanistan, from 2003 to the present.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Government's objectives for the forthcoming international Conference on the middle east peace process to be held by the United States of America. [158271]

David Miliband: The upcoming US-hosted international meeting will be key to moving the peace process forward. As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister told the House on 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 24:

"we would like to see an agreement that puts the Israelis and Palestinians on a path to real negotiations in 2008, leading to a final settlement of two states living side by side in peace and security."

Nigeria: Elections

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what records the Government holds on the role of UK Government agencies in post-independence elections in Nigeria; and if he will make a statement. [158448]

Mr. Jim Murphy: From the search tools available to us we understand that all Foreign and Commonwealth Office (or its preceding departments) information selected for permanent preservation relating to the post-independence elections held in Nigeria in December 1964 and March 1965, and any UK Government Agency role in them, are held in The National Archives. The National Archives Catalogue showed the following documents as relevant: D035/10462, C0657 and C0592.

Palestinians: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2007, Official Report, columns 2212-3W, on Palestinians: politics and government, what decisions have been made on the future UK contribution to strengthening the Palestinian security forces; and if he will make a statement. [157532]

David Miliband: As my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East said previously, we are committed to security sector reform and will continue to work with President Abbas and Prime Minister Fayyad to strengthen the Palestinian security forces. We welcome the steps that the Palestinian Authority (PA) has taken to improve security and stand ready to help where we can.

We are working closely with the PA and the US security coordinator, General Dayton. We continue to provide a police adviser, training adviser and military liaison officer to his team. We fully support the EU civil police training mission and welcome its proposed expansion. We are currently reviewing our support to the security sector and are working with the PA and international partners to identify opportunities. We will keep the House informed.

Poland: Homosexuality

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his (a) European Union and (b) Council of Europe counterparts on Poland's adherence to human rights and equality obligations, with particular reference to the position of homosexuals; what the outcome was of these discussions; and if he will make a statement. [154184]

David Miliband: I have not discussed this issue with EU and Council of Europe counterparts.

Despite statements made by the former Education Minister, Roman Giertych, on gay rights, the current government has not passed any laws or introduced any policies that discriminate against homosexuals. For the last two years, gay rights marches have taken place in Warsaw without incident.

The EU has a number of institutions and mechanisms designed to protect citizens' human rights. Poland is a member of the EU and the Council of Europe, and as a signatory to the European Convention on Human Rights is obliged to adhere to its provisions.

The UK also plays a full role in the Council of Europe in helping to ensure uniformity of the application and implementation of Human Rights throughout Europe including EU member states.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the situation in (a) Darfur and (b) Kordofan. [157368]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Sudan remains a top international priority for the UK. The UN Security Council unanimously agreed a UK sponsored resolution authorising a hybrid UN and African Union (AU) peacekeeping force. The UN and AU have also set a date for political talks for Darfur in Libya at the end of this month.

Despite this, the situation in Darfur remains precarious. In recent days, there has been more violence against the people of Darfur and against the AU peacekeepers sent there to protect them. Humanitarian access is shrinking.

We are pressing the UN and AU to deploy the hybrid force fully, rapidly and effectively. We have called on all parties to the conflict to cease hostilities in Darfur, not to escalate regional tensions by mounting attacks in Kordofan or any other region outside Darfur, and attend political talks starting later this month.

We have a responsibility to show the people of Darfur the benefits of peace. We have made clear that when political and security conditions are right, we will work with others in the international community to ensure there is a viable recovery programme for Darfur that enables people to rebuild their lives.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to assist in bringing peace to Abyei in Sudan. [157371]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government are working with the UN on an early recovery strategy for conflict areas between North and South Sudan such as Abyei. This would be implemented once both sides agree the demarcation of Abyei.

However, the National Congress Party and Sudan People's Liberation Movement have failed to agree a solution for Abyei.

We have raised Abyei in our contacts with the Government of Sudan and through our membership of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement implementation oversight body—the Assessment and Evaluation Commission.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with contributing nations to the African Union Force to persuade them not to withdraw troops from the African Union Mission in Sudan force in Darfur. [157370]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Although many countries contributing troops to the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS), were justifiably concerned by the recent attacks against AMIS troops in Darfur, none have publicly stated they will withdraw troops from Darfur in response. We are in regular contact with African and other potential troop contributors to the African Union/United Nations hybrid peacekeeping force for Darfur, to facilitate rapid and effective deployment of the force.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK has made to the Government of Sudan on implementing the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement with the full deployment of Eastern Front troops; and what further steps have been taken to ensure the integration and rehabilitation of the troops. [158153]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We regularly raise the implementation of the Eastern Sudan Peace Agreement with Government of Sudan officials in Khartoum.

UN Development Programme has completed the registration of troops for 'Demobilisation, Disarmament and Re-integration' and is now drawing up an economic mapping and reintegration strategy, after which it will seek funding from donors.

Tibet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 534W, on Tibet, what estimate he has made of the proportion of applications from journalists for permission to enter Tibet which have been successful. [159320]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware of any unsuccessful applications from foreign correspondents seeking permission to enter Tibet. However, a small number of journalists have reported harassment or attempts to restrict reporting by security officials once in Tibet. We continue to urge the Chinese Government to ensure the new regulations for foreign correspondents are fully implemented across the whole of China, including in Tibet.

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to prepare a long-term economic recovery package for Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [157386]

David Miliband: The current economic crisis is the direct result of poor economic policies implemented by the government of Zimbabwe. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said that Britain is ready to contribute its share to supporting recovery in Zimbabwe. We are working with the international donor community and with multinational institutions to promote a co-ordinated approach. This will include measures to stabilise the economy and move towards sustainable recovery, reduce Zimbabwe's debt, help skilled people return, renovate schools and hospitals and support fair land reform. But Zimbabwe would need to implement fundamental policy and administrative reforms before the UK and the international community could credibly provide such assistance.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the political situation in Zimbabwe and the risks to civilians who oppose the Zimbabwe Government; and if he will make a statement. [158045]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The political situation in Zimbabwe is appalling and the economic situation dire. President Mugabe rules by force and fear. We, along with EU partners, regularly raise our concerns with the government about their catastrophic economic policies and systematic human rights' violations, including torture and arbitrary arrest; and the brutal consequences for those who oppose President Mugabe's regime. We will continue to offer support to human rights defenders, through programme funding and by attending trials and visiting victims of abuse in hospital. We will also continue to work with our international partners to encourage policy change in Zimbabwe and to provide humanitarian aid to keep vulnerable Zimbabweans alive.

Zimbabwe: Travel Restrictions

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether it is the Government's policy that Zimbabwean Reserve Bank Governor Gideon Gono be put on the EU list of those subject to an EU travel ban and assets freeze. [157522]

David Miliband: We have already argued for Gideon Gono to be added to the EU list and will do so again. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has excluded Gono from the UK.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Arm's Length Management Organisation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local ballots have been held on whether local authorities should convert their housing department to an arm's length management organisation; and what the result of each ballot was, including the percentage of those balloted voting for each option. [157320]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table lists which ALMOs have held ballots and the percentage of those balloted in favour of establishing an ALMO.

Balance of Funding Review: Expenditure

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total cost was to the public purse of the Balance of Funding Review. [157636]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 30 June 2005, Official Report, column 1655W.

City Hall: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Government Office for London's estimate was of the total cost to the public purse of the Greater London Authority's City Hall over the duration of the 25 year lease, based on the final contract signed by her Department's predecessor. [157690]

Mr. Dhanda: In January 2000, the then Secretary of State for Environment, Transport and the Regions signed an agreement with the developers of More London for the procurement of the City Hall as the headquarters of the Greater London Authority. This agreement set out the annual rent payable for City Hall, which amounts to a total of £171.2 million over the 25 year lease—£6.5 million a year on average.

Community Development: Non-Profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authority local enterprise growth initiative bids included social enterprise in each round. [156817]

John Healey: Social enterprise can play a central and important part in promoting enterprise and assisting regeneration. Bidders for local enterprise growth initiative funding were therefore asked to consider how their proposals might support the development of social enterprise and how elements of their bid might be delivered through social business models. The majority of bids featured elements on developing social enterprise.

Copies of the successful bids for both rounds one and two can be found on our website at:

www.neighbourhood.gov.uk/legi.

Council Tax: Fire Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average fire authority precept on Band D council tax was in England in each year since individual precepts were created. [157480]

John Healey: Details of the average fire authority precept for Band D two-adult properties in England since individual precepts were introduced are as follows:

	Metropolitan fire authorities	Combined fire and rescue authorities
1998-99	27	—
1999-2000	30	—
2000-01	32	—
2001-02	34	—
2002-03	36	—
2003-04	42	—
2004-05	45	53
2005-06	47	55
2006-07	49	58
2007-08	51	60

Prior to 2004-05, combined fire and rescue authorities were funded through grants from county councils, and not through a separate council tax precept.

The data are collected on Budget Requirement returns submitted annually by all billing and precepting authorities in England.

Council Tax: Grants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assumed council tax collection rate is used by her Department in the grant distribution formula; and whether this assumed rate varies according to the type of local authority; [157675]

(2) whether councils which have poor (a) council tax and (b) business rates collection rates receive lower total funding after the adjustments of equalisation; and whether councils with above-average collection rates are allowed to keep the additional income after the adjustments of equalisation. [157698]

John Healey: No assumptions are made about an authority's collection rates of either council tax or business rates in the distribution to them of formula grant. Formula grant consists of Revenue Support Grant and redistributed National Non-Domestic Rates and, where appropriate, principal formula Police Grant.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister spent on preparing for the council tax revaluation in England prior to its postponement. [157559]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 25 October 2005, Official Report, column 327W.

Debts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the average level of household debt. [157620]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question on average household debt. (157620)

Published figures identifying households separately in the National Accounts are not available and are only produced combined with non-profit institutions serving households.

Annual estimates of total UK households have only been available since 1996; previously up to 1991 they were produced decennially.

Departments: Consultants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on external public relations consultants and companies in the last 24 months; and for what purposes. [157689]

Mr. Dhanda: Over the last 24 months, Communities and Local Government has spent £1.2 million on public relations activity to help meet our obligation to inform the public of changes in the law, and their rights and responsibilities.

This includes work to support the Department's Fire Safety campaign to reduce the number of deaths and serious injuries caused by domestic fires, activity to support the campaign to encourage members of the public to use the online services provided by local authorities, and media coverage of the introduction of the Tenancy Deposit scheme to protect tenants from unscrupulous landlords.

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what contingency preparations her Department made for the possibility of a general election being held in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157053]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 11 October 2007]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 15 October 2007, Official Report column 822W.

Departments: ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistant devices her Department and its predecessors have bought for the use of departmental Ministers following each Cabinet reshuffle since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [156739]

Mr. Dhanda: After the 2005 election and up to the 2006 Cabinet reshuffle there were one laptop, seven mobile telephones and one PDA purchased for use by ODPM Ministers.

After the 2006 Cabinet reshuffle and up to the 2007 Cabinet reshuffle there were one laptop, one mobile phone and four PDAs purchased for use by Communities Ministers.

After the 2007 Cabinet reshuffle and to date there were one laptop, one mobile phone and one PDA purchased for use by Communities Ministers.

Providing figures for periods prior to the 2005 election would incur disproportionate costs.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many websites her Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running her Department's websites in the last five years. [157861]

Mr. Dhanda: During 2005 we had 22 unique websites plus 13 separately hosted sub-domains. As at 31 August 2007 the Department operated 16 unique websites and six separately hosted sub-domains.

To produce annual costs for all the Department's websites for each of the last five years would incur disproportionate cost. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 4 July 2006, Official Report, column 958W to the hon. Member for Wealden (Charles Hendry) for the list of websites under the Department's responsibility, and the annual running costs of those sites.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by her Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157862]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not centrally hold web usage statistics for all of its websites. Based on those sites where figures are held centrally and using the monthly unique visitor figures, the most frequently visited site is the corporate website: www.communities.gov.uk, which averaged 247,839 unique visitors per month from January to June 2007 and the least frequently visited site was the specialist local government site Best Value Performance Indicators: www.bvpi.gov.uk, which averaged 350 unique visitors per month over the same period.

Departments: Location

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many full-time equivalent posts in her Department have been relocated out of London and the South East in the last 12 months; in which divisions; and to what locations. [157670]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department have relocated 65 full-time equivalent posts outside of London and the South East since 1 October 2006. All these posts were relocated by our non-departmental public bodies (Audit Commission, 25 posts relocated to Bristol and 40 Standards Board for England posts relocated to Manchester).

Departments: Manpower

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by her Department in (a) April 2006 and (b) April 2007. [157669]

Mr. Dhanda: Staffing levels are measured as at the last day of each quarter. The Department for Communities and Local Government came into being on 5 May 2006. As at 31 March 2006 the predecessor Department, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, employed 2,348 full-time equivalent staff and at 31 March 2007 the Central Department for Communities and Local Government employed a total of 2,244 full-time equivalent staff. This does not include the Government Offices or the Department's Agencies.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were employed by her Department and its predecessor on 1 January in each of the last five years; and how many of these staff were (a) permanent employees, (b) temporary staff and (c) contractors. [158329]

Mr. Dhanda: Statistics on staffing levels are collected as at the last day of each quarter. The numbers of staff in the Central Department for Communities and Local Government, and its predecessor, Office of Deputy Prime Minister on 31 December of each year are shown in the following table. This does not include staff in the Government Offices or the Department's Agencies.

	FTE[1]
31 December	Permanent employees	Temporary staff	Total
2002	2,246	36	2,282
2003	2,350	77	2,427
2004	2,350	111	2,461
2005	2,317	77	2,394
2006	2,304	51	2,355

[1] Full-time equivalent.

Figures exclude those on unpaid absence from the Department. Temporary staff are those employed on fixed term contracts. They do not include temporary staff from agencies, contractors or consultants.

Contractors are employed on a number of contracts throughout the Department. Contracts are monitored by cost and no records of contractor staffing levels are held centrally.

Elections: Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for her Department (a) to consult on and (b) to decide whether to use the powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill if enacted to move the date of the May 2009 local elections to June 2009. [157478]

John Healey: No decisions have been taken as to whether, and if so how, to use the powers which may be available if the Bill is enacted to move the date of the 2009 local elections to coincide with the 2009 European elections.

Equal Opportunities Commission: Manpower

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 March 2007, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles), Official Report, column 1215W, on the Equal Opportunities Commission: manpower, what steps the Commission is taking to tackle the under-representation of men amongst employees of the Commission. [156245]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

The Equal Opportunities Commission was dissolved on the 1 October 2007. The roles and responsibilities of the Equal Opportunities Commission will be taken forward by the Equality and Human Rights Commission.

Fire Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which fire authorities in England and Wales have tri-service centres. [157657]

Mr. Dhanda: Currently only Gloucestershire and Wiltshire have tri-service centres.

Homelessness

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the Government defines people as being homeless. [157409]

Mr. Iain Wright: Sections 175 to 178 of the Housing Act 1996 define the circumstances when a person is statutorily homeless. Broadly, this provides that a person is homeless if they do not have accommodation that they have a legal right to occupy, which is accessible and physically available to them (and their household) and which it would be reasonable for them to continue to live in. It would not be reasonable for someone to continue to live in their home, for example, if that was likely to lead to violence against them (or a member of their family).

"Guidance on evaluating the extent of rough sleeping (2007 Revision)", which the Department has published for the purposes of local authority rough sleeping counts, advises that the following should be considered as 'rough sleeping':

"People sleeping, or bedded down, in the open air (such as on streets, or in doorways, parks or bus shelters); people in buildings or other places not designed for habitation (such as barns, sheds, car parks, cars, derelict boats, stations, or "bashes")"

"Guidance on evaluating the extent of rough sleeping" has no statutory force.

Homelessness: Females

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if her Department will revise the Homelessness Code of Guidance for local authorities to classify women fleeing domestic violence as unintentionally homeless and in priority need. [157402]

Mr. Iain Wright: The "Homelessness Code of Guidance for Local Authorities" provides guidance in respect of women fleeing domestic violence which accords with legislation and case law. Under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996), a person is homeless if they have accommodation available but it would not be reasonable for them to continue to occupy it. It is not considered reasonable for a person to continue to occupy accommodation if it is probable that this will lead to domestic violence or other violence against that person (or against someone who normally resides as a member of that person's family, or any other person who might reasonably be expected to reside with that person).

In 2002 the Government extended, by Order, the categories of housing applicant who has a priority need for accommodation. These include a person who is vulnerable as a result of ceasing to occupy accommodation because of violence from another person or threats of violence from another person which are likely to be carried out.

Broadly, the Code of Guidance states that a person fleeing a probability of violence is not to be considered intentionally homeless even if they were aware of measures that could have been taken to prevent or mitigate the risk of violence but decided not to take them.

Homelessness: Floods

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people remain displaced from their homes due to the floods in June and July. [158148]

John Healey: The information requested on how many people remain displaced from their homes due to the floods in June and July 2007 is not held centrally.

The latest estimate of the total number of households that remain in alternative accommodation due to the floods in June and July is 2,740. This figure is based on the information that has been provided by local authorities and may not include those households who have made private arrangements or those who have secured alternative accommodation through their insurance companies.

Housing: Armed Forces

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) when she plans to make it a requirement for local authorities to accept applications from members of HM armed forces for social housing on leaving the services; and if she will make a statement; [157786]

(2) what steps she is taking to ensure that local authorities do not discriminate against members of HM armed forces applying for social housing who have left the services earlier than the period for which they had signed up. [157788]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities are required to consider every application for housing accommodation including those from a member of HM armed forces, provided it is made in accordance with the procedural requirements of their allocation scheme. Furthermore, local authorities must treat every applicant as eligible for an allocation of accommodation, with the exception of certain persons from abroad specified in regulations; and persons whom an authority decides to treat as ineligible because they (or a member of their household) have been guilty of unacceptable behaviour serious enough to make them unsuitable to be a tenant of the authority.

The hon. Member in asking the question is perhaps referring to the application of "local connection" in respect of the allocation of social housing under the Housing Act 1996. At the moment members of the armed forces cannot establish a local connection with the area in which they are stationed or work. This can put the members of the armed forces at a disadvantage where a local authority takes account of local connection in its allocation scheme.

In this respect I refer the hon. Member to the written statement made on 21 June 2007, Official Report, column 108WS, by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning in which it was announced that we would make the necessary changes to housing legislation, at the earliest opportunity, to ensure that service personnel are put on an equal footing with other people when applying for an allocation of social housing.

The fact that a person may have left the services earlier than the period for which he or she signed up is not a relevant factor in determining their eligibility or priority for an allocation of social housing.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many individuals obtained a tenancy of social housing without holding an existing social housing tenancy in each year since 1997. [155989]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities in England report the number of lettings in their annual Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. Registered social landlords record the number of lettings on their CORE lettings logs. These two data sources together give the total number of new social lettings in England to tenants entering the social rented housing sector in each year since 1997, as at 1 April each year.

The total number of new social lettings to new social housing tenants in England from the Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns and CORE lettings logs in each year since 1997 are provided in table 1 and table 2. Due to different data collection processes, these data sources are not necessarily directly comparable.

Housing: Prices

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average price for a (a) house, (b) detached house and (c) flat was in each local authority area in England and Wales in (i) April 1991, (ii) May 1997 and (iii) the most recent period for which figures are available, according to Land Registry data. [158196]

Mr. Iain Wright: HM Land Registry data for 1991 is unavailable.

A table presenting HM Land Registry data on the (a) average house price, (b) average price for a detached house and (c) average price for a flat by local authority area for May 1997 and March 2007 (provisional) has been placed in the Library of the House.

Housing: Rural Areas

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the target of 50 homes set by the West Midlands Regional Housing Board for settlements of less than 10,000 for the three year comprehensive spending review period in addressing housing need in those rural areas. [157400]

Mr. Iain Wright: The target set by the Regional Housing Board of 50 homes was set prior to the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 (CSR07) announced by the Chancellor on 9 October. West Midlands' assessment of need for affordable housing was based on the allocation received for the 2006 to 2008 funding period. There was the anticipation that the strategy would need to be revisited once the final CSR07 allocation is known.

On 16 October my right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Housing, announced a £10.2 billion package for housing and we anticipate that this will support a 50 per cent. increase in annual social rents outputs by 2010-11 in comparison with this year (2007-08) in addition to other measures to tackle the need for affordable housing.

In the Housing Green Paper, we announced that we would be establishing a national target for rural affordable housing across the three years 2008 to 2011. With this in mind, my Department is working with the regional assemblies to assess need for rural affordable housing in their areas and what provision should be in the light of the CSR settlement.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the target of 65 homes set by the East of England Regional Housing Board for settlements of less than 10,000 for the three year comprehensive spending review period in addressing housing need in those rural areas. [157401]

Mr. Iain Wright: The target set by the East of England Regional Housing Board of 65 homes was set prior to the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 (CSR07) announced by the Chancellor on 9 October. The East of England's assessment of need for affordable housing was based on the level of funding received for the 2006 to 2008 funding period and projected forward to arrive at an indicative allocation for 2008 to 2011.

On 16 October my right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Housing, announced a £10.2 billion package for housing and we anticipate that this will support a 50 per cent. increase in annual social rents outputs by 2010-11 in comparison with this year (2007-08) in addition to other measures to tackle the need for affordable housing.

In the Housing Green Paper, we announced that we would be establishing a national target for rural affordable housing across the three years 2008 to 2011. With this in mind, my Department is working with the regional assemblies to assess need for rural affordable housing in their areas and what provision should be in the light of the CSR settlement.

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Valuation Office Agency's value significant codes of (a) ZL, (b) ZI and (c) ZH have a (i) positive and (ii) negative co-efficient applied to the variable in the multiple regression formula used in its automated valuation model. [155693]

John Healey: Coefficients are not applied to a variable in the multiple regression formula. Multiple regression analysis determines whether an attribute is statistically significant in explaining an element of variation in the price achieved in a property transaction. Whether a positive or negative coefficient results for any attribute will vary (a) each time analysis of sales information is undertaken (b) from area to area and (c) between property types (e.g. flats and houses).

Land use

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department and its agencies have made of the amount and proportion of land-banking by property developers in the form of not initiating developments which have been granted planning permission. [157680]

Mr. Iain Wright: There is no centrally held information from which we could estimate the amount and proportion of 'land banking' by property developers.

Local Authorities: Accountability

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the powers of redress for local residents in relation to services provided by local authorities. [157488]

John Healey: The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill contains a provision to take forward the Community Call for Action mechanism which contains a statutory process for ward councillors to act on concerns from the local community to resolve problems with local government services.

As part of the "Governance of Britain" Green Paper the Government committed to consulting on ways of increasing citizen's powers of redress to scrutinise and improve the delivery of local services and to consider a duty that requires local authorities to consider and investigate petitions from local communities.

Local Authorities: Grants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what use is made of damping mechanisms in the allocation of formula grants to local authorities; and if she will make a statement. [157666]

John Healey: Within the local government finance settlements for 2006-07 and 2007-08, there are two damping sub-blocks within the Relative Needs

Formulae—one for Children's Social Care and one for Younger Adults' Personal Social Services.

We also use floor damping in the final calculation of formula grant.

Local Authorities: Non-Profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to ensure local authorities support social enterprise. [156844]

John Healey: The Department launched a third sector strategy discussion paper on 7 June which included consideration of the need of third sector organisations for more sustainable forms of investment and improvements in local partnership working.

More than 150 written responses have been received. Over 450 delegates took part in eight regional consultation events on the paper. In addition, the responses received are being considered and we aim to publish a final strategy, including propositions of how the Department and local authorities can work in partnership and support the third sector, including social enterprises.

Local Authorities: Petitions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to introduce legislation to introduce a duty on local authorities to consider petitions. [157467]

John Healey: As the recently published; "Governance of Britain" Green Paper states, the Government are considering introducing a duty that requires local authorities to consider and investigate petitions from local communities, and guarantees petitioners and the wider community a response on the issues which have been raised. We intend to consult about this in the near future.

Local Authorities: Public Participation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether she plans to introduce legislation to require local ballots on spending decisions by local authorities; [157465]

(2) whether she plans to require local authorities to implement citizens' juries. [157472]

John Healey: In the recently published "Governance of Britain" Green Paper the Government announced their desire to help create active citizens and empowered communities who are fully engaged in local decision-making. As part of this process the Government have proposed a number of ideas to debate and consult on, including introducing powers to ballot on spending decisions and consulting on major decisions through mechanisms such as Citizen's Juries.

Local Authorities: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets her Department sets for local authorities, including under the public service agreement, local area agreement and best value performance indicator regimes, in relation to the (a) number of benefit awards and (b) number of unclaimed benefits. [157683]

John Healey: Neither Communities and Local Government nor the Department for Work and Pensions sets targets for local authorities on the number of benefit awards and the number of unclaimed benefits. Local authorities may, if they wish, include targets on these issues in their local area agreements (including for reward) which are agreed with central Government.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date she expects the next Local Government Finance Settlement statement to take place. [157667]

John Healey: The date of the statement will be announced by the Leader of the House in due course.

Local Government Finance: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of local government revenue expenditure in England was financed through council tax in each year since 1996-97. [157641]

John Healey: Outturn information for years up to 2005-06 can be found in Table 3.5c of Local Government Financial Statistics England No. 17 2007 at the following web address:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/lgfs/2007/index.htm.

Local Government: Cooperation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for a concordat between local and central Government. [157468]

John Healey: The "Governance of Britain" Green Paper contains a commitment that the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (CLG) will work with the Local Government Association (LGA) to establish a concordat to govern the relations between central and local government. Discussions between CLG and the LGA are ongoing. CLG will provide further detail about publication of the concordat in due course.

Local Government: Elections

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government have to use powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Bill, if enacted, to delay the date of the May 2009 local elections. [158073]

John Healey: No decisions have been taken as to whether, and if so how, to use the powers which may be available if the Bill is enacted to move the date of the 2009 local elections to coincide with the 2009 European elections.

Local Government: Television Channels

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what expenditure has been incurred to date by her Department on the Local Government Today television channel. [155710]

Mr. Dhanda: As at 3 October 2007 no publicity expenditure has been incurred by Communities and Local Government on the Local Government Today television channel.

Mobile Phones: Aerials

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will amend planning guidance on mobile telephone masts to make disclosure of mast locations and power levels to a Sitefinder website or equivalent a condition of planning permission. [157501]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have no plans to amend planning guidance in this way. The Government and the Office of Communications (Ofcom) remain committed to the principles underlying Sitefinder.

Each of the mobile network operators is in discussion with Ofcom and the Government on the future provision of data to Sitefinder so that members of the public will continue to be able to access information about the location of base stations in their neighbourhood.

Non-Domestic Rates: Assessment

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the internal guidance used by the Valuation Office Agency on undertaking assessment casework for non-domestic rates valuations. [152527]

John Healey: A copy of the relevant instruction and guidance to Valuation Office Agency staff on undertaking assessment casework for business rates has been placed in the Library.

Planning

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received on the Planning White Paper. [157442]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Planning White Paper covered a wide variety of issues and included a number of questions upon which we went to consultation. This closed on 17 August 2007. We received over 30,000 responses which we are currently in the process of analysing. The Government will produce a summary of responses, including next steps, shortly. However, Ministers continue to receive a range of letters and other representations on the issues raised in the Planning White Paper.

Planning Gain Supplement

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government have spent on preparatory work carried out on the planning gain supplement; and if she will make a statement. [158013]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

HM Treasury, HM Revenue and Customs, and the Department for Communities and Local Government have undertaken preliminary work since 2004 to develop and explore the feasibility of a planning gain supplement. This has included the publication of one consultation document alongside the 2005 pre-Budget report and three consultation documents alongside the 2006 pre-Budget report. The costs incurred have been borne by the respective Departments as part of the normal policy development process.

Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department and its agencies have made of the proportion of residential planning applications granted each year which are not commenced. [157679]

Mr. Iain Wright: There is no estimate centrally available but the Government are keen to see faster take up and commencement of planning permissions granted for housing development. We have recently reduced the period for which a planning permission remains valid from five years to three years. We have also made it clear in planning policy that there is no presumption that planning permission will be renewed in the case where an applicant is seeking, in effect, to renew a permission that has expired.

In our Housing Green Paper: "Homes for the Future; more affordable, more sustainable" we said that we would consider whether further measures are needed to incentivise developers to build out major housing development sites more quickly through the development control process. We shall also want to take account of anything that John Calcutt says in the independent review of house-building delivery we asked him to undertake. He is due to report on this shortly.

Planning: Agriculture

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in respect of which local plans, broken down by Government Office of the Region, she has made a direction, under paragraph 1(3) of Schedule 8 to the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, to not save a local plan policy of protecting the best and most versatile agricultural land. [157347]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following local authorities' requests to extend saved policies specifically aimed at protecting the "best and most versatile" (BMV) agricultural land were not agreed by the Secretary of State:

South East

Bracknell Forest
Chiltern
Crawley
Guildford
Hart
Medway
Runnymede
Wycombe

South West

Restormel
Torbay

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made to planning policy on the protection of the best and most versatile agricultural land since May 1997. [157447]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's planning policy on best and most versatile (BMV) agricultural land is set out in "Planning Policy Statement 7: Sustainable development in rural areas" (PPS7), published in August 2004. PPS7 replaced "Planning Policy Guidance note 7: The Countryside, Environmental Quality and Economic and Social Development" (PPG7), published in February 1997, which included policy guidance on (BMV) agricultural land.

PPG7 said that, within the principles of sustainable development, BMV agricultural land (defined as grades 1, 2 and 3a) should be protected as a national resource for future generations and its development should not be permitted before opportunities had been assessed for using previously developed or lower grade land.

In December 2000 the Government's Rural White Paper "Our Countryside: the future", signalled that policy affecting planning decisions relating to BMV land should be changed. The White Paper said that decisions about proposed development affecting BMV agricultural land should take account of the overall value of the land and that agricultural quality should be treated only as one factor. It therefore proposed that BMV agricultural land should no longer be protected as a national agricultural resource and that decisions about proposed development affecting such land should left to local planning authorities. It also proposed that powers for the Minister of Agriculture to intervene in decisions on BMV agricultural land should be repealed.

PPG7 was subsequently amended by a parliamentary answer given by the then planning Minister the right hon. Member for Greenwich and Woolwich (Mr. Raynsford) on 21 March 2001 to reflect the White Paper's policy proposals.

These policy changes were carried forward into PPS7. This asks local authorities that the presence of BMV agricultural land should be taken into account alongside other sustainability considerations when determining planning applications. The policy also says that where significant development of agricultural land is unavoidable, local planning authorities should seek to use areas of poorer quality land in preference to that of a higher quality, except where this would be inconsistent with other sustainability considerations. If any undeveloped agricultural land needs to be developed, the policy requires any adverse effects on the environment should be minimised.

Planning: Crime Prevention

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what consultation her Department has undertaken with the police on the new planning application form planned for use nationally from April 2008; [158052]

(2) if she will require the inclusion of a question on crime prevention measures in the new standard planning application form. [158053]

Mr. Iain Wright: Consultation proposals for the standard planning application form were published in March 2005.

The form does not include a question on crime prevention measures. The form cannot be changed at this stage as some local planning authorities are using it before it becomes mandatory on 6 April 2008.

Local planning authorities should have regard to Planning Policy Statement 1: Sustainable Development which states that their policies should ensure that developments create safe environments where crime or fear of crime does not undermine quality of life.

Property: Public Sector

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties are held on the Register of Surplus Public Sector Land database; and what property attributes are recorded for each property. [158407]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Register for Surplus Public Sector Land is managed by English Partnerships on behalf of Government. It identifies land held centrally by central Government and their agencies that is surplus to operational requirements. The register allows a 40-day period for public bodies to express an interest in an area of land prior to it being marketed more widely. The most recent version of the register was published on 30 September 2007 and is available at:

www.englishpartnerships.co.uk/rspsl.htm

This provides site information by county, local authority, originating body, nearest town and area. The information provided about individual properties is the site area and a short description or location. To date around 70 public sector bodies have supplied details of more than 750 sites, totalling around 5,000 hectares of land.

Race Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to which organisations or individuals the Preventing Extremism Unit has made grants of less than £100,000 since June. [158619]

Mr. Dhanda: Since June 2007 the Preventing Extremism Unit has made direct grants of less than £100,000 to:

Organisation	£
Business in the Community (BITC)	70,000
Common Purpose	40,000
Muslim Youth Helpline	35,000
Muslim Youth Development Partnership, made up of:	40,000
Karimia Institute (grant recipient)
Crime Concern Muslim Hands
Sizanani Africa	20,000

No grants have been made to individuals.

Regional Development Agencies: Planning Gain Supplement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether it is the Government's intention that regional development agencies will keep part of the revenues raised from planning gain supplement. [157502]

Mr. Iain Wright: The 2007 pre-Budget report announced on 9 October that legislation implementing the planning gain supplement will not be introduced in the next parliamentary Session. Instead, the Government intend to legislate in the forthcoming Planning Reform Bill to empower local planning authorities in England to apply new planning charges to new development, alongside negotiated agreements for site-specific matters. The ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning, also on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 25WS, set out further details of the new planning charge.

Smoking: Enforcement

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedures she has in place for (a) recording and (b) proceeding against (i) ministers and (ii) staff who breach the ban on smoking in enclosed public places; and if she will make a statement. [157515]

Mr. Dhanda: Staff in Communities and Local Government who breach the ban on smoking in enclosed public spaces would be dealt with under the Department's disciplinary rules. All penalties given to staff under the disciplinary rules are recorded. Staff in Communities and Local Government smoking in areas in or around its buildings where it is prohibited would be asked by security staff to move to an acceptable location. Any who might refuse or who repeatedly try to smoke in a such an area would be reported for disciplinary action.

Speeches: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the presentation, speech and handouts produced by her Department's representatives at the Institute of Revenues Rating and Valuation Annual Conference on 10 October 2007 on the challenge of GC and e-connectivity to enable transformation. [157497]

John Healey: A copy of the presentation made by Balraj Sandhu, Senior Business and Stakeholder Manager Government Connect Programme of Communities and Local Government, at the Institute of Revenues Rating and Valuation Annual Conference on 10 October 2007 is available on the Government Connect website, www.govconnect.gov.uk.

Standards Board for England: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget of the (a) Standards Board for England and (b) Adjudication Panel is for (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2008-09. [157624]

John Healey: The Department has agreed to provide the Standards Board with grant funding of £9.371 million for 2007-08. This includes a sum of £515,000 to meet the operational costs of the Adjudication Panel. An additional payment of £599,000 in 2007-08 has been agreed in respect of the costs relating to the Standards Board's relocation from London to Manchester.

No decisions have been taken in respect of the grant to be allocated to the Standards Board for 2008-09.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 25 July 2007, Official Report, column 1156W, on the Valuation Office, on what aspects of domestic valuations Cole Layer Trumble are providing consultancy advice. [157553]

John Healey: Cole Layer Trumble are not providing any consultancy advice on domestic valuations.

PRIME MINISTER

Departments: Flowers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how much was spent by his Office on flowers in the last 12 months. [153160]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 17 October 2007, Official Report, column 1131W.

Departments: Recruitment

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister how many people have been appointed to his Office outside Civil Service grades in the last 30 days. [153162]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office (Gillian Merron) on 17 October 2007, Official Report, column 1132W.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Pay

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been (a) overpaid and (b) underpaid to military personnel stationed in (i) Afghanistan and (ii) elsewhere through the Joint Personnel Administration system in 2007. [154548]

Derek Twigg: The number of over and underpayments resulting from Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system errors in 2007 can be provided, although the information requested for Afghanistan and elsewhere is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The figures are:

Month	Overpaid	Underpaid	Total
January	161	1,383	1,544
February	70	0	70
March	229	54	283
April	13,908	252	14,160
May	3,340	1,181	4,521
June	0	90	90
July	2,978	416	3,394
August[1]	0	51,917	51,917

[1] Figures for August are subject to revision and refinement.

The increase in the number of overpayments in April was due primarily to transitional data errors from the Army legacy systems where elements were not picked up as expected by the JPA system. Records were corrected in time for the May payroll.

In August 35,553 incorrect payments of £3.00 were made to the discontinued RN and Royal Marines Dependants' Fund. The error has been corrected and the money will be re-credited to pay accounts in October.

In addition 16,364 underpayments of Home to Duty Travel claims for RN reservists occurred. The error has been corrected and the claims have reprocessed for payment in September.

Armed Forces: Personnel Management

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the full implementation of the Joint Personnel Administration project; and if he will make a statement. [154546]

Derek Twigg: The Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system is one of the most complex business change projects in either the private or public sector. It has been successfully rolled-out on time to all three Services; to the RAF from April 2006; to the RN from October 2006; and to the Army from March 2007.

Since the initial roll-out of JPA to the RAF much has been achieved to improve the quality of the service being provided and to address problems. Personnel are more familiar with the new system and the business processes that it supports. But we are still in a transitional phase and there will be a further period of 'bedding down' which is bound to highlight the need for further business process, technical and training changes.

JPA now provides a stable, modern platform to support our Services. However, like all major change programmes of this complexity it will take a period of further refinement in order to exploit its full potential. I remain fully committed to delivering an excellent pay and personnel administration service to our armed forces.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armoured vehicles are in service with the Army, broken down by type. [157042]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of armoured vehicles of each type that are in service with the Army as at 10 October 2007 are shown in the following table.

Vehicle type	Number in service in 2007
AS 90	146
Combat Engineer Tractor (CET)	78
Challenger 2 (CR 2) Fleet	345
Challenger Armoured Repair and Recovery Vehicle (CRARRV)	81
Combat Vehicle Reconnaissance (Tracked) (CVR(T)) Fleet	1118
FUCHS	11
FV432 Fleet	1492
Multiple Launch Rocket System (MLRS)	59
SAXON Fleet	413
SHIELDER	30
STORMER	148
TROJAN	14
TITAN	16
WARRIOR Fleet	385
VIKING	40

These figures include those armoured vehicles used for training and undergoing in depth maintenance. Not included are those vehicles considered 'protected' such as the MASTIFF protected patrol vehicles.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hits the (a) most popular and (b) the least popular website run by his Department has received since 1 January 2007. [157866]

Derek Twigg: Total page views for the most popular and the least popular websites run by the Ministry of Defence are as follows:

	Site + URL	Total page views (number of times individual pages in the site accessed)
Most popular	RAF: http://www.raf.mod.uk	[1]36.2 million
Least popular	MOD Art Collection: www.art.mod.uk	[2]2,000

[1] Figures for January—October 2007.
[2] Financial year 2006-07.

Military Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Mastiff vehicle will be (a) delivered to the UK and (b) shipped to theatre. [157077]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 202, during the Defence Procurement debate.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many of the ordered 140 Mastiff vehicles announced during the Prime Minister's statement on Iraq of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38, will be sent to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan; and by what date in each case; [157138]

(2) from which budget funding will be provided for the 140 additional Mastiff vehicles announced by the Prime Minister in his statement on Iraq update of 8 October 2007, Official Report, columns 21-38. [158389]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As I said during the procurement debate in the House on 9 October, the Defence budget will be funding the procurement of additional Mastiff vehicles. Although delivery schedules have not yet been confirmed, we anticipate that they will be deployed on operations within the next 18 months. The allocation of these vehicles to Iraq, Afghanistan and the UK based training fleet will be a matter for commanders.

RNAS Yeovilton

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future role of RNAS Yeovilton. [157593]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The future role of RNAS Yeovilton is currently being considered as part of Programme Belvedere, which was announced in 2006 and set up to conduct a study into the long term requirements for Joint Helicopter Command's helicopter bases in the UK, originally part of the MOD review of Defence Airfields.

Programme Belvedere's review is ongoing; consequently, no decisions have yet been taken on the future role of any of the bases included in the review. Once the programme has reached its conclusions, a ministerial announcement will be made. This is not expected before early 2009.

JUSTICE

Peterborough Prison: Drugs

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many seizures of illicit drugs have taken place at HMP Peterborough in each month since May 2005; and if he will make a statement. [159049]

Mr. Hanson: The answer is provided in the following table.

Repossession Orders: Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether an estimate has been made of the number of mortgage repossessions which would be classified as subprime mortgages. [158195]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not hold these figures. The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) publishes the total numbers of properties taken into possession, available at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/statistics

TRANSPORT

Bicycles: Accidents

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many traffic accidents there were involving cyclists in Peterborough constituency in each of the last five years. [158960]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one pedal cyclist in the Peterborough constituency in the last five years is shown in the following table.

Peterborough constituency

	Number of accidents
2002	72
2003	98
2004	78
2005	64
2006	62

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many websites her Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running her Department's websites in the last five years. [157921]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Current figures for the Department for Transport and its executive agencies are as follows:

80 operating websites have been identified, 71 of these have been listed for closure by end 2011 of which 17 have already closed.

The Department is currently undertaking a programme of website rationalisation under the Transformational Government Agenda. Figures for central Government Department websites were published in January this year in the Transformational Government Annual Report 2006 as part of the departmental website review (http://www.cio.gov.uk/transformational_government/annual_report_2006/). Updated figures were subsequently reported in the National Audit Office Government on the Internet Report published in July 2007. (http://www.governmentontheweb.org/access_reports.asp)

There is no central list of departmental sites that operated in January 2005 and to obtain such a retrospective list could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Estimated running costs for departmental sites where available, were previously provided to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 15 May 2007, Official Report, columns 648-49W. No additional information for running costs for the last five years is available.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which (a) identification documents and (b) driving licences are required to receive a full EU driving licence. [159664]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Driving licences issued in the UK conform to the format and standard laid out in the second EC directive on driver licensing (91/439/EEC) and are considered to be EU driving licences.

All applicants for a first driving licence must provide evidence of identity. This is usually a passport but, in instances where a passport is not available, alternative documentation will be considered. If there is any doubt concerning the applicant's identity, a licence will not be issued.

The holder of a full driving licence issued elsewhere within the EU/European economic area may apply to exchange their licence for a full UK licence. Driving licences from the following countries may also be exchanged: Australia, Barbados, British Virgin Islands, Canada, Faroe Islands, Falkland Islands, Hong Kong, Japan, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland and Zimbabwe. Any application to exchange a licence must be accompanied by evidence of identity.

I am unable to comment on the arrangements concerning identification checking for the issue of driving licences elsewhere in the European Union.

Internet: Standards

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department has made an assessment of the effectiveness of the website Arrive Alive. [159488]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Arrive Alive website's main aim is to promote the Arrive Alive programme to schools to deliver important road safety messages to schools and other organisations.

There is no assessment made on the effectiveness of the Arrive Alive website. However, during the months from 30 September 2006 to 30 September 2007 there were 50,877 visits to the website, which equate to 139 average daily visits. This shows a positive interest in the programme.

Railway Network

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her Department's latest estimate is of the cost of constructing a high speed rail line between London and Scotland via (a) the north-east and (b) the west midlands and the north-west. [160042]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The capital cost of constructing a new high speed railway line between London and Scotland is likely to be some £30 billion, whichever route is taken. Presently there is no justification case for such expenditure. Considerable improvements are already being made to the West Coast Main Line to accelerate Anglo-Scottish journey times for introduction in December 2008.

Road Safety Campaigns

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 21 November 2006, Official Report, columns 42-43, on road safety campaigns, how many hits the www.hedgehogs.gov.uk site received in each month since October 2006; and what further assessment of the effectiveness of the website has been conducted since November 2006. [159487]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of hits (total number of successful requests for pages) the hedgehogs website has received since October 2006 is set out in the table. As provided in November 2006, I have also enclosed the figures for the distinct number of hosts served.

As mentioned previously, the hedgehogs website is one medium within a broad mix of media channels such as online advertising, PR, partnership marketing and road safety materials used to raise awareness about road safety to children. Our advertising drives children to the hedgehogs site to engage them in more comprehensive road safety information in a fun and engaging way.

Visitor numbers to the site remain encouraging and given the growing proportion of children moving to the internet as their primary medium, we shall continue to use online advertising and web presence to help to boost road safety awareness among children.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Crime: Children

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed by children in Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years, broken down by type of offence. [158805]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available centrally. Details of the age of the offender are not collected in the recorded crime statistics.

Departments: Parliamentary Questions

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library copies of (a) written guidance and instructions provided to officials in her Department who draft parliamentary answers and (b) the declaration required to be made by such officials on submitting drafts for ministerial approval; and if she will make a statement. [156848]

Mr. McNulty: I have arranged for the relevant documents to be placed in the Library of the House.

Lancashire Constabulary: Manpower

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police are employed in Lancashire; and how many there were employed in 1997. [158654]

Mr. McNulty: The number of full-time equivalent police officers (rounded to the nearest whole number, excluding those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave) was 3,566 as at 31 March 2007. As at 31 March 1997 the figure was 3,248 on the same basis.

Metropolitan Police: Emergency Calls

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if she will make a statement on the performance of the Metropolitan police emergency call system; [155640]

(2) what assessment she has made of the performance of the Metropolitan police emergency call system on 20 July 2007; [155643]

Mr. McNulty: In 2005-06, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary undertook a baseline inspection of emergency and non-emergency contact management systems for the police forces of England and Wales. Under this review, the Metropolitan police performance was classified as 'Fair'. There has not been a similar or specific assessment of the performance of the Metropolitan police's emergency and non-emergency contact management system for 21 July 2005 nor for 20 July 2007.

Police

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which (a) local authorities and (b) local authority wards comprise each police force basic command unit. [158130]

Mr. McNulty: A spreadsheet has been produced which details, for each local authority ward area, which police basic command unit and local authority area the ward falls within. Due to the volume of data in the spreadsheet, a copy of this will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Police: Festivals and Special Occasions

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make a statement on the operation of the Community Safety Accreditation Scheme; what progress has been made in extending its remit to cover the training of stewards and road marshals for local events; and if she will make a statement. [159151]

Mr. McNulty: Community Safety Accreditation Schemes enable chief officers to designate limited powers under the Police Reform Act to employees of approved organisations who contribute towards community safety. These powers include the power to regulate traffic.

It is a matter for the chief officer to decide the extent and content of the training undertaken by the employee(s) in order to be accredited and designated particular powers, and it is the responsibility of the employer to ensure its employee(s) receive that training.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there were in each police force in each year since 1997. [158855]

Mr. McNulty: The information is shown in the following table.

[5] Comparable strength (excludes those on career breaks, or maternity/paternity leave). The Police Numbers Task Force (2001) recommended that a clear presentation was made of the numbers of staff employed by police forces including those seconded into the force and those on any type of long or short term absence. These new calculations were first used in 2003, and are not comparable with data prior to March 2003. The data from 2003 onwards used here are termed comparable because they have been calculated on the old basis to allow comparison.

TREASURY

Excise Duties: Diesel Fuel

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to minimise the financial impact on pleasure boat users of the end of the UK's derogation allowing the sale of rebated gas oil for pleasure boating. [158751]

Angela Eagle: Officials have been discussing with various representative organisations ways of implementing the new regime which will both minimise the impact on pleasure boat users, and ensure that any additional compliance burden is as small as possible. As part of this process, HMRC published at 1 August 2007 a consultation on options for the implementation of the new regime. As announced at Budget 2007, private pleasure craft owners will continue to be able to use red diesel at the rebated duty rate until 1 November 2008.

Marriage

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) marriage and (b) divorce rate of each ethnic group was in each year since 1980. [158641]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary questions asking for marriage and divorce rates for each ethnic group for persons, and then separately for males and females, for each year from 1980 (158641).

In England and Wales the ethnicity of either partner is not recorded at the registration of a marriage nor at the recording of a divorce by the Court Service. I am, therefore, unable to provide you with the statistics you requested.

Migrant Workers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his latest estimates of the number of migrant workers in the UK are in each year from 1997 to 2012; and if he will make a statement. [158565]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 19 October 2007:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the number of employed people in the United Kingdom who were migrant workers from 1997 to 2012. (158565)

The attached table gives the number of employed people aged 16 and over who were either United Kingdom or foreign born, for the three month period ending June, for each year since 1997 up to 2007. Comparable estimates are not available for 1998 and 2000. Projections of migrant workers to 2012 are not available from either the Labour Force Survey (LFS) nor the National Population Projections.

When interpreting the figures in the table, it is important to bear in mind that the Labour Force Survey (LFS) is not designed to cover everyone who is present in the UK. The survey may undercount the numbers of people who were born overseas for the following reasons:-

The LFS sample covers people living in private households, those in national health service (NHS) accommodation, and students living in halls of residence who have a UK-resident parent. Students living in halls of residence who do not have a UK-resident parent are not covered by the sample.

The LFS does not cover people living in other types of communal establishment (such as hostels, hotels, boarding houses, or mobile home sites).

Individuals living at sampled addresses are generally included in the survey only if they regard the address as their main residence. Those who have been living at the address for less than six months are not eligible to take part in the survey.

The survey results are weighted to estimates of the 'usually resident' UK population living in private households, NHS accommodation and student halls of residence. The population figures cover long-term international migrants (people who change their country of usual residence for 12 months or more). They do not include people moving to the UK for less than 12 months, nor do they exclude from the usually resident population people moving out of the UK for less than 12 months.

The LFS estimates at this detailed level are only consistent with the UK population estimates published in February and March 2003 and they do not incorporate the more recent population estimates that are used in the headline LFS series.

Estimates are taken from the LFS. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Notes:
It should be noted that the country of birth question in the LFS:
-excludes those who have not been resident in the UK
-excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent
-excludes people in most other types of communal establishment (eg hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc)
-is grossed to population estimates that only include migrants staying for twelve months or more
-microdata is only grossed to population estimates consistent with those published in spring which are significantly lower that the latest population estimates.
Comparable data not available for 1998 and 2000.

Population

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the size of the likely UK population in each year until 2050; what it was in each of the last seven years; and if he will make a statement. [158572]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the proportion of the UK population which was born abroad in (a) 2000 and (b) 2006; and what he expects it to be in (i) 2010, (ii) 2020, (iii) 2030, (iv) 2040 and (v) 2050. [158573]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Mike Hughes, dated 19 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning the proportion of the UK population which was born abroad in (a) 2000 and (b) 2006; and what it is expected to be in (i) 2020, (ii) 2020, (iii) 2030, (iv) 2040 and (v) 2050. I am replying in her absence. (158573)

Based on the Labour Force Survey (LFS), the proportion of the UK population that was foreign born in 2000 was 7.6%. The equivalent proportion in 2006 was 10.0%.

There are no official projections of the proportion of the UK population that is foreign born.

When interpreting these figures, it is important to bear in mind that the Labour Force Survey (LFS) is designed to capture all people in the UK living in a private household or NHS accommodation. Some UK residents are not captured by the LFS including students living in halls of residence who do not have a UK-resident parent, and people living in other types of communal establishment (such as hostels, hotels, boarding houses, or mobile home sites). These factors may contribute to the LFS giving a slight underestimate of the foreign born population as a proportion of the total UK population.

As with any sample survey, LFS estimates are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Taxation: Bingo

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what plans he has to meet representatives of the Bingo Association to discuss the taxation regime which applies to its members; [158574]

(2) for what reason bingo operators have to pay both value added tax and gross profits tax; [158575]

(3) if he will commission a review of the taxation regime applying to the bingo industry. [158576]

Angela Eagle: The Chancellor keeps all taxes under review and decisions about gambling taxation are made at Budget alongside all tax and spending decisions. The Government take all relevant factors into consideration when establishing and maintaining fair regimes for gambling taxes.

As part of the normal Budget process Ministers and officials have been in periodic contact with representatives of the bingo industry and will continue to meet them as part of the normal Budget process.

Teenage Pregnancy: Greater London

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many conceptions among girls under 18 years old occurred in each London constituency in 2005. [158989]

Angela Eagle: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2007:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many conceptions among girls under 18 years old occurred in each London constituency in 2005. (158989)

Conception figures for girls aged under 18 are routinely published by local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by Parliamentary Constituency because of the risk of disclosing individual's information, due to small differences between the Parliamentary Constituency and local authority boundaries.

The number and rate of conceptions to girls aged under 18 in each London Borough for 2005 are shown in the attached table. Figures for 2005 are provisional.

Available figures are estimates of the number of conceptions that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or legal termination.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Defence Export Services Organisation

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what consultations were undertaken before the decision was made to move the Defence Export Services Organisation into UK Trade and Investment. [156170]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2172W, to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth).

Olympic Games: Greater London

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics when she expects the Olympic Delivery Authority's budget to be announced. [157732]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 October 2007]: On 15 March 2007, Official Report, column 450, I announced an Olympic Delivery Authority budget of £.3 billion (net of tax). This formed part of the overall funding provision for the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games of £9.325 billion.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Amnesty International: Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent representations he has received from Amnesty International on abortion-related issues; and if he will make a statement. [158365]

Mr. Malik: I have received no recent representations from Amnesty International on abortion-related issues.

DFID believes that no woman should die or suffer because of unsafe abortion. Abortion should not be promoted as a form of family planning. But if women seek abortion through failure of contraception or lack of control over the circumstances in which they become pregnant, abortion should be available, safe and linked to post-abortion care, including contraception and HIV prevention services. This is in line with the consensus agreed at the International Conference for Population and Development (ICPD) in 1994.

Sexual and reproductive health is an essential element of good health and human development. More progress is needed on sexual and reproductive health to meet many of the millennium development goals, particularly those concerned with child and maternal health, HIV and AIDS and other communicable diseases, gender equality and achieving universal primary education.

Departments: Marie Stopes International Conference

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will list the Ministers from his Department who will be (a) attending and (b) speaking at the Marie Stopes International Conference being held at the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre on 23 to 24 October; whether his Department will be contributing (i) direct funding, (ii) informal support and (iii) personnel; whether there are restrictions on the use of these contributions; whether officials from his Department will (1) attend and (2) participate; if he will place in the Library material produced for the conference by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [158371]

Mr. Malik: DFID officials will be participating in the Marie Stopes international global safe abortion conference. However no DFID Ministers will be attending or speaking at the conference. DFID is not providing funding, informal support or producing any material for the Conference.

DFID believes that no woman should die or suffer because of unsafe abortion. Abortion should not be promoted as a form of family planning. Developing Countries: Health Education

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the role of sexual and reproductive health education in achieving the sixth millennium development goal, of combating HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases. [157960]

Mr. Malik: Education, including sexual and reproductive health education, is one of the most significant factors in preventing the spread of HIV in the next generation. In Swaziland, two-thirds of teenage girls in school are free from HIV, while two-thirds of girls out of school have HIV. Girls, boys and adults with more education are more likely to have knowledge of key prevention techniques, including condoms to help prevent HIV infection and insecticide impregnated bed nets to prevent malaria infection, and more able to persuade their partners, and in the case of bed nets, families, to use them.

DFID has funded two major research programmes that included assessing the impact of sexual and reproductive health education. These are the 'Safe passages to adulthood' programme at Southampton university (with a £2 million grant) and the Transitions to Adulthood' programme, run by then Alan Guttmacher Institute (AGI) and the Population Council (with a £5 million DFID grant). Early AGI findings from research in four developing countries (Burkina Faso, Malawi, Ghana and Uganda) demonstrate that the impact of sex education varies with the country and cultural context, as well as with methods of teaching used. In Uganda, for example, there was 8.5 times the use of condoms among those that had sex education, compared to those that did not. However, this finding was not replicated in all contexts. 40 per cent. of women who had been given a practical demonstration on how to use a condom reported using one at their last sexual encounter, whereas only 30 per cent. who had not received the demonstration reported using a condom.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of sexual and reproductive health education in developing countries. [157961]

A special issue of the African Journal of Reproductive Health, 'Protecting the next generation', providing evidence from the AGI work will be published later this year.

Education, including sexual and reproductive health education, is one of the most significant factors in preventing the spread of HIV in the next generation.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Domestic Wastes: Broxbourne

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice or consultancy services (a) the Waste Resources Action Programme and (b) his Department has provided to Broxbourne council in relation to charging for domestic rubbish collection or charging for containers which will hold domestic rubbish. [158250]

Joan Ruddock: No advice or consultancy services have been provided by DEFRA on these issues. The Waste and Resources Action Programme is currently considering a request for help from Broxbourne council, received on 16 October, for help with communications to increase participation in recycling.

Environment Agency: Flood Control

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of changes in the funding of (a) the Environment Agency and (b) British Waterways on the provision of flood defence. [155960]

Mr. Woolas: The changes in the funding applied to the Environment Agency's non-capital spend which funded items such as staff costs, operational spend and maintenance of defences. Funding for capital projects for new and improved defences to reduce risk was not cut and no current or planned capital improvement projects were delayed as a result. Funding to British Waterways was also reduced but these changes did not have a material impact on the provision of flood defence by British Waterways.

Fly Tipping: Domestic Wastes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of fly-tipping incidents were accounted for by household waste in each year for which the Flycapture database holds figures. [158093]

Joan Ruddock: Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database, records the number of incidents of fly-tipping in which household waste is the predominate waste type. It does not record whether it is householders, businesses or illegal waste operators that actually fly-tip the waste.

The following table lists the percentage of fly-tips classified as household waste since Flycapture was introduced:

Flycapture year	Percentage of household waste
2004-05	55.4
2005-06	76.7
2006-07	77.0

2004-05 was the first year of the Flycapture database with 174 (49 per cent.) of local authorities submitting the required 12 monthly returns. This rose to 313 (88 per cent.) in 2005-06 and 323 (91 per cent.) in 2006-07.

White Fish: Conservation

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the conservation of sea bass stocks. [159331]

Jonathan Shaw: Scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) suggests that the bass stock is fished sustainably.

Current European Union legislation protects sea bass by specifying a minimum landing size (MLS) of 36 centimetres, below which bass cannot be landed, and corresponding mesh sizes to be used for both fixed and trawl gear when bass is targeted. Some Sea Fisheries Committees (SFCs) have introduced a higher MLS of 37.5 centimetres which applies within the relevant district. The UK has also designated 37 specified areas in which bass fishing from a boat is prohibited.

I am currently considering the evidence for increasing the MLS for bass in England, and will make an announcement shortly.

SCOTLAND

Departments: Manpower

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many and what percentage of employees in (a) his Department and (b) each (i) executive agency and (ii) non-departmental public body funded by his Department are above state retirement age. [158939]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office does not directly employ any staff; all staff are seconded from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, as necessary. The Office does not hold personnel records that would allow age to be determined.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent by his Department on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158902]

David Cairns: Scotland Office hospitality expenditure for the last financial year is detailed as follows:

Financial year	Hospitality expenditure (£)
2006-07	23,411

All expenditure, including that on hospitality, has been incurred in accordance with the principles of Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departments: Secondment

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff are seconded to his Department from outside Government; from which outside body each has been seconded; and what the length is of each secondment. [157916]

David Cairns: None.

Departments: Surveys

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on (a) opinion polling and (b) market research in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [154472]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office spent £17,000 in 2006-07 on market research.

Elections

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had since the Scottish parliamentary elections in May 2007 with returning officers on auto-adjudication during the counting. [158773]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 8 October 2007, Official Report column 7W.

David Mundell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information his Department provided to the inquiry led by Ron Gould into the conduct of Scottish elections in May 2007 on auto-adjudication without human supervision; and if he will make a statement. [158774]

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information his Department has provided to the inquiry led by Ron Gould into the conduct of the Scottish elections in May 2007 on automatic adjudication of ballot papers without human supervision. [159067]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has provided information to the Gould inquiry about electronic counting which includes reference to user agreements. User agreements, where auto-adjudication is specified, were signed by each returning officer, who have statutory responsibility for the adjudication of ballot papers. The Scotland Office did not take any decisions on the inclusion of auto-adjudication and passed no specific information about it to the inquiry.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Cotswold Heritage Academy: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support he has made available to the Cotswold Heritage Academy; and if he will make a statement. [159361]

Margaret Hodge: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to him on 2 March 2007, Official Report, column 1591, by my hon. Friend the Member for Tottenham (Mr. Lammy).

Creative Economy White Paper

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish the Creative Economy White Paper. [158206]

Margaret Hodge: A Green Paper on the Creative Economy is expected to be published in the near future.

Culture: Expenditure

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on the culture part of its responsibilities in each year since 1995-96 at constant 2007-08 prices. [156711]

Margaret Hodge: The table shows how much the Department for Culture, Media and Sport spent on the Culture part of its responsibilities, from 1995-06 to 2006-07 at 2007-08 prices.

1995-96	1102.2
1996-07	962.0
1997-08	918.5
1998-09	809.6
1999-2000	860.7
2000-01	870.4
2001-02	888.7
2002-03	956.4
2003-04	[1]1562.1
2004-05	1036.8
2005-06	1091.1
2006-07	1142.5

[1]2003-04 figures increased due to certain NDPBs joining the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS).

Departments: General Elections

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what contingency preparations his Department made for the possibility of a general election in autumn 2007; and what the costs were of those preparations. [157004]

Margaret Hodge: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) on 15 October 2007, Official Report, columns 822-23W.

Departments: Manpower

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many and what percentage of employees in (a) his Department and (b) each (i) executive agency and (ii) non-departmental public body funded by his Department are above state retirement age. [158952]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Using the current state retirement age of 65 for men and 60 for women, in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) there are nine (1.76 per cent.) employees above state retirement age. The Royal Parks Agency has one (1 per cent.) employee above state retirement age. DCMS does not hold centrally the information you have requested for the non-departmental public bodies funded by the department and this could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departments: Official Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by his Department on official hospitality in the last 12 months. [158931]

Margaret Hodge: Expenditure on official hospitality is made in accordance with principles of government accounting, Treasury handbook on regularity and propriety as well as the Department's internal guidance on hospitality. The Department's expenditure on hospitality in the last 12 months (to September 2007) was £74,979.

Departments: Railways

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by his Department on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [153269]

Margaret Hodge: The departmental expenditure on first class train tickets ordered via the Department's contracted travel agent was £81,157 in the last financial year. This amount excludes some travel booked directly which can be identified only at disproportionate cost.

All travel is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Listed Buildings

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many listed buildings were (a) substantially damaged and (b) destroyed in each year since 1997-98. [157220]

Margaret Hodge: Neither DCMS nor English Heritage collects data on how many listed buildings have been substantially damaged or destroyed. The management and care of listed buildings through the consent regime lies in the main with local authorities.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what obligations there are on the owners of listed buildings to ensure they are fully insured. [157221]

Margaret Hodge: There are no specific legal obligations on the owners of listed buildings to ensure they are fully insured. Guidance for owners is available in the joint English Heritage/Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors publication "Insuring your historic building".

Local Government Finance: Arts

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much grant money has been awarded to each county council in England for arts projects in the last five years. [157330]

Margaret Hodge: This information is shown in the table

Sports: Betting

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings his Department has had with representatives from sporting national governing bodies on betting in sport in the last three years; and on what dates these meetings took place. [158830]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 17 October 2007]: I met national sports governing bodies primarily to discuss betting on sports on the following dates:

27 February 2007—Premier League

29 March 2007—England and Wales Cricket Board

20 April 2007—Professional Footballers Association

There were round table meetings between my Department and the governing bodies of five sports (football, cricket, rugby union, rugby league and tennis) on 18 April 2006, 6 November 2006 and 15 June 2007, at which the issue of betting on sport was also raised.

In addition, there have been numerous meetings between Ministers or officials of my Department and sports where sports betting was one item on a larger agenda.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings his Department has had with representatives of the betting industry on betting in sport in the last three years; and on what dates such meetings took place. [158831]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 17 October 2007]: I met the chief executive of Ladbrokes to discuss sports betting on 28 March 2007, and met representatives of the Association of British Bookmakers for the same reason on 13 June 2007.

In addition, there have been numerous meetings between Ministers or officials of my Department and betting organisations where sports betting was one item on a larger agenda.

Tourism

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have had with representatives of the tourism industry in the last six months. [155756]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS Ministers and officials have held a full programme of meetings with the tourism industry since April 2007, reflecting the importance of the sector within the Department.

This has included meetings with individual companies and representative bodies in the private sector; and with VisitBritain, the Regional Development Agencies, and other representatives of the public sector in tourism.

With my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State, I have also twice met representatives of the sector in the Tourism Industry Emergency Response Group.

VisitBritain: Cooperation

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans there are to review the relationship between VisitBritain and Enjoy England; and if he will make a statement. [157971]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 15 October 2007]: Changes have recently been made to the relationship between the England Marketing Advisory Board and VisitBritain.

The board, which advises VisitBritain on its domestic marketing work has been re-named VisitEngland. In future, it will take a more active role in the tourism marketing of England, and will be responsible for VisitBritain's domestic remit. The VisitEngland Board will also be made more representative of the domestic tourism sector.

These changes have been fully discussed with the tourism industry, and the public sector organisations which support it, through bodies coming together and working together in a series of seminars organised by the Partners for England. VisitEngland will now work with Partners for England to re-invigorate, as well as better co-ordinate, English public sector tourism support.

The changes have the full support of DCMS, as I was very pleased to demonstrate by attending the VisitEngland launch event in York on 10 October.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Council Tax Benefits: Pensioners

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the take-up rate of council tax benefit amongst pensioners was in (a) 1996-97 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [158181]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up for 1996-97 can be found in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-up in 1997-98". Estimates of take-up in 2005-06, the most recent year for which figures are available, can be found in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-up in 2005-06". Copies of these reports are available in the Library.

Methodological changes introduced since 1997-98 were not applied to estimates for 1996-97, so any changes over time should be treated with caution.

Departments: Internet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many websites his Department operates; how many it operated at 1 January 2005; and what the estimated annual cost has been of running his Department's websites in the last five years. [157869]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Work and Pensions currently operates 21 websites. On 1 January 2005, the Department operated 25 websites.

Production, management and maintenance of DWP websites is carried out by the Department's own in-house E-Communications team. It is not possible to quantify internal costs for each site.

Contracted and quantifiable costs have been included where possible—these include payments to suppliers for services such as research, user testing and site builds, and payment to interim personnel.

Table A lists those websites operated by Department for Work and Pensions where the Department is responsible for the content.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many hits the (a) most and (b) least popular website run by his Department has received since 1st January 2007. [157870]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The visitor statistics for the most popular and least popular websites run by the Department for Work and Pensions during the period 1 January to 31 August 2007 are as follows:

Website		Visitors	Unique visitors
(a) Jobcentre Plus	www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk	80,014,136	[1]35,295,624

[2] By page tagging

Notes:

1. Hits—This statistic is not used because it is not a reliable measure of how many pages are being looked at. It does not provide information about how many people visit the site.
2. Visits—Number of times a visitor or visitors came to the site. Each visit is recorded separately for every visit more than 30 minutes apart.
3. Unique visitors—Individuals who visited the site during the report period. If someone visits more than once, they are counted only the first time they visit. For Jobcentre Plus, unique visitors are counted in two different ways, and both measures are included here for consistency with other PQs.

Employment: EC Action

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the provisions of Article 5 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union regarding employment and the provision that the Union shall take measures to ensure co-ordination of the employment policies of the member states, in particular by defining guidelines for these policies; whether there will be shared competence with the European Union as a result of these provisions; and if he will make a statement on the legal consequences of this provision and the other provisions of the Treaty for employment in the UK. [158011]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 15 October 2007]: The Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union does not change the existing provisions relating to the co-ordination of employment policies, currently set out in the Employment Title (VIII) of the Treaty establishing the EU under Articles 125-130. The employment provision in Article five relates to the Lisbon Strategy for Jobs and Growth, whereby all member states agree non-binding guidelines on employment and report annually on their main employment policies that relate to the Guidelines. This is principally to generate exchange of good practice on reforms that will help increase employment across the EU. This process is also supported by the European Social Fund.

The UK strategy of employment opportunity for all is seen as a good model and delivers the common EU outcomes necessary for more and better jobs. The UK is one of only four member states to have attained and surpassed the Lisbon employment rate target of 70 per cent.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what percentage of people ceasing to claim jobseeker's allowance had (a) moved immediately onto other benefits and (b) returned to (i) jobseeker's allowance and (ii) other benefits (A) up to six months, (B) between six and 12 months and (C) more than 12 months after leaving benefit in each year since 1992. [159580]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information has been placed in the Library.

National Insurance: Foreign Workers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many foreign nationals in the Forest of Dean district were issued with national insurance numbers in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the preceding four years. [158047]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available prior to 2004. The available information is in the following table.

Registrations for national insurance numbers by foreign nationals in the Forest of Dean district council area

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many foreign nationals in the Milton Keynes unitary authority were issued with national insurance numbers in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) each of the preceding four years. [159207]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available prior to 2004. The available information is in the following table.

Pension Credit: Take Up

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners who are entitled to pension credit but do not claim it; what steps he is taking to reduce that number; and if he will make a statement. [157341]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Latest estimates of the number of pensioners eligible for but not claiming pension credit can be found in "Pension Credit Estimates of Take-Up in 2005/2006". A copy of the report is available in the Library.

The Pension Service is undertaking a wide range of steps to encourage eligible pensioners to claim pension credit. In 2006-07 around 2.8 million direct mailings were issued to customers who may have an entitlement to pension credit.

The Pension Service Local Service offers face-to-face visits to potentially eligible and vulnerable pensioners during which full benefit entitlement checks are carried out. Nearly one million home visits were conducted during 2006-07.

The Pension Service Local Service is continuing to work closely with local partners (including local authorities and voluntary organisations such as Help the Aged and Age Concern) on pension credit take-up activity. There are now 184 operational Joint Working Partnerships enabling the Pension Service Local Service, local authorities and the voluntary sector to provide a single point of access to social care and benefit entitlement.

In addition, we have modernised our service and encourage take up by enabling new customers who call to claim their state pension, to also apply for pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit in a single telephone call if appropriate.

Pension Service: Pensions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the staff at the Pensions Service are entitled to a final salary pension scheme. [157174]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: 96 per cent. of staff in the Pension Service are members of the Civil Service Pension Scheme which is a final salary pension scheme.

Pensions: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in Chorley constituency are in receipt of pension credit. [158760]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at May 2007 4,200 households (5,180 individuals) in the Chorley constituency were receiving pension credit.

Notes:

1. The figures provided are early estimates. The preferred data source for figures supplied by DWP is the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS). However, the figures provided are the latest available figures which are taken from the GMS scan at 1 June 2007. These are adjusted using the historical relationship between WPLS and GMS data to give an estimate of the final WPLS figure.

2. Caseloads are rounded to the nearest 10.

3. Parliamentary constituencies are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory and are therefore based on the 2005 parliamentary boundaries.

4. Households are those people who claim Pension Credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pensions: Financial Assistance Scheme

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of (a) the projected cost of the Financial Assistance Scheme in each of the next 30 years and (b) the additional funding required to meet his commitment on match-funding following the publication of the interim Young report. [152561]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is as follows.

(b) The Young review will identify what additional value can be attained from the assets in FAS pension funds. The Government will set out the details of its approach to match funding once the Young review has been published.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the maximum percentage payment under the Financial Assistance scheme is of the pension lost; and whether the payment is dependent upon the level of contributions made. [157364]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Payments from the Financial Assistance scheme (FAS) reflect 80 per cent. of the core pension an individual could have expected to receive from their pension scheme. Payments are currently subject to a cap of £12,000 a year and as previously announced we are raising the cap to £26,000 a year.

The Young Review of Pension scheme assets is expected to report back in November, and we have already committed to match the additional value it identifies with the goal of moving towards 90 per cent. of expected core pension for all recipients (subject to the cap).

The expected core pension will reflect contributions made to the pension scheme by the sponsoring employer and the scheme member.

Social Security Benefits

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission research into rates of benefit take-up, broken down by (a) gender and (b) type of benefit; and if he will make a statement. [159072]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of the take-up of the main income-related benefits—pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and income-based jobseeker's allowance—are available in the DWP publication series entitled "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up". Copies of the latest publication, which describes patterns in take-up between 1997-98 and 2005-06, plus past reports, can be found in the Library.

Where sample sizes and data sources allow, take-up statistics are broken down to enable comparisons by gender. In practice, we can provide analysis by gender only for income support, pension credit and income-based jobseeker's allowance. For council tax benefit and housing benefit, a gender breakdown of take-up rates is not possible.

Information on the take-up of other DWP administered benefits is not available.

Social Security: Mortgages

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what changes have been made since May 1997 to the mortgage value threshold at which income support will stop paying mortgage interest, for mortgages taken out after October 1995. [158182]

Mr. Plaskitt: There have been no changes to the upper capital limit for help towards mortgage interest since 10 April 1995, although it is kept under review.

Generally help with interest payments is limited to the interest on the first £100,000 of outstanding loan capital for customers in receipt of income support, income-based jobseeker's allowance and state pension credit.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Chernobyl: Children

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Secretary of State for the Home Department and (b) others on assisting the travel of Chernobyl-affected children to the UK for rest and recuperation; what effect the operation of biometric visas will have on the case of such travel; and if he will make a statement. [158550]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not held any recent discussions with my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on this matter, but officials propose to hold a stakeholder meeting in the very near future at which these issues will be raised.

The Government recognise the value and benefit of allowing children who have been affected by Chernobyl to visit the UK for respite care. This is an important programme and we will continue to support the charitable work both in the UK and Belarus that facilitates these visits. In consultation with the charities we are actively looking for ways to minimise any difficulties that the introduction of biometrics might create. We had sought to establish a seasonal visa application centre (VAC) in Gomel Oblast through our commercial partner, Visa Facilitation Services (VFS). This would have provided a more convenient visa application point and a shorter journey for some of those children. Unfortunately, we have not been able to secure permission from the Belarus Government to allow our commercial partner to operate. Those living in southern Belarus might find it easier to travel to the VAC in Kiev, Ukraine to lodge their applications. Our embassy in Kiev will make the necessary arrangements to cater for individuals or groups.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has received from (a) the Government of Belarus, (b) UK charities and (c) others on the entry into the UK of Chernobyl-affected children; and if he will make a statement. [158552]

Dr. Howells: I have received representations from the ambassador of Belarus, the Chernobyl Children's Project, the Chernobyl Children's Lifeline and several hon. Members. I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him today (UIN 158550).

Departments: Freedom of Information

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Minister approved the use of the section 36 exemption of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 referred to in the letter of 11 October from his Department to the hon. Member for Billericay. [159578]

Dr. Howells: The opinion of a qualified person (in the case of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) this is a Minister) has not yet been sought and the section 36 exemption has not yet been engaged. The FCO will write to the hon. Member urgently clarifying its position in accordance with section 17(1) of the Act.

Entry Clearances

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consideration has been given to the return of travel documents to visa applicants pending decisions in long-running cases. [158964]

Dr. Howells: The relevant visa section will retain the applicant's travel documents until a decision has been made, as they are required to process the application. The applicant may withdraw their application at any time if they wish to have their travel documents returned.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what system is in place to inform visa applicants of the progress of their applications. [158965]

Dr. Howells: Applicants are not routinely informed of the progress of their application, except in those settlement cases where a Home Office referral is necessary; in these cases the applicant should receive a letter informing them of the revised timescale.

If an applicant wishes to check the progress of their application they may do so by using the call centre or online service in countries where a commercial partner has been engaged. Where there is no commercial partner they may contact the visa section, in the country from which they are applying, using the contact details advertised on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) website.

Applicants are advised to check the website of the visa section of the country from which they wish to apply for the correct procedure.

The FCO website address is:

www.fco.gov.uk.

Libyan Arab Republic: Overseas Trade

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will hold discussions on Anglo-Libyan trade with the British Council. [159158]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans to hold such discussions with the British Council, which does not have responsibility for our trade relations with Libya.

The British Council's work in Libya focuses on helping to develop the Libyan education system and promoting English language skills. It does this through placing English language teachers in Libyan institutions and at the British Council's own teaching centre in Tripoli. My noble Friend the right hon. Lord Kinnock opened the new centre in September 2006. The British Council employs 32 teachers in Libya. The Council does have links with Libyan industry through its skills-development and language training programmes.

The Government are committed to building strong trade relations with Libya through the combined work of UK Trade and Investment and our embassy in Tripoli. In addition, Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials are in close contact with relevant trade and business organisations.

Members: Correspondence

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will reply to the letters of (a) 25 May 2007, (b) 25 July 2007 and (c) 4 September 2007 from the hon. Member for Weston-Super-Mare in relation to his constituent Mr. Ivor Chivers and his company Eco Solutions. [159073]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The hon. Member's letter of 25 May was received in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) on 29 May. The letter dealt with a subject on which the FCO does not lead and was therefore transferred to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (DBERR), previously the Department of Trade and Industry, on 30 May. I can confirm that DBERR are currently dealing with this letter and have also received the two follow-up letters. The official in DBERR dealing with the hon. Member's original letter can be contacted on 020 7215 6638.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when his Department and the British high commission visa section in Islamabad will reply to the hon. Member for Edinburgh West's letter of 26 June 2007 and further faxes of 26 July 2007 and 22 August 2007 on his constituent Mr Zahida Mubarik. [158739]

Dr. Howells: The visa section of our high commission in Islamabad sent an e-mail to UKvisas regarding Ms Mubarik's application on 8 August 2007. Due to an administrative error both the visa section in Islamabad and UKvisas assumed that the other would reply to the hon. Member's representations. I apologise on behalf of UKvisas for the subsequent delay. You will receive a full written reply by the end of next week.

The information and evidence submitted with Ms Mubarik's appeal was reviewed by an entry clearance manager (ECM) on 27 September. However, despite new evidence being submitted, the decision to refuse Ms Mubarik's entry clearance was upheld. The ECM's explanatory statement has now been dispatched to the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal in preparation for Ms Mubarik's appeal hearing.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he is having with his Saudi counterpart on Arab League proposals for peace in the middle east/Palestine. [159168]

Dr. Howells: We very much welcome the work by the Arab League to take forward the Arab peace initiative. The international community has a key role to play in moving forward the peace process. I discussed the middle east peace process with His Royal Highness Prince Mohammed Bin Nawaf Al-Saud, the Saudi Arabia ambassador on 3 October. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary looks forward to discussing the Arab peace initiative further during the Saudi state visit later this month.

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia; and if he will make a statement. [158030]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned about the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia. We regularly discuss our concerns with the Saudi authorities at all levels. Human rights are also raised on our behalf by the EU, which has decided to keep the details of these discussions confidential.

We are committed to encouraging Saudi Arabia to improve its human rights record and adhere to international human rights standards. The hon. Member may also welcome the recent increase in the activities by the National Society on Human Rights (NSHR). In May 2007 the NSHR published its first annual report on the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia, since it was established in 2004. This is a significant step forward.

In addition on 1 October, a royal decree approved the new Judiciary Law and the Court of Grievances Law. The decree establishes a Supreme Court and an Appeal Court. It also establishes five specialised courts: General, Criminal, Labour, Commercial and Civil. The Grievance Bureau is replaced by a new three-tier system, which also includes Appeal and Supreme Courts. We welcome this announcement.

Switzerland: Asylum

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will discuss with his counterparts on the Security Council the relocation of UN offices away from Geneva until and unless the Swiss Government has a more enlightened policy on immigration and asylum. [159330]

Dr. Howells: The Government have no plans to discuss this in the UN Security Council. This is not Security Council business and is an issue for the Swiss Government.

Tourists: Injuries

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the number of injuries sustained by UK citizens travelling outside the European economic area in each of the last five years, broken down by type of injury. [158162]

Dr. Howells: We do not collect data on the types of injury suffered by UK citizens when travelling overseas.

We do hold figures where our posts overseas are informed of a British national being hospitalised, although this will include both cases of illness and injury.

Over the last five years, the number of cases outside the European Economic area where our posts have been informed of the hospitalisation of a British national, are as follows:

	Cases
2002-03	1,236
2003-04	1,055
2004-05	1,364
2005-06	1,268
2006-07	1,500

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will estimate (a) the number of enquiries which his Department receives annually from UK citizens about injuries sustained outside the European Economic Area, (b) the number of these enquiries which are about compensation payments from travel insurance and (c) the number of enquiries that complain about non-payment of compensation due to an injury type that is not covered by standard travel insurance policies. [158163]

Dr. Howells: During 2006-07 we estimate that our posts overseas received 2,888,996 inquiries, covering all aspects of consular work. Of these 1,941,454 enquiries were received by posts outside the European economic area. We do not keep a statistical breakdown by subject matter.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to prevent alcohol abuse in England. [159459]

Ann Keen: The Government continues to show a sustained determination to tackle the harms caused by alcohol misuse.

The "Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy for England", which was published in 2004, was the first cross-Government strategy to prevent any further increase in alcohol-related harms in England. The 2004 Strategy has been extremely successful. It has put in place the mechanisms needed to deliver the Government's objective of reducing alcohol-related harms and has made considerable progress across a range of issues—new police and licensing powers, the new voluntary alcohol labelling scheme and revised advice to women about alcohol and pregnancy, effective and popular advertising campaigns (e.g. 'Know Your Limits', 'Think!'), creation of the Drinkaware Trust and improving alcohol treatment services, for example, the publication of suite of guidance materials, such as the "Programme of Improvement and Models of Care for Alcohol Misuse".

We are already beginning to see the benefits of this: reductions in crime and city centre violence and early signs of an end to the continued increase in levels of alcohol consumption. Nevertheless, the review of the 2004 Strategy, which the Government was committed to undertaking this year, identified more that the Government can and needs to do.

The Government's renewed alcohol strategy," Safe. Sensible. Social.—the next steps in the National Alcohol Strategy", published in June, sets out the long-term objective, to minimise the health harms, violence and antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol, while ensuring that people are able to enjoy alcohol safely and responsibly.

The Government plans to achieve this by seeking to:

-ensure the laws and licensing powers we have introduced to tackle alcohol fuelled crime and disorder, protect young people and bear down on irresponsibly managed premises, are being used widely and effectively;

-sharpen our focus on the minority of drinkers who cause or experience the most harm to themselves, their communities and their families. These are:

-18-24 year old binge drinkers,

-young people under 18 who drink alcohol,

-Harmful drinkers; and

-To shape an environment which actively promotes sensible drinking, for example through a £10 million investment in a sustained information and communications campaign to challenge public tolerance of drunkenness and drinking that causes harm to health and to raise the public's knowledge of units of alcohol and ensure that everyone has the information they need to estimate how much they really do drink..

In addition, the Government are committed to commissioning an independent national review of evidence on the relationship between alcohol price, promotion and harm and, following public consultation, to consider the need for regulatory change in the future, if necessary. Reviews will also take place on the effectiveness of the alcohol industry's social responsibility standards in contributing to a reduction in alcohol harm, as well as on the effectiveness of the industry's social responsibility standards in contributing to a reduction in alcohol harm.

The Government have also announced in their Comprehensive Spending Review, published on 9 October, a Home Office public service agreement target to reduce drug and alcohol harm. This includes a new national indicator to measure change in the rate of hospital admissions for alcohol-attributable conditions, the first ever national commitment to monitor how the national health service is tackling alcohol harms through both intervention and treatment, which will operate from April 2008.

The Government are determined that the steps that are set out in "Safe. Sensible. Social" will shape an environment which will minimise the health harms, violence and antisocial behaviour associated with alcohol, while ensuring that people are able to enjoy alcohol safely and responsibly.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what date he expects (a) the NHS Breast Screening Programme to be extended to cover all women aged 47 to 73 years and (b) everyone with breast problems to be seen by a specialist within two weeks, following a referral by their GP; and if he will make a statement. [157259]

Ann Keen: Further details on these two announcements will be made in the Cancer Reform Strategy, which we hope to publish later this year.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the availability of breast cancer screening for those considered high risk in Hertfordshire. [157518]

Ann Keen: The Department does not hold information centrally on specific clinics or services offered by individual trust or funded by individual primary care trusts (PCTs). The provision of services is a matter for agreement between trusts and their commissioning PCTs, in consultation with local stakeholders. This should take into consideration local needs and priorities while ensuring they meet core national standards for the delivery of health services.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published a clinical guideline on familial breast cancer in May 2004, partially updated in October 2006. The clinical guideline relates to the classification and care of women at risk of familial breast cancer in primary, secondary and tertiary care. The guideline recommends that women at moderate familial risk of breast cancer or greater should receive annual mammography or magnetic resonance imaging surveillance.

NICE clinical guidelines are covered by the Department's developmental standards—standards which the national health service is expected to achieve over time. The Healthcare Commission has responsibility for assessing progress towards achieving these standards.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women had to wait longer than (a) two weeks, (b) one month and (c) four months to be screened for breast cancer after referral by a GP in the last period for which figures are available, broken down by London borough. [157630]

Ann Keen: This information is not held in the format requested. A table showing breast cancer waiting times for the whole of England has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.performance.doh.gov.uk/cancerwaits/2007/ql/can_1.html

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time is for a patient to be seen at a London Breast Screening Unit after referral by a GP. [157631]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally.

The national health service breast screening programme is operated from local breast screening units, who send invitations to eligible women directly. If abnormalities are found on a woman's mammogram, an appointment at the local assessment clinic is made automatically by the local breast screening unit. General practitioners are not an integral part of the programme, but are kept fully informed of their patients' progress through the programme by being copied into results letters.

Breast Cancer: West Yorkshire

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many eligible women are on waiting lists for breast screening in West Yorkshire; and how many of these have been waiting over three years for screening. [156378]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 668W.

Childbirth: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many babies were born in NHS maternity units in Stockport primary care trust hospitals in each year since 1997. [158001]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician. who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Mike Hughes, dated 19 October 2007:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question about how many babies were born in NHS maternity units in Stockport Primary Care Trust hospitals in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (158001)

Figures on live births in hospitals are available from birth registration information. The latest available figures by place of birth are for 2005.

Live births in Stepping Hill hospital, Stockport, 1997 to 2005

	Live births
1997	3,529
1998	3,445
1999	3,407
2000	3,232
2001	2,957
2002	2,951
2003	2,986
2004	3,239
2005	3,095

The table shows the figures requested for the calendar years 1997 to 2005, for Stepping Hill Hospital, the only NHS maternity unit in Stockport Primary Care Trust.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Health Services

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to improve specialist services for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [157526]

Ann Keen: We have no specific plans to improve specialist services for those living with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis.

Clostridium

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of (a) infections and (b) deaths due to Clostridium difficile in (i) Gloucestershire hospitals NHS trust and (ii) England in each of the last five years. [159666]

Ann Keen: We introduced mandatory surveillance of Clostridium difficile infection (CDI) in January 2004. The latest annual data were published in July 2007 and the number of CDI reports for patients aged 65 and over in Gloucestershire hospitals NHS foundation trust and in England are in the following table.

	Gloucestershire NHS foundation trust	England
January to December 2004	763	44,563
January to December 2005	1,073	51,829
January to December 2006	1,058	55,634

Source:
Health Protection Agency—provisional data

While some of the increase will be due to improved reporting, the national levels are too high and this is why we have announced a new indicator to reduce infections by 30 per cent. by March 2011.

Information on the number of deaths in individual national health service trusts is not available but the number of death certificates in England mentioning CDI is in the following table.

	Mentions of C. difficile	Number of these where underlying cause of death is C. difficile
2001	1,150	661
2002	1,338	709
2003	1,702	912
2004	2,155	1,187
2005	3,697	2,008

Dental Health: Children

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) fillings and (b) extractions were carried out on children's teeth in each of the regions in each of the last three years. [158912]

Ann Keen: Data for the years 2005 and 2006 are available at strategic health authority level in annex D of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006".

The information in this report is based on the old contractual arrangements. This report is available in the Library and is also available:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006

The report has been published by the Information Centre for health and social care.

Under the new contractual arrangements, no comparable data are available.

Dental Services

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to improve dental services. [159460]

Ann Keen: The Government launched fundamental reforms to national health service dentistry in England in April 2006. Under the reforms local NHS now has the power to directly commission dental services. There is further to go but the reforms provide for the first time a stable foundation on which primary care trusts can build robust NHS dental services tailored to local needs. The Government are committed to expanding NHS dental services. Two new dental schools have been opened this year in England providing an additional 170 dental training places, a 25 per cent. increase in total training places.

The respective devolved administrations are responsible for the provision of NHS dental services in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Dental Services: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will make a statement on the number of dentists accepting new NHS patients within the Chorley area; [158660]

(2) what steps he is taking to encourage that more dentists accept new NHS patients within the Chorley area. [158661]

Ann Keen: Information on dentists accepting new national health service patients is not collected centrally.

Central Lancashire Primary Care Trust (PCT) is investing an additional £1.3 millions in NHS dentistry to help solve the issues around access. To attract new dentists to the area and to encourage existing local dentists to provide additional services, the PCT has advertised for dentists to submit tenders to provide the additional NHS dentist appointments.

It is anticipated that once the outcome of the tendering process is known in December dentists will agree start dates with the PCT and the increase in capacity will be available by the end of the year. Those patients that are on the dental access database will be contacted and asked if they wish to transfer to a dentist within their area.

Dental Services: Shropshire

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many registered NHS dentists there were in Shropshire in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [159169]

Ann Keen: The numbers of national health service dentists at primary care trust (PCT) (including Shropshire PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) area as at 31 March 1997 to 2006 are available in annex E of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006". Information is based on old contractual arrangements.

The report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/dentistry/nhs-dental-activity-and-workforce-report-england-31-march-2006

The numbers of NHS dentists at PCT (including Shropshire PCT) and SHA level as at 30 June, 30 September, 31 December 2006 and 31 March 2007 are available in table E1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2006-07" report.

This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006. This report is available in the Library and is also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0607

The inclusion of dentists on trust led contracts in the data collection following the 2006 reforms means that data collected since April 2006 cannot be directly compared with data collected under the previous system.

In both reports, no account is taken of the level of NHS service, if any, that each dentist provides.

Departments: Road Traffic Offences

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many fixed penalty tickets were incurred by vehicles within the purview of his Department in the last year for which figures are available; and what the total cost was. [157891]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the policy of the Department not to pay any penalty imposed under the Road Traffic Acts arising from traffic accidents or any other incidents where penalties are applied.

Individuals are required to be accountable for their own actions in this respect and the Department does not collate information on this subject.

Diabetes: Hertfordshire

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the availability of retinal screening for diabetes patients in (a) Royston, Hertfordshire and (b) Hertfordshire; [157510]

(2) whether retinal screening for diabetes patients in Hertfordshire met the required standards in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [157511]

Ann Keen: Officials from the Department had discussions with the East of England strategic health authority about retinal screening for diabetic patients recently. The two Hertfordshire primary care trusts (West Hertfordshire, East and North Hertfordshire) are working towards the national standards.

Diabetes: Sight Impaired

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of diabetes patients in (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England went blind in the last year for which figures are available; what trends he expects in these numbers in the future; and if he will make a statement. [157517]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. However, according to the statistical publication, "Registered Blind and Partially Sighted People Year ending 31 March 2006", during the year ending March 2006, there were around 11,000 new registrations to the register of blind people, a fall of 17 per cent. compared to 2003. Some councils have reported that new computer systems and data cleansing has reduced the number of new registrations.

In Hertfordshire, during the year ending March 2006, 185 were added to the register of blind people.

Registration of blindness is voluntary. However, it is a pre-condition for the receipt of certain financial benefits. It is this factor which gives greater credibility to the 'Register of the Blind' than to the 'Register of the Partially Sighted' and to other disability registration records maintained by councils, where the voluntary principle also applies.

Elderly: Abuse

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to prevent elder abuse. [159457]

Ann Keen: The Government regard abuse of vulnerable and older people as unacceptable in all its forms and is determined to root it out. We are addressing the issue in a variety of ways.

We set out standards for care and treatment for the national health service and social care services via the national service frameworks for older people and mental health and the White Paper, 'Valuing People: A New Strategy for Learning Disability', copies of which are available in the Library.

We introduced regulations and national minimum standards for care homes, domiciliary care agencies and adult placements. These are intended to ensure vulnerable and older people can live in a safe environment, where their rights and dignity are respected, staff are properly trained and care is of the requisite quality.

We have created independent regulators, the Commission for Social Care Inspection and the Healthcare Commission, and given them the powers they need to take action against poorly performing providers or where abuse occurs. Ultimately, they have the power to close services down.

We expect local authorities to play their part. 'No Secrets', published by the Department in 2000 provides a complete definition of abuse and a framework for councils to work with the police, the NHS and regulators to tackle abuse and prevent it from occurring. On June 14 this year, we also announced a review of the 'No Secrets' guidance. The case for legislation to protect vulnerable adults will be considered as part of the review.

Local authorities have been given specific responsibilities. Statutory guidance issued in May 2006 required them to ensure that directors of adult social services maintain a clear organisational and operational focus on safeguarding vulnerable adults and that relevant statutory requirements and other national standards are met, including Protection of Vulnerable Adults (POVA) requirements. Local authorities must make sure the director of adult social services has the powers and resources necessary to encourage a culture of vigilance against the possibility of adult abuse.

We introduced the POVA scheme in July 2004, which requires staff who provide personal care to older people in their own homes or in care homes to be subject to statutory checks, including checks of their criminal record. The scheme, which operates as a work force ban, prevents dangerous or unscrupulous people from gaining access to older and vulnerable people in care homes or being cared for in their own homes.

The Mental Capacity Act 2005, which came into force on 1 October 2007, introduces a new criminal offence of ill treatment or wilful neglect of a person who lacks capacity.

The Government support the work of Action on Elder Abuse (AEA). AEA has been awarded a three-year Section 64 grant, totalling £360,000. This grant covers the three-year period from 2007 to 2009 and is to help fund central administrative costs.

We are introducing a new centralised vetting and barring scheme for people working with children and vulnerable people. This scheme, as set out in the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006, will extend the coverage of the existing barring schemes and draw on wider sources of information to provide a more comprehensive and consistent measure of protection for vulnerable groups across a wide range of settings, including the whole of social care and the NHS. The new scheme will make it far more difficult for abusers to gain access to some of the most vulnerable groups in society and will be a significant step forward.

Epilepsy

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment his Department has made of the implementation of the Government Action Plan for Epilepsy; and when the plan will be reviewed; [155950]

(2) what recent assessment his Department has made of access for patients with epilepsy; and how many patients are on the waiting list. [155951]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the implementation of the action plan for epilepsy, and have no current plans to review this plan. The National Service Framework for Long-term Conditions is now the key policy document for improving health and social care services for neurological conditions, including epilepsy.

Following the publication of the All Party Parliamentary Group (APPG) report "Wasted Money, Wasted Lives", an adjournment debate was held to highlight the findings of this report into the current state of epilepsy services. During this debate I accepted an invitation to meet with the APPG to discuss their findings.

We have made no recent assessment of access for patients with epilepsy. Information on the number of people with epilepsy on waiting lists is not available centrally.

Eyesight: Testing

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of (a) pre-school children, (b) children under five years and (c) children under 12 years received eye tests in each primary care trust in the last 12 months. [158637]

Ann Keen: Information is not collected for the age bands requested. Information on children aged 0 to 15 years will be available at primary care trust (PCT) level in the publication "General Ophthalmic Services: Activity Statistics for England and Wales: April 2007-September 2007". This will be published by March 2008.

The total number of sight tests paid for in England by PCTs for children aged 0-15 years for the year ending 31 March 2007 is 2,113,480. This represents 20.2 per cent. of total sight tests provided in England for this period. The percentage of children aged 0-15 having a sight test was 21.8 per cent. in 2006-07, although a few children may have had more than one sight test during the year.

These data are extracted from table B4 of the General Ophthalmic Services: Activity Statistics for England and Wales, year ending 31 March 2007 report.

This report, published by the Information Centre for health and social care, is available in the Library and is also available at:

Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis was for the statement made by the Prime Minister that the Darzi review is the largest consultation on the future of the NHS ever conducted, as stated in his article of 18 September 2007 at www.pm.gov.ukoutput/Page13219.asp. [156788]

Ann Keen: The National Health Service Next Stage Review is an ongoing process of engagement. The scale of these discussions is unprecedented with engagement in nine strategic health authorities involving clinicians, other staff, patients, the public and other key local stakeholders, including social care, local government and the voluntary sector.

Health Services: Autism

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the ability of the service plans of local commissioners to meet the needs of people with autism in (a) Portsmouth and (b) Hampshire; and if he will make a statement; [158553]

(2) what plans he has to ensure that local commissioners (a) demonstrate their plans to provide services to people with autism and (b) implement those plans with adequate resources in (i) Portsmouth and (ii) Hampshire; and if he will make a statement. [158554]

Ann Keen: The provision of services for people with autism is a matter for the local national health service.

Heart Disease: Death

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department holds on survival rates of victims of (a) cardiac arrest and (b) heart attack which take place outside a hospital. [157009]

Ann Keen: We do not hold national figures on survival after out of hospital cardiac arrest but London ambulance service analyses from 2005-06 show a survival rate of 10.9 per cent. for arrests witnessed by bystanders in London.

Treatment of heart attacks is audited nationally through the Myocardial Infarction National Audit Project, which has links to mortality data held by the Office for National Statistics. It is therefore possible to determine the mortality rate for those suffering a heart attack who receive treatment. Latest available figures (2005-06) indicate that the survival rate (all ages) for those who experience a heart attack and receive treatment is just over 90 per cent. For under 75-year-olds who experience a heart attack there is just over 95 per cent. chance of survival.

Hospices: Finance

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will increase the level of funding from the NHS to hospices. [158662]

Ann Keen: We are developing an End of Life Care Strategy, which will deliver increased choice to all adults regardless of their condition about where they live and die. The strategy will, among many other issues, look at the role of and funding for hospices.

Hospital Beds: Paediatrics

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance has been issued by his Department on bed occupancy rates for paediatric units. [158209]

Ann Keen: No guidance has been issued. An appropriate occupancy rate will need to be able to react to changing local circumstances, such as local demand and staff availability and thereby ensure the delivery of a safe and flexible service. Such issues are best determined locally.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued to hospital trusts on the management and eradication of hospital-acquired infections. [159665]

Ann Keen: Reducing health care associated infections (HCAIs), including meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) and Clostridium difficile is a priority for the Department.

Extensive guidance has been issued over the years and is summarised in the reference section of The Health Act 2006, "Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Health Care Associated Infections". A copy has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_4139336

In addition, recent guidance includes the following:

"Saving Lives: reducing infection, delivering clean and safe care" (updated in June 2007) provides tools to help achieve effective prevention and control of HCAI. This includes high impact intervention care bundles on the use of various catheters, a care bundle for ventilated patients; and best practice documents on prevention of surgical site infection; taking blood cultures; screening for MRSA colonisation, C. difficile and antimicrobial prescribing. This report is available in the Library and also at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_078134

"Isolating patients with health care associated infection" which will help ensure safe placement management and care of patients with infections. This report has been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.clean-safe-care.nhs.uk/cms/ArticleFiles/mmn4zs453tvojo45jrxa1kui25082005104027/Files/IsolationGuidance_07.pdf

"Epic 2: National Evidence-based Guidelines for Preventing Healthcare—Associated Infections in NHS Hospitals in England", published in February 2007, provides the evidence base for many elements of clinical practice which are essential for prevention and control of health care associated infections and which can be adapted for use locally. This report has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

A professional letter on health care associated infections including particularly infection caused by Clostridium difficile was issued to all chief executives of NHS acute trusts, primary care trusts and strategic health authorities on 7 December 2006. This letter set out the policies and clinical practices needed to control Clostridium difficile and also included very simple operational guidance for managers. A copy has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Lettersandcirculars/Dearcolleagueletters/DH_063090

This followed up the joint professional letter from the Chief Medical Officer and the Chief Nursing Officer issued in December 2005 reminding them of the importance of this infection and listed the key actions to control Clostridium difficile and highlighted the guidance available. The letter has been placed in the Library and is available at:

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the take up by pensioners in Peterborough constituency of influenza vaccinations in each year since 1997. [159050]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not available in the format requested. However, data on the uptake of flu vaccine for those aged 65 and over was collected for the first time from 2000-01.

The following table shows the percentage of those aged 65 and over who received a flu vaccine in the Peterborough primary care trust (PCT) area for which data are available.

IVF

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking (a) to monitor and (b) to audit the implementation of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines on IVF treatment across England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [159047]

Dawn Primarolo: When the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published the clinical guideline on fertility services in 2004, we made it clear that we expected primary care trusts (PCTs) in England to move over time to the provision of three cycles of In Vitro Fertilisation (IVF) as recommended. We are working with the patient support organisation Infertility Network UK to help PCTs to identify and share best practice in the provision of fertility services and achieving the NICE guidelines. To support this work, and help identify where the national health service may need further assistance in delivering services in an equitable way, the Department will monitor IVF provision.

Maidstone NHS Trust: Managers

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date his Department was informed of (a) the proposed resignation of the former chief executive of the Maidstone NHS Trust and (b) the fact that a financial package was being negotiated for her. [159453]

Ann Keen: The employment of staff, clinicians and managers within the national health service is a matter for local NHS boards. In the case of Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells we have asked the NHS trust to withhold any severance payment to the former chief executive prior to the Department considering legal advice on the matter.

Maternity Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adverse events have been recorded in NHS maternity services (a) in England and (b) in each strategic health authority area in each year since 1997, broken down by type of adverse event. [157397]

Ann Keen: The National Patient Safety Agency collects reports of patient safety incidents on the National Reporting and Learning System (NRLS). All national health service trusts have been able to report into this system since late 2004. Complete statistics relevant to this question are available for the years October 2005—September 2006 and for October 2006—September 2007. Staff usually report patient safety incidents before any further investigation or follow-up has taken place.

The information requested is set out in the following tables.

Around 98 per cent. of incidents reported were classed as 'no harm', 'low harm' or 'moderate harm' in the view of the person completing the incident report.

The information should be considered in the context that there were 635,748 women having babies in 2006. All of these women also have many episodes of care.

Incidents broken down by incident types occurring in maternity related specialties.

Medical Services: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent evidence his Department has considered on the effect on clinical outcomes of centralisation of services for (a) stroke, (b) heart attack, (c) respiratory problems and (d) other conditions. [157008]

Ann Keen: "Mending hearts and brains", published in December 2006, by the National Clinical Director for Heart Disease and Stroke, makes a clinical case for changes to the way heart attack and stroke services are provided in both hospital and community settings.

This, and similar publications issued with respect to mental health, cancer and children and maternity services in particular, is not intended to be prescriptive but to explain the clinical reasons for changing the way in which services are provided in order to save lives and achieve better outcomes for patients.

The Department is currently developing a National Service Framework for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease. This will be published in 2008.

Midwives: NHS Stockport Primary Care Trust

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many midwives were employed in the NHS Stockport Primary Care Trust in each year since 1997; and how many vacancies for midwives there were in the trust in each year. [157999]

Ann Keen: Midwives are employed by acute trusts rather than primary care trusts. The number of midwives employed by Stockport NHS Foundation Trust and its predecessor organisations since 1997 is listed in the following table. The national health service vacancy survey started in 1999 and records vacancies lasting three months or more. Since the survey began, two vacancies have been recorded at Stockport NHS Foundation Trust, both in March 2005.

MRSA: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of introducing MRSA screening for (a) elective and (b) all admissions to hospital. [158463]

Ann Keen: Estimates of costs for introducing meticillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) are up to £37 million per year and for MRSA screening for all admissions to hospital are up to £124 million per year.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in management positions in NHS trusts in (a) England and (b) the east of England earned more than £100,000 per annum in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 1997-98 in (1) cash and (2) real terms. [158783]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect details on the pay of individuals in national health service trusts. We therefore cannot provide the number earning more than £100,000 per annum.

NHS organisations are public bodies and as such, the pay of their senior executive teams is a matter of public record, published in their annual accounts.

Following the reconfigurations proposed by "Commissioning A Patient-led NHS", the Department in July 2006 published a new "Pay Framework for very senior managers in strategic and special health authorities, primary care trusts and ambulance trusts in July 2006". A copy of the report is available in the Library. Primary care trust executives (chief executives and board level directors) are paid a spot rate salary which is determined (within a range) by the size of the population the PCT serves; for ambulance trust executives it is determined by their expenditure on emergency services and activity.

The spot rate salaries for 2006-07 are shown in the following tables, reflecting the staged pay award announced on 30 March 2006. The Framework also provides for the payment of recruitment and retention premia (of up to 30 per cent. of the spot rate salary) and payments for additional duties (up to 10 per cent, of the spot rate salary) where appropriate.

A copy of the "Very Senior Managers' Pay Framework" (updated July 2007) has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

NHS: Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the 2006-07 Resource Accounts for the NHS pension scheme to be published. [159107]

Ann Keen: The National Health Service Pension Scheme Resource Accounts for the 2006-07 year should be laid before Parliament on Monday 22 October.

Nurses: Manpower

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses were employed by Stockport Primary Care Trust in each year since 1997. [158006]

Ann Keen: The information requested can be found in the following table:

Note:
More accurate validation processes in 2006 have resulted in the identification and removal of 9858 duplicate non-medical staff records out of the total workforce figure of 1.3 million in 2006. Earlier years' figures could not be accurately validated in this way and so will be slightly inflated. The level of inflation in earlier years' figures is estimated to be less than 1 per cent. of total across all non-medical staff groups for headcount figures (and negligible for full time equivalents). This should be taken into consideration when analysing trends over time.

Obesity

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce levels of obesity in England. [159458]

Dawn Primarolo: Obesity is a serious problem, with significant health, social and financial costs. Successfully tackling the problem requires a whole society approach.

The Foresight report (copies of which are available in the Library) predicts that by 2050 over half the adult population will be obese, costing the nation an extra £45.5 billion a year.

The Government have already made significant progress in a number of areas. For example:

We have worked with Ofcom to change the nature and balance of advertising food to children, by restricting the promotion of foods high in salt, sugar and fat.

We have transformed school sport over the past five years, with 86 per cent. of school children now doing two hours of quality school sport a week. And we want to go further so that every child has the chance of five hours of sport every week, backed by £100 million a year additional investment.

We have put in place tougher nutritional standards for school food, supported by an investment of £500 million between 2005 and 2011 to transform school food across the school day.

In March 2006, the Food Standards Agency launched their signpost model for front of pack food labelling.

We commissioned Foresight to use scientific evidence to help us understand more fully the scale of the problem and with the publication of their report today, we now have a world-leading evidence platform to move further and faster in our approach to tackling obesity.

The Government have committed to go further and faster on its existing obesity policies and will be developing a comprehensive cross-Government strategy on obesity, building on the evidence in this report. The work will be led by a cross-governmental ministerial group convened by the Secretary of State for Health.

Prostate Cancer: Screening

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prostate specific antigen (PSA) tests were carried out by the national health service in 2006-07; how many men were diagnosed with prostate cancer as a result of the test; what alternatives to the PSA test have been assessed; what plans he has to introduce such alternative tests; and what discussions he has had with his counterpart in the Welsh Assembly Government on methods of prostate cancer diagnosis. [157978]

Ann Keen: The prostate specific antigen (PSA) test measures the level of PSA in a man's blood. However, it is not perfect. Some men with prostate cancer do not have raised levels of PSA. Two-thirds of men with raised levels of PSA, depending on the cut-off level used, do not have prostate cancer. The PSA test cannot distinguish between men with slow-growing prostate cancer and those who have a more aggressive disease.

The number of PSA tests carried out in the national health service is not held centrally. The Department policy research programme funded a study on urological referral in men with raised PSA levels and patterns of testing in general practice between 2002 and 2004. The study showed that the annual rate of testing is estimated to be 8.6 per 100 men [1].

The number of men diagnosed with prostate cancer as a result of having a PSA test is not held centrally. However, it is likely that most men with a diagnosis of prostate cancer had at least one PSA test as part of the diagnostic process.

The Government are committed to introducing a national screening programme for prostate cancer if and when screening and treatment techniques are sufficiently well developed. There is currently insufficient evidence from any country in the world to show that screening would reduce deaths from prostate cancer. The United Kingdom National Screening Committee (NSC) keeps screening for prostate cancer under review.

The Department is supporting the development of screening technology for prostate cancer by having a comprehensive research strategy into all aspects of prostate cancer. We are jointly with other National Cancer Research Institute (NCRI) members funding two NCRI Prostate Cancer Research Collaboratives, and the Department has funded half of the total £7.4 million cost for the first three years. Following a review of progress by an international expert panel the Department, Cancer Research UK and the Medical Research Council have agreed to provide a further three years funding of £3.9 million. The research undertaken by the Collaboratives covers all aspects of prostate cancer, and the NSC will be kept closely informed of any research results affecting the evidence base of prostate cancer screening. We are also monitoring international trials on prostate cancer screening.

It is important to note that in order for a screening technology to contribute to saving lives it is essential for there to be effective treatments for the disease detected. That is why the Department is funding a £20 million trial of treatments for (PSA) screen-detected early prostate cancer (the ProtecT trial). The trial is due to complete in 2008.

Regarding the Welsh Assembly, the Director of Cancer Services at NHS Wales is an observer on the Department's Prostate Cancer Advisory Group.

[1] This is estimated data from selected general practitioners (GPs) at four laboratories and does not represent the whole of England. Only GP requests for PSA testing were included in the study, not those from urology departments. The study did not include testing undertaken in the independent sector. The study was restricted to men aged 45 to 84 years.

Streptococcus: Pregnant Women

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his Department will assess the latest evidence for testing pregnant women for group B streptococcus; and if he will make a statement. [157834]

Ann Keen: The United Kingdom National Screening Committee (UK NSC) advises Ministers and the national health service in all four UK countries about all aspects of screening policy and supports implementation. Using research evidence, pilot programmes and economic evaluation, it assesses the evidence for programmes against a set of internationally recognised criteria.

The UK NSC is considering the implications of the latest research as part of an ongoing programme of work to assess the evidence on the best way to reduce newborn group B streptococcus infections.
